Peterborough Real Estate In Will Of Senator Cox

Warning to Beneficiaries — Life Insurance and Stock Holdings —Whole Estate Was to Have Been Tied Up For 21 Years

MALONE HAS LEGAL WORK

When the late Senator George A. Cox drafted his last will and testament he had a clause inserted which stipulated that any of the beneficiaries disputing the terms of the will would forfeit all claims. It reads as follows:

"I direct that any and every person obtaining any benefits under this, my will, shall, therewith, accept all the terms thereof, and should any such person take any steps to set aside or alter my said will or any terms thereof such person shall thereby forfeit all benefit thereunder. Any such step shall of itself make void any and every beneficial provision for such person herein contained."

Concerning the services of a solicitor the document states: "I desire that whenever and so often as the services of a legal adviser shall be necessary in connection with the administration of my estate and the carrying out of the terms thereof, the said Elias Talbot Malone shall be retained to act professionally and in all such matters and be paid his proper and reasonable remuneration for all such services notwithstanding his appointment herein as one of my executors and trustees.

Changed His Mind.

"The idea which I had of tying up my estate for the term of twenty-one years is not now considered to be practicable or advisable," states in part one clause of the will referring to certain trust estates set apart "for the happening of certain contingencies,' in an indeture dated 22nd April, 1910. The Senator's will in force at date was revoked, and now neither the trust estates nor the bulk of the estate will be tied up for the twenty-one years previously enjoined.

Concerning the payment of legacies of $500 each to Alfred Warren and Ignace Perugini, should either of them continue for five years after the testator's death in the employment of the widow he shall be entitled to another $500.

THROAT Troubles ARE Dangerous

because the swollen glands and inflamed membranes often affect other tissues and impair their healthy action.

Scott's Emulsion stands alone as nature's corrector of throat troubles; its cod liver oil is speedily converted into germ-resisting tissue—the glycerine is curative and healing, while the combined emulsion upbuilds the forces to avert the weakening influence which always follow throat troubles.

SCOTT'S EMULSION is best for these important reasons—it relieves the trouble, it prevents a relapse, it is not changed with adulterants or unsatisfying drugs.

Shun substitutions and insist on Scott's.

Australia Will Not Stand Inert Until It Arrives.

LONDON, Feb. 18.—Speaking at a civic reception at Sydney yesterday, Sir Ian Hamilton declared that the nation's powers were arising now that it had got within the range of potential interference, and it might be that the next phase of great military struggles would be in the Pacific.

"Cast your eyes west, northwest and east," he said, "and you will see a ring of armed men and armed nations, with Australia sitting in the middle of that ring. It appears to me that some of those nations are looking in formidable manner at Australia. It is important that the people of Great Britain, South Africa, Canada and India should know and feel that in what I may call the hub of the Pacific, the people are not waiting until danger absolutely arrives, but are taking time by the forelock."

DENIES JINGOISM.

Navy Policy Only a Matter of Safety Says First Lord.

LONDON, Feb. 18.—Hon. Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, has sent the following message to Tonman Mosley, Radical candidate for South Bucks, where the poll takes place to-day:

"I am very glad to see the strong stand you are making for a sober and solid provision for our navy. We are not jingoes or scaremongers. We are working for the abatement of naval and military rivalries. Meanwhile what is necessary to maintain the safety of our country and of our empire will have to be done, and will be done and done thoroughly. Hearty wishes for your success."

ERUPTION ON HEAD HAD TO CUT HAIR

Formed Pimples and Matter Spread. For Three Months Did Not Go to School. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Cured in Ten Days.

69 Rue Deradilly, Ville Emard, Montreal, Que.—"Cuticura Soap and Ointment cured my little girl, aged eleven, of itch of the head. It formed a pimple and that pimple broke and the matter spread and wherever the matter went another formed. She had large scabs on her head and at night she scratched until the blood came. I was obliged to cut her hair all around the eruption. For three months she did not go to school and I cared for it during that time without result.

"I was told to wash it and to make an ointment of ——, but after washing it she was worse. One evening when reading the paper I saw the advertisement of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and I wrote at once. After receiving the sample I immediately washed her head with the Cuticura Soap, then I put the Cuticura Ointment on. I did that twice a day, evening and morning. From the time I commenced using the Cuticura Soap and Ointment that night she did not scratch any more. It stopped the itching from the first evening. After buying some Cuticura Soap and another box of Cuticura Ointment, in ten days she was completely cured." (Signed) Mrs. Arthur Poirier, July 3, 1913.

Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment are sold by druggists and dealers everywhere. A single set is often sufficient. For a liberal free sample of each, with 32-p. book, send post-card to Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Dept. D, Boston, U. S. A.

MR. GEO. W. BENNETT MAKES REPORT ON NORTHERN ROADS

1250 Miles of Highway Were Constructed or Improved During the Past Year

George W. Bennett, whose home is in North Monaghan, Superintendent of Colonization Roads, in his report to the Minister of Public Works, states that during the past year 1,250 miles of highway, at a cost of $406,341, have been constructed or improved. The roads in the northern part of Ontario have been found to cost considerably more than similar work in older Ontario by reason of the Government having to maintain camps for the workers.

In the district comprising Fort Frances, Rainy River, Kenora, Fort William, Port Arthur, Algoma, Sudbury, and Manitoulin Island, 202 miles of colonization roads were completed, and 205 miles of roads under the by-law system. The total cost of the latter was $59,000, of which the Province bore $45,000.

In the western district, Parry Sound, Muskoka, Simcoe, Bruce, Sturgeon Falls and Nipissing, the colonization road mileage is 116; by-law roads 80 miles. The cost of the latter was $15,000, the province paying $11,000.

The eastern division, which includes the remainder of the northern part of old Ontario, has now 202 miles of new colonization roads. The by-law roads, new and improved, amount to 344 miles. The expenditure for this section was $52,000, of which $32,000 was granted by the Government.

In the Timiskaming district 113 miles of by-law roads were built at a cost of $17,000, of which the Government paid $10,000. The Soo-Sudbury road was pushed ahead for a considerable distance, and 18 miles of this now remains to be completed.

Switzerland plans to establish a national park in a valley rich in botanical and geological treasures.

"THE FREE RANGE"

By Elwell Lawrence

When the merriment had subsided a fourth man volunteered the opinion that, although there was nothing that could force Bud to tell what he knew, still, such a defiance of their organization should not go unpunished. The fact that the cowmen were opposed to the entrance of sheep into the territory was enough excuse, he thought, to make an example of Bud Larkin and thus keep other ambitious sheepmen away from the range in this section.

One after another of the men gave their opinions and finally lined up in two camps, the first resolved on punishing Larkin in some manner, and the second in favour of letting him go with a warning that he must take the consequences if he ever attempted to walk any more sheep over the Bar T range or any other range of the association.

As has been said, the right of justice and fair-dealing was the very backbone of the cattle-raising industry, and owners depended almost entirely upon the other men's recognition of it to insure them any profits in the fall.

For this reason six of the eleven men were in favour of letting Larkin go. The matter rested with the majority vote and was about to be put to the final ballot when Mike Stelton got on his feet and asked if he might put a few questions.

Bissell, only too eager for any delay or interruption that might change the sentiment of the majority, granted the request.

Stelton's dark face was illumined for a moment with a crafty smile, and then he said:

"Yuh know a man by the name of Smithy Caldwel, don't yuh?"

"Yes," said Bud, cautiously, not seeing quite where the question might lead.

"He was in that stampede with yuh, wasn't he?"

"Yes."

"He was one of the party sent out to string yuh up, wasn't he?"

This time there was a long hesitation as Bud tried to catch the drift of the other's interrogation.

"Yes," he answered slowly at last.

"Well, then, he must have been one of the rustlers," cried Stelton in a triumphant voice, turning to the rest of the men who were listening intently.

"All right, I admit it," remarked Larkin coolly. "I don't see where that is taking you."

"Just keep yore shirt on an' yuh will in a minute," retorted Stelton. "Now just one or two more questions.

"Do you remember the first night Caldwell came to the Bar T ranch?"

Larkin did not answer. A premonition that he was in the toils of this man concerning that dark thing in his past life smote him with a chill of terror. He remembered wondering that very night whether or not Stelton had been listening to his talk with Caldwell. Then the recollection suddenly came to him, that even though he had heard, the foreman could not expose the thing that was back of it all. Once more he regained his equilibrium.

"Yes, I remember that night," he said calmly.

"All right!" snapped Stelton, his words like pistol-shots. "Then yuh remember that Smithy Caldwell got five hundred dollars from yuh after a talk by the corral, don't you?"

"Yes," replied Larkin, in immense relief that Stelton had not mentioned th blackmail.

"Well, then, gents," cried the foreman with the air of a lawyer making a great point, "yuh have the admission from Larkin that he gave money secretly to one of the rustlers. If that ain't connivance and actual support I'm a long-horn heifer."

He sat down on the grass triumphantly.

It seemed to Bud Larkin as though some gigantic club had descended on the top of his head and numbed all his senses. Careful as he had been, this wily devil had led him into a labyrinthic maze of questions, the end of which was a concealed precipice. And, like one of his own sheep, he had leaped over it at the leader's call!

He looked at the faces of his judges. They were all dark now and perplexed. Even Billy Speaker seemed convinced. Bud admitted to himself that his only chance was to refute Stelton's damning inference. But how?

The cowmen were beginning to talk in low tones among themselves, and there was not much time. Suddenly an idea came. With a difficult effort he controlled his nervous trepidation.

"Men," he said, "Stelton did not pursue his questions far enough."

"What d'yuh mean by that?" asked Bissell, glaring at him savagely.

"I mean that he did not ask me what Caldwell actually did with the money I gave him. He made you believe that Smithy used it for the rustlers with my consent. That is a blamed lie."

"What did he do with it?" cried Billy Speaker.

"Ask Stelton," shouted Bud, leaping out of his chair and pointing an accusing finger at the foreman. "He seems to know so much about everything, ask him!"

The foreman, dazed by the unexpected attack, turned a surprised and harrowed countenance toward the men as he scrambled to his feet. He cast quick, fearful glances in Larkin's direction, as though attempting to discover how much of certain matters that young man actually knew.

"Ask him!" repeated Bud emphatically. "There's a fine man to listen to, coming here with a larkum story that he can't follow up."

"Come on, Stelton, loose yore jaw," suggested Billy Speaker. "What did this here Caldwell do with the money?"

Stelton, his face black with a cloud of rage and disappointment, glared from one to aonther of the men, who were eagerly awaiting his replies. Larkin, watching him closely, saw again those quick, furtive flicks of the eye in his direction, and the belief grew upon him that Stelton was suspicious and afraid of something as yet undreamed of by the rest. Larkin determined to remember the fact.

"I don't know what he done with the money," growled the foreman at last, admitting his defeat.

"Why did you give Caldwell five hundred in the first place, Larkin?" asked Bissell suddenly.

"That is a matter between himself and me only," answered Bud freezingly, while at the same time he sat in fear and trembling that Stelton would leap before the cowmen at this new cue and retail all the conversation of that night at the corral.

But for some reason the foreman let the opportunity pass and Bud wondered to himself what this sudden silence might mean.

He knew perfectly well that no gentle motive was responsible for the fellow's attitude and wrote the occurrence down on the tablets of his memory for further consideration at a later date.

After this there was little left to be done. Stelton's testimony had failed in its chief purpose, to compass the death of Larkin, but it had not left him clear of the mark of suspicion and he himself had little idea of absolute acquittal. Under the guard of his sharpshooting cow-puncher he was led back to his room in the ranch house to await the final judgment.

In an hour it was delivered to him, and in all the history of the range wars between the sheep and cattle men there is recorded no stranger sentence. In a land where men were either guilty or innocent, and, therefore, dead or alive, it stands alone.

It was decided by the cowmen that, as a warning and example to other sheep owners, Bud Larkin should be tied to a tree and squirted, the maximum of the punishment being set at thirty blows and the sentence to be carried out at dawn.

CHAPTER XV.

Cowland TopsyTurvy.

To Bud Larkin enough had already happened to make him as philosophical as Socrates. Epictetus remarks that our chief happiness should consist in knowing that we are entirely indifferent to calamity; that disgrace is nothing if our consciences are right and that death, far from being a calamity, is, in fact, a release.

But the world only boasts of a few great minds capable of believing these theories, and Larkin's was not on of them. He was distinctly and completely depressed at the prospect ahead of him.

It was about ten o'clock at night and he sat in the chair beside his table, upon which a candle was burning, running over the pages of an ancient magazine.

The knowledge of what the cowmen had decided to do with him had been brought by a committee of three of the men just before the supper hour and since that time Larkin had been fuming and growling with rage.

There seems to be something particularly shameful in a whipping that makes it the most dreaded of punishments. It was so at the time in which this story is laid, for echoes of '65 were still to be heard reverberating from one end of the land to the other. In the West whippings were of rare occurrence, if not unknown, except in penitentiaries, where they had entirely too great a vogue.

Larkin's place of captivity was now changed. Some enterprising cowboy, at Bissell's orders, had fashioned iron bars and these were fixed vertically across the window. The long-unused lock of the door had been fitted with a key ad other bars fastened across the doorway horizontally so that should Larkin force the lock he would still meet opposition.

Since Juliet's unpleasant episode with her father Larkin had seen her just once—immediately afterward. Then, frankly and sincerely, she had told him what had happened and why, and Larkin, touched to the heart, had pleaded with her for the great happiness of his life.

The realisation of their great need for each other was the natural outcome of the position of each, and the fact that, whatever happened, Juliet found herself forced to espouse Bud's cause.

In that interview with her father she had come squarely to the parting of the ways, and had chosen the road that meant life and happiness to her. The law that human intellects will seek their own intellectual level, providing the person is sound in principle, had worked out in her case, and, once she had made her decision, she clung to it with all the steadfastness of a strong and passionate nature.

It was Bissell's discovery of a new and intimate relation between his daughter and the sheepman that had resulted in the latter's close confinement, and from the time that this occurred the two had seen nothing of each other except an occasional glimpse at a distance when Bud was taken out for a little exercise.

To-night, therefore, as Larkin sat contemplating the scene to be enacted at dawn, his sense of shame increased a hundredfold, for he knew that, as long as she lived, Julie could not forget the occurrence.

It should not be thought that all this while he had not formulated plans of escape. Many had come to him, but had been quickly dismissed as impracticable. Day and night one of the Bar T cowboys watched him. And even though he had been able to affect escape from his room, he knew that without a horse he was utterly helpless on the broad, level stretches of the prairie. And to take a horse from the Bar T corral would lay him open to that greatest of all range crimes—horse-stealing.

To-night his guards had been doubled. One paced up and down outside his window and the other sat in the dining-room on which his door opened.

Now, at ten o'clock the entire Bar T outfit was asleep. Since placing the bunk-house at the disposal of the cowmen from other ranches, the punchers slept on the ground—rolled in their blankets as they always did when overtaken by night on the open range.

At ten-thirty Bud put out his candle, undressed, and went to bed. But he could not sleep. His mind reverted to Hard-winter Sims and the sheep camp by the Badwater. He wondered whether the men from Montana had arrived yet, and, most intensely of all, he wondered whether Ah Sin had got safely through with his message.

He calculated that the Chinaman must have arrived three days before unless unexpectedly delayed, and he chafed at the apparent lack of effort made on his behalf. The only explanation that offered itself was—that Sims, taking advantage of the events happening at the Bar T, had seized the opportunity to carry the gathering sheep north across the range. If such was the case, Larkin resigned himself to his fate, since he had given Sims full power to do as he thought best.

At about midnight he was dimly conscious of a scuffling sound outside his window, and, getting softly out of bed, went to the opening. In a few minutes the head of a man rose gradually above the window-sill close to the house, and a moment later he was looking into the face of Hard-winter Sims.

Controlling the shock this apparation gave him, Larkin placed his finger on is lips and whispered in a tone so low it was scarcely more than a breath:

"Did yon get the fellow outside?"

Sims nodded.

"There's another one in the dining-room just outside my door. He ought to be relieved at one o'clock, but he'll have to go out and wake up his relief. He'll go out the kitchen door, and when he does nab him, but don't let him yell. Now pass me a gun."

Without a sound, Sims inserted a long .45 between the clumsy bars, and followed it with a cartridge belt.

"How'll we get yuh out?" he whispered.

"After fixing the man inside come out again and loosen these bars; the door is barred, too."

"Where are the cowmen?" asked Sims.

"All in the bunk-house, and the punchers are sleeping out near the corral."

"Yes, I seen 'em. Now you go back to bed an' wait till I him through the window. Then we'll have yuh out o' here in a jiffy."

The herder's form vanished in the darkness, and Larkin, his heart beating high with hope and excitement, returned to bed. Before lying down, however, he dressed himself completely and strapped on the cartridge belt and gun.

The minutes passed like hours. Listening with every nerve fibre on the alert, Bud found the night peopled with a multitude of sounds that on an ordinary occasion would have passed unnoticed. So acute did his sense of hearing become that the crack of a board in the house contracting under the night coolness seemed to him almost like a pistol shot.

When at last it appeared to him that Sims must have failed and that dawn would surely begin to break, he heard a heavy sound in the dining-room and sat bolt upright. It was merely the cow-puncher there preparing to go out and waken his successor. Although the man made as little noise as possible, it seemed to Budthat his footsteps must wake everybody in the house.

The man went out of the dining-room into the mess-room of the cowboys, closing the door behind him softly, and after that what occurred was out of the prisoner's ken.

After a while, however, Bud's ears caught the faintest breath of a hiss at the window, and he rolled softly out of bed on to the floor in his stocking feet. Sims was there and another man with him, and both were prying at the bars of the window with instruments muffled in cloth.

"Did you get him?" asked Bud.

"Shore! He won't wake up for a week, that feller," answered Sims placidly.

For a quarter of an hour the two worked at the clumsy bars, assisted by Bud from the inside. At the end of that time two of them came loose at the lower ends and were bent upward. Then the combined efforts of the three men were centered on the third bar, which gave way in a few minutes.

The Varying Cost of Education.

A certain Yale graduate, for many years a member of the faculty and always a close observer of the homo undergraduate, once (in a moment of exasperation, we take it) let drop a significant remark. The burden of the remark was that a majority of the students attending Yale ought to be taxed some several thousands of dollars a year in return for the privilege of attending college, while the remaining small minority should be paid double that amount for contributing themselves to the undergraduate community. Without doubt this observation, like the famous reports of Mark Twain's death, was slightly exaggerated. But it was not without its very considerable modicum of truth.—Yale Alumni Weekly.

HAD INDIGESTION.

Almost Despaired of Ever Getting Well.

When your food has not been properly digested, your body has not received the benefit it should. The exertions of the gastric juice have been confined entirely to removing the unmasticated, undigested portions of food, which they cannot properly digest as speedily as possible from the body, therefore only giving the blood a small percentage of nourishment with which to feed the tissues. No wonder then that Indigestion and Dyspepsia attack the stomach. No medicine can surpass Burdock Blood Bitters as a cure for this particular disease. It regulates the bowels, promotes perfect digestion, makes pure blood, tones the stomach, and thus restores perfect health to the debilitated system.

Mrs. Mary MacKay, Hunter's Mountain, N.S., writes:—"I was troubled with Indigestion for more than ten years. I tried several Doctor's medicines claiming the power to cure, but all without success. Having heard of the many cures effected by Burdock Blood Bitters, I decided to give it a trial. After taking two bottles I was completely cured. My appetite which was very poor, is now good, and I can eat most everything without any disagreeable feelings. I can strongly recommend B.B.B. to anyone suffering from indigestion."

No More Backache

Mr. J. J. Gilliam, Bricklayer, Weston, Ont., writes:—"Dr. Chase's name has been a household word in my family for over thirty years. We came from England to Canada in 1870 and soon after that I began to suffer from pain across the loins and derangements of the kidneys which often interfered with my work as bricklayer. A brother workman who had suffered in the same way and was cured by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills gave me half a box of these pills for trial. These were of very great benefit to me and a second box cured me and took all the pains out of my back. I well remember with what comfort and pleasure I did my work after that.

"From that day to this we have kept Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills in the house as a family necessity, and have found that they keep the kidneys, liver and bowels regular and the system healthful. It is evident that great care is taken in the composition of these pills to judge by their uniform action on the human body."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are above all else the workingman's friend. 25 cents a box, 5 for $1.00, at all dealers. Sample box will be mailed free if you mention this paper. Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

A Man That Failed.

The French National library in the Rue de Richelieu, Paris, is full of wonders for the lovers of history. One of its treasures is a map of North and South America as French possessions. The map is dated 1564, and here is the explanation of it: Catherine de Medicis, the queen of Henry II. and mother of Francois II., Charles I. and Henri III., dreamed once of the conquest of the two Americas. She even named viceroys, one for North America and the other for South America. They were on their way to the new world when the queen's audacious plan fell through because of events at home. The queen, however, had a map made showing her projected possessions under the French flag.—New York Sun.

Car of the Czar.

The private car of the czar of Russia is said to be practically dynamite proof, and owing to its weight it could not be run on most of the European lines. The car is elegantly furnished and also contains a chapel, where prayers are offered for his safety. The czar travels with only one chef, who is well along in years and who served his father and for awhile the grandfather of the present German emperor.

MEDICINE IN AFRICA.

Faith Plays a Large Part With the Black Aborigine.

As might be expected, the African native is a person of great "suggestibility" in respect to health and disease. If he thinks he is going to die, says a recent writer, he will, and very promptly, even if he has the most trivial complaint. If he thinks he is going to get well, he is apt to do so in the face of extraordinary odds.

Three things were likely to be the matter; too much meat, fever, or pus infection from slight wounds. To these, in the rainy season, would be added the various sorts of colds. That means either Epsom salts, quinine, or a little excursion with the lancet and permanganate. The African traveler gets to be a very proficient medicine man within those narrow limits.

No matter what the matter was, the proper thing for the sufferer to do was to throw a red blanket over the head and to assume as miserable an attitude as possible. A sore toe demanded just as much concentrated woe as a case of pneumonia.

Sick call was cried after the day's work was finished. Then Miganda, our head man, lifted up his voice.

"N'gonjwa! n'gonjwa!" he shouted; and at the shout the red cowls gathered in front of the tent.

They all squatted miserably, oh, very miserably, in a row. The head man stood over them rather fiercely. He surveyed the lot contemplatively, hoping to heaven that nothing complicated was going to turn up. One of the boys hovered in the background as dispensing chemist.

"Well," said F. at last, "what's the matter with you?"

The man indicated pointed to his head and the back of his neck, and groaned. If he had a slight headache, he groaned just as much as if his head had been splitting. F. asked a few questions, and took his temperature. The clinical thermometer is in itself considered big medicine, and often does much good.

"Too much meat, my friend," remarked F. in English, and to his boy in Swahili, "bring the cup."

He put in the cup a triple dose of Epsom salts. The African requires three times a white man's dose. This, therapeutically, was all that was required; but psychologically, the job was just begun. Your African can do wonderful things with his imagination. Therefore the white man desires not only to enliven his patient's internal economy with Epsom salts, but also to arouse his faith. To this end F. added to that triple dose of medicine a spoonful of chutney, one of Worcestershire sauce, a few grains of quinine, and a crystal or so of permanganate. This assortment the patient drank with gratitude — and the tears running down his cheeks.

A big Kavirondo rose to his feet. "Homa—fever" whined the man.

F. clapped his hand on the back of the other's neck.

"I think," he remarked, contemplatively, in English, "that you're a liar, and want to get out of carrying your load."

The clinical thermometer showed no evidence of temperature.

"I'm pretty near sure you're a liar," observed F., in the pleasantest conversational tone, and still in English, "but you may be merely a poor diagnostician. We'll see."

So he mixed a pint of medicine.

"There's Epsom salts for the real part of your trouble, and here, a few things for the fake."

He then proceeded to concoct a mixture, the awfulness of which is the exact measure of his imagination. The imagination was only limited by the necessity of keeping the mixture harmless. Every hot, biting nauseous horror in camp went into that pint measure.

"There," continued F., "if you drink that and come back again tomorrow fo treatment, I'll believe you are sick."

Without undue pride, I should like to record that I was the first to think of putting into the draft a peculiarly nauseous gun oil. Thereby I acquired a reputation of making tremendous medicine.

Heart and Hard.

The surname Heart is really a corruption of Hard, which was a name given to show that the owner was a man of firm character and resolute bearing.

Pekin's Temple of Heaven.

China's famous Temple of Heaven was formerly visited once a year by the emperor to give an account of his empire and its affairs during the previous twelve months. This was set forth in writing, and the manuscripts were then placed in the furnace and in that way consigned to the emperor in heaven. The Temple of Heaven is one of the most beautiful and interesting sights of picturesque Pekin. The walls inclosing the temple, the royal apartments, the altar and the grounds are three miles in circumference, and the white marble structures with their blue and green porcelain tiles have to be seen to be appreciated.

Dangers of Crowds.

When a man is standing still his weight acts vertically downward, but on moving he exerts a side thrust greater than his weight. Consequently a crowd moving rapidly on a structure like a pier exerts a tremendous sidewise pressure which tends to throw the pier over. If a man stands on a plank bridge it bends slightly, but if he walks across it sways violently up and down. A regiment of soldiers marching in step across a trestle or other light bridge would cause such a tremendous swaying motion that it would give way, and so soldiers always "break step" in crossing such a bridge.

On a certain swing footbridge across a glen in the north of Scotland is a notice forbidding Newfoundland dogs to be taken across. These dogs trot in such perfect rhythm as to cause a dangerous "sway" in a small bridge.

A man rising to a standing from a sitting posture exerts on the ground a force equal to twice his weight. Thus when a crowd suddenly springs to its feet at a football match or theater the strain on the supporting stands is enormous and has to be allowed for by the engineers.—Pearson's Weekly.

Western Forestry Improves.

R. H. Campbell, director of forestry, who has returned from a tour of inspection of the Dominion forest reserves in the west, says: "Undoubtedly the work there is in better shape this year than ever before. Not only have fire-fighting facilities, such as trails, lookout stations, telephone lines, tool caches and fire guards, been very much improved, but the construction of good roads has made the pleasure resorts in these reserves more accessible to the public."

Put Wooden Leg on Cow.

Dr. James M. I. Galloway, a young veterinary surgeon of Kirkintilloch, Scotland, has performed a most remarkable operation. A Holstein cow belonging to a friend broke its leg while climbing a hill. Dr. Galloway gave the cow an anaesthetic, and then amputated the injured member. A wooden leg was then designed and fitted to the cow and she now is perfectly well and contented.

You can depend on Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine to relieve and cure all inflammations and irritations of the throat and bronchial tubes.

BROAD DAYLIGHT AT NIGHT.

That's the Sight That Startles One in Alaska in Summer.

Speaking from an experience of more than 100,000 miles' travel on sea and land, it is remarkable how many things you see in Alaskan waters which you have seen nowhere else in the world. It was a novel sight to have a whole school of whales spouting at one time, with some of them cruising up near the boat and rolling over like submarines pitching in a heavy sea. And the herds of Alaskan fur seals, boarsely bellowing as we approached, added to memory's repertoire of barking monkeys, groaning camels and trumpeting elephants.

Another unusual thrill that comes to the summer traveler in Alaska springs from the eternal daylight of that wonderful country. Whether you actually see the midnight sun or not depends upon the date and the latitude to which you ascend, but darkness is a thing of the past after the second night out of Seattle. A dusky gloaming takes its place until you get still farther north, and then you may read a newspaper on deck at midnight without straining your eyes. This phenomenon is one of the strangest in Alaska. It gives you a shock to leave the club at Dawson or Fairbanks at 1 o'clock in the morning and find yourself in broad daylight when you come out on the silent streets!—Edgar Allen Forbes in Leslie's.

Women In England.

In the seventeenth century Englishwomen were recognised as possessing an economic and political status side by side with Englishmen. There was written an interesting entry in the church warden's accounts of St. Martin's-in-the-Fields, proving that one Elizabeth Bartlett was intrusted with the casting of the second bell and that all the women employed thus were paid at the same rate as men for the same work. Another instance is to be found in the records of the Fleet prison, of which the first female warden, appointed in 1217 on the death of her husband Robert, received the same salary "as the said Robert had been accustomed to during his life."

Sterne's Destitution.

Laurence Sterne, the writer, was the victim of the intensest poverty. A little time before his death, being in a state of destitution, he went one evening to borrow £5 from his friend Garrick. Upon arriving he heard music and knew that a party was going on. He heard the merry laughter and, gently replacing the uplifted knocker, retraced his steps.

We never feel our miseries so keenly as when contrasted with the joys of others, and it is only then that we realize Wordworth's picture:

And homeless near a thousand homes I stood
And near a thousand tables pined for food.

First Hunger Strike.

Cleopatra seems to have been the first hunger striker. Shakespeare represents her as saying when she was captured:

Sir, I will eat no meat; I'll not drink, sir;
A'll not sleep neither; this mortal house I'll ruin.
Do Caesar what he can. Know, sir, that I
Will not wait pinioned at your master's court.

Lucky Adam.

When Adam got home from a party
One speech ne'er his pleasure could deck,
For dear Mother Eve never shouted at him:
"You villain! Just look at that clock!"

Radway's Ready Relief

E. L. Haskell of McGee, Me., writes: "I had muscular rheumatism six weeks. Had three doctors but did not get much relief. A friend insisted on me trying R. R. R. and sent me two bottles. In twenty minutes after the first application I could turn in bed with ease. Have used two bottles and am well."

The Perfect Street.

I know a street where all is fair;
In splendid lines the houses loom,
And tender fragrance fills the air,
As if red roses were abloom.

No noisy riot mars the scene;
Peace and perfection there abide;
The steps are white, the grass is green
The lawns are glorious and wide.

It ever will be as it was—
A perfect street, sublimely fair,
That leads to paradise, because
One day she walked beside me there.

YUAN-SHIH-KAI ❁ WINDSOR CASTLE ❁ SLIT SKIRT BARRED ❁ ART SEASON

TANGO AND SLIT SKIRT NOT AT BERLIN BALLS BY IMPERIAL DECREE

Emperor and Empress, with Fastidious Taste, Seek to Raise the Dance to a Fine Art and Issue Strict Commands in Regard to the Costuming and Manner of Procedure.

MANY AMERICANS IN THE SOCIETY WEEK

(Special Dispatch.)

BERLIN, Feb. 14.

THE first court ball of the season was on Wednesday and was the largest and most brilliant of the three balls to be given this month. Dancing at court may not be done indiscriminately, as the Emperor and Empress have the most fastidious taste in such matters and have raised dancing to the dignity of a fine art. Each named two young officers, one from the Garde du Corps and another from the First Guard regiment of infantry, are appointed as Vortaenzer, or masters of ceremony, an office which means much executive ability and hard work.

It is the duty of the Vortaenzers, this year Count von Donnermarck and Lieutenant von Bock und Polach, to work out a scheme of action for each ball with all the details of a military manoeuvre, otherwise it would be impossible in the limited space to hold the formal dances which the Kaiser ordains shall solely be eligible at court. At rare intervals the programme is punctuated with the minuet and the waltz, in which etiquette requires of the dancers that they make only one tour of the room and refrain from reversing.

Slit Skirts Barred.

The ball always closes with a dance peculiar to the Prussian court, which takes the place of the customary cotillion. It bears a general resemblance to the polonaise, and is participated in by all the dancers. The royal princes and princesses "command" their partners, which frequently causes dismay to some dashing young lieutenant or one of the season's buds.

Strict orders were issued from the Court Chamberlain's office that no slit skirts would be permitted at the ball.

Among the Americans participating were the Ambassador and Mrs. Gerard, and Mr. and Mrs. Grew, Lieutenant Commander and Mrs. Gherardi, Mr. and Mrs. Ruddock, Major Langhorne, Mr. Willing Spencer and Mr. Lanier Winslow.

Professor and Mrs. Paul Shorey, the former Roosevelt professor at Berlin University, and Professor Archibald Coolidge, Harvard exchange professor, were presented to the Kaiser and the Kaiserin on this occasion, as was also Countess Sigray, sister of Mrs. Gerard.

Other Americans present were Mrs. Norman Whitehouse, Mrs. Ernst Wiltsee, Frau Hans von Buelow, Mrs. Robert Kelso Cassatt, Mrs. Harry Jaques Luce and Miss Margaret Luce.

The Press Ball.

There was also this week a press ball, for which all available space in the Zoological Garden restaurant was taken. It is an annual event, uniting all classes, princes of the blood, Cabinet Ministers, diplomatists and men of letters and science. Upward of four thousand were present. There was no tango, as the members of official society and also the Crown Prince were expected.

Mrs. Gerard held her first official reception on Tuesday, assisted by the ladies of the embassy, and her guests included Countess Sigray, Mrs. Norman Whitehouse and Mrs. Ernst Wiltsee.

Mr. and Mrs. Grew and Mr. and Mrs. Ruddock were joint hosts at a large dancing party, to which eighty guests from the younger set of the court and diplomatic society were invited.

The British Ambassador, Sir Edward Goschen, was host at another large dinner and dance of the week. The Crown Prince and the Crown Princess were among the guests, also Prince and Princess August Wilhelm, Princess Caroline Mathilde of Schleswig-Holstein, Prince and Princess Friedrich of Prussia and Princess Friedrich Karl von Hohenlohe and her daughter, Princess Erika, who have now entirely recovered from their recent bobsleigh accident at St. Moritz.

The Ambassador and Mrs. Gerard, Mr. and Mrs. Grew, Mr. and Mrs. Ruddock, Mr. Willing Spencer, Mr. Lanier Winslow and Major Langhorne, entertained at dejeuner Major Von Herwarth, recently Military Attaché of the German Embassy at Washington, who soon will be ordered to the command of a battalion.

Professor and Mrs. Shorey and Professor Coolidge have issued invitations to a dinner of a hundred covers for February 17, in the Kaiserzaal of the Hotel Adlon.

Americans Who Entertain.

Among other Americans entertaining were Mrs. George Allen, whose monthly reception brought together many Americans, and Mrs. Bernard Goldsmith, who entertained for Mrs. Philip P. Deyenforth, of Chicago.

At a meeting of the Ladies' Union of the American Church favorable action was taken on the proposal to inaugurate free afternoon teas for students. Mrs. Crump, of Chicago, originator of the proposal, said she had been inspired by the work being done for American students at the Students' Hostel and the American Girls' Club in Paris.

Court society is preparing to participate in two charity entertainments which promise to be of unusual interest. The first is tableaux vivants, reproducing well known canvases in the Kaiser Friedrich Museum to take place at the Royal High School of Music. The newly acquired "Adoration of the Magi" will be the outstanding feature, with Countess Oriola as the Madonna.

The second event will be a reproduction of a pantomime at the Royal Theatre arranged by Countess Groeben from the fairy tale "Snow White."

Professor Carl Schillings, Germany's champion for the protection of bird life, is now convalescent after a serious attack of pneumonia. He is highly gratified that the Society for the Protection of Birds in Stuttgart has been fired by America's example and will present a petition to Parliament asking similar legislation in Germany.

Mrs. Hugh M. Cooper, of Stamford, Conn., left Berlin this week for Trieste to join her husband, who is travelling from America by the southern route. They will proceed from Trieste to Egypt.

Among the latest arrivals at the Adlon are Mr. Joseph M. Wheatley, of Washington; Mr. J. W. Bickley, of Philadelphia; Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Dummer, of Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. Fred B. Collins, of Boston, and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Harvey, of New York.

LONDON, Feb. 14.

WITH the temperature only three or four degrees Fahrenheit below what is expected on a summer day, small wonder people have forgotten this week the antiquated if prudent adage concerning "casting the clouts." With the sun shining brightly from cloudless skies, with a gentle southerly breeze, men, women and children made a rush for the open in light attire. Men discarded their overcoats and furs have been conspicuously absent and heavy stoles replaced by thin chiffon scarfs. Children were romping on the grass of St. James' and Hyde parks.

The week opened with the "command" performance of "Diplomacy" at Windsor and the first night of "Parsifal" at Covent Garden. Both were notable events, but with these exceptions little has been doing beyond a few dinner parties, as preparations for the season proper will begin next week.

The King and the Queen have been passing the remainder of their time at Windsor very quietly, in view of the heavy list of engagements before them. The King has given up shooting and riding with the Queen in the great park.

The Big Event.

So far as Anglo-American society is concerned the event of the week was the farewell luncheon given at the Savoy Hotel by the Society of American Women in London to Mme. Slavko Grouitch, wife of the Servian Chargé d'Affaires, who is leaving for Belgrade because of her husband's new appointment there. It was a bright, merry gathering, albeit dignity was imparted by the presence of the members of almost the entire Diplomatic Corps in London, including the American Ambassador and Mrs. Page and their son and daughter-in-law, Mrs. Comings. The president received the guests at perhaps the biggest luncheon ever given by the society. Mme. Grouitch looked very handsome in a black velvet dress and sables and a knot of purple orchids in her coat.

Mrs. Page wore dark green velvet, green plumed hat. Lady Swaythling was in pearl gray satin with a hat massed with blue feathers.

Lady Alexander's dress was in two shades of blue and was worn with a tête de nègre hat having masses of golden paradise plumes at the side.

The Duchess of Marlborough, who wore mole colored velvet and cream lace trimmed with blue fox fur and a small hat to match, with ostrich plumes, was at home at Sunderland House on Wednesday in connection with her work for the church army.

Fun in Dublin.

Dublin has been having most of the fun of the week, where the Lord Lieutenant has been holding a levee and with Lady Aberdeen a ball and a drawing room. Lady Aberdeen, unfortunately, was unable to attend the daffodil ball on Monday with her husband in aid of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, but Lord Aberdeen had a large party from the Viceregal Lodge the next night at St. Patrick's Hall, which presented a magnificent sight in consequence of Lady Aberdeen's desire to favor Irish manufactures nearly every dress was glorified by a train, flounces or draperies of Irish point lace. Lady Aberdeen herself wore a dress of black chiffon velours with a corsage of black net exquisitely embroidered with cut jet and crystal beads. The supple black velvet train was bordered with beaded jet to match the corsage and was lined with a rich brocaded fabric of Irish manufacture in shades of lapis-lazuli embossed with gold roses of Sharon. Her veil was a lovely Irish point lace, which served as lappets and fell from a bunch of high black plumes, and she wore a diamond tiara, while her corsage glittered with many exquisite pearl and diamond ornaments mingled with numerous orders.

Beauty in Dresses.

Other magnificent dresses included a double tunic of Limerick lace ornamenting white and black crêpe de Chine. Lady Carrick, the black and gold tra being lined with purple charmeuse. Th green and gold made an effective ensemble.

Lady Weldon was beautiful in a lace draped dress sparkling with diamonds and emeralds.

Lady Leucha Warner had a train of rich gold bro[cade] over a robe of black and white patterned [la]ce.

St. Patrick's [Hall] was much in evidence for the chaperons' as well as for the debutantes' dresses. Lady Neville Chamberlain favored white shade for her satin dress, which was practically covered by a wonderful point lace tunic.

The Irish Lord Chancellor's wife, Mrs. Frances O'Brien, wore cloth of gold brocade, with draperies of and painted gauze and a gold chain lin with vivid green crêpe.

Lady Paget, wife of General Sir Arthur Paget, is suffering from a severe attack of neuritis, which may prevent her entertaining for some time.

The Future Events.

So far as the events of the future are concerned there is great commotion over the innovation of the Royal Automobile Club, whose membership now is more than 7,800, with an associate membership of 47,000. With dancers, jugglers, illusionists and singing comedians, the committee has decided to provide afternoon teas, late suppers and a variety of entertainments.

They have begun this week discussing these entertainments. Mr. J. M. Orde told your correspondent they were providing a mixture to suit the tastes of all the members.

"For instance," he said, "some like juggling, and therefore this week we have got Chinko, the juggling star, for a turn. Some like tango dancers" "Here a member broke in:—"No, not tango." "No," said Mr. Orde, "the tango is dethroned. Next week we shall have Taku Taku, the geisha, who is worth all the tango dancers in the world. Some artistically inclined members who have seen her say her presence in the club will cause society to abandon the tango once and for all and make an attempt on the Japanese dances, and the Automobile Club will get credit for the new dance.

"The field of sport also is being invaded. They mean to form one of the crack polo teams of Europe. The team will be ready in the autumn," said Mr. Orde, "and the club's new grounds at Epsom will be in shape about then. We have no shortage of polo material and expect the Duke of Westminster to be one of the leaders."

Mongrel Terrier Uncanny Sharp

(Special Dispatch.)

VIC, a mongrel terrier, is credited with many [wo]nders. Although he has quite [gi]ven up at the ordinary pet dog tricks such as "sitting up," begging or [e]nding a limp paw, he has the extraordinary faculty of being able to spell the names of streets and do small arithmetic sums, such as adding, subtraction and multiplication.

Vic belongs to Mr. C. B. Leigh, a scenic artist at the Nottingham Theatre Royal, and he declares that to him Vic's tricks are inexplicable and uncanny.

He has owned Vic since a puppy, and the dog is now nine years old. He has never attempted to train him in the slightest degree, yet in simple arithmetic and spelling Vic never makes a mistake. Frequently in barks he answers questions for any stranger. If Vic is asked to add any two figures he barks the total. He spells any word or name by barking the number of letters.

If shown a picture of any animal he will spell its name correctly. The vagaries of the English language have no difficulties for Vic. He never spells "elephant" with an "f." By raising the name plate he can spell the name of any street, adding six barks for "street" and four for "road."

Vic is fond of looking through picture books and barks four times if he thinks one good, but if bad has a very emphatic ejaculation ready.

Mr. Leigh says he can give no explanation of the dog's extraordinary powers.

Waist Line or No Waist Line

(Special Dispatch.)

LONDON, Feb. 14.

A SUBJECT of debate among women of fashion just now is whether they shall have a definite waist line. For some time waists have been out of fashion, and a studied though apparently slovenly shapelessness has been in vogue.

The rumor goes that some of the great modistes and their customers are arranging a campaign against the vague and shapeless style of dress. But models for the Riviera seem to go the other way. For outdoor wear there, coats are being fashioned in that loose, baggy, square built style that has held sway during the autumn and early winter, the bolero coat terminating at the waist over a sash or cummerbund being a favorite mode. Fur or [fe]ather trimmings, in some kimono style, are the finishing touch in many cases.

No Modernism Softens the Rule of Yuan Over China

Students with American University Degrees, Willing Youthful Mentors, Find Only Exile When They Attempt to Force Views on One-Time Manchu Viceroy.

PEKING, Feb. 14.

CHINA began the new year with Yuan Shih-kai in distinct triumph over his enemies; a triumph gained by steadfast adherence to old Chinese methods and absolute disregard of the ethics known to Occidentals.

China begins the new year with Yuan Shih-kai in distinct triumph over his enemies; a triumph gained by steadfast adherence to old Chinese methods and absolute disregard of the ethics known to Occidentals.

When Yuan Shih-kai decided to persuade the Manchus to abdicate he determined to be the ruler of China, and to rule according to his own lights rather than by those which the returned student with the university degree wished to impose. There are few to-day who will question that the President, the Dictator, the Autocrat, or by whatever designation he may be described, does not know better than his youthful mentors what is best for this unwieldy, ignorant, backward and poverty stricken country.

On January 1, two years ago, Sun Yat-sen was inaugurated President of the first Chinese Republic. He had just returned from some twenty years of exile from his country, and was acclaimed a hero by his youthful followers. By the older men, and by the tellers on the land, he was regarded with curiosity. They had heard of him as a man who had been hunted by the Manchus, a man who had always escaped and whose head was never given up for the large reward constantly upon offer for it.

His return coincided with the period when the Manchus had exhausted "the mandate from Heaven," and when the sufferings of the people from official corruption and oppression were at their climax, and they were glad to acquiesce in whatever system of government might be inaugurated with Sun Yat-sen at its head so long as it promised relief and gave hope of peace in which they might till their soil, follow their vocations and preserve for themselves and their families the fruits thereof.

Yuan Knew China.

Yuan Shih-kai, who was brought from the seclusion of his family estates in Honan to aid the Manchus in escaping the penalty which their misgovernment had brought upon them, quickly penetrated the motives of the people who were credited by the revolutionists with an overwhelming and unanimous desire for modern government, for a Parliament, for the rights of citizenship, and for a voice in the conduct of the affairs of the nation such as was possessed by the citizens of countries where the young Chinese had been educated and had obtained their degrees in political economy, philosophy and the sciences, and made up his mind that what ailed the people was sickness of Manchu muddling and not a desire for any half baked modernism.

To Yuan Shih-kai, who knows the characteristics of his people by his long official connection with them from Yamen writer to Viceroy and Grand Councillor, his course was plain. He must assume command, and while ostensibly tolerating the rearing of an exotic must be ready to prune it of rank growths calculated by him to destroy rather than promote progress.

How that pruning was done, how the plant which sprang from the seed of degrees won in modern universities and rapidly assumed proportions alarming to the old men who believed that they knew that the soil was not yet ready for so dangerous a crop was eventually attacked at its roots and suspended in its growth is worthy of brief chronicle, for it is the story of how Yuan Shih-kai has triumphed and the so-called republicans of China have failed.

Procured Abdication Edict.

To rule, Yuan Shih-kai had to obtain the power. As creator of the modern army he already had the confidence of the Northern generals, and their readiness to stand behind him was assured as soon as he could obtain from the Dowager Empress a decree appointing him as the agent of the Manchu house to form a republic in response to the will of the people. The success of the revolutionists, the clamor that came from the provinces for abdication, the enlightenment of the vox populi by generals in a position, prompted by Yuan, combined with the persuasiveness of Yuan himself at the Court of the Manchus that the Manchu race had been run, eventually procured the abdication edicts and the command for him to form the republic; and his first step was won. Likewise were won the suspicions of the revolutionists, and the fear that this crafty man was busy laying schemes to encompass them.

The task of bringing the forces of the North and South together was difficult. There was bitter opposition to Yuan Shih-kai; there was in the hearts of the young doctors of philosophy and political economy from many an American university the living fear that the hopes they had of bringing into existence in China the dreams they dreamt in their colleges were to be ruthlessly shattered, and the struggle for a footing upon which to be able to check or counter the moves of the powerful representative of what to them was the "old style," was a bitter but a short one.

Sacrifice of Moderates.

Lack of money, the presence of winter, the demands of troops for pay persuaded the revolutionists that their President, Sun Yat-sen, and their National Assembly in Nanking must make a virtue of necessity and agree to join with the North under the aegis of Yuan Shih-kai as President. The sacrifice on the part of the young men was great, the making of it was pathetic—but it was compulsory. Many of them, broad minded and patriotic, faced the inevitable manfully and accepted the word of Yuan Shih-kai that he was a republican in sentiment, and one who desired to see constitutional government by Parliament established in China; others avowed eternal opposition; numbers swore never to rest until he was supplanted by one of their own party, and this element has been true to its oath.

Almost as soon as it was arranged that Sun Yat-sen should resign in favor of Yuan Shih-kai the avowed enemies of the latter set to work. Their influence wrought havoc with whatever Cabinet Yuan Shih-kai tried to form in Peking. A cry for a party Cabinet developed an issue which split the factions and developed a Yuan Shih-kai party and a revolutionary party. They were called the "North" and the "South." The South constantly challenged the sincerity of the President, worked for a Cabinet composed solely of their party members, strove to have the powers of government of the country embodied in the Cabinet, with the Premier a more powerful and responsible official than the President, and left no stone unturned to make Yuan Shih-kai a figurehead, deprived of influence and harmless.

Cabinet Ministers came and went with monotonous constancy. Premiers fled or resigned. The National Assembly, known as the Provisional Parliament, gave way to the permanent Parliament—a collection of some 870 members, divided into a Senate and a House of Representatives, with a majority of members of the Southern party in both houses—and the fight waxed fast and furious.

Charge Yuan with Murder.

A short while prior to the assassination of Parliament the leader of the southern party in politics was murdered at Shanghai. Documents discovered when the murderer was arrested implicated officials about the President, and determined the southern party in making a stand against Yuan. He was charged with a list of unconstitutional acts, was decried as the murderer and demands came to Peking for his resignation.

Parliament soon became a laughing stock. The Yuan party, with the aid of money, obtained a majority and was able to obstruct every action taken by the southerners. Yuan was moved by righteous indignation when he daily saw Parliament growing worse and worse, and no one was surprised when various Governors wired from the provinces (at the suggestion of Yuan, of course), urging that Parliament be dissolved and the southern party disbanded.

The year 1914 will tell whether he has the capacity to hold out and justify the reputation of a statesman, or whether the charges of the young men that he is a self-seeker will be substantiated.

Alterations at Windsor Castle Lead to Important Discoveries

King and Queen of the Hellenes To Be Guests of Queen Alexandra at Marlborough House and Queen of the Netherlands Expected at Claremont.

(Special Dispatch.)

LONDON, Feb. 14.

ALTERATIONS at Windsor Castle, where the Court is now in residence, which were put in hand at the beginning of the present reign are now completed. The original estimate of cost was $60,000, but this has been considerably exceeded. Many articles of great value have been rediscovered and others have been placed in positions which enhance their appearance, and the entire collection at Windsor Castle now forms one of the richest and largest gatherings of art treasures in the kingdom.

Probably no real monetary value could be adequately given, but some idea of the quantity can be gathered from the fact that the inventory of the collection fills upward of sixty large volumes.

Although Windsor is not far removed from London the Queen while there makes use upon occasions of what one might call an "understudy," who is, of course, usually a person of some importance, to represent her at social affairs which she cannot personally attend. The choice usually falls upon a lady-in-waiting, often Lady Bertha Dawkins, but more usually if the Queen has to be represented it is by her own private secretary, Mr. Wellington, a pleasant and tactful substitute, as well may be, for naturally the Queen's absence is felt as a great disappointment.

In most cases, however, the Queen has signified all along that, although unable to attend an opening or other ceremony, she will send somebody in her place, and it is extremely seldom that she abandons a fixed appointment. Etiquette requires that when the King or Queen is represented the substitute shall be received with almost as much ceremonial as the sovereigns themselves, the host or hostess receiving and remaining with the lady or gentleman as long as the proxy remains in the place. This means only a short time, but the names of those invited to meet the royal understudy have to be submitted beforehand exactly as in the case of royalty. There is not quite such a formal system of etiquette nowadays at court as in the days of Queen Victoria, but there is an even more emphatic desire for dignity.

It is now arranged that the King and Queen of the Hellenes shall be the guests of Queen Alexandra at Marlborough House this summer. As usual, their stop will be of quite an informal and family nature. But it is now probable that the King will defer his bestowal of the Order of the Garter on King Constantine until his arrival in London. It had been intended that the Prince of Wales should perform that duty when he journeys to Athens expressly for the purpose of attending King Constantine's coronation in May. For some years past the Queen of the Hellenes has made it a rule to pass several weeks every summer at Eastbourne, and she does not purpose to vary this programme in any way. One of her sons is now being educated at this popular resort. While King Constantine is stopping at Marlborough House the question of a State visit to London will be discussed. This is not expected to take place before the latter part of 1915 at the very earliest.

Another private royal guest in England is also expected this summer. This is the Queen of the Netherlands. During the absence of the Duchess of Albany, who is paying a round of calls in Germany, Claremont, the fine house near Esher lent to the Duchess by Queen Victoria for life, is being overhauled and some of the rooms redecorated. This work is being done in view of the possible trip to Claremont this year of the Queen of the Netherlands, who is a niece of the Duchess.

Exhibitions at London Galleries Herald Opening of Art Season

Societe Georges Petit Sends from Paris Seventy Color Etchings, While Mr. Claude Shepperton and Mr. Baragwanath King Contribute Drawings and Paintings.

(Special Dispatch.)

LONDON, Feb. 14.

THERE is a variety of attractions at the London picture galleries now, though a few weeks must pass yet before the chief exhibiting societies begin to open their shows. Few English artists exhibit color etchings, and progress in this fascinating medium seems to be left chiefly to the members of the Societe Georges Petit.

This Parisian club is now holding its tenth annual exhibition in the Doré Galleries, and among the seventy examples sent over there is no poor work, while there is very much cleverness, especially in handling color. A delicacy of treatment unusual in etching is noticeable in the Dutch scenes of Mr. Joseph Lesage. Soft sombre coloring of great clarity distinguishes the work of Mr. Jourdain. There are some charmingly vivacious street scenes by Mr. Marcel Clément and exquisitely clear and fine old world town views by Mr. Bompard. A collection of hunting scenes by Mr. Taquey might be labelled "Smoking Room." A daintily conceived study in light and shade of an Italian pergola, by Mr. Vignal immediately suggests a drawing room.

Mr. Claude Shepperton is scarcely by the nature of his art a "funny" man, and he is at his best in his graceful fancies, to which no jokes are attached, and where color plays a large part in the design. But there is an attractive elegance in the black-and-whites which he contributes, often with amusing legends, to the pages of Punch, and a large section of these are now being enjoyed at the Leicester Galleries.

Mr. Baragwanath King's portraits, between forty and fifty in number, of the English Riviera occupy one of Mr. Baillie's galleries in Burton street, in others of which the works of half a dozen women are exhibited.

Modern French medallists, like Messrs. Chaplain, Roty, Lenoir and Pommeraye, can be studied at the Fine Art Society's rooms, where are also hanging Japanese lacs, and at No. 5 Regent street there are on view some of the latest examples of the sculpture of Mr. Eric Gill, grave and impressive works, such as "Mother," vanish by others like "The Dancer" and "Mother and Child."

An important picture by Sir Thomas Lawrence, previously unexhibited, except at the Royal Academy in 1828, has been added to the national loan collection at the Grosvenor Gallery. It is a portrait of Lady Lyndhurst, wife of the famous Lord Chancellor, and has been hung next to the portrait of her by Sir David Wilkie, from Apsley House. The Lawrence portrait, even more than that by Wilkie, confirms contemporary reports of her beauty. It was to her husband that Disraeli dedicated his early novel "Venetia." Lord Lyndhurst was the son of the artist, J. S. Copley, painter of the dramatic "Death of Chatham."

Very shortly there will be seen at the Victoria and Albert Museum several specimens of very rare tapestry maps, which were woven at a factory started in Worcestershire in the sixteenth century by one named Sheldon, and were intended to illustrate the counties of England. Three of these maps were in the collection of Horace Walpole, and from him they passed to Archbishop Vernon Harcourt, who presented them to the Yorkshire Philosophical Society.

TUMOR IN THE STOMACH

Completely Removed When She Took "Fruit-a-tives"

NEWBURY, ONT., April 4th, 1913.

"Some years ago, I was sick in bed, and thought I was going to die. I had a growth in my stomach, which the doctors said was a Tumor and they said that the only thing to do was to go to the hospital and have the tumor cut out. I dreaded an operation although both doctors said it was the only cure. I said I would die before being operated on.

At this time, my mother in Alvinston sent me some "Fruit-a-tives" and induced me to try them as she had heard of another woman who had been cured of a similar growth in the stomach by taking "Fruit-a-tives".

To please my mother, I began to take "Fruit-a-tives" with the happy result that they cured me. I have not been to see a doctor since and my health is first class.

I recommend "Fruit-a-tives" every time I get a chance and I will be glad to have you publish this letter as some other woman may now be a sufferer from the same trouble and "Fruit-a-tives" will cure her" MRS. A. McDONALD.

50c a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. At all dealers or sent on receipt of price By Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A Sailor's Yarn

It Involves a Strange Coincidence

By F. A. MITCHEL

I'm a plain seafaring man, and I have no object in making up this yarn or any part of it. I know that a sailor's yarn is generally well stretched, and I don't deny that many a time on the fo'c'sle I've made up things myself, but that was to help my mates pass the time. We didn't have any story books, and some of us couldn't have read 'em if we had, so we just made up stories of our own.

But this is different. There are things about it too serious for a made up yarn. I'll admit that none of the suppositions I ever told of or listened to on the fo'c'sle were harder to believe than this one, but since I haven't made it up I'm not responsible for that.

Jennie Kline and I were brought up at the same place on the coast, and both of us were used to boats from the day we were born. Our parents were able to send us to school, and since we were about the same age we went to school together. No such thing as love occurred to me till I was sixteen years old—Jennie was fifteen and Tom Hobson came home from a cruise dressed in sailor togs and was a mighty fine looking fellow. He was twenty-one years old, and since Jennie was passing from childhood to womanhood he took a fancy to her. He was the first man who ever paid her any attention, and she was mighty well pleased.

I complained to her about her going so much with Hobson, and yet it seemed senseless for me to do so. I hadn't appropriated her. True, she and I seemed to belong to each other, but there was no reason why it should always be so. Jennie took my complaints seriously. She didn't like the idea of any break between us any more than I did. She said she didn't see why we shouldn't be the same as we always had been, and yet she knew better. She knew that a change had come over the boy and girl condition that had existed, and we were entering upon something different.

Hobson stayed ashore for some time, during which there was a sort of rivalry between him and me. Jennie wouldn't give up his attentions to please me; indeed, I didn't ask her to do so. I only let her see that every time she was with Hobson was like sticking a knife into me. It hurt her, perhaps, almost as much as it did me, but there was nothing to do in the matter, no reason why she should refuse Hobson's attentions, no sense in her confining her associations to one boy not yet seventeen years old.

When my rival went to sea again it was as third mate of a vessel. The night before he sailed he was with Jennie. I didn't know what passed between them, but after he had gone Jennie seemed very much changed. Whether he had made love to her and she was pining for him, whether she didn't know if she wanted to tie up to him or to me I couldn't find out. If she knew what was troubling her she kept it to herself. I've often thought it was a kind of indecision.

After this, instead of being ingenuous with me, as she had been, she was freaky. Sometimes she would be very friendly, or affectionate, rather, and sometimes she would be the reverse. My father about this time told me that it was time for me to be doing something, and since the only thing for me to do was on the water I shipped for a voyage. When I said goodby to Jennie she held on to my hand a long while, and it seemed that she couldn't bear to part with me. I asked her if she would be the same to me when I came back that she had always been, but she didn't give me any answer whatever.

From this time Jennie had an easier job of it, since Hobson and I were not at home at the same time. When I came back from my first voyage I heard that he had been there and that he and Jennie had been a great deal together. Jennie seemed mighty glad to see me back. I kissed her, but instead of taking it as a kiss from a lover it seemed to give her a little shock.

This coming and going continued for several years, during which I became an officer. Hobson kept coming and going as well, and finally, returning from one of my voyages, I heard he had got a ship. He was now Captain Hobson, while I was plain Mr. Gibbs. He was twenty-four years old, while I was but nineteen.

I fancy it was Hobson's higher and more lucrative position that induced Jennie's family to bring their influence to bear upon her to marry him. At any rate when I sailed the next time she threw her arms around me, and it seemed she would never let me go. I took it for granted that I had won and went away very happy. Alas, it was a goodby! She had promised her parents that she would say yes to Hobson when he returned from his next voyage.

Jennie kept her promise, and when Captain Hobson sailed on his next voyage he took her with him as his bride. I learned of my loss at Bombay, where we received letters. It gave me the shock of my life. I didn't blame Jennie. She had been placed when very young between two lovers and during the transition period between child and woman had been in a state of uncertainty. She had decided at last in favor of my rival, and I had no more cause to complain than he would have had he lost her.

During the next two or three years I shipped from other ports than my home. I couldn't bear to go there to find Jennie possessed by another. The bridal voyage was a short one, after which letters from my mother informed me that Jennie had settled down ashore. Mother knew of my disappointment and seldom wrote me a letter without mentioning my lost love. She has said since that she had a feeling that Jennie would yet some day be mine.

I became master of a vessel and was sailing between Japan and San Francisco. On one of my return voyages when out on the Pacific ocean one morning, seeing a dark object on the horizon, I raised my glass and discerned a ship rising and falling with the waves. I could discern no masts; neither could I see a smokestack. Consequently I was unable to make out whether she was a sailer or a steamer. We were heading a few points south of her, and when we had come nearer and I was still puzzled as to what she was I directed that the ship be pointed directly toward her.

"She's a derelict, sir," said the second officer, who was also watching her.

"I believe she is," I replied. "It's lucky we met her by daylight and so near on her course. We must sink her."

As we drew near the vessel we saw that she was a sailer, or, rather, had been, for every mast was gone. With nothing to steady her, she was rolling about, sometimes on her beam ends, yet sometimes riding over a wave—indeed, helpless. We saw no one on deck and had no idea that there was any one on her. We approached her from her stern, and I kept my glass fixed upon her so that as soon as we came near enough I might read her name. Before I made out the letters composing it I read the name of the place from which she hailed, "Portsmouth, New Hampshire."

"Get a boat ready, Mr. Marks," I said to the second officer.

The order was obeyed, I intending to send him to the wreck to sink her. But when we came near enough for the purpose I changed my mind and went myself. The sea was running quite high, but, approaching from the lee side, we managed to get safely aboard the vessel. She had evidently met with prolonged foul weather, for her masts had been cut away. The remnants of a jib were still fluttering in the wind. Some of the boats were gone, others were swinging from their davits, while one, loose at the bow, was pounding on the deck.

The fore part of the ship had been washed by the waves, but was now dry. The stern was high out of water. Descending the companionway, we came upon several corpses of men or, rather, skeletons, for they had evidently starved. One of them I had seen in life, but I did not know that I had, for he was so changed that I did not recognise him. Leaving my men amidships, I went aft, for if there was any living creature aboard I would find it there.

I said at the beginning of this recital—It is too serious to call a yarn—that I would test the credulity of the hearer. But, after all, what I am going to relate was but a coincidence. There is nothing improbable in one meeting a former friend in Patagonia, or in going into a morgue and seeing stretched on a slab a brother one has not met for years. These things are happening frequently, and why should not I—

But I am going too fast. I made my way to the stern companionway and descended into the cabin. The door of a room stood open; it was hooked, and I looked in.

Would that there were some medium capable of giving my quick mental transitions as I stood there gazing on the object before me. There is no such medium; only words, and they are not adequate. A living woman lay in a berth. I looked at her and wondered where I was, what I was doing, whether some mental stroke had not befallen me. Within a few seconds the withered features resolved themselves into those of my lost love. My Jennie was there, starving.

There was not the same look of astonishment on her face there was on mine. Her senses were too blunted. I went to her, knelt by her berth and put my arms around her. Then, realizing that food was of the first importance, I ran out and called to the men. Thinking it possible that some living person might be found on the derelict, a bottle of broth had been brought. This I called for and began to feed it in minute doses.

My yarn has been spun. What remains is little more than explanation. Jennie had gone on a voyage with her husband. A prolonged storm had wrecked the vessel. The supplies, except a few biscuit and a quart of water, had been cut off by the waves. This remnant had been given to the captain's wife. We had found her just in time to save her, the only living thing left on the ship.

I dared not take her from the derelict till she had gained a little strength, and yet I feared that at any moment the weather might change and the sea rise. If a wind should beat up the waves we might not get her off at all. We fed her lightly till just before sunset, then lowered her into the boat and took her to our own ship.

All this happened years ago. Jennie has long been my wife, and we have grown children. But their mother will not consent to any of them going to sea. Her frightful experience gave her a dread from which it is impossible that she should ever recover.

Was Confined To His Bed For Four Months With Rheumatism.

Mr. W. H. Riley, Ruddell, Sask., writes:—"It is with the greatest of pleasure that I can recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to all suffering with rheumatism. I was so bad with this terrible disease, I was unable to get up from my bed for four months, and nothing seemed to relieve me until a friend recommended Doan's Pills. I had my doubts about them, but was so desperate I would try anything suggested to me. After taking half a box I was able to get up, and after taking two boxes could get around quite well. After taking six boxes I was completely cured, and able to work for the first time in five months, and have not had a touch of rheumatism since. Anyone who saw me then would not know me now, as I am strong and active since taking your valuable medicine."

Doan's Kidney Pills help the kidneys to flush off the acid and poisonous impurities which have collected, and thus clean out the kidneys, and dispel the rheumatism from the system.

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50 cents per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

If ordering direct specify "Doan's."

Some Satisfaction.

During the staging of a series of Shakespeare's plays in one week at Stratford-on-Avon not only were the performers tired out, but the heavy shifting and many changes had also wearied the scene shifters and property men. One night just after a strong death scene, when F. R. Benson as one of the English kings had drawn his last breath, one of the stage hands was heard to observe in a growling undertone to one of his fellows, "Well, Bill thank heaven there's another bloody king dead!"

King Finds Husbands.

When a Siamese girl attains the age of thirty-five without marrying, she is labelled and placed in a privileged class under the special care of the King, who binds himself to find a husband for her. His method is delightfully simple. A prisoner in any one of the Siamese jails may gain his pardon and release by marrying one of the maidens. Whether he is already married or not is of no great consequence, for in Siam a man is not restricted to one wife.

Always Busy.

"And what do you do in the dull season?" we asked the fool killer.

"What dull season?" exclaimed the fool killer.

"Why, when the man who rocks the boat and the man who didn't know it was loaded quit operations. What do you do then?"

"Oh, I get on the trail of the man who knows it all," replied the fool killer.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

His Modest Request.

A man once asked Thackeray to lend him 5 shillings, which he would convert into £20,000. Asked how, he explained that he knew a young woman with £20,000 who he knew would marry him if he asked her, but he had pawned his teeth and wanted 5 shillings to redeem them in order to propose effectively.

Time's Changes.

Why is it that laws which worked very well fifty or sixty years ago are being discarded? Why is it that laws which a quarter century ago would have been laughed down are getting upon the books of every state in the Union? Why is it that there are new ideas in teaching, new ideas about the liberty of the individual, new ideas about a man's relationship with his neighbor? Why is it, in short, that there is a vast discontent with old institutions and old ways? It is because the world has outgrown the government, the ideas, the habits of thought that fitted easily and serenely enough into the lives of our great-grandparents, but which are creaking in their joints now. Life today is a very different thing from life fifty or sixty years ago.—Toledo Blade.

Grandma Never Let Her Hair Get Grey

Kept Her Locks Dark, Thick, Glossy, With Sage Tea and Sulphur

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is mussy and troublesome. For 50 cents you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use tonic called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all grey hair disappears, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant. You will also discover dandruff is gone and hair has stopped falling.

Grey, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur and look years younger.

Railway Punctuality.

Don't Look Old Before Your Time

WOMAN'S delicate system requires more than ordinary care and attention—more care and attention than it is given by the average woman.

Neglect it and ills soon creep in, and the look of old age, sometimes quickly, sometimes gradually follows.

That backache, so common among women, brings with it the sunken chest, the headache, tired muscles, crow's-feet, and soon the youthful body is no more youthful in appearance—and all because of lack of attention.

There is no reason why you should be so unfortunate, when you have at your disposal a remedy such as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription—recommended for over 40 years as a remedy for ailments peculiar to women. We have thousands upon thousands of testimonials on file—the accumulation of 40 years—testifying to its effectiveness. Neither narcotics nor alcohol are to be found in this famous prescription. Regulates irregularities, Corrects displacements, Overcomes painful periods. Tones up nerves. Brings about perfect health. Sold by dealers in medicines, in liquid or tablet form.

Dr. Pierce's Medical Advisor, nearly revised up-to-date edition, contains loads of distressing questions about which every woman, single or married ought to know.

Belgian King Hurt.

BRUSSELS, Feb. 18.—Albert I., King of the Belgians, broke his left arm yesterday when he was thrown from his horse while riding in the forest of Zignies, not far from the battlefield of Waterloo.

His Majesty's escape from even more serious injury was a narrow one, and the report of the accident caused much public concern in the Belgian capital. The King's physician, however, allayed anxiety by declaring that no graver consequences were likely to ensue from the accident, as the King's general health is good, and he is a young man, not yet thirty-nine years of age.

HOW TO MAKE YOUR HAIR BEAUTIFUL

Ten Minutes' Home Treatment Works Wonders, Stops Falling Hair, Itching Scalp and Dandruff and Makes the Hair Soft, Brilliant, Lustrous and Fluffy.

Better than all the so-called "hair tonics" in the world is a simple old-fashioned home recipe consisting of plain Bay Rum, Lavona (de Composes), and a little Menthol Crystals. These three mixed at home in a few minutes, work wonders with any scalp. Try it just one night and see. Get from your druggist 2 oz. Lavona, 6 oz. Bay Rum and ½ dram Menthol Crystals. Dissolve the Crystals in the Bay Rum and pour in an 8 oz. bottle. Then add the Lavona, shake well and let it stand for an hour before using. Apply it by putting a little of the mixture on soft cloth. Draw this cloth slowly through the hair, taking just one small strand at a time. This cleanses the hair and scalp of dirt, dust and excessive oil and makes the hair delightfully soft, lustrous and fluffy. To stop the hair from falling and to make it grow again rub the lotion briskly into the scalp with the finger tips or a medium stiff brush. Apply night and morning. A few days' use and you cannot find a single loose or straggling hair. They will be locked on your scalp as tight as a vise. Dandruff will disappear and itching cease. In ten days you will find fine downy new hairs sprouting up all over your scalp and this new hair will grow with wonderful rapidity.

Any druggist can sell you the above. The prescription is very inexpensive and we know of nothing so effective and certain in its results.

EASY MONEY FOR JUDGES.

Paid Over $130,000 For the Statute Revision Work.

TORONTO, Feb. 17.—An order-in-council was passed recently bringing the revised consolidated statutes of Ontario 1914 into force on March 1 of this year. The first volumes of these books for the year 1914 were received a few days ago.

There are two volumes of the revised statutes making 3,020 pages and a volume of index. Three represent the work of the Statute Revision Commission, which has been in operation since 1907. The commission consists of judges and the law clerk of the Legislature, who have been paid in all about $150,000 for their work, outside their salaries. The expenditure, of course, does not include the cost of printing. The statutes will be sent as soon as possible to the magistrates and justices of the peace.

Just One Application And The Hairs Vanish

(Helps to Beauty)

Here is a very simple and effective way to banish objectionable hairs or fuzz: Mix into a stiff paste enough powdered delatone and water to cover the undesirable hairs, apply and after about 2 or 3 minutes remove the paste, wash the skin and every trace of hair will have vanished. This method is quite harmless and leaves the skin soft and spotless. Be sure, however, to get the delatone in an original package, otherwise it may not be of the desired strength and purity.

READY FOR OPENING

To-day Sees Reassembling of Provincial Legislators

FORECAST OF THE SPEECH

TORONTO, Feb. 18.—With all the pomp and ceremony of custom and with the flavor of military splendor, the Lieutenant-Governor and attendants will sweep up the driveway of Queen's Park this afternoon, unwrap a long official scroll and proceed in formal style to declare the third session of the thirteenth assembly of the Ontario Legislature convened for business.

Chief item on the programme of the first day stands the speech from the throne which will be delivered by Sir John Gibson immediately following his escort to the Speaker's chair by Hon. Dr. Pyne. In the absence of Hon. J. J. Foy, the Minister of Education will perform this function by reason of seniority. A few forms' greetings will then occur and the chamber will be emptied until tomorrow afternoon when the debate will begin.

Some very important legislation will be outlined in the official address. The matter of redistribution among the Ontario seats will be made subject to a bill dealing with altered representation in the House rendered necessary by the recent census. The workmen's compensation bill will come down in due course and will probably provide one of the chief sources of debate. The address will make mention of the Government policy in connection with the road commission and perhaps hint at directions it may take.

The work of the Hydro-Electric Commission during the year will be dealt with and its progress commented upon. An intimation will be given that the Central Prison at Toronto will be moved to the new prison farm at Guelph early in the coming autumn and that a large section of the hospital for the insane at Whitby will also be ready for occupation at that time.

The notable business accomplished by the Timiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway during the fiscal year and the receipt of the federal subsidy will constitute a paragraph and in the same connection the growth of the mineral industry of the north will be remarked. Other statements of the Lieutenant-Governor will refer to the return to Canada of the Governor-General and the Duchess of Connaught, the completion of the statute revision, the spread of industrial education and matters of general provincial interest.

Four new members will make their bow to the House for the first time. These are Colin Cameron, of North Grey; Geo. S. Henry, of East York; J. B. Fallis, of Peel, and John McFarlane, of East Middlesex.

NATIVES IN LEAGUE.

Criminal Organization Found Among South African Blacks.

CAPE TOWN, Feb. 18.—Astonishing facts were published yesterday by the Department of Justice showing that native convicts have been binding themselves together for criminal purposes. Their organizations comprise a king, a judge, a fighting general, a medical officer, warriors and younger natives. The organizations hold trials and decree punishments, sentencing to death in some cases by stabbing with sharpened nails through the shoulders, strangling with a wet towel, or putting powdered glass in the victim's food. More usual punishments are knocking out the front teeth, especially in the case of police informers. The organizations terrorize the natives to become members of the gangs.

Christian Boy Not Killed.

LONDON, Feb. 18.—A despatch to the Central News from St. Petersburg says the Christian boy Taranthovitch, son of a law court official at Zhilomir, Russia, at first supposed to have been the victim of a "ritual murder" in December at Fastoff, near Kiev, was seen at Zhilomir as recently as Feb. 10.

Power Plant Exploded.

BLAIRSVILLE, Pa., Feb. 18.—With a roar that was heard 25 miles away the mixing house of the West Penn. Powder Co., located at Tunnelton, six miles from here, was blown to pieces by an explosion yesterday. Robert Caugherty was killed and another workman mortally injured.

When The Stomach Goes Back to Work

Then Is the Whole System Glad. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets Will Quickly Put the Stomach In Shape.

When the stomach fails to do its work properly the whole machine of man is unstrung and wholly incapable of work. This condition obtains from the tiniest nerve to the big, strong, pumping heart.

It is a wise law of nature that has made the stomach man's strongest organ, but when it stops work man ought to realize that it does so because it can continue no longer.

"Hooray! Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets Are the Real Appetite Bringers."

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will certainly give the stomach the repair it needs and is always crying aloud for.

A tablet taken after each meal will in the course of several hours become a portion of the digestive fluids It will build up these fluids. First in the stomach, then in the intestines.

The liver is the storehouse of the body. Here are assembled all the reserve fluids of the system and here the various ingredients of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets mingle with the faulty natural juices and strengthen them, or if they are too strong then they will be reduced to their proper strength and proportion.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets contain a single ingredient, one grain of which is sufficient to digest 3000 grains of food. Just think how gratefully such an element is received into a body that cannot digest at all without a new weakening of the already depleted juices.

Go to your druggist this very day and obtain a box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, price 50 cents. A week's trial will make you a new man and your stomach will go back to work.

EXPLOSION NEAR TRAIN.

Passengers Hit By Debris From Discharge of Dynamite.

QUEBEC, Feb. 18. — Through what appears to have been a blunder several passengers on the incoming G.T.R. express yesterday morning were endangered by a dynamite explosion at St. Romuald. While no fatalities occurred, some of the passengers on the first-class car were severely cut about the head and body and sustained nervous shock.

The G.T.R. express, due at Levis at 7 a.m., was two hours late. Construction work on I.C.R. double track is under way near St. Romuald, and a fuse for a dynamite blast was lighted just as the G.T.R. express was nearing St. Romuald. A line man was sent to flag the train, but was too late. The train was stopped and the blast went off. Every window in one side of the first-class car was shattered by the flying debris, and passengers were knocked down and cut about the head and body.

FIRE IN HAMILTON.

Damage In R. Mackay & Co.'s Store Is Nearly $350,000.

HAMILTON, Feb. 18.—Fire, which did damage to the extent of between $200,000 to $375,000, broke out on the fourth floor of the R. Mackay Co.'s store on King street east yesterday morning, and before it was extinguished all the stock in the store was completely ruined, from the smoke and water-soaking through them. The estimated damage to the goods is $350,000, covered by insurance for $275,000. The extent of the damage to the building is not known.

The origin of the fire is not known, but it is thought that a gas stove used for heating purposes in the workrooms on the fourth floor became overheated and set fire to some goods which were close by.

Fireman Wm. Stotts narrowly escaped suffocation. He, with Fireman Canary, was passing the store when the fire was at first discovered, and when the alarm was given they broke into the store and immediately went up to the fourth floor. The flames and smoke here were so bad that they had to retreat. Fireman Stotts noticed that he was becoming overcome from the smoke and rushed to one of the windows and shouted for help. The life net was held for him and he jumped from the fourth storey window. The fresh air revived him.

Discoloured, Wrinkled Skin Easily Removed

(From the Woman Beautiful)

Since brown or yellow, over-red or blotchy complexions are decidedly not the fashion, I cannot understand why so many continue to wear them. Surely every woman has heard of mercolized wax. This I know — from my own and others' experiences—will positively banish every unsightly tint. The wax really takes off a bad complexion. It gradually, harmlessly, absorbs the thin layer of surface skin with all its defects, as chaps, liver spots, pimples, freckles, blackheads. Just as gradually the discarded skin is replaced by the clear, white, youthful skin underneath. Mercolized wax, procurable at any drug store, is applied nightly like cold cream and rinsed mornings with warm water. One ounce will produce the loveliest girlish complexion in less than a fortnight.

I can't understand, either, why folks will be bothered with wrinkles, since the famous saxolite formula has become public property. One ounce of powdered saxolite dissolved in a half-pint witch hazel, makes a wash lotion that will quickly effface every line, even the deepest.

CHURCHMEN UNEASY.

Denial of Christian Miracles Give Rise to a Memorial.

LONDON, Feb. 18.—A memorial signed by 676 priests of the diocese of London was presented to the upper house in convocation yesterday. It expresses grave anxiety (1) in consequence of the unrebuked denial of certain fundamental truths of faith by some who hold office in the Church, and (2) in consequence of the widespread tendency to approach the problem of reunion among Christians in a way that is clearly inconsistent with the belief that Episcopal ordination is essential to the valid ministry of the world and sacraments.

The memorialists have asked for a repudiation of the claim of some clergy to reject the miracle of our Lord's virgin birth and the actual resurrection of His body from the tomb.

In submitting the petition, the Bishop of London said he would move at the next session that steps be taken to allay the widespread uneasiness in the Church.

Books are being published by some of the clergy which seemed to deny the great miracles spoken of. In three cases the authors have been removed or they have resigned their offices in the Church.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

Mrs. John Leacock, of Watford, Ont., has just entered her 100th year.

Fire destroyed the Alexandria Rink at Dunnville at an early hour yesterday morning.

A number of Missouri farmers have made application to the Hydro-Electric Commission for power and light.

Niagara power will be in Windsor by June. The towers are in place to Chatham and tower foundations are all in.

A head-on collision occurred on the C.P.R. at Bury, Que., yesterday, resulting in the death of engineer Yanlow of Farnham, and the scalding of three other men.

Fire destroyed the Spanish village of Espinosa De Los Caballeros, 280 inhabitants, and despatches received at Madrid refer indefinitely to numerous dead and injured.

The widow of Alex. Martin, who was burned to death at Blenheim on Nov. 7 when fire destroyed the Pere Marquette coal chutes, has entered action against the company for $10,000.

The ferry steamer City of Belleville, running between Ogdensburg, N.Y., and Prescott, Ont., was burned to the waters' edge at her dock in Prescott yesterday. The loss is estimated at $20,000.

Memorial services were held in Chicago yesterday for Frances E. Willard, temperance worker, and for years the head of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, who died ten years ago.

"Scavengers are dropping weights on their toes so that they can say they are injured when they go on the sick list. Then they draw full pay while away." This is the latest charge current in Toronto.

STOMACH TROUBLES

Increasing. A Simple Remedy.

It has been said the body is like a machine and digestion and elimination of food are the two great factors to health.

If the digestive organs are weak, the stomach overtaxed, waste matter accumulates in the system — the liver gets sluggish and the blood becomes thin and devitalized.

We want to ask every person in this vicinity who is troubled with indigestion or a weak, wornout stomach to try our delicious cod liver and iron tonic, Vinol.

We know it will strengthen and tone up the weakened, tired, and overtaxed nerves of the digestive organs, create a hearty appetite, and replace weakness with strength.

We just heard of a case of a man in Portland, Me., who suffered from a bad stomach trouble for years and had become so weak he could hardly walk—who was built up by Vinol so he could eat heartily without the slightest distress.

Try a bottle of Vinol, and if it fails to help you we will give back your money.

PRECIOUS BAG FOUND.

Ottawa Police Locate Stolen Securities Worth $50,000.

OTTAWA, Feb. 18.—Some $50,000 in checks, drafts, and money orders, some negotiable, belonging to the Union Bank of Canada and the Union St. Joseph Society, stolen from the Ottawa Postoffice on Jan. 8, were found yesterday in a bag hidden in a lavatory of the Canada Life Building.

On the night of Jan. 7, one of the bank messengers left his bag in the postoffice, intending to get the mail from the bank's private box in the morning. When he returned the bag was gone and the mail box empty. It was also discovered that the Union St. Joseph box was also empty. One of the Union Bank checks was a certified one for $25,000. The police are working on a clue, implicating a boy in the theft.

Aked Still President.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 18.—By a vote of 74 to 19, the church federation refused Monday night to accept the resignation of Rev. Charles F Aked, pastor of the First Congregational Church, as president of the organization.

Dr. Aked had been criticised for saying in a sermon he did not adhere to the orthodox belief regarding the virgin birth of Christ.

THE MARKETS

Chicago, Feb. 17.—Wheat for May delivery touched today the highest price of the year. Active demand from Europe was responsible. In provisions, the outcome was 2½ to 5c decline.

Liverpool wheat closed ½d higher; corn, ½d higher.

Motor Maniac an American.

LONDON, Feb. 18.—Lee Bond, the demented automobilist of Lyndhurst, Hampshire, who tried to commit suicide in prison Monday after his arrest on Sunday, is understood to be an American citizen. The United States consul at Southampton has taken charge of his effects and searched his papers, among which he found a letter of identification, No. 2,744, issued on Oct. 9, 1911, by the Shanghai branch of the International Banking Corporation of 60 Wall street, New York.

On Monday he cut his throat in the police cell and yesterday morning his condition was said to be practically hopeless. Bond has been in England since early in 1913.

Roma Accident Brings Reform.

PROVIDENCE, R.I., Feb. 18.—The accident to the Roma will result in efforts being made by shipowners to have the Government place a light on No Man's Land, in the opinion of pilots. The nearest light is on Gayhead, eight miles away. While this is a powerful beacon, mariners say that in a thick blizzard like Monday night's a ship would be on No Man's Land before her navigator could make out the light.

STATEMENT GROTESQUE.

War Office Not Forcing Lee-Enfield on Canada, Says Gazette.

LONDON, Feb. 18. — The Army and Navy Gazette describes as grotesque to a degree Hon. Col. Hughes' statement that the War Office wants to force Canada to use Lee-Enfield rifles. The same journal reminds Col. Hughes that a new rifle having an aperture sight is now under consideration for use in this country.

The Gazette says: "It may certainly be argued that the War Office might have permitted Canadians, who in this respect are ahead of the rest of the Empire, to use aperture sights, but according to most people this would have given them a distinct advantage over other competitors, so we doubt whether many Canadians would appreciate such concession."

ACTION DEFERRED ON REDISTRIBUTION BILL

Leader of Opposition Suggests That Special Committee Be Increased From Seven to Nine —In Earnest Discussion of Measure He Commends Decision to Follow 1901 Precedent.

MAY ENLARGE COMMITTEE

OTTAWA, Feb. 18.—Premier Borden's redistribution bill stands over for a few days. It was presented for second reading at yesterday's sitting of the Commons, when a largely attended House heard Sir Wilfrid Laurier. The Liberal leader, in an earnest deliverance, almost entirely freed from anything of a contentious character, and which at times drew expressions of approval from both sides of the House, commended the action of the Government in following the Liberal precedent of a decade ago, and appealed for the same devotion on the part of the members of both political parties to considerations of equity, justice, and fair-play. "Let us have the measure so framed," declared Sir Wilfrid, "that we will have through it at the proper time an absolute and most accurate expression of the public mind, without any consideration as to who may win or who may lose."

He also suggested that the committee be enlarged from seven to nine and a conference was agreed to.

Mr. Borden spoke briefly in moving the second reading of the redistribution bill. Referring to the contention that the representation of the Maritime Provinces should not be reduced, he said that no one was more willing to be convinced of that than himself, but that in his opinion no relief could be afforded unless the special committee to be appointed saw fit to assign four members to Prince Edward Island instead of three.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier contended that the committee had no jurisdiction in the matter, and neither had the Parliament of Canada. If the Government wished to give any relief to the Maritime Provinces, it would be necessary to have an address to the Imperial Parliament adopted praying for appropriate amendment to the B. N. A. Act.

Sir Wilfrid endorsed what had been said by Mr. Borden on the first reading of the mill, namely, that the unit of representation should be larger for urban than for rural constituencies, and that otherwise equality of representation should be aimed at together with the preservation of municipal boundaries and the riding should be compact with community of interest.

Mr. Hughes (Lib., King's P.E.I.) contended that Prince Edward Island had entered the union with the understanding that she was to have an irreducible minimum representation of six members. Unfortunately that had not been expressed in the written agreement, and the only hope for the province lay in an amendment to the B. N. A. Act.

P. M. Macdonald (Lib., Pictou) submitted that the Government should have been ready to give some direction to the committee upon the subject of proportional representation. He also contended that geographical units, like the Island of Cape Breton and Vancouver Island, should not be linked up with districts extending over the mainland.

W. F. Maclean (Con., South York) said that proportional representation involved a more important principle than municipal representation. The problem of fair representation for minorities and for large classes of people who thought alike on certain subjects of great importance to them, was a problem, said Mr. Maclean, which demanded solution, if the experiment of representative government was to be a success.

Hon. G. P. Graham said he was inclined to endorse the proposals for proportional representation.

Referring to Postmaster-General Pelletier's statement a few days ago to the effect that the Liberals had a large majority of the parliamentary delegation from Quebec, although they had a very slender popular majority in that province, Mr. Graham said the Liberals were under represented in the present House. The Government, he said, had a majority of 48 in the House, although its popular majority at the general elections of 1911 was only 44,491.

Mr. Borden, replying to Mr. Graham, said that in 1908, the Conservatives had a popular majority, but the Liberals did not hesitate to retain possession of the Government, having elected 48 more members of the House. It would be difficult to carry on the Government under our party system if the representation in the House was accurately based on the popular vote. He feared the present inequalities could not be corrected unless the Government was prepared to adopt the principle of proportionate representation. So far as the present redistribution bill was concerned, however, no effort would be made to carry the principle into effect.

Defendant: I don't know what I'd have done if it hadn't been for you.

Lawyer: I know, though. You'd have done time.

A HEALTH BULLETIN

Means That Are Adopted in Toronto to Safeguard the Public Health —Similar Means Proposed for Peterborough

FRESH AIR

Following are a few excerpts taken from the monthly bulletin, as issued by the Department of Public Health, Toronto. The papers are prepared under the supervision of Dr. Hastings, Medical Health Officer.

A monthly bulletin, along similar lines, was proposed by Dr. A. W. McPherson, Medical Health Officer for Peterborough, but the Board of Health, which was asked to endorse the proposal, did not contribute the support that was asked for. "The people won't read them," was Mayor Buller's comment, when the matter was brought to the attention of the Board of Halth at their last regular meeting.

A recent bulletin issued from the Department of Public Health, Toronto, emphiasizes the necessity of fresh air in the following terms:

Everybody recognizes the fact that fresh air is necessary to maintain good health, and almost everyone knows that it is just as needful in the winter as in the summer time. It is a recognized fact that the fresh air we get during the cold season is mor invigorating than that which we get in the summer. But the fear of the discomfort caused by the cold is such that we do not consistently and persistently carry out our good resolutions to get fresh air night and day at any cost. Our city is full of self-styled "fresh air fiends," who open their bedroom windows a stingy half-inch on ordinarily cold nights, and close them entirely when the thermometer comes within ten degrees of zero.

Why do we not keep up a never-relaxing endeavour to get all we can of this cold, clean, delicious air at the time we need it most? Deep breathing practiced during the walk home at night after a long, hard day spent in the factory, behind the counter, or in the office chair, will do more to dispell illness than hanging on to a strap and breathing the vitiated air of the street cars. Housewives may do a great deal of their work with windows open, babies may sleep and children may play out-of-doors during the greater part of the day, and everybody can get six, seven, eight or nine hours of fresh air every night by sleeping with bedroom windows open. With proper bed clothing the coldest-blooded persons may sleep with comfort in absolutely unheated rooms with windows wide open, and in time they will grow less cold-blooded.

Bed and personal clothing suitable for winter months are necessarily rather expensive for many purses, but make an effort to get the best, and, if need be, do without the fine raiment. Any woman who would put willow plumes and imported gowns before pink cheeks, sparkling eyes, and a total absence of headaches, does not deserve good health.

Fresh air taken in abundance during the winter months will almost surely do away with the necessity of taking a spring tonic. It is also less expensive. A healthy, vigorous old age can only be attained by constantly maintaining ourselves in good condition before we become old.

LECTURE ON HYDRO ELECTRIC

Special Wire to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, Feb. 18.—The Hydro-Electric of Ontario provided an engineer this morning to tell the committee on Agriculture and colonization how the life of the farmer could be made brighter and the cost of production reduced by the medium of cehap electricity. N. P. Epenschild, assistant engineer of the Hydro-Electric, read the history of the undertaking in Ontario. He declared that only through the municipality could the farm be supplied with power at reasonable rates. The entire scheme was self-supporting, the idea being that customers should obtain power at cost. The price to the consumer decreases with the increased number of users.

WOULD CAUSE BLOODSHED

English Writer Says Forcing Home Rule on Ulster Would Result in War on Protracted Scale

A NEW SOLUTION

Special Cable to The Examiner:

LONDON, Eng., Feb. 18.—Frederic Harrison, who has always been known as a great friend of the Asquith Government, throws a bomb shell, this morning, into the ranks of the Home Rulers by his letter to the press, stating that the Ulster covenant is as hopeless to reason with as were Cromwell's Ironsides or the Scottish covenanters. War, on a scale most bloody and protracted, says Harrison, would follow the Government forcing Home Rule on Ulster. Harrison suggests to the Premier that there should be a direct referendum on Home Rule before it is forced on Ireland. The Liberal papers, commenting this morning on Harrison's proposition, says it is no solution of either Home Rule or the Imperial Parliament problem. The Unionists are elated. Harrison suggests Ulster rule for a stated term under an independently elected Ulster Committee to operate simultaneously with Home Rule in the rest of Ireland.

HYDRO ELECTRIC WANTS SUBSIDY FROM DOMINION

Special Wire to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, Feb. 18. — The Ontario Hydro-Electric wants money from parliament and to get it has adopted modern methods and became a lobbyist. The Dominion last session gave a subsidy of two millions to the T. & N., which is a provincially owned line. The Hydro-Electric is going into the railway business with electric lines, and wants the customary Federal subsidy of $6,400 a mile. A campaign was launched this morning, when experts of the Hydro-Electric Commission told the story of electrifying Ontario farms. There was a hint given the members of parliament that the time was about due for the next step, namely, the gridironing of Ontario with Hydro radials.

THE MUTUAL BENEFIT CLUB HOLDS MEETING

The Mutual Improvement Club held a very successful meeting on Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. Munro, 580 George Street. A record attendance of members heard a most interesting and instructive paper read by John D. Pearce, his subject being 'Saws.'

Commencing with the hand saw, Mr. Pearce dealt with the various kinds, how to get the best service from them and how to doctor them.

A demonstration of brazing was the final tone of the most interesting and useful papers the club has heard.

A social hour was a... is spent, when Mrs. Munro, ably assisted by Miss Munro, served coffee and cakes. The musical items were provided by Messrs. Peace, Barrie and Carter. A reading by Mr. Munro was greatly enjoyed.

On the motion of E. G. Hardie, seconded by H. Parkinson, a hearty vote of thanks was accorded Mr. and Mrs. Munro for their hospitality.

OFF THE TRACK.

"The train struck the man, did it not?" asked the lawyer of the engineer at the trial.

"It did, sir," said the engineer.

"Was the man on the track, sir?" thundered the lawyer.

"On the track?" asked the engineer. "Of course he was. No engineer worthy of his job would run his train into the woods after a man, sir."

MR. LLOYD GEORGE—Taken on his fifty-first birthday a few days ago. Whether you agree or disagree with the little Chancellor, there is no doubt that he is to-day the most potent, the most hated, loved, feared, and admired figure in the British political arena. His career from the time he was a barefooted boy in a Welsh village, till now has been a romance of politics, a triumph of persistence. The age of 51, despite his stormy and hard life, finds him as young as ever, and passing through a re-shuffle and disturbance in social and political life as he is, it is interesting to conjecture down which path the Chancellor may choose to lear an immense personal following. Mr. Lloyd George's future is at any case a problem of extreme importance to the community.

WHIPPED IN MISTAKE FOR THE PREMIER

Lord Weardale Knocked Down and Beaten With a Dog Whip by a Suffragette

"FOR GOOD OF THE CAUSE"

Special Wire to The Examiner:

LONDON, Eng., Feb. 18.—Mistaken for Premier Asquith, whom he resembles much, Lord Weardale, a Liberal politician, and President of the British Peace Centenary Committee, was to-day whipped with a stout dog whip and knocked down by a young woman supposed to be a suffragette, on the departure platform of Euston Station. There was great excitement and the spectators took charge of the woman as she was about to renew the attack. She was taken to a police station where she gave her name as Mary Maloney, believed to be assumed. It is believed she is a member of the aristocracy. She said the Cabinet Ministers are liable to be whipped where ever they are met by the suffragettes "for the good of the cause."

THE NEW KING OF ALBANIA

Special Wire to The Examiner:

LONDON, Eng., Feb. 18 — The Prince of Weid, who was the choice of the Great Powers, will ascend the throne of Albania next month, had a conference with King George and Foreign Minister Grey, this morning. He leaves to-night for Paris to confer with President Poincare and his cabinet. He has already seen the German Emperor in reference to his new duties.

EVANGELIST COMPTON,
Who Will Tell the Story of His Life at Bethany Tabernacle To-morrow Evening.

LOCAL PEOPLE WERE ON THE WRECKED TRAIN

Coach in Which Mr. and Mrs. George Lenton Were Travelling Left the Rails—Engineer Was Killed.

AN EVENTFUL TRIP

To be storm bound in New York, and then have the train upon which they were travelling wrecked, was the somewhat eventful experience of Mr. and Mrs. George Lenton, 176 London Street, upon their return from abroad. Mr. and Mrs. Lenton returned last evening from a four weeks' vacation in Jamaica, where the temperature is over eighty degrees, and white duck suits and panama hats are in vogue. When they arrived in New York on Saturday last, the great Metropolis was in the throes of the worst storm of the year. Over thirty-five deaths were attributed to the storm. Mr. Lenton had occasion to engage a taxi cab, and in going from one point to another, a total of five hours was consumed.

Train Was Wrecked.

Mr. and Mrs. Lenton was also concerned in the C.P.R. wreck near Smith Falls yesterday, that resulted in the death of Engineer Robert Grant of Montreal, and injury to several of the passengers. Mrs. Lenton was slightly bruised. The coach in which they were travelling left the rails, but did not go over the embankment. The engine, baggage car, dining car, a second class car, a first class car and one Pullman car all left the rails and plunged over the embankment. The engineer was found dead in the cab. A special train carrying doctors and nurses was rushed to the scene of the wreck, which occurred at eleven-thirty o'clock. It was nearly two o'clock before a special train was made up enabling Mr. and Mrs. Lenton to resume their journey to Peterborough.

The wreck is said to have been caused by a spread rail.

Fewer Tourists.

In conversation with the Examiner this morning, Mr. Lenton remarked that there were fewer tourists in Jamaica this season than is usually the case. This is attributed to the scarcity of money. It requires from five to six days to make the trip one way, and constitutes a twenty-four hour journey and about five days at sea.

While in Jamaica, Mr. and Mrs. Lenton met Mr. E. C. McLeod, former Peterborough manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia. The latter resides some distance from Kingston, and is driven to the city each day. Very few people reside in the city owing to the intense heat.

SMITH'S FALLS, Feb. 18.—Engineer Robert Grant of Montreal was instantly killed, Fireman Ernest Anderson, of Smith's Falls, sustained a fracture of the leg, and nearly a

SLEIGHING ACCIDENT

Twelve Year Old Youth Sustains a Broken Collar Bone

COLLIDED WITH A TREE

The twelve-year-old son of Mr. Henry Starr, Reid Street, sustained a broken collar bone as a result of a collision with a tree while out sleighing yesterday afternoon. The victim was alone when the accident happened. He was sleigh-riding in the vicinity of London Street. A telephone pole and a tree necessitated a deviation at the foot of the declivity and it was while endeavoring to make the turn so as to tvoid the two obstructions that the accident occurred. The sleigh swerved into the tree, throwing young Starr to the ground with considerable force. He was at once removed to his home and medical aid summoned. To-day he is resting as easily as can be expected under the circumstances.

PRESTON IS CALLED TO THE CABINET

Special Wire to The Examiner:

TORONTO, Feb. 18.— Although Sir James, greatly to his regret, was not permitted by the physicians to attend the opening of the Legislature this afternoon, he has so far recovered as to be able this morning to hold a conference with other cabinet ministers, and he selected Dr. Preston of North Lanark to fill the membership without portfolio in the cabinet, which has been vacant since Lucas' appointment as Provincial Treasurer.

PARLIAMENT OPENED

TORONTO, Feb. 18.— The Legislature was opened this afternoon with the usual ceremonies. The principal feature of interest was the absence of both Sir James Whitney, Premier, and Hon. J. J. Foy, Attorney-General, the latter being down south for his health. The duties of acting premier were carried out by Hon. Dr. Pyne, Minister of Education. The speech from the throne mentioned the redistribution of the Ontario constituencies and a general election in the fall of this year is foreshadowed.

The address called attention to the marked advance in agricultural education and the necessity for greater aids to farming communities.

WITHOUT OPPOSITION

CORK, Ireland, Feb. 18.—William O'Brien, leader of the Independent Nationalists, was to-day nominated in the bye-election and was unopposed. This is considered a great triumph for the O'Brionites.

Special Wire to The Examiner:

WINNIPEG, Man., Feb. 18.—Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Stevenson, Hillview, Man., celebrated their diamond wedding at the home of their daughter, in Vancouver, yesterday. They were married in 1854. Mrs. Stevenson was Elizabeth Wallace, daughter of Samuel Wallace, of Peterborough. Mr. Stevenson came to Canada when eight years old, with his parents, and finally located at Egremont, Grey County, Ontario, residing there for thirty years, being prominent politically. In 1883 he moved to Manitoba. He is 90 years old, the father of eleven children, and has sixty grand children, and fifteen great-grand-children. They will return here in two months to spend the remainder of their days.

OBJECTED TO THE UNION JACK

Special Wire to The Examiner:

TORONTO, Feb. 18.—Because the British flag was waved instead of "Old Glory" in a scene at the performance of "Ziegfeld Follies" at the Princess Theatre, last night, twenty-one chorus girls left the stage and refused to go again, leaving nine to finish the show. There had been severe criticisms to the act in the press on account of the United States flag and the management changed it without notice to the girls. They are still on strike.

Little Work For Senate Yet

Special Wire to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, Feb. 18.—The Senate is back looking for work. It has been home for three weeks' holidays, while the Commons was digesting legislation for the Upper House to review. It was expected that on its return there would be a good deal of legislation ready for it, and possibly the Redistribution Bill. However, the Senators return to find that as yet little degislation has passed the Lower House. There has been a few important railway bills put through, but little else. For a fortnight the Senate will have to busy itself with divorce cases in order to keep warm.

GOOD ICE FOR TO-NIGHT'S BIG JUNIOR BATTLE

The big game between the Boston Exploits and the Y.M.C.A. to-night will be the second game of the double-header, instead of the first, as announced last night. The Alerts and Wanderers will play the first game at 8 o'clock, and the big game will follow, commencing sharp at 9 o'clock. Both teams are confident of victory. The ice is keen and hard, and both claim to be at their best under such conditions. It will be a hard-fought battle. Individually the Exploits have a little on the Y, but the latter's team work and combination is more developed, and from the side, it looks like a toss up. True the Exploits beat the Y 6 to 1 the last night out, but the ice was soft and the heavy going left the Red and Black team without a chance to show their team work. They will have no excuse to-night. A win for the Exploits gives them the championship. The teams will line-up as follows:

Exploits.		Y.M.C.A.
	Goal.
Latimer		Drling
	Defence.
Phelan, Regan		Smyth, Stevenson
	Rover.
Graham		Knapman
	Centre.

A LONG LIST.

For a government, that might take its cue from its head, Mr. Borden, in eliminating partizanship from the civil service, the Conservative government at Ottawa is an admirable example of how not to do it. Belated returns in regard to dismissals during the first three months of the Borden government regime are still being produced in the Commons, although ordered by the House over two years ago. The latest returns brought down bring the total of dismissals, so far tabulated, up to the 2,000 mark. And even at that, returns from a number of the Departments are still incomplete. The guillotine during the French Revolution did not work nearly as fast in chopping off heads as Messrs. Pelletier, Reid, Cochrane and the other Ministers have done during their first three months of office in chopping off the heads of Liberal office holders. But why complain of this; it is justified on the principle, imported from our good Yankee neighbours—"to the victors belong the spoils."

THAT FORTY MILLION SCANDAL.

The Toronto News uses the partisan report of the investigation into the construction of the Transcontinental railway to justify the phrase "a forty-million scandal." In the first place the report does not pretend to show any "graft" or misappropriation of public money. All it does is to do what it had no business to do, criticise the policy of location and construction adopted by parliament. It is claimed by the partizan commissioners that forty millions might have been saved in the construction of the railway. But how? By building a cheap road, by using lighter rails, by using sharper curves, steeper grades, and by not building any line south east of Quebec. Extending the principle the commission of investigation by entirely usurping the functions of Parliament could have saved the entire cost of the road by not building any railway at all, and leaving the West without adequate outlet for its produce and without railway competition, involving reduction of rates. There is no forty million scandal; but there is a $60,000 scandal represented by the expense of a commission to find out what everybody knew, that forty millions of dollars might have been saved by building the Transcontinental railway—intended to last for all time, with a minimum cost for maintenance and operating expenses—with the cheap and temporary character of a line of construction railway.

POOR PARCEL POST.

One does not wish to be impertinently suggestive, but it seems that Hon. Mr. Pelletier, Nationalist Postmaster-General, had better stick to the special line he has made such a success—the lopping off of the heads of "Grit" officials. He stands up well to this work; but he "falls down" when he undertakes application of the official functions of his post, as he has done in the matter of Parcel Post. He appears to have spoiled what promised to be a public advantage. Mr. Pelletier's Parcel Post promises to be something of a failure in Canada instead of a great success like it has been in the United States. The contrast between the Canadian rates on parcel post and the rates in force in the United States gives ground for Mr. Pelletier's expectations, that there will be no very strenuous objections form the Railway or Express Companies. In the United States where Parcel Post has become immensely popular the first zone at the start was 50 miles and it has since been extended to 150 miles. The weight of parcels has been raised to 50 pounds, while in Canada for the first three months the weight is limited to 6 pounds for a 20 mile zone and after the first three months the maximum of weight accepted will be 11 pounds. Moreover there are provincial complications in the Canadian system from which the American system is free. In the United States it costs 14 cents to send a parcel 100 miles by parcel post. In Canada under the new rates it costs 48 cents to send the same parcel the same distance. The Express companies in Canada would carry it for 40 cents or 6 cents cheaper than it costs to send it by parcel post. As a matter of practical working out the only real advantage of the present parcel post system will be within the limited 20-mile zone. Beyond that distance the parcel post rate will not seriously compete with existing express rates. Perhaps the two boxes of cigars which Hon. Mr. Pelletier received via parcel post on the day the system was opened, each came from an express company.

FAIR PROMISES SPOILED.

No disrespect is intended in intimating that Premier Borden is like Macbeth's "juggling fiends," • • • "that palter with us in a double sense; that keep the word of promise to our ear and break it in our hope," but there's aptness in the comparison. Rt. Hon. Mr. Borden with a great show of fairness, told us that the details of the redistribution scheme would be intrusted to a committee, composed of four Conservatives and three Liberals. In imitating the action of Sir Wilfrid Laurier in regard to redistribution, Mr. Borden showed a disposition to be fair, and was fair in appearance. He appointed the redistribution committee, composed as promised; but he did not show so much the spirit of his promise, in constituting the Conservative moiety of the committee. It does not seem that the selection of Hon L. P. Pelletier, the Nationalist Postmaster-General, and Hon. Robt. Rogers, Minister of the Interior, and of Buy-elections, was happy from the point of view of fairness and conscientious scruple. In the case of Hon Mr. Pelletier, we have not only a rank Nationalist, appointed to hold the balance, as chairman, is a matter that concerns the dearest rights of any Canadian citizen, the distribution, and effectiveness of the franchise, but we have a merciless partizan whose record for the slaughter of officials to apply the principle of "graft"—making partizanship the basis of appointment to office in the public service—is as sanguinary as the judicial record of "Bloody Jeffries." Mr. Pelletier has cut off so many heads of officials that the list of his dismissals ordered by parliament has not yet been completed after two years' hard work by civil service officials. Such a man, with such an axe, is an admirable selection for cutting and carving constituencies in the interests of his party. With the evil genius, Hon. Bob. Rogers, suggesting ways and means the work of partizan redistribution will be bravely done. Hon. Mr. Borden has spoiled his promise of fair play in the matter of redistribution by the manner of its application. Failure to implement his promises, old or new, seems to have become constitutional, even if unconstitutional, with Rt. Hon. Mr. Borden.

WHY NOT FREE IMPLEMENTS?

During the eight months ending with November last $4,328,646 worth of agricultural implements were exported from Canada to the United Kingdom and various foreign countries. Binders alone accounted for $1,396,000 of the total, while the value of the threshing machines exported was $712,270. Seed drills made up the next item in point of importance, exports in this line amounting to $342,550. The implements exported went in the main to France Germany and Australia. In shipping to these countries our manufacturers had to compete wih domestic manufacturers in these countries who were operating behind a tariff wall. They had to meet on equal terms the more strenuous competition of American manufacurers who are producing implements similar to those made in this country.

Since our manufacturers of implements have thus demonstrated their ability to compete with German and French manufacturers in Germany and France, and to compete on absolutely equal terms with American manufacturers in all foreign markets, why should these domestic manufacturers be longer protected in the home market? A special reason for the withdrawal of protection would seem to be found in the fact that the United States has wholly abolished protection in so far as agricultural machinery is concerned. Our manufacturers of such machinery have absolute freedom of access to the American market. The result is that American farmers have the benefit of competition between American and Caandian firms in price, service, and style in all classes of agricultural implements. Why should not Canadian farmers have the same privilege? Why continue a handicap on the farmers of this country from which farmers across the way have been relieved?—Weekly Sun.

OFFENCES OF GOVERNMENT OFFICIALS

In 1806 the House of Commons passed a resolution to this effect:

"That whilst it is desirable thtt every official in the employ of the government of Canada should enjoy perfect freedom of political opinions and the untrammeled exercise of his franchise in accord therewith, no official shall engage or be permitted to engage in partizan work of any description in the election of a representative to a provincial or dominion legislature."

Whether that resolution was ever respected, and to what extent, the Whig does not know, but it is remarkable that under a government that has dismissed hundreds of officials for alleged participation in politics, and sometimes under mere suspicion, there is the rankest misconduct by Conservative office-holders.

Mr. Neely of Humboldt, called attention, in a recent speech, to a series of events, all serious and reprehensible, but all made light of by th Government, excepting one, and it would have been passed over but for the presence of an affidavit. Arthur Smyth was appointed a homestead inspector in the district of Humboldt, in 1912. During the Saskatchewan election he was haled before a local magistrate and fined $50 and costs for intimidation.

A second official, Glen. Campbell, was a former member of parliament, defeated in the election of 1911, and now chif inspector of Indian agencies at $3,000 per annum and expenses. He had been advertised to speak at a bye-election at Swan River, and in the Qu Appelle he busied himself, with his brother-in-law, a resigned member of the Legislature, in seeking the election of the Conservative candidate.

But active interest in an election, and a resort to the usual tactics, is not all that is said of Glen Campbell, the former noisy member of the Commons and now noisy Indian agent. A letr was submitted from William Penny, a J.P., enclosing the affidavit of Michael Poitras, of Belcarres, a half-breed voter in Qu 'Appelle. In this affidavit it was charged that in January he was met in a bar room by Glen Campbell, and given drink until he was intoxicated. Going out into the night he slept on the prairie and was so badly frozen that he may be crippled for life.

How were these charges met? They were made light of by the minister of the interior, and the minister of publis works. Hon. Mr. Rogers had gone to Saskatchewan during thtt election and had undertaken to win it for his party. Hon. Dr. Roche would not believe that the Indian agent would address political meetings, though advertised to do so, and he should not be suspeced of political bias because seen with his brother-in-law during a visit. The Smyth offence was trivial—the intimidation of voters by an official! "In the main the accusations," said the minister of the interior, "are rather puerile." The one against Mr. Campbell would be laid before him for explanation.

A mild way of disposing of a serious case. Officials can do almost anything when they are Conservatives and work for the Conservative cause. They cannot call their soul their own when they are Liberals, and some hungry office-holders want their place. The sooner, in the public interests, and for the sake of apparance, thre is a return to the resolution of 1896 th better. Every official should ge out of politics and stay ou.—Kingston Whig.

LOCAL OPTION IN ALBERTA

CALGARY, Alta., Feb. 18—Definite plans for a vigorous local option campaign in Alberta are to be formulated at the annual convention of the Alberta Temperance and Moral Reform League, which met in the Knox Presbyterian Church in this City today for a two days' session. Representatives of church and temperance organizations throughout the Province are attending the convention.

OUR MEMBER AND THE PUBLIC BUILDING'S SITE

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—Does anybody suppose that the proposal to erect a new government building at Peterborough is made regardless of the necessities of the case? If he does he must thing that this is a peculiar administration. The post office is too small. It cannot be enlarged upon its present site without driving part of the work upstairs. The lot is too small. This would destroy the efficiency of the present staff and would necessitate a large addition to the staff. The post office cannot be retained where it is for these and possibly other reasons. There is no good in dictating to the Post Office Department. It must be assumed to know its own business. I would personally have chosen a different lot from the one selected, but that is not either here or there. The expert knows what is best for all concerned, and I would not "pull" him to the extent of an eighth of an inch, even if I could. We have had enough of that sort of thing, surely. But if the Council will not have the Government expert's choice it can say so, but beyond breaking up the plan of a noble building for all departments, as was done before, under Mr. Hilliard, M.P., I cannot say what effect a negative answer will have. I see one gentleman proposes to have it settled by a plebiscite of the merchants. He evidently thinks that nobody else has a right to speak, either government or people.

J. H. Burnham.

The only point of Mr. Burnham's letter, if it is admitted to have a point, is that in which he advocates bureaucracy — the supremacy of the Post Office Department and suppression of the people as having any right to consideration of their convenience or wishes. "The expert knows what is best for us." There seems to be no consideration for the people, whose money is to be spent, not the money of the expert. What is the object of erecting public buildings, unless for the convenience of the public; to serve their convenience in the best possible way? Is the opinion of the expert to take precedence of every consideration of local convenience? As to the question of the site for new public building there is a difference of opinion; and it seems that the fair way would be to proceed with new buildings and the placing of them according to the prevalent ascertained opinion of the public. What is the use of discussing the matter if the man who should watch our interests hides behind the expert and throws all the responsibility of dealing with the dissatisfaction created upon the City Council? If the expert is to rule, if no considerations of local convenience are to be admitted, why refer the matter to the City Council? It is very evident that those who are displeased with the site selected for the proposed new public buildings—and they are many—can expect no assistance or sympathy from their representative. He has so much reverence for the expert that though he is personally opposed to the site selected he would not "pull" him to the extent of an eighth of an inch." Mr. Burnham declares there is no good "dictating to the Post Office Department"—no good in the people, who create governments, in stating their wishes to the servants they have created. He sheds his responsibility like a garment, and throws it upon the shoulders of the City Council. Why not send the City Council to Parliament to represent us?

Letter From One Who Has Been Through Mill

Editor Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Will you kindly allow me a small space in your paper to say a few words, as my attention was drawn to an article last evening concerning immigration. Well, Sir, I do not wish to run Canada down, but I do think there ought to be a remedy to stop the advertising in the Old Country for farm labourers for Canada, as I think it is a great shame, for there are hundreds every year leaving good jobs to come to what is called the land of plenty. It is true there is plenty in the summer, but what about the winter? They advertise for farm labourers for all the year round, but how many farmers are there that keep a man all the year round. Take for instance, Ontario; a farmer will hire a man for say six months and then he will turn him down. Do you think a married man with a family can save enough in six months to keep a family the next six, and the money that a farmer pays is about 25 dollars a month with board, making a total of about 150 dollars? Do you think that sufficient to keep a family for about 5 or 6 months? Then again, take the farmers in the west. They want a man or more, but how long do they want them for; say at the most 3 or 4 months. Then again, what is a man to do the other 8 or 9 months? Perhaps people will say, get a job at something else. Yes, that is easy to say; but not quite so easy to get the job. Take for instance the present time. It doesn't matter where you go, there are hundreds walking about out of work, and don't know where to get the next meal from. Then again, take other work, such as casual labouring. The average wage is about 10 dollars a week. People will say, save your money in the summer for the winter. What can a man save out of ten dollars a week, considering the price living is now. So now, dear Mr. Editor I think I have made it rather plain what I mean by saying there ought to be a stop put to this advertising for farm labourers all the year round; also the big wages they will pay, so as to entice people to sell out their cosy little homes and leave a good, steady job, to come to what they are led to believe, a bed of roses and the land of plenty.

So now, dear Mr. Editor, I think I have said all. Trusting you will find a space in your paper for my letter

The Church And Entertainments

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—While looking over your valuable papers for the last two or three months I must say that I am rather surprised at the number of public entertainments, etc., that have been and are at present taking place in this City. I think, myself that either the ministers of the various churches have nothing to say in the matter of what kind or how often an entertainment (of the money-make type of course) shall be held; or else their resolution protesting against them at the meeting of the Ministerial Association was nothing more than a selfish piece of work, done for selfish purposes. Money is a necessity for Church work and public entertainments are a good way of getting it, if done honestly; but when you see on the front page of the paper, say three months ago, "Ministerial Association" Condemns Bazaars, Public Entertainments, etc., and this week everyone is invited to one of these things, it makes one wonder what is the matter. Kindly print in Examiner and oblige.

Eliminate The Talk, Go Ahead With Building

To the Editor, The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I see by your paper of last night that Mr. Cressman condemns the moving of the post office and gives as one of his reasons that it would be breaking faith with the residents of East City.

Now! Mr. Cressman, is this the real reason. As an East City resident I have spoken to many, and they seemed to be surprised that you take such an interest in our behalf. Eight of those I refer to have never been inside the post office since the post office delivery inauguration. Others have, but, were of the opinion that while it may inconvenience one or two residents of East City, that the citizens of the East were heartily in favour of the new site.

I am afraid we are tampering with fire, and this whole thing will end up with getting nothing.

I say—on with the building.

And then the idle men can get to work. This just means at least $100,000 or more to be spent in wages for the workingman, and God knows we need it. Of course, we will leave some with Mr. Cressman.

Yours,
C. A. Miller.

Mr. Adam Hall Thinks Corner of George and Sherbrooke Streets is the Right Place

Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,— Owing to my having for a great many years been a merchant on George Street, I have been following with interest the various opinions that have been expressed by the merchants and other citizens on the question of building the new Post Office, Customs House, Inland Revenue Office and Trent Valley Offices at the corner of George and Sherbrooke Street. It certainly appeals to me that it would be in the interests of Peterborough to have these new Dominion Government buildings erected there.

It will have a wholesome effect on the business interests of Peterborough. At the present time the stores and office buildings on George Street and on the streets immediately connected with George Street are practically owned or controlled by two landlords who enjoy a complete monopoly. The merchants and those who rent offices in this district are practically under the control of these two landlords, who arbitrarily fix their rents and who will only make repairs or improvements on onerous terms and conditions which the tenant has to practically submit to. There are a number of stores on George Street which are old and out of date and are nothing more or less than fire traps and death traps in their present conditions. Instead of these old buildings being repaired they should be rebuilt from the ground up. The collapse of the old Turnbull building last fall, during the time it was undergoing extensive repairs amply demonstrates that it is time for this City to get away from absentee landlordism and its economizing patchwork.

If the new government buildings are built further down George Street encouragement will be given to owners of property in that vicinity to put up new and modern stores and office buildings and the result will be that tenants will be able to rent their stores on more reasonable terms and conditions. The two landlords will be more anxious to make necessary repairs and improvements to retain their tenants. They may also see the necessity of building new and modern buildings in the place of those now existing.

By all means let this City rid itself of this monopoly and have the new Government buildings erected where the Dominion Government engineer has selected.

To meet the convenience of East City a branch post office could be established there at a central point.

Yours, etc.,
ADAM HALL.

A REPLY FROM MR. AUSTIN

Editor Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I was much pleased to see by your issue of the 12th that one man—Mr. F. E. Ellis had the courage of his convictions to such an extent as to write over his own signature his views on the subject of real estate speculation. In reading carefully the letter of Mr. Ellis as it appears in your issue, three things are quite manifest:

1—That the writer has very little knowledge of what he writes.

2—His stories do not correspond to known facts.

3—The writer's aim was by hook or by crook to get his knife into the real estate man.

Now as to the first point, Mr. Ellis says that the real estate speculator in our Canadian Northwest, has got all the land nearest in to the railroad and therefore the poor settler has to go away back 80 to 100 miles for his free grant. I make the statement that so far as the real estate men of Peterborough are concerned there is not one particle of truth in his statement. No real estate man in Peterborough has ever bought an acre that it would have been possible for the settler to homestead. Any person can verify what I say by the Homestead Act of the Dominion Parliament. Throughout our Northwest the land is divided into townships, 6 miles square, thus containing 36 sections, each one mile square. These sections are numbered from 1 to 36—sections 11 and 29 are school sections—and sections 8 and 24 are Hudson Bay sections. By the Homestead Act of the Dominion Government all the even numbered sections except 8 and 24 are for homestead for the settler. These even numbered sections are not open for purchase—nor have they ever been open for purchase—and in consequence I say that it is impossible that any Peterborough real estate man should have purchased them, because they were not for sale, and therefore I claim that in bringing this forward to get a fling at the Peterborough real estate agent (or speculator if you will) he is either woefully ignorant or he thinks we are. Now, then, if it is, and always has been, impossible for us to purchase this free grant land, it naturally follows that the wrong he charges us with doing the poor settler, has no existence outside his own distorted imagination.

While the even numbered sections are for homestead and for homestead only, the odd numbered sections from 1 to 35 are railway grant lands. The C.P.R. got 25,000,000 acres as part of the grant for building their railroad and were allowed to select it where they chose. They have now sold about 18,000,000 acres of this land — which they had a perfect right to do—to people who had a perfect right to buy, and because a large number of people in Peterborough and vicinity bought some of this land that was being sold at low prices and have made some money on the deal, they must needs be told by some of these new lights that making money in this way is worse than gambling at cards.

What does actually happen when a man goes to get a homestead? He enters the registry office, asks what land is open for registry. The registrar hands him a slip showing what quarters are open in the townships he mentions. All the quarter sections, not open, have been filed on by some other person who has been there before him and filed ahead of him. No real estate speculator can buy the homestead.

I said in the second place that Mr. Ellis' letter did not correspond to known facts. He says "The conditions that I and all other have found." I would like to know how he knows that "all others" have found things as he says. I certainly did not. The condition he speaks of may have prevailed in one or two sections of the vast Northwest, but for a man to make a sweeping statement like this, that "all others" have found things as he says, and apply his experience of a few places and intimate that these conditions prevail throughout the Northwest, looks much as if he were drawing on his imagination for his facts.

Mr. Ellis went out to the west, as he says, four years ago, and met a typical homesteader who, seeing he had run up against a tenderfoot who was very new to the country, proceeded to load him up, and he certainly succeeded in stringing him in good shape.

Mr. Ellis says this man on the "steading" — (tenderfoot sticks out there up to the ankle)—told him he came to Edmonton a year ago, and had to go clear out 80 miles to get a homestead, had a very hard time, and was fifty miles from a doctor, and all this. Does Mr. Ellis know that the Dominion government returns for that very year, shows that there 77 homesteads entered for, within 25 miles of Edmonton, and that there were 82 more quarter sections still open for homestead on Jan 1st, 1910, and these all within the 25 mile circle? He or anyone else, can verify this statement at our office. Now, if there were plenty of homestead within 25 miles of Edmonton, what becomes of the homesteader's yarn that he had to go 80 miles out? Yet Mr. Ellis swallows this story, and without a particle of investigating, comes back here to Peterborough and exhibits his knowledge, or lack of knowledge, of the country, and expects intelligent people to take hi mseriously. A little further down Mr. Ellis speaks of this man on the "steading', who had been attracted to the country by the glittering stories of a real estate agent. Now does Mr. Ellis wish to convey the impression that the real estate agent sold him the homestead? If so, the Dominion statutes makes this a crime punishable by fine and imprisonment. As to homesteading, many people go a long distance out if they find a large body of good land in some particular locality, as they think their chances of a railway coming near them are thereby improved.

As to the hardships of the prairie and its loneliness, far be it from me to depreciate these, for I have driven several thousand miles on the prairie and happen to know something of these things, but what I claim is, and this is within the knowledge of every man who really knows the west, that the hardships of the pioneer there, are not to be compared to those of the early settlers in Ontario.

I said in the third place that Mr. Ellis aims by hook or by crook to get his knife into the real estate man. He begins by saying that Mr. Chipman, Editor of the Grain Growers' Guide, says speculation in land is immoral, and he Mr. Ellis, Editor of the Farm and Dairy, says so too. Yes, that it is "most immoral" and therefore we real estate agents who speculate in land—as we all do—are the most immoral creatures. Dear me; but this is awful! We are accused of forcing the poor settler to go out 80 to 100 miles for a homestead although we have never been able to buy this free grant or homestead land at all. We are accused, too, of being accessories to the crime of causing the poor women to go crazy on the prairie, because they are so far out. We are accused of causing the slum in the city, although most of us had fancied that idleness, drink and crime had more to do with people living in slums than had the real estate agent. And last and worst of all, we are accused of holding lots in the south end of this City, and asking more for them than they are worth, for agricultural purposes. "Truly, truly, we are a bad lot!" If we have any redeeming features they have never become apparent to the Editor of the Farm and Dairy.

Did it ever occur to Mr. Ellis that these much maligned real estate agents and speculators have done more as a class to build this City up and make it a city of beautiful homes, a city of progress, than any other class of the community. Does Mr. Ellis know that these same real estate men are building up snug, comfortable homes for the working man and selling them, often with a payment of but one hundred dollars down, thus giving to the poor working man something really more useful than the slobbering sympathy of mere words. These real estate agents are not pessimists; they are all optimistic for the prosperity of this City. They do not believe in Socialistic nonsense, nor in Henry George. We think you are just a little too new, and we regard your letter as an overflow of gall, a piece of impertinence, quite uncalled for, and hope soon that the other chap—that has been under the bed so long, whom we all know—will have the manliness to come out over his own signature and say why he engineered it, that this slanderous reflection should have been made on the honour of so many citizens of this City.

Respectfully yours,
W. O. AUSTIN.

SPLENDING DEBATE ON THE HIGH COST OF LIVING

St. Andrew's Utopia Bible Class Was Declared the Winner --H.C.O.L. Does Not Retard Growth of Canada--Some Good Addresses.

A splendid debate was held in St. Andrew's Church, last night, when three speakers from the St. Andrew's Utopia Bible Class took the affirmative in a debate, in which the negative was argued by speakers from the St. Paul's Young Men's Bible Class. Mayor Buller presided, and a large number gave the debaters a very attentive hearing.

Th subject of the debate was: "Resolved that the High Cost of Living is not Retarding the Healthy Growth of Canada." Messrs. Mills, Connors, and Campbell spoke for the affirmative, and Messrs. Brackenridge, Taylor and Turner for the negative. After the debate Mr. R. F. Downey announced, on behalf of the judges, that the affirmative had won the debate.

In a brief speech Mayor Buller expressed his pleasure at being present. He wishe dto assure those who thought he might be looking for the lost plank of his platform, that such was not the case. The Rev. Mr. Rollins, their pastor, would look after that.

The six speeches of the debate were remarkable for the material they contained, and the manner in which the subject was treated. The debate was successful in every respect, and the members of both classs are to be congratulated on the splendid showing.

Mr. Mills was the leader of the affirmative, and in connection with the high cost of living he submitted that men who are earning $12 a week nowadays could only earn $4.50 weekly years ago. Prices had increased 17 per cent., but wages had increased 24 per cent. Most of the necessities of life cost just about the same as in 1872. First-class securities could be bought at a lower figure now than ever. The wages in Canada had more than kept pace with the increasg in prices.

In the three countries in the world where the cost of living was the greatest, the people had the largest amount of money in the Savings Banks. In Germany, where the cost of living was the highest of any nation in the world, they had made wonderful advance in education and manufacturing. The speaker did not refer to money spent in boosting "bad" real estate.

For the negative Mr. Brackenridge was the first speaker. He said that during the past few years food prices had increased almost 15 per cent. When the prices were high ordinary men couldn't get food, resulting in a decrease in the demand on the factories and a decrease in the output. The pinch was being felt all over Canada, thousands were out of work in Canadian cities.

The speaker drew attention to the fact that while the figures of the number entering Canada were heralded far and wide by the Government those concerning the number leaving the Dominion on account of the high cost of livig and other reasons, were kept discreetly in the background. Canada was the only place in the world where free land was still to be had, and immigration would be three times what it is were it not for the high cost of living.

To-day machines for making carpets took the place of 15 men. In mines and factories machines took the place of 25 men, and in the C. G. E. they did work that could only be done otherwise by hundreds of extra men.

Private parties were restricting the production in a hundred different ways and were raising the prices of the manufactured goods; flour, wheat beef and honey were cheaper in England than in Canada.

Mr. W. A. Connors, the next speaker for the affirmative, said the high cost of living was not a cause, but an effect. It was no more a cause of conditions than the dust swirling from the road was responsible for the speed of the passing automobile, or the spray of the water for the speed of the motor boat. Like the whiskers of a cat, the high cost of living could be used to ascertain the presence of something that was a real hindrance to the healthy growth of this country.

Mr. Harry Taylor was the following speaker. He argued that the high cost of living was due to militery expenditure, abuse of the banking system, monopolisation of natural resources, and wrong taxation. He followed out his claims in a splendid speech, showing how Canadians must help to bear the burdens of the European military expenditure.

Mr. W. S. Campbell submitted that hard times would occur periodically every ten years. They were the natural reaction from a too rapid growth and were necessary so that the growth of the country in which they occurred might be called a healthy one. The high cost of living was a natural result of prosperity and was a remedy, not a disease.

Mr. E. M. Turner was the last speaker for the negative side. He claimed that if the opponents stuck to their arguments, they would say that when eggs were $1 a dosen, beef 75c. a pound and rents so dear that common people would have to revert to the wigwam, then Canada would be at the very apex of prosperity. He pointed out that there were more factories twenty-three years ago in Canada, when the population was only half what it was to-day, than there are now. The smaller ones had been crowded out by the monopolists. Then the protective tariff was responsible for some of the increase in the cost of living.

Mr. Mills made a five-minute reply for the affirmative, in which he stated bald facts in a manner that resembled he most enthusiastic evangelist's "Glory, Glory, Hallelujah!"

Mr. Turner made a reply for the negative.

Mr. G. N. Gordon kindly criticised the debaters, giving them words of advice and encouragement.

A beautiful solo was rendered by Miss Dorothy Allan, who was encored. Mr. Walter Evans also gave a solo, which was heartily received.

More than 240,000,000 barrels of petrolem were produced in the United States in 1913, a gain of about 18,000,000 barrels over 1912, which was the record year until last year.

FIRST ANNUAL SMOKER OF THE PETERBOROUGH RANGERS

Successful Affair Held in the Armouries Last Evening—A Large Attendance—Address by Col. Clegg.

THE PROGRAMME

The first annual regimental smoker of the 57th, Peterborough Rangers, was held in the Armouries last night. There were approximately 250 of the men and their associates present, and the officers were strongly in evidence. Congratulation may be extended to Col. Sgt. Sucee who, we understand, was responsible for the arrangements. The measure undertaken was such a huge success, that it was immediately decided to make it an annual affair. Capt. McPherson acted in the capacity of chairman. The programme was a lenghty and varied one, and the numbers were exceptionally well rendered, and as well received.

During the evening, Col. Clegg addressed the men on the standard of the work that was undertaken last year. He made special reference to the musketry, expressing his desire that the men take more interest in that branch of the training. Recruiting will commence right away, and the recruiting drills will commence on March 1st. The regular regimental drills will be inaugurated on or about April 1st. There will be a large number of recruits required to bring the regiment up to the standard strength, as there are always a lot of time-expired men at the expiration of each season's work.

The probabilities are that the annual training camp for the ensuing season will be located at Petawawa, which is acknowledged to be one of the best training camps in the Dominion, as the conditions met with are ideal, being as near to active service conditions as it is possible to obtain. The camp will be a divisional camp, with cavalry, artillery and infantry in attendance, and it is expected that some interesting manoeuvres will be conducted.

There will probably be some additions to the officers' staff this year, a musketry and signalling officer, having been actually appointed. There are every year from 25 to 33 p.c. of the men who throw up the regiment, and these have to be accounted for in some way.

The strength of the regiment for the few years past has been around the 400 mark. The year before last it was 403, last year 436, and this year it is hoped that the number will reach 540, which is the standard aimed at.

Col. Miller also made a few remarks about the work after which he gave two very interesting recitations.

The Programme.

That the numbers found favour with the men was evidenced by the continued applause and encores which were showered upon the entertainers. Pte. Custus found especial favour, he having to reply to each number he presented. Shortly before 10 o'clock, the chairman announced that there would be a short interval, but that those present were to remain, as there was "something good" to follow.

Hon. Major Davidson, Chaplain of the Regiment, told an original story entitled "Boy Brandon of the Band," which was exceptionally well received, and but for lack of space, which circumstance we regret, the story, which has not yet been adapted to paper, would have been published.

Mr. Clayton, the manager of the Royal, had most kindly consented to allow two of the vaudeville actors to appear, and they certainly injected "some spirit" into the men, as they had a hard task to leave the platform.

The following is the programme:
Mr. J. Revoy—Juggling act.
Pte. Custus—Song.
Col. Clegg—Address.
Col. Miller—Recitations.
Canon Davidson—Story.
Mr. Clarke—Banjo solo.
Pte. Custus—Song.
Vaudeville acts.

The means adopted last evening is, it is agreed, the best way to keep the men together, and promote a social fellowship, and there are indications that there will be manly more such evenings to follow.

Several companies signify their intention to hold dances after Easter, but as that is as yet some time distant, more timely announcements will be made.

Mr. Fred Howarth presided ably at the piano throughout the evening.

The rendition of the National Anthem concluded the proceedings at 11 o'clock.

The Committee in charge of the proceedings are much indebted to Mr. Clayton of the Royal Theatre for so kindly placing th artists at their disposal.

FORMAL OPENING OF GOLDEN JUBILEE

WASHINGTON, D.C., Feb. 18.—Today marked the formal opening of the four days' celebration arranged in honour of the golden jubilee of the Knights of Pythias. The day was devoted to the reception of the visitors who arrived from all parts of the United States and Canada. The main celebration will take place tomorrow, which will be the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the order in this City.

FACTORY ACT TO BE ENFORCED

As a result of a measure passed in parliament at the last session, there is every probability of many young girls making good wages in factories being thrown out of work. The bill in question was passed after considerable discussion on the workmen's compensation act, and is to the effect that girl employes, under the age of 18 years, are forbidden to operate power driven machinery. The foremen of the majority of the factories in Peterborough employing girl help, were given instructions several weeks ago to secure the ages of all the girls employed. In a number of instances the girls under 18 years of age were told of the new statute and asked to hand in their resignation. Another clause in the statute, which, while not so serious, has given many girl employees food for thought, is to the effect that the hair must be tied tightly on the top of the head. This ruling has completely disrupted many stunning coiffures and hirsute creations, and there have been many cries of protest. The order regarding the arrangement of the tresses is to prevent, as far as possible, the hair being drawn into machinery.

FORBES SKEENE TO BE DEPORTED

LINDSAY, Feb. 17.—Mr. G. H. Hopkins, K. C., has received a letter from the Superintendent of Immigration at Ottawa that his application on behalf of the Guarantee Company to have Forbes Skeene deported, has been granted, and the order has been made. He will be deported on his release after serving his sentence.

EAST PETERBORO' IS 18,947 UNDER ELECTION LIMIT

OTTAWA, Feb. 17.— In connection with the Redistribution Bill a special memorandum, which has been prepared by the Government, detailing the procedure followed in past years, gives a list of constituencies which are below the election unit of 30,819, and as such are liable to be affected in the coming readjustment.

Among the Ontario seats decidedly under the limit, is East Peterborough by 18,947.

It does not follow that the constituencies markedly deficient in population will be entirely wiped out, but rather than at least the boundaries will be readjusted in such a way as to have their population conform reasonably to the accepted unit of representation.

Amendments to the workingmen's compensation act will be among the first important matter to receive attention.

Spring Wash Goods Surely Surpass Everything In Beauty of Texture and Colour

While one Has a Veritable Host of Lovely Patterns to Choose From

RATINES naturally come first when mentioning the new washable materials, for they will be in high favour for spring fashions on account of their soft, full texture, their fine colours, and excellent laundering qualities.

There is a heavy weave of 42 inch width in plain colours of blue, white and mustard, which is 65c a yard; while a handsome brocaded variety a little lighter in weight, is also 42 inches wide, and is of a pretty light blue colour; priced 50c a yard.

Then there are some exclusive costume lengths in three tone and brocaded tile ratine, in which perfection of washable fabrics seems to have been reached.

These vary in price from $3.15 to $10.90 the length.

Rippiette

This is a new fabric that comes in a pretty striped combination of cotton crepe and plain cotton, and, when washed, needs no ironing.

The pattern is also a neat stripe design, in Blue, Mauve or Black upon a White ground, or a triple combination of Mauve, Black and White, and Tan, Blue and White.

It is woven 27 inches wide, and is priced 25c yard.

Crepe Crepon

In this beautiful material the Russian Cord weave is used as a stripe pattern, with a singularly handsome effect.

In one instance there is Black upon White, in another Blue upon White, while the mixture of Tan, Blue and White forms an exceedingly pretty colour effect. The width is 27 inches, and like all cotton crepes no iron is needed when laundering it. Price 35c a yard.

Plain Cotton Crepes

Copenhagen, Biscuit, Tango, Dark Lavender, and Old Rose shades; 40 ins. wide, and 50c a yard.

Brown Linen Suitings

For that delightfully early Spring combination of Coat and Skirt, there is a refreshing newness in these Linen Suitings.

They are guaranteed to keep their natural shade, and are of Blue, White or Black striped patterns, in 28 inch width, at the modest price of 25c a yard.

Will Tell His Life Story

The revival meetings in the Bethany Tabernacle continue with increasing interest and attendance. The "Mountaineer Evangelist" spoke last night on the subject of "The Religion of the First Two Boys of the Human Family." He said both boys were religious, both came presenting their offering to God. Cain's offering was rejected and Abel's was accepted. And Why? In Cain's offering there was no confession of need no repentance, no perspective hope of anything great. He considered his own efforts sufficient. Abel came with a confession of guilt, bringing a blood sacrifice, which alone could atone for sin. His offering was accepted because he came in God's way. Many people want their own way. They want a bloodless religion. Satan is trying to put down the blood and is exalting good works, and substituting the same for a righteous life and a living contact with the Holy God. Old dispensations have ended in judgment because of the Cain (bloodless) religion.

To-morrow (Thursday) night Mr. Compton will relate the story of his life. From the poverty, ignorance and isolation of the Appalchian Mountains he has been delivered by the hand of God, and has since travelled more than 250,000 miles, preaching the everlasting Gospel of the grace of God. Probably there has never been a man who has visited Peterborough with a story to tell like the life story of Mr. Compton.

Service to-night at 8 o'clock, and each day this week at 3 and 8 p.m. A cordial welcome to all.

L. O. L. NO. 1175 HELD FIRST AT HOME OF SEASON

A happy looking gathering was to be found last night in the rooms of the Woodmen of the World, when the L. O. L. 1175 held their first social of the season. The room was well filled. The chair was occupied by District Master Stinson.

After one or two suitable speeches, a musical programme was provided, one item of which was a hoop drill by 16 girls and boys, which was extremely effectively carried out, under the supervision of Mrs. J. Carr, who acted as ballet mistress, and who had evidently well rehearsed the scene. This little gathering sang the "Maple Leaf" in very good style, while performing the various evolutions. After the conclusion of the musical programme, refreshments were served by the ladies. Progressive euchre was in evidence, and was followed by an impromptu dance, the party breaking up in the early hours of the morning.

Mr Hancock was in charge of the whole programme, which gave much pleasure to all present. The following is the programme of the musical part:

Recitation, Miss Seafe.
Piano solo, Miss Olive Johnston.
Vocal solo, Miss Lamb.
Hoop Drill.
Reading, Mr. Quick.
Solo, Miss Mabel Penrose.
Recitation, Miss Lamb.

Revival Meetings

The revival meetings in the Free Methodist Church on Aylmer Street have been in progress one week, and are steadily increasing in interest and attendance.

Miss Babcock preached an interesting and profitable sermon last night on "Repentence." Her text was St. Luke xiii., 5: "Except ye repent ye shall all likewise perish." She emphasized the fact that these were the words of Jesus, and therefore were very important. Repentance is just as essential now to the exercise of saving faith as it was in the days when these words were spoken. She urged upon all present the importance of the "New Birth" and a godly, victorious life. Rev. W. B. Olmstead, who for several years was editor of the Sunday School literature of said Church, and is now Sunday School secretary and travelling evangelist, will preach to-night at 8 o'clock. The people of Peterborough are cordially invited to come and hear this able minister of the Gospel. Meetings all this week and next.

There is much anxiety expressed about "our girls." A slight tightening of the lid upon some of "our boys" might help some. But boys "must" mix considerable cockle during the sowing season.

The Y.M.C.A.-Boston Exploit game to-night should draw a big crowd.

Expert advice must count for little judging by the howl raised over the location of the proposed public buildings.

A SOUND INVESTMENT

Deep Cutting Into Original Selling Prices of Barries' Limited, Furs

To stimulate the activity in fur buying this month, as well as to help reduce present heavy stocks, Barrie's Limited, are featuring many capital investments for fur buyers. A careful perusal of their four column advertisement on another page will reveal the very substantial nature of these offerings. For every dollar invested in fur coats and fur sets just now, a guarantee of one dollar and fifty cents in fur value is promised — equivalent to a saving of fifty per cent. To those who failed, from whatever cause, to complete their contemplated fur purchases at Christmas, as well as to all others in need of furs, either now or for next season, this offer is a very attractive one. Barrie's furs need no word of commendation of their style or quality. They are standard Barrie exclusive models. There will be no reservation of any kind—every fur garment, and fur yet, is subject to the above reduction.

Mr. John McGrath, of Peterboro', is a Loser

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 18—The saw mill belonging to Mr. John McGrath, 697 Harvey Street, Peterborough, was burned to the ground early this morning, and is a total loss. The mill was situated on the river, almost from the Lakefield Wharf. The fire broke out about 3 o'clock this morning and had made great progress before being noticed, the Village Fire Brigade being unable to do anything to stop the progress of the flames. Several mills on the same site have been burned down.

CITY SQUADRON OF THE 3RD DRAGOONS

The Non Commissioned Officers' Instruction Class, in connection with the 3rd Dragoons will be commenced on Thursday night in the local Armouries, under the instruction of Sergt. Instructor Spalding, from the Cavalry Barracks, in Toronto. A goodly number have signified their intention of taking up the class, which will be of a number of weeks' duration. There is at present a movement on foot to organize a City Squadron of the 3rd Dragoons in Peterborough, and to supply the men with the full dress uniform of the parent Regiment. If this movement is successfully carried out, this City will be the only one, outside of Toronto, where the Body Guard is stationed, to boast a City Squadron.

A large sum of money will be required to foot the movement, but it is the hope of those immediatly concerned that the project will be successfully carried through.

HE SAW SNAKES.

"The prisoner claims that he was not intoxicated when you arrested him," said the judge. "What was he doing?"

"He was having a desperate battle with a 32-foot snake, Your Honor," replied the officer.

"That is no evidence that he was drunk," said the judge.

"But there wasn't any snake there," replied the officer.

THEY CANNOT WAIT.

U. S. Senators Want to Clear Up 'Toll Discrimination Law.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18 — The the Senate may not wait for initiative action in the House before taking under serious consideration the matter of repealing the tolls exemption of the Panama Canal Act because apparent yesterday. It was stated by several Senators who are anxious to have the matter settled to aid in clearing up foreign relations generally that some action toward a solution of the question was probable within a few days.

Thursday is set as the day for beginning discussion on the general arbitration treaties in executive session. The expired treaty with Great Britain, which awaits ratification for extension, will be taken up first, and it will be certain to open the floodgates of oratory on the Panama tolls question, as this was the stumbling block to ratification of the treaty last summer. Senator O'Gorman, who is opposed to the convention, and also opposed to the President's desire that the canal tolls exemption for American coastwise ships be removed, will lead the attack. That the matter yet would be sent to a Democratic caucus for determination is the view held by many Senators.

TEACHERS VICTORIOUS.

Strike of Elementary Instructors In Britain Proves Successful.

LONDON, Feb. 18. — The striking teachers of the elementary schools in the County of Hereford have won their fight for a minimum salary and the strike, which started on Feb. 2, was declared over yesterday.

The National Union of Teachers, which had guaranteed its members full salary for a period of five years, succeeded in forcing the education department of the county to grant substantial increases in the teachers' salaries. They had demanded a minimum salary of $500 per annum, instead of the $450 they had hitherto received. When they struck on Feb. 2 eighty of the 120 schools under the jurisdiction of the council were closed, and the educational work of the county was stopped, except in a few cases where headmasters, assisted by their families, made an effort to continue it.

James Corner, vice-chairman of the Herefordshire County Council, yesterday resigned his office owing to his utter opposition to what he terms the "surrender" to the teachers.

Two Frozen To Death.

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Feb. 18.— Two lumbermen, Jerry Sheehan and Joseph Keily, were found frozen to death in a snowdrift on South Mountain Monday. They were within sight of the camp when they were overcome. Sheehan was found with his head under a tree stump, his last effort to gain shelter.

MISS MABEL HACKNEY

The Distinguished English Actress Who Appears With Mr. Lawrence Irving at the Grand This Week

Although Miss Mabel Hackney is known to her many admirers as one of the most charming and gifted actresses of her day, it is realised by few that in addition to this she is also an athlete of no mean order, having twice entered and competed in the Long Distance Swim in the Thames from Teddington to London Bridge adopting for this purpose the unassuming pseudonym of Smith. Her husband, Mr. Laurence Irving, who is coming to Canada under the auspices of the British Canadian Theatre Organization Society, was himself unaware that his wife indulged in this amazon-like pursuit until he made the discovery one day in the following manner. Strolling along the Thames Embankment with a friend one afternoon, his attention was attracted by a crowd of ethusiastic people cheering and gesticulating. On inquiring into the cause of their excitement, he found that it was called forth by some three or four swimmers in the river. Their enthusiasm communicated itself to Mr. Irving, who dashed on to the landing stage eager for a sight of the victorious competitor. Judge of his surprise when, on the arrival at the landing stage of the winners, in the features of the winner of the third prize he recognised those of his wife, whom he had fondly imagined to be occupied paying a round of social calls.

GETTING A START

By NATHANIEL C. FOWLER JR.

(Copyright, 1912, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

The philosopher has said that any fool can earn money, but that it takes a wise man to keep it.

This moss-covered adage may be reversed to read: Any fool can get a job, but it takes a good man to hold it.

First impressions count mightily in obtaining a position. The employer, who naturally does not know much about the average applicant, except his general record, allows appearance to influence him in making the engagement. A bright appearing boy or man, provided there is nothing against his character, can easily obtain a position, although it is obvious that he may not have "made good," because he is too young or has not had the opportunity.

Therefore, the employer must naturally be guided, to an extent at least, by the way the applicant appears.

While some men possess the ability to read the face, and to diagnose character, mistakes are likely to occur, and their liability is recognized, yet the man with a good appearance stands twice as good a chance of obtaining a position; but this advance impression and appearance amount to nothing after the employe has been given an opportunity. He must be satisfactory, or he will lose his position.

Appearance counts for little in the round-up. Intrinsic value is then exclusively considered.

I can recall dozens of men of fine personal appearance, who are magnetic and pleasing, and yet these men do not hold their positions. It is easy for them to get a job, but for some reason they do not seem to be able to retain it. Therefore, I say to the employe, "Do not bank upon your personal appearance, no matter how favourable it may be. Do not allow yourself to be deceived because you are fine looking or dress well and appropriately."

Good looks count in business, and appropriate dress is to be encouraged; but neither of them has what may be considered fundamental or intrinsic value. All things being equal the man of good appearance, and well dressed, is worth more to his employer than is one of equal ability but of objectionable personality and untidy.

As water finds its level, so is ability likely to reach its proper position. Capacity, with a willingness to use it, constitutes the right to promotion.

The employe should work as hard to keep his job as he has worked to get it. He should not consider his position as permanent because he holds it, nor should he sit upon his job and assume that he is holding a stable seat.

The right start is worthless unless one continues to "deliver the goods."

It may not be necessary for you, as an applicant, to prove your ability when you begin to work, but it is absolutely essential that you furnish evidence of capacity after you have obtained the position, if you would hold it.

I desire again to impress upon my readers the fact that ability without development, and without an intense desire to improve, is worth very little in any market. Stagnant capacity is not a commodity. We are measured by what we do with what we have, not by what we have.

Has Commenced The Inspections

Chief Howard has commenced his annual round of inspection of the public buildings of the City. The heating and wiring systems of all the public buildings, schools, and churches, as well as all the stores of the City will be inspected, as this is included in the Chief's duties.

The inspection will last from now until the end of August, and will require a considerable amount of work.

Interviewed this morning the Chief said that this has been one of the slackest months he had known for years, which is a fortunate condition for the City.

ONE TELEPHONE FOR EVERY 15.2 PEOPLE IN CANADA

OTTAWA, Feb. 17.—There is a telephone for every 15.2 people in Canada, according to statistics issued last week and based upon returns sent to the Government by the telephone companies.

There are in Canada 1,075 'phone organizations, an increase of 17 municipal, 174 stock, 129 co-operative, 2 partnership and 38 private phone companies. The capitalization of the companies is placed at $59,847,004, an increase of $13,570,153, the capitalization being equal to $129.13 per 'phone. The cost of the 'phone systems is given as $69,214,971. The gross earnings for the year were $14,877,278, or $32.13 per 'phone. The cost of operation was $11,175,689, or $24.10 per 'phone.

The second annual report of the telegraphs, show that 11,176,753 land messages were sent last year and 377,-24 cables, in each case a substantial increase. The telegraph companies were capitalized at $202,468,041. The revenue from operation amounted to $61,095,212, a gain of $897,041. Operating expenses totalled $4,034,480.

LOCAL PEOPLE WERE IN WRECK

Dozen others were slightly injured in a wreck on the C. P. R. between Mountain and Lukerman, about 1 yesterday afternoon. The Montreal Toronto flyer, running at a speed of 40 miles an hour, struck a broken rail, the engine being ditched and the entire train leaving the track. Engineer Grant was buried beneath the locomotive, and his fireman was hurled some distance into an adjoining field.

The escape from death of many of the other passengers and trainmen is considered miraculous, as two of the coaches were badly smashed by coming in contact with the overturned engine. There were, however, not more than 50 passengers on the train and comparatively few in the cars which bore the brunt of the shock.

The train was a heavy one, consisting of the baggage, mail and express cars, six day coaches, two Pullmans and diner. Had not the engine overturned, it is probable that no great damage would have occurred. Several of the cars ran past the engine safely, but two of the coaches fouled it and were wrecked. The other cars were not overturned.

The wreck is believed to have been due to the action of frost heaving and breaking a rail.

RAISED BILLS IN CIRCULATION

Once more bogus five dollar bills are being circulated in the city. It is the same old game of raising a $1 American bill to a $5 bill and as the counterfeit is fairly good it is easily passed in a hurry.

The bill is raised by sticking the figure five cut from a revenue stamp over the figure one on the back and front and then the removing of the words "one dollar" in front by the free use of ink. This old dodge has been tried out here several times, and some person is always taken in until the fraud is discovered.

The First Round In Vice Skips Bonspiel Produced Good Curling Last Night

L. Hall Won His Game in Extra End —Herb Martin Produced a Flavelle Shot — Continue the Games To-night.

AT IT TILL MIDNIGHT

It was close to midnight when last night's games in the vice-skip's bonspiel were concluded. Most of the talent had departed in time to reach home without explanations being demanded. Early in the evening there was a small gallery of ladies who followed the play, and as some of the games ran to close scores through a series of ends, it was a fairly large night. Every rink was noisy with the games in the first draw, and about ten o'clock the second round was begun.

On Ice No. 1.

Ten ends constituted a game. On the first sheet Wm. Read got a little lead of two on Dobbin, who came back and was leading by two at the fifth end. The Read rink walked away with the rest except the ninth, which resulted in a dead end. On the eighth end there was one little incident that a few noticed. The rink was almost free of guards, and it was a comparatively easy matter to slip a stone inside the counting rings which were in the navel orange class except for a lone stone that Dobie had landed just inside the outer ring. Dobbin and Read were cleaning out each other's counters as quickly as they were laid on the ice, and with his last shot Dobbin had to beat only the Dobie stone. "That looks pretty easy," Tomy Hooper remarked, but Dobbin's shot just got over the hog line leaving Dobie's to count a win for the Read rink.

"What do you know about that," Mr. Dobie remarked.

On the Second Ict.

Alex Kay did not meet with much opposition from Harry Evans. John Brightman, as vice-skip, showed a nice game. It has not been decided whether Chris. Graham's curling sweater or Ross Cameron's coat is the nattier.

L. A. Potvin	C. G. Graham
L. A. Turner	Wm. Tennant
J. Brightman	F. Brownscombe

On Ice No. 3.

Ray Best presented quite a strong rink. There was never much doubt about this game although Wiley's men put up a good argument all the way.

On Ice No. 4.

When Inspector Mowat curls he puts all his energy and thought into the game. Getting his stone away he watches it to the opposite end. As he puts an in or out turn on it he unconsciously pivots in that direction as if to exert a mental influence on the travelling stone. The Mowat rink overcame an early lead and trimmed Hall with a nice margin.

E. L. Bowes made a fine effort to beat out Robt. Harstone. He coaxed, commanded, cajoled and pleaded (that may sound strong, but you know how a skip talks to the oncoming stone and sweepers), in turn and took one on the last end where another would have tied it up. Mr. Bowes is almost as eloquent as Robert Neill. A little more volume finished elocution, and he will be on par with him. Bartlett, Austin and Ross Dobbin were strong behind Harstone,

The two rinks on the east side furnished two tidy games. E. G. Patterson and Herb. Martin ran into one of the best contests of the first series. Patterson took a lead of one point on the ninth end, and the stage was all set for a grand finale. Martin and his lieutenant, Millie Menzies, gathered two counters close to the inner circle, and with his last stone Patterson sneaked into the ring and beat them out. This left Martin with one stone left and a Flavelle shot necessary. Herbert turned the trick. He cleaned out the Patterson counter, left three stones counting, and chalked up a win.

On Ice No. 7.

An extra end was required on Ice No. 7 to return a winner, and Llewlyn Hall came through after catching McCracken on the last end. On the rubber, Hall put a counter in the inner ring, and moved a couple of guards in front of it, safeguarding the inner stone.

H. J. McCannan	J. D. Collins

J. H. Metheral defaulted to C. J. Seymour, who turned around and defeated A. Mowat 16-8. This was the second game of the evening for the Mowat rink.

W. J. Read and Ray Best, winners in the 7:30 games, played off at 10:30, Best pulling out a victory by 13 to 6.

Dr. Eastwood defaulted to Benore, and Geo. Boucher defaulted to "Andy" Webb.

In the 10 o'clock games Geo. Hill defeated Henry Rose by one shot.

WILL PLAY IN BELLEVILLE

Secretary Hewitt of the O.H.A. yesterday completed arrangements with the Kingston and Oshawa teams to play a sudden death game at Belleville to-morrow night to settle who will meet Orillia in the semi-finals. In the first game played at Oshawa on Friday night last the home team won by 5 to 2. The return game was played at Kingston on Monday night and the score was 6 to 3. This left the teams tied on the round and a sudden death game was thus necessary.

As a result of this arrangement a change is necessary in the draw for the semi-finals and finals, which was published in yesterday's paper. Instead of the winner of the Oshawa-Kingston game playing at Orillia on Friday night, with the return game at Oshawa or Kingston on Monday night, the first game will be played at Orillia on Monday and the return game on Thursday night of next week.

FLASHLIGHTS FROM THE ENGLISH SOCCER CAMPS

The Week-end Fixtures Are Commanding World-wide Attention—Some Ding-Dong Battles Among the Leaders as Recorded on Saturday Last—Erin Go Bragh.

Probably the result that succeeded in holding the attention of all soccer men here in wonderland for a minute or so ere they could command their eyes to travel further and look at other results, was the game between Everton and Sheffield United at Goodison Park, Liverpool. The "toffee" men have certainly been a sweet thing for opponents of late. Now they have put their armour on with a vengeance, and though Saturday's visitors were a band of united blades bent on gobbling up the toffee men as others had done previously, they proved no match for the Evertonians when roused, and the Curlers should long remember their 1914 visit to Goodison Park. Perhaps this is the form so long lost by the Everton brigade, and if for no other reason than the fact of their having shot five goals into the Sheffield net their future doings should prove to be very interesting indeed.

Leeds City, in the Second Division, have been guilty on a similar parallel to that of Everton recently, and, after being soundly thrashed at Leicester last week by the Fossils to the tune of 5 to 1, they suddenly jump into the limelight and scatter the Wolves in all directions, they themselves running up a total of five without the black country men being able to reply. Verily, it is something that will keep soccer men pondering in their minds what will happen next.

In the Southern League Crystal Palace were clever marksmen, and likewise found the net on five occasions. In their case, however, their opponents, Bristol Rovers, took the sting out of such a score by helping themselves to three. The crowd must have been well satisfied in this particular instance, anyway.

In th Scottish League who thought that the Rangers would defeat Airdrie by three clear goals? Lots of people no doubt fancied Rangers to romp—that in itself is no surprise—but to whitewash their opponents after them having run up a dozen goals on the two previous Saturdays is reversing the order of things with a bang.

The game at Blackburn between the Rovers and the City of Manchester must have been a tit-bit of a very rare kind. The fact of the score corresponding with the opinions of most football seers is evidence of a very conclusive nature that the game must have been of a din-long order all the way through the piece, and the City's reputation is not tarnished in any way in being defeated by such a narrow margin. Great credit is also due the Rovers, for the simple reason that it demonstrates in a further degree their wonderful consistency, does the conquering of an eleven who had previously won seven straight games. The eyes of all England will surely gase with a longing to witness the same warriors fight another battle on the same field next Saturday, this time in the third round of the F. A. cup. What a sight it will be, and what a roar will greet the players when they enter the arena.

Bolton Wanderers also came up to expectations at Burnden Park, where they accounted for Liverpool by 2 to 1. Against such an uncertain club as the Merseysiders it can be taken for granted that in holding their own the Trotters appear to be exceedingly dangerous foemen, and their meeting with Burnley at Turf Moor next week end is now regarded as one of the greatest events on the cup-tie agenda. Of one thing one can be certain, there will be a lot of Boltoners trotting around the East Lancashire town next Saturday.

Bradford City also came up to expectations and won by the prevailing fashionable score of 2 to 1. The Yorkshiremen have no cup-tie worries on the mind and if they will only behave themselves decently should attain a high position on the league chart.

Newcastle United have presumably taken a turn for the better. Last week, at St. James' Park on Tyneside, they accounted for the merry Trotters by 4-3. A week later they travel from the far north to south, to knock the Pensioners off that nice little eminence they had gained recently. Well, such teams as the Novocastrians are bound to come into their share of the good things going sooner or later. There is also going to be an interesting race between the lower clubs, as their accounts will testify.

Derby County fought valiantly at Sunderland where they were overcome by the odd goal of the game. Stephen Bloomer's old brigade seem to have struck in bad patches and in this respect one has only to note the nature of their recent defeats, which have mostly been by the odd goal scored. For a team so situated one has much sympathy. Personally after submitting their performances to a minute examination, I am inclined to believe a good strong dashing and fearless leader in the centre who could shoot would solve a lot of their troubles.

Burnley certainly accomplished a magnificent performance at Old Trafford. The Manchester club is without a doubt experiencing exceedingly troublous times, and if they do not stop the rot, will soon find themselves a long way removed from the company of the leaders.

Oldham Athletic just managed to account for Preston at Boundary Park, and the case of these famous old timers is now beginning to look very black indeed. It's passing hard, no doubt, for proud men to be humbled, but alas! what care the fates for any special organisation?

Aston Villa are still in grand fettle, as witness their latest performance at Sheffield. The Villa must certainly by this time be dreaded by the cutters as they would a plague. The Albion at the Hawthorne was another club to copy fashion's example and brought off a nice accomplishment in defeating the men from Ironopolis, who, by the way, must now be respected.

We had overlooked until now the fine performance of the men from the Yorkshire woollen district. Of late the Huddersfield men have surprised the football world on more than one occasion. Anent the game, it has been said that Woolwich must show better form than this to gain entry into the First Division. Examined carefully, however, records show the baby Tykes are no weaklings and that it takes a good team even to be at its best to conquer them. There's something coming to Huddersfield in this—don't forget it.

Not many surprising results took place in the Southern League. Crystal Palace, however, kept up their scoring proclivities, but at the same time it cannot be denied their opponents, Bristol Rovers, joined in the fun with a will.

In the Scottish League Airdrieonians came a bad cropper at the feet of the Rangers, and as a result the light blues from Ibrox Park will be paid much more attention and respect in the future. There was a something about this game that seemed to warn one to be wary, and in getting away with three clear goals the Rangers certainly did well, and must have caused the Airdrie supporters many heartburnings and disappointments.

Ayr United were fancied by many to give Dundee a hard battle, not a few fancying their chances for a win. Such, however, was not to be and the bonny men certainly won by a bonny score of 3-1.

Celtic made no bones about Morton, and they also, like the Rangers at Airdrie, vanquished the opposition by three clear goals. The men representing Scotland's cream are putting lots of body and substance into their work these days. Looks as if they were at high tension. Sh'!—stay a minute, are the men of class competing for their international caps? Most likely.

St. Mirren again came out all right this time against the Clyde. Have the Paisley men really and truly improved?

Partick Thistle and Third Lanark were others that adopted the fashion of the day, inasmuch as they won their encounter in each case by 2-1. All over the British Isles it appears to have been general so far as close results were concerned.

Queen's Park again were on the winning side and gave a little extra polish to the shiney reputation they have lately acquired, and this last victory stamps them as being in every way worthy opponents.

Hearts were themselves again and assured their supporters they have not deteriorated so badly as was thought generally, by comfortably disposing of the Hiberniana to the pleasant tune of 3-1. Raith Rovers at Kirkcaldy failed to reproduce their cup form against the Kilties, the latter being very well content, I suppose, with a draw.

TICKETS GOING WELL FOR THE BENEFIIT GAME

The Examiner is delighted to be able to report that the tickets for the Charley Ray benefit game at Brock Street rink on Saturday night are in keen demand and that the 235 reserved seat tickets will probably all be snapped up before the night of the game. The return to Peterborough of all the old stars of former years, coupled with the chance to give some material assistance to a popular player, has resulted in great interest in the game and there is no doubt that the rink will be crowded for the clash between stars of former years and this year's intermediate O.H.A. team. All the All Stars are coming and in addition to those mentioned yesterday, Richardson, who formerly played goal for the Peterborough Collegiate, will accompany the team. The visiting team are playing hockey with different sevens and are all in good shape. They will certainly give Capt. Park's aggregation a battle royal on Saturday night and it should be one of the most enjoyable games of the season. The agreement to allo wsubstitutes at any stage will keep the contest speeded up all the way, and there will be few dull moments.

HOLD-OUTS AT OTTAWA

OTTAWA, Feb. 17. — The Ottawa Canadian League Club has a raft of hold-outs to deal with. They include Infielders Bullock, Dolan and Smykal; Pitchers Kane and Kubat and Outfielder Rogers. The only men who have accepted terms are Outfielder Powers, Catcher Lage and Pitcher Lill. Manager Shaughnessy said today that he would fill the places of the champions with new men, rather than surrender to the demands of the hold-outs, some of whom want twice as much as they received last year.

Ottawa have again signed to play their games at Lansdowne Park, and it is also possible that they will play Sunday ball on the Quebec side of the river.

BASEBALL

BRANTFORD, Feb. 16.—Lew Garry, who has had two years' experience in the Southern League, but who has not been reserved this year, has accepted terms from the Brantford baseball club, and will be seen in the Red Sox line-up this year. He is a right-hander.

ERIE, Pa., Feb. — Youngstown baseball fans, those of the dyed-in-the-wool variety, who have visions of a long summer without their city being represented in any league, are wondering if Pat Powers was wise in not offering the Canadian League a chance to place the St. Thomas team in that city. Powers has so far declined to dicker with the magnates of the Canuck circuit.

In the meantime St. Thomas is gathering a team which will play there if it doesn't in the Ohio city.

THE MERCANTILE HOCKEY LEAGUE—EXECUTIVE MEETING.

A meeting of the Executive Committee was convened for last evening at 7.30 in the offices of the "Review." The main object of the meeting was to decide next Monday's play. Owing to the victory of the Tool Room team on Monday last there is a triangular position between the "Tool," "Test" and "Bankers" teams. The result of a draw last night was that the Tool Room team plays the Bankers' team at the Brock Street Rink on Monday next. The Test Room drew a bye, and a game will be arranged to be played with them by a team, probably captained by Pete Spratt, of the De Laval team.

A motion was proposed, seconded and carried unanimously that the hearty thanks of the League be tendered to Messrs. Meharry and Nelson for their generosity in donating the Mercantile trophy cup—which by the way may be seen in Mr. Ernest Warne's jewellery store window—and the secretary was instructed to convey the terms of the motion to Mr. Meharry and President Nelson.

Knox Church Lecture Hall was again crowded to the doors to greet "The New Minister," and, judging from the applause which was almost continuous, the [illegible] the entertainment. Replete with sparkling music and ludicrous situations, the programme kept intense interest aroused and allowed of no dragging. The solos and chorus work were especially good, and reflect great credit on Mr. George Kenyon for the quite apparent great pains he has taken to achieve such success.

It was announced last night that in order to protect all those who have tickets and were unable to gain admission that the production would be repeated again on Friday evening next.

MEMORIAL SERVICE WAS HELD

A specially interesting meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union was held at the home of Mrs. Knapman, 604 George street, on Tuesday afternoon.

It is customary to hold a day of loving memory on the home-going anniversary of our beloved world-wide leader, Frances E. Willard.

The unusually large number at the meeting proved that many are interested in white-ribbon work.

Early in the afternoon the ladies met to make comfort bags to be sent to the lumbermen in the Northern camps. While the work was going on Mrs. Shields read a very interesting account of the history of the comfort bags, their construction and the good they had done in providing for the needs of the men in the camps. They with four pockets which were filled with many comforts, such as marked testaments, hymn books, leaflets, a letter from the Union, paper and envelopes, pencils, pins, needles, thimbles, bandages, mending yarn and pieces of cloth, surgical needles and thread and many other useful things.

It was decided to send a letter from the Union to the local member of the Dominion Parliament asking him to give his vote and influence to the Bill for Remuneration of Prison Labour and the State Use of Prison Products, as we believe the prisoner should earn his own maintenance, and be made to support those dependent on him, that they may not become a public charge.

Delegates were appointed to the Ontario branch of the Dominion Alliance to be held in Toronto next week, as follows: Mrs. Knapman and Mrs. Armstrong, with Mrs. Thornton and Mrs. Taylor as alternates.

A most interesting address was that of Mrs. Whalley on the life and work of Frances E. Willard, in which she told of attending a world's White Ribbon Convention held in Toronto a number of years ago, where she heard Miss Willard speak. Among the many inspiring things she heard from Miss Willard were these: "To be good—that one's simple will might be the good angel of millions, that is the supreme dream of my intellect."

Although the sun was shining brightly all the afternoon, it was still brighter in Mrs. Knapman's beautiful home. The music was much enjoyed. It consisted of solos from Mrs. Freeman and Mrs. Davidson, a piano solo by Miss Irene Knapman and a piano duet by Mrs. Hicks and Mrs. Lewis. Ernest prayer was offered by Mrs. Campbell and Miss Munroe. Ten new members were added to the roll.

Dainty refreshments were served, after which a hearty vote of thanks was given to Mrs. Knapman for her kindly hospitality.

OBITUARY

ALFRED WILLIAMS.

Alfred Williams, aged 53 years, a native of England, passed away this morning in the St. Joseph's Hospital, after having been confined to that institution for a period of two weeks. Deceased was employed by Mr. Chris. Graham at the White House, and was formerly in the service of the same gentleman at the Oriental Hotel. About two weeks ago Williams became sick and was removed to the Hospital, where he was attended by Dr. Gallivan. The cause of death was cancer of the stomach.

The deceased was unmarried and has no relatives here. He has been in Canada for a number of years.

The funeral, which is not yet arranged, will be announced later.

MRS. JOHN McMAHON.

The demise occurred last evening in St. Joseph's Hospital of Mrs. John McMahon, wife of Mr. John McMahon, of 278 Rogers Street, East City.

The deceased had been ailing for some time, and her end was not altogether unexpected.

She leaves to mourn her loss three sons, Matthew and James, of Peterborough, and John, of Rochester, and three daughters, Mrs. Wm. Moher, of East City, and Charlotte and Eleanor at home.

The late Mrs. McMahon was a resident of Peterborough for a number of years, during which time she made a host of friends, who will deeply regret her demise.

The funeral arrangements, which are not yet completed, will be announced later.

COMMISSIONER REES WILL SAIL ON SATURDAY

After having been in ill health since October 6th, 1913, when he contracted a chill, Commissioner David M. Rees, leader of the Salvation Army, has again become well. Several times in November Commissioner Rees' recovery was doubtful; for several days he lay unconscious at his home on Charles Street, and his condition was serious. His strong vitality brought him around, and after a visit to Battle Creek, Michigan, and Virginia, Commissioner Rees returned to Toronto a few days ago.

He resumed his duties this afternoon, when he meets in private with the Salvation Army officers.

Speaking to a reporter this morning he stated that he would sail for London, England, on Saturday morning next.

"An international world-wide congress, the second of its kind, is being held in England in June and July next," said the Commissioner. "My visit is on business, and this is one of the many items which I will discuss with General Booth. This Congress will be represented by 60 countries.

"Then, too, there will be a careful review of the work done here, from which something may result."

"WE ALL GO THE SAME WAY HOME"—"The only question standing over for decision being: 'Which way is it?'"

BOMB PLOT FAILS.

But Infernal Machine Explodes and Wrecks Kitchen Stove.

SARNIA, Feb. 19.—The village of Point Edward was thrown into wild excitement Tuesday night following the explosion of a small bomb in the residence of Thomas Taylor. One boarder, an old man named Charles Webster, had a narrow escape from death. Made of a short piece of gas pipe, loaded with gunpowder and coated with tar, the bomb was concealed in the coal pile.

In the evening the kitchen stove was filled with fuel and Mr. Webster was sitting nearby when the explosion occurred. The range was wrecked, burning coals scattered over the floor, and pieces of iron hurled in all directions. Webster was struck on the chest by a flying fragment but not seriously hurt.

Provincial Detective Acton was summoned at once and hurried to the scene. He searched among the wreckage and found the exploded bomb along with two others. He was joined by County Constable Patterson and the two officers have been engaged on the case together.

TOLLS FIGHT OPENS

Republican Senator Precipitates Struggle Over Panama Case

PARTY LINES ARE BROKEN

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—Accusing President Wilson of inconsistency in his views of the binding effect of the Democratic platform and charging that "greed of the railroads and the audacious claims of Great Britain seem far more potent with our President than the appeal of the womanhood of the nation," Senator Bristow, Republican, of Kansas, turned discussion of woman suffrage in the Senate yesterday into a vigorous debate on the proposed repeal of the free tolls of the provisions of the Panama Canal Act.

Senator Bristow's attack brought to the defence of the President several Republican as well as Democratic Senators, while it served also as the signal for opening the fight within the Democratic party against repeal of the tolls exemption provision. Senator Chamberlain of Oregon, Democratic, dramatically declared that he would not "stultify" himself by telling his constituents that he had not kept his platform pledge on the toll question "because the President of the United States does not agree with me."

While Senators were thus engaged in the first open discussion of the approaching battle in Congress over the chief executive's desire for reversal of the Panama policy, the President was himself engaged with leaders of the House of Representatives who are opposed to repudiating the declaration of the party platform. He discussed the situation with Majority Leader Underwood and Representative Kitchin of North Carolina but so far as could be learned did not convert them to his view that the provision granting free tolls to American vessels violates the Hay-Pauncefote treaty and embarrasses the administration in its foreign relations.

When Senator Bristow said that the transcontinental railroads had for years been behind the fight against free tolls for American ships, and intimated that they had influenced the President, Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, Republican member of the foreign relations committee, took the floor to declare that the President was actuated in his attitude on the toll question solely by his desire to restore the United States to its former prestige among nations. "The President does not like to see the United States an outlaw among nations," added the Massachusetts Senator.

Senator Owen of Oklahoma was the first to rise to the President's defence. He asserted that the conscience of no Democrat was bound by the Baltimore platform on the tolls question, because it did not represent the sober judgment of the party on that point.

Masterman Has Hard Fight.

LONDON, Feb. 19.—Great interest centres in the Bethnal Green election to-day, where Mr. Masterman, who seeks re-election through becoming a Cabinet Minister, has only a majority of 184.

Alleged unpopularity of the National Insurance Act with the poorer classes figures in the Unionist campaign much more largely than home rule. In three columns for instance of a Unionist evening paper devoted to this election, last night, home rule received only the most casual reference.

"WETS" INCREASE LEADS.

Welland Recount Gives Increase of Twenty Votes.

WELLAND, Feb. 19. — Every change made in the scrutiny yesterday in connection with the Canada Temperance Act election in Welland County was in favor of the wets. The wet majority, which stood at five on Tuesday night, was yesterday increased to twenty-five by a gain of nine in Fort Erie and eleven in Stamford. The effect of this is that if the temperance people succeed in getting the original count for Ward Two, Bridgeburg, declared the true count, there would still be a wet majority of ten in the county to overcome.

Numerous irregularities were discovered yesterday, such as numbered ballots and ballots not initialed. Witnesses are to be called and argument of counsel made before a final decision in these cases is given by Judge Livingstone. The judge pointed out that erasures were being found on both sides. There is a possibility of a large number of ballots being thrown out. Some of the conditions found have a very suspicious look and a more thorough investigation may materially affect the present standing. The scrutiny was adjourned last night until next Wednesday at 10 a.m.

No Peace Conference In 1915.

LONDON, Feb. 19.—Francis Dyke Acland, Parliamentary Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs, informed the House of Commons yesterday that it would be impossible to hold the third Hague peace conference in 1915, as under the rules a committee must sit for two years in advance of the meeting preparing a program, and the committee has not yet been formed.

Approve Construction of Railway.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—The Administration Alaska railroad bill, authorizing the President to construct a $35,000,000 railroad from Alaska's coast to its great coal fields, was passed by the House late yesterday by a vote of 230 to 87.

The bill has already passed the Senate and now goes to the President, who is expected to sign it.

"THE FREE RANGE"

Handing his boots out first, Larkin crawled headforemost out of the windows and put his arms around the shoulders of his rescuers, resting most of his weight upon their bent backs. Then they walked slowly away from the house and Bud's feet and legs came out noiselessly. Still in the shadow of the walls they set him down and he drew on his boots.

It was not until then that Sim's assistant made himself known.

"Hello, boss," he said and took off his broad hat so that Larkin could see his face.

"Jimmie Welsh, by George!" whispered Bud joyfully, wringing his hand. "Did you bring many of the boys down with you?"

"Fifty," replied the other.

"Bully for you! I don't know what would become of me if it weren't for you and Hardwinter."

As they talked they were moving off toward the little river that wound past the Bar T house.

"Got a horse for me?" asked Bud.

"Yes," said Sims, "over here in the bottoms where the rest of the boys are."

"What do you plan to do now?"

Sims told him and Bud grinned delightedly at the same time that his face hardened with the triumph of a revenge about to be accomplished.

"Let's get at it," he said.

"Wait here and I'll get the rest of the bunch."

Hardwinter left them, and in a few minutes returned with a dozen brawny sheepmen, mostly recruited from Larkin's own ranch in Montana. When greetings had been exchanged they moved off quietly toward the ranch-house.

The corral of the Bar T was about fifty yards back of the cook's shanty and as you faced it had a barn on the right-hand side, where the family saddle horses were kept in winter, as well as the small amount of hay that Bissel put up every year.

To the left of the corral the space was open, and here the Bar T punchers had their camp since leaving their former quarters. The bunk-house on the other hand stood perhaps fifty feet forward of the barn. It was toward this building that the expedition under Sims took its way.

Silently the rough door swung back on its rawhide hinges and ten men, with a revolver in each hand, filed quietly in. Sims and Larkin remained outside on guard. Presently there was a sound of muttering and cursing that grew louder. Then one yell, and the solid shud of a revolver butt coming in contact with a human skull. After that there was practically no noise whatever.

The men outside watched anxiously, fearful that the single outcry had raised an alarm. But there was no sound from either the house or the cowboys' camp. Presently Welsh stuck his head out of the door.

"How is she?" Safe?" he asked.

"Yes, bring 'em out," answered Bud, and the next minute a strange procession issued from the bunk-house.

The cowmen, gagged, and with their hands bound behind them, walked single file, accompanied by one of the sheepmen. Without a word the line turned in the direction of the river bottom, where the rest of the hands and the horses were waiting.

To do this it was necessary to pass behind the cook-house. Bud leaned over and spoke to Sims.

"Can't we get Bissel in this party? He's the fellow that made all the trouble."

"Sure, Jimmy and I will go and get him. I had forgotten all about him."

But they were saved the trouble, for just as they were opposite the cook-house, Larkin saw a burly form outlined for an instant in the doorway of the cowboys' dining room. With three bounds he was upon this form and arrived just in time to seize a hand that was vainly tugging at a revolver strapped on beneath his night clothes.

Had fortune not tangled Bissell's equipment that night Bud Larkin would have been a dead man. Snatching off his hat, he smashed it over the cattle king's mouth, and an instant later Bissell, writhing and struggling, but silent, was being half-carried out to join his friends.

Matters now proceeded with speed and smoothness. The prisoners were hurried to where the remainder of the band awaited them. Then, still bound and gagged, they were mounted on spare horses.

Only thirty of Welsh' raiders had come on this trip, the rest remaining to help with the sheep, but their horses had been brought so that there might be ample provision for everybody.

With a feeling of being once more at home, Larkin climbed into a deep saddle, and a wave of triumph surged over him. He was again free, and at the head of a band of brave men. He had the ascendancy at last over his misfortune, and he intended to keep it. Then when everything was finished he could come back and he would find Juliet—

The remembrance of her brought him to a pause. Must he go away without as much as a word from her, the one for whom he cared more than all the rest of the world? Quietly he dismounted.

"Let Jimmie go on with the prisoners and the rest of the boys," he said to Sims. "You wait here with me. I must leave one message."

A minute later the cavalcade stole away, following the winding river bank for a mile before setting foot on the plain.

Then, with Sims crouching, armed, behind the nearest partition, Bud Larkin walked softly to the house. He knew which was her window, and went straight there, finding it open as he had expected. Listening carefully he heard no sound from within. Then he breathed the one word, "Julie," and immediately there came a rustling of the bed as she rose.

Knowing that she had been awake and was coming to him, he turned away his eyes until he felt her strong little hand on his shoulder. Then he looked up to find her in an overwrap with her luxuriant hair falling down over her shoulders, her eyes big and luminously dusky.

"Darling," she said, "I have heard everything, and I am so glad."

"Then you could have given the alarm any time?"

"Yes."

"God bless your faithful heart!" he said fervently, and reaching up, drew down her face to his and kissed her.

It was their second kiss and they both thrilled from head to foot with this tantalization of the hunger of their love. All the longing of their enforced separation seemed to burst the dam that held it, and, for a time, they forgot all things but the living, moving tide of their own love.

At last the girl disengaged herself from his eager hands, with hot cheeks and bright, flame-lit eyes. Her breath came fast, and it was a moment before she could compose herself.

"Where are you going, now, Bud?" she asked.

"Back to the sheep."

"Can I do anything to help you?"

"I can only think of one thing, and that is to marry me."

"Everything in time, sir!" she reproved him. "Get your muttons out of the way and then you can have me."

Larkin groaned. Then he said:

"If anything comes for me or anybody wants me, I want you to do as I would do if I were here. Things are coming to a climax now and I must know all that goes on. Watch Stelton especially. He is crooked somewhere, and I'm going to get him if it takes me the rest of my life."

Suddenly there was a loud knock from outside the girl's bedroom door, and they both listened, hardly daring to breathe.

"Julie, let me in!" cried Mrs. Bissell's querulous voice. "Where's your father?"

"Run, dear boy, for your life!" breathed the girl.

Larkin kissed her swiftly and hurried back to the underbrush, where Sims was awaiting him in an access of temper.

"Great Michaeljohn, boss!" he growled as they rode along the bank, "ain't yuh got no consideration for me? From the way yuh go on a person'd think yuh were in love with the girl."

CHAPTER XVI.

A MESSAGE BY A STRANGE HAND.

What were the feelings of Mr. Mike Stelton that dawn had better be imagined than described. The first he knew of any calamity was when Mrs. Bissell, unable to find her husband near the house, shook him frantically by the shoulder.

"Get up, Mike," she cried into his ear. "Somethin's wrong here. Henry's nowhere around."

Dazed with sleep, unable to get the proper focus on events, the foreman blundered stupidly about the place, searching cursorily and cursing the helpleaness of Beef Bissell.

Presently he got awake, however, and perceived that dawn was coming up in the east. Then he revelled in the delightful anticipation of what was to occur out under the old cottonwood along the river bank. Mentally he licked his chops at the prospect of this rare treat. He intended if possible to make Juliet witness her lovers degradation.

After vainly humming some valid excuse for Bissell's untimely departure, Stelton thought he would call the boys, which he did. Then he turned his attention to the bunk-house, for he knew the cowmen were in a hurry to get away and would want to be called early.

"All out!" he bawled joyfully, thrusting his head in at the door.

Not a sound came in response. Then for the first time Stelton had a premonition of trouble. He walked into the bunk-house and took quick note of the ten tumbled but empty bunks. Also of the ten belts and revolvers that hung on wooden pegs along the wall—the sign of Western etiquette.

In those days, and earlier, if a man rode by at meal-time or evening he was your guest. He might take dinner with his hat on, and get his knife and fork mixed, but if he hung up his belt and revolver he was satisfied that all the amenities had been observed, whether you thought so or not.

The one other unspoken law was that every man's business was his own business and no questions were allowed. You might be entertaining a real bad man like Billy the Kid, and you might suspect his identity, but you never made inquiries, and for three reasons.

The first was that it was bad plains etiquette; the second, that if you were mistaken and accused the wrong man, punishment was sure and swift; and the third was, that if you were right the punishment was still surer and swifter, for an escaping criminal never left any but mute witnesses behind him.

Looking at these ten indications of good-will along the bunk house wall the alarm was once more lulled. Perhaps the men had all gone for a paddle in the stream before breakfast, he thought. If so, they would take care of themselves, and turn up when the big bell rang. He couldn't waste any more time this way.

Now to relieve the man who was guarding Larkin outside the window.

He hurried around the house and came upon the prone figure of a cow-puncher, rolled close against the house. The man's head was bloody, his hands were tied behind him, and his neckerchief had been stuffed into his mouth and held there by another. He was half dead when Stelton, with a cry of surprise, bent over him and loosened his bonds.

With a prolonged yell the foreman brought all hands running to him and, giving the hurt man into the care of a couple of them, ran along the house to Bud's window. The bent bars showed how the bird had flown. Stelton was about to give way to his fury, when another cry from the rear of the cook-house told of the discovery of the second watchman's body, that had lain hidden in the long grass which grew up against the walls.

Then didn't Stelton curse! Never had he been so moved to profane eloquence, and never did he give such rein to it. He cursed everything in sight, beginning with the ranch house; and he took that from the chimney to cellar, up and down every line and angle, around the corners and out to the barn. Then he began on the barn and wound up with the corral. The cowboys listened in admiration and delight, interjecting words of approval now and then.

But once having delivered himself of this relief, the foreman's face set into its customary ugly scowl, and he snapped out orders to saddle the horses. Presently a man rode up from the river bottoms and told of the discovery of many hoof tracks there, and the place where they had waited a long while.

HEART WAS SO BAD

Could Not Do Her Housework

Many women get run down and are unable to look after their household duties owing to the heart action becoming impaired or the nervous system unstrung.

To all such sufferers Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills will give prompt and permanent relief.

Mrs. Thomas Melville, Saltcoats, Sask., writes:—"I thought it my duty to write and tell you how much your Heart and Nerve Pills did for me. My heart was so bad I could not sleep, eat nor walk about the house. I could not do my housework at all, and what my husband could not do had to go undone. I had two small children depending on me besides three men to cook for, and it worried me to not be able to do anything. My husband had taken some of your pills some years ago, and insisted on me trying them, so I started, and before I had taken them two weeks I was considerably better, and before I had taken two boxes I was doing my own work again. Any one suffering from heart or nerve trouble should just give your pills a trial. If anyone cares to write me I will gladly give them all the information I know concerning your wonderful medicine."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50 cents per box, or three boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Disheartening Effect of Piles

It is not only the itching and stinging of piles that is to be dreaded but also the depressing and debilitating effect on the whole system. The victim of pils cannot do efficient work. There is an uneasiness and discomfort by day and at night the distress from the itching prevents sleep and rest, and undermines the general health.

From almost the first application of Dr. Chase's Ointment you get relief from the annoying itching and burning, and gradually the ulcers are healed up and the disease thoroughly cured. Do not make the mistake of discontinuing treatment as soon as relief is obtained. Dr. Chase's Ointment is a proved cure but it depends on you to apply it persistently until a cure is effected.

Even the most severe cases of long standing yield to the soothing, healing influence of Dr. Chase's Ointment. Surgical operations are no longer necessary(for, as a matter of fact, Dr. Chase's Ointment has cured cases that were not cured by operations. No sufferer from piles can afford to delay the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Ice Harvest In Full Swing At Bridgenorth

BRIDGENORTH, Feb. 18.—The ice harvest is on. Jimmy Cullen is a busy man with a gang of men, trying to keep the teams going.

Two sleigh loads from Lakefield, members of the Epworth League from the Methodist Church, visited the members of the Bridgenorth Epworth League. A good time is reported.

The young men of the Bridgenorth Methodist Church intend holding a mock trial on Thursday night of this week. A breach of promise is the subject. No doubt it will be an interesting case.

The Ladies' Aid of the Bridgenorth Methodist Church intend holding an old-time Ladies' Aid meeting on Feb. 26th.

HOW MANY SKULLS HAD HE?

A woman who visited the British museum recently inquired of an attendant: "Have you no skull of Cromwell? I have been looking all around for a skull of Oliver Cromwell."

"No, madam," replied the attendant, "we've never had one."

"How very odd!" she exclaimed; "they have a fine one in the museum at Oxford."

Fooled His Dad.

In Thereid's "Life of Labouchere" is this amusing incident, which happened while "Labby" was still at Cambridge:

"On one occasion, having taken French leave to London, he was unexpectedly confronted one morning in the Strand by his father, who looked extremely annoyed to see the youth there when he imagined him to be occupied with his studies. Henry's wits as usual were on the alert. He returned his father's cold greeting with a surprised stare. 'I beg your pardon, sir,' he said, 'I think you have made a mistake. I have not the honor of your acquaintance.' He pushed by and was lost in the crowd.

"Rapidly consulting his watch, he found he could, by running, just catch a train for Cambridge. He did so, and what he had foreseen happened. Mr. Labouchere, on, after having accomplished the business he was about, took the next train for Cambridge. On reaching the university he was ushered into his son's study, where he found him absorbed in his work. The old gentleman made no reference to his rencontre in the Strand, being persuaded that it must have been a hallucination."

Destroying an Island.

Breaking up an island is a feature of the construction of the great naval dockyard at Rosyth, Scotland, which is going on night and day uninterruptedly, except for the usual Sunday rest, there being over 3,000 men engaged in the work. Of the seven years given to the contractors four and a half have now passed, but it is expected that the work will be completed well within the contract time. An interesting feature of the work is the destruction of a whole island composed of whinstone. It lies right in the line of the channel and lock leading to the main basin, through which the largest battleships will be able to pass. Twice a day blasting operations are carried out, and the island is being conveyed ashore piece-meal, to be crushed by the stone-breaking machines for use with concrete.

Professor Blackie's Opinion.

A serious minded lady once tried to lure Professor Blackie into giving his opinion of Sankey's hymns at a time when they had an enormous vogue. The lady was giving the professor lunch, and he tried to fob her off by praising a Stilton cheese on the table. Some time after the lady sent him a copy of Sankey and a piece of the cheese, hoping thus to draw him. She succeeded to the extent of these four lines of verse:

Thrice blessed is she that hath done what she could
To make a lean man fat and a bad man good—
For the body, cheese; for the soul,
Sankey;
For both, thankee.

The Double Work of the Blood

The circulation of the blood is one of the most perfect pieces of mechanism in the universe. Besides carrying nourishment to every part of the body, the blood collects the waste products and passes through the kidneys in order that these poisons may be eliminated.

Hence you see the tremendous importance of keeping the kidneys in healthful working order so that they free the blood of these impurities before they find lodgment in some weak spot and set up serious disease.

Aching back and aching head, troubles with the digestion, deposits in the urine, constipation and biliousness—such are the symptoms which indicate the need of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. The liver is awakened to action, the bowels regulated, and the kidneys made vigorous in their work of purifying the blood.

In the great majority of homes Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are kept at hand for use in just such cases. They save many doctor bills, and by keeping the digestive and excretive systems in health do much to prolong life and bring comfort in old age.

This Side Up.

This story is told of a well-known impressionist artist. A man who had brought one of his paintings wished his opinion on the hanging of the picture and invited him to dine. The artist expressed his approval of the background, of the height at which the canvas was hung, pronounced the light favorable—indeed, he said, there was only one particular in which he would suggest any change.

"And what is that?" inquired his host, solicitously.

"Why," said the artist, "I should hang it the other side up. I always have."

A Man's Tact.

Nobody but Mr. Henley would have asked such a question in the first place.

"Miss Fairley," he said, "if you could make yourself over what kind of hair and eyes would you have?"

"If I could make myself over," said Miss Fairley, "I would look just exactly as I do now."

"You would," exclaimed Henley, in honest surprise, and to this day he can't understand why Miss Fairley thinks him a man of little tact and less tact.

THE LAND OF THE JUMBUK.

Queensland Bush Has a Vocabulary Which Is All Its Own.

The Bush vocabulary of Queensland is as unintelligible to the stranger as baseball is to cricket and golf enthusiasts. The "sundowner," says a writer in T. P.'s Weekly, is so called because he so arranges his daily itinerary that he reaches a "station" or homestead just about sundown, so that he may be invited to remain for the night in the men's hut, that is, the quarters set apart for the employes on the "run," or pastoral holding. "Humping bluey" and "waltzing Matilda" are terms which signify carrying your swag and the inevitable billycan or quart-pot in which to boil water for tea. A "humpy" is a rudely-built hut with a framework of timber, and a covering of bark or corrugated galvanized iron, what the American calls a "shack." The jungle is "scrub."

A stampede of cattle off camp at night is a "rush." A "brumby" is a wild horse. A "cocky" is a selector or settler with a small holding, say, 160 or 320 acres of land. "Inside" means country approximate to the coast, more or less settled. "The Never-never" is the wide, unpopular tract of the Far West, out at the back o' sunset. The crocodile is erroneously termed an alligator, and the lace monitor an iguana corrupted into goanna. A biased track is one marked by the bark, or bark and sap, chipped off trees or saplings at intrvals of a few yards. "Squatter" is the term used to signify the sheep or cattle pastoralist who owns a large area. "Stock routes" are the roads reserved by the Crown for the drover who, when crossing a sheep or cattle station, is allowed half a mile in width on which to graze his traveling sheep, cattle or horses. "Waler" is the term given to Australian horses exported to India or Manila. The "cowboy" of America and the stockman of Australia are synonymous.

A "hatter" is a man who works alone and lives a solitary life. A "fossicker" is a digger who turns over ground that has been previously worked, in the hope of finding precious metal that has been overlooked. An "outlaw" may mean a horse that is untamable, and a sheep is a "jumbuk." New arrivals from overseas are "new chums" and one of these who works on a sheep or cattle station to gain experience, for which privilege he sometimes pays a premium, is a "jackeroo." We have the plain turkey and the scrub turkey, neither of which are turkeys. An illicit grog shop is a "sly grog shanty." The "bush" is country on which the natural vegetation still remains, and is synonymous with unpopulated country, irrespective of its vegetation. The "ringer" of a shearing shed is the man who has shorn the greatest number of sheep at that shed during the season. A "buckboard" is a four-wheeled vehicle without springs, and is adapted for rough country. There are a few terms in this vocabulary that are known to Canadian readers, but the unknown ones are emphatically descriptive.

Queen Wrote Anonymously.

The biography of the fourth Earl of Clarendon, a famous Cabinet Minister of Queen Victoria's reign, which has just been published in London by Sir Herbert Maxwell, reveals that Queen Victoria once wrote an anonymous letter to The London Times. This was in April, 1864, after the London tradesmen had been making one of their periodical attacks against the Queen's seclusion, which, they said, was ruining trade.

The Queen had abandoned all court drawing rooms, as well as most of the small entertainments of the society season. Her friends among the nobility followed her example, and the dressmakers, florists, caterers, and all shopkeepers in general suffered from lack of business.

The letter of the Queen was written entirely by her own hand, and she gave it personally to her secretary, Gen. Grey, who took it to the office of The Times and put it into the hands of its editor, Mr. Delane.

The letter was a strong defence by the Queen of her retirement, which she explained was enforced upon her by the cares of state as well as by her own mourning for the Prince Consort, and it stated that the Queen had not the slightest intention of resuming her social duties or bringing back the old custom of the drawing-room receptions.

The letter was signed "Anonyma," and the idea prevails that the editor of The Times himself did not know that the Queen wrote the letter, as no mention is made of it in his own biography.

Have Invisible Audience.

So that concert artists may not be discouraged by the indifference of audiences, Chevalier Arrigo-Bocchi has planned a new scheme of lighting at St. James' Hall, Great Portland street, London. Lights will be focused on the stage, the auditorium being in a state of semi-darkness which will shut out the audience from the sight of the performer.

Home For Old Cows.

An asylum for aged cows is an institution at Sodpur, India, which has for its object the welfare of decrepid animals. Every year the Marwari festival known as the Gorakhini Sova Goste Mela is celebrated, and in order to save cows from death by starvation or the slaughter they are purchased as gifts and maintained for the rest of their natural lives.

PRIMITIVE FOOTBALL.

The Original Game Was Played With Heads of Dance.

Football is an ancient pastime, says an exchange. The old Teutons are credited with founding the game by playing with the bleached skulls of their enemies. Preliminary practice was first heard of in Chester, Eng., where the old English had sufficiently brutalised the game to give rise to many adverse criticisms, fragments of which have survived to the present day.

Legend has it that in 963, during the Danish invasion of England, a good man of Chester captured a Dane, beheaded him and knocked his head out into the street to furnish sport for the "fellows." The game of kicking the head around the city streets and even outside the walls of the ancient Roman-built city grew in favor. The exercise was indulged in whenever a Chester sport could annex a Danish head. But eventually the supply of Danish heads gave out. But the sport had secured a stronghold on the exercise-loving Anglo-Saxons and a "balle of leather called a footballe" was substituted.

The game developed into a rough-and-tumble scrimmage, and the ball itself would often be forgotten for hours while the excited players chased one another through alleys and lanes and even into the houses of the more respectable citizens as results of arguments over the rules. It seems that even before William the Conqueror invaded England the interpretation of the football rules was a much-mooted matter. Sconces were cracked, bones were broken and lives were lost. Yet the game spread in favor, and, jumping over the intervening centuries, is still spreading.

The modern school of football critics, just at present a subdued minfaction expressed by the public and the press, is not a whit more bitter than Philip Stubbs, a literary Briton, who way back in 1583 raked football of that day up and down, over and across in the following fashion:—

As concerning footballe, I protest unto you it may rather be called a friendlie kind of a fight than a play or recreation, a bloody and murthering practice than a felowy sport or pastice. For doth not everyone lie in wait for his adversary, seeking to overthrow him and picke him on the nose, though it be on hard stones, or ditch or dale, or valley or hill, so he has him down, and he that can serve the most of this fashion is counted the only fellow, and who but he. So that by this means their necks are broken, sometimes their backs, sometimes their arms, sometimes their noses gush out with blood, sometimes their eyes start out; for they have the sleights to mix one between two, to dash him against the heart with their elbows, to butt him under the short ribs with their gripped fists, and with their knees to catch him on the hip and picke him on his neck with a hundred murthering devices."

Crown for Name Plate.

Following a family tradition, the coffin of Miss Anne Joce Strick, whose funeral took place at Swansea recently, had on it a five-shilling piece fattened out and the inscription written on it.

Meeting a Crisis.

"How much do you charge for cutting off a dog's tail?" said a small boy to a veterinary recently, exhibiting a quarter in one hand and leading a lean canine with the other.

"The operation customarily costs $1, but I will do it for you for 50 cents," replied the gentleman addressed.

The boy looked at the coin in his hand disappointedly for a moment, but his face quickly brightened. He stuck out his hand which contained the coin and said: "That's all I've got. Cut off a quarter's worth."—National Monthly.

Scott Journals on Exhibition.

The original journals of Sir Robert Scott during his south polar expedition have been placed in the British Museum by Lady Scott. By order of the trustees they were placed on view on the second anniversary of Scott's arrival at the South Pole. They are to remain on view for an indefinite period.

The journals are three small, pencil-written books which Scott carried with him to the pole and which were found on his dead body by the searching party in November, 1913.

At the end of the last of these is the "Message to the Public," which made so deep and lasting an impression on the heart of the nation.

Detective Stories as Told by Real Detectives

'The Artful Dodger' Behind Prison Bars

Career of One of the Cleverest Hotel Sneaks This Country Has Ever Known

PANIC reigned among the managers and hotel detectives of the most fashionable houses in New York city recently.

Night after night some hostelry was visited by a thief or band of thieves, often as many as a dozen rooms in a hotel being looted in a single day. Within an hour or two after a robbery in Fifth avenue a similar case in Broadway would be reported.

Fabulous sums were expended by the Hotel Men's Association in futile efforts to apprehend the thief. A month after the first robbery was reported, in which period scores of others came to light, the detectives were no nearer a solution of this baffling mystery than the day they started. Harried by the constant reproaches of the men who employed them, they finally admitted that they had nothing tangible to work upon, all clews having failed. In desperation Police Headquarters was appealed to.

The Inspector in charge of the Detective Bureau was visited by a delegation of hotel men, accompanied by their house detectives. Each reported a succession of robberies, the loot varying from the rarest gems to costly wearing apparel, or anything else that might appeal to the fancy of a hotel thief.

The Work of One Man.

The circumstances surrounding each robbery were so similar in detail that the detectives unhesitatingly announced that it was not a band of thieves, but one lone sneak thief who was operating among them. The hotel men and house detectives were taken in the Rogues' Gallery and asked to scrutinize the photographs of the most notorious hotel thieves there on file. None of the detectives could pick from the gallery of photographs a single one that bore the slightest resemblance to any one who had been noticed circulating about the hotels.

The Inspector in charge dismissed his visitors with the promise that he would detail two men who for many years had specialized on hotel "crooks," and doubtless they would report progress in a few days. Detectives Thomas Hughes and Lewis Hyams were assigned to the case. Knowing that they had a wide field to cover, and that the man they sought was operating [illegible] as he did in the dead of night, they divided the work so that one or the other was constantly on duty. Results came more speedily, however, than they anticipated and chance played a big part in the development of events.

The detective who had elected to keep vigil by night was seated in the foyer of a hotel near Herald square at an hour when the theatre crowd was swarming in for supper. Closely he scanned the features of every man and woman who passed him. Having been instructed to round up this thief at all hazards, he knew his work was cut out for him and no chance was overlooked. Shortly after midnight the detective was approached by a bellboy, who told him there was trouble in one of the bedrooms on the third floor. The boy had first sought the house detective, and failing to find him summoned the man from headquarters.

Bounding into the elevator, the detective was shot skyward in a jiffy, the bellboy piloting him to a handsome suite of apartments in the front of the house. As he entered the detective saw at a glance that a furious encounter had taken place, the furniture was overturned and the room in a general state of disorder.

Desperate Fight in the Room.

In the centre of the apartment stood a man, his powerful frame draped in a bathrobe. He greeted the detective by saying he had surprised a thief in his room, that a fight had followed and in the mixup the intruder had fled out into the corridor, slamming the door behind him. [illegible] the time the occupant reached the corridor all trace of the thief had disappeared. The victim of the robbery, a man of great wealth from Alberta, Canada, said that while in his bath he had heard some one enter his room. Donning his bathrobe, he hurried into his bedroom, there to find a stranger transferring from the bureau to his pocket his watch and chain, diamond ring and a wallet containing upward of a thousand dollars. He leaped upon the back of the intruder and landing a crashing blow on his head floored him. But the thief struggled to his feet and returned the blow, raising a tremendous welt above his assailant's eye, almost closing it. They grappled and in their struggle overturned chairs and tables, each giving as good as he received. With a powerful blow the thief stunned his adversary and fled to the corridor.

The detective at once surmised that the thief was near at hand. Questioning the telephone operator stationed at the end of the corridor, he learned that no one answering the description of the would-be thief had passed that way, therefore it was reasonable to suppose that the thief was somewhere quartered on that corridor. He started at the end of the hallway and rapped at each door he came to. The persons thus aroused were closely scrutinized and most of them replied so satisfactorily to the questions put that they were speedily eliminated. Arriving at the last door at the lower end of the corridor, it required repeated knocking to arouse the occupant.

The man in the room, seemingly roused from a sound sleep, arose from his bed, and without switching on the light opened the door and asked why he was being disturbed at such an unseemly hour. The detective forced his way into the room, and switching on the light saw at a glance that the man before him had recently been in a combat of some sort. His hands were cut and bruised and a long welt on his forehead indicated that he had received a violent blow. Without more ado the detective told him to don his clothes. The victim of the robbery in the meantime entered the room and positively identified the prisoner as the man who had attempted to rob him.

No Trace of the Loot.

Every nook and corner in the room was gone over in a search for the stolen articles, yet not a trace of them could be found. As the windows of the room looked out on the street, it was surmised that the prisoner, upon realizing he had been trapped, tossed the chain, ring and money to the street below. The office of the hotel was notified by telephone and [illegible] other attendants were sent scurrying to the street in search of the missing articles, but this, too, was futile, and to this day neither ring, watch nor money has been recovered by their owner.

When taken to the police station the prisoner, other than saying he had registered at the hotel under the name of James Kelly, declined to give any information concerning himself.

At Police Headquarters the prisoner was readily recognized as James Kelly, alias John Ward, known from one end of the country to the other as "The Artful Dodger," one of the boldest and most successful hotel sneak thieves in this country. A dozen of his photographs were in the Rogues' Gallery, and, further, his record showed that he had served time in various penitentiaries throughout the country.

When arraigned "The Artful Dodger" was held in heavy bail for the Grand Jury. His indictment was but a question of hours and the stage was set for an early and speedy trial. To the consternation and disgust of the detectives the victim of this robbery failed to appear against the "Dodger," and although he was held on first one pretext and then another it was finally seen that the Canadian had no intention of following up the prosecution, so there was nothing to do but turn the "Dodger" loose. For days his footsteps were dogged by detectives, who, realizing what a skilful and resourceful thief he was, had no intention of permitting him to again start operations here, for in their minds they were positive he was the sole author of the long string of burglaries that had so deeply stirred the hotel world of the country. In support of this theory it was noted that the robberies ceased simultaneously with the arrest of the "Dodger."

But, living up to his reputation, Kelly at last succeeded in shaking off the detectives who had been shadowing him, and word went forth that he was again at large, with no clew whatever to his whereabouts. The city was combed from end to end, yet "The Artful Dodger" remained among the missing.

EDWARD J. WALTON.

PERCY L. WYCKOFF.

HARRY W. WILLIS.

"Artful Dodger" in Minneapolis.

Shortly after this, word was received from Police Headquarters of Minneapolis, Minn., that the "Artful Dodger" was wanted in that city. He had been arrested there for a hotel "job" and released on bail, which he promptly jumped. As his record was a black one and complaints from cities in the Northwest, Middle West and the South began to pour in, the detectives redoubled their efforts to recapture him.

While seated in the foyer of a New York hotel a few nights later the detective who first arrested him was startled to see the "Artful Dodger," faultlessly groomed, enter the hotel, approach the desk and ask for a room without a bath. This, the detective later said, was the course always pursued by this swindler. In obtaining a room without a bath he would go to his apartment and partly disrobe. Then, emerging from his room under the pretext of seeking a bath, he would try all the doors near his room. Any of these that he found unlocked he would open and enter. Should the occupant be in the room he would humbly apologize for the intrusion, saying that he had mistaken the room for the bath. As he was an adept with skeleton keys, it was an easy matter for him to open any and all doors he might find locked.

No sooner had the "Dodger" signed the register of this Broadway hotel than the detective slipped up behind him and, clapping a pair of handcuffs on his wrists, informed him of his arrest. Of course a battle followed, but, handicapped by the shackles on his wrist, the "Dodger" was overpowered and accompanied his captor to Police Headquarters, whence he was remanded to the Tombs and held subject to the call of the Minneapolis authorities. He was taken to Minneapolis a few days later, tried and convicted, and to-day he is rounding out a long term for burglary.

$10,000 Jewel Robbery.

Another interesting case in which the same two detectives figured had to do with the solution of a ten thousand dollar gem robbery in an uptown New York hotel which not only baffled the house detectives but half a dozen private detectives who had been detailed to apprehend the thieves. A Miss Barnes, who was stopping at this hotel, was the victim of the robbery. While she was away from the hotel shopping the lock of her trunk was forced and the gems stolen. Every effort to apprehend the thieves failed. One detective agency had stationed a youth in the hotel who posed as a bellboy. As all signs pointed to this being an inside job it was believed the newcomer might worm himself into the confidence of the other bellboys and thus pick up some valuable clew. The two Headquarters detectives who as a last resort had been brought into the case ascertained that the boys then employed in the hotel had been discharged. Two of the bellboys, Percy Wyckoff and Harry Willis, had left the employ of the hotel a day or two after the robbery. The efforts of other detectives to find these boys were of no avail, but the city detectives went to work with a will and found Wyckoff working as a bellboy in another hotel.

Without ceremony they promptly accused Wyckoff of the theft, deciding that if their "bluff" worked it was a chance well worth taking. Wyckoff protested his innocence, but after a "sweating" process that lasted many hours he confessed his guilt. He was taken back to the hotel and when confronted by Miss Barnes he again admitted that he had stolen her gems. When asked what had become of Willis he said that his one-time friend had gone to the Pacific coast to accept a position in a hotel there.

This the detectives branded as false and told the boy he would be returned to Headquarters and continuously interrogated until he told the truth. He need expect no rest, they told him, until he divulged all the facts concerning the robbery, the whereabouts of Willis and the hiding place of the gems. A thorough search of the pawnshops of the city failed to bring about the recovery of the jewels. After holding out for many hours Wyckoff wilted and led the detectives to the hiding place of Willis, which proved to be a sumptuously appointed apartment which he occupied with his wife.

Williams assumed a defiant air, but when he realized that his one-time friend had "squealed" he knew that further denial was useless, so he, too, admitted his guilt, and that night shared the cell of Wyckoff in the Tombs. The trial and conviction of the boys was but the question of a few weeks, and both to-day are rounding out a long term in Sing Sing. Before their conviction, however, they revealed the name and address of the "fence" to whom they had disposed of the jewels.

This proved to be an establishment in West Forty-second street, which when visited by the detectives was found to contain rare and costly gems worth many thousands of dollars. Much if not all of this jewelry was identified by the respective owners and in the street of the two bellboys a chain of robberies extending from the Pacific coast to the Atlantic was broken.

With the "Artful Dodger" in a Minnesota prison and the two bellboys behind the grim walls of Sing Sing the hotel men in the large cities once more breathed freely, [illegible] other sneak thief, as clever and resourceful as the "Dodger" appears to be, will offer a respite from the nerve racking strain they endured when the rooms of their best paying customers were being so ruthlessly looted by the "Dodger."

Pittsburg to Preserve Home of Stephen C. Foster, Writer of Immortal American Songs

AT last Stephen Collins Foster, whose songs have been sung in all parts of the world, is to have recognition in the city of his birth. The house in which he was born has been bought and is to be preserved as a memorial by the city of Pittsburg.

While there are thousands to whom his name may not be familiar, the mention of almost any one of the many songs that he composed will be at once recognized by everybody. North and South, East and West, young and old, for almost two generations have sung "Way Down Upon the Swanee River," "My Old Kentucky Home," and "Old Black Joe."

Foster was born on July 4, 1826, and at an early age displayed musical ability, learning to play the flageolet when he was seven years old. He received the early part of his education at the academy in Athens, Pa., and from there entered Jefferson College, but only remained there a short time, leaving to go to work in Louisville, Ky. When he was only seventeen years old he wrote and published the serenade "Open Thy Lattice, Love," which won instant recognition for him. He followed this up with a succession of songs, many of which would be termed extremely sentimental to-day, but full of a poetic tenderness and simplicity that spoke to the heart.

He was of a bohemian temperament and very unassuming. He permitted the first edition of the "Swanee River" to be published as the work of Christy, the minstrel. Many of his songs were written for the negro minstrels, who were very popular in his day, but there was never any coarseness or buffoonery in them. He was essentially of a refined nature and cultivated tastes. Toward the end of his life he lost something of his popularity and [illegible] His moods were said to be almost as varied as those of Poe.

Stephen C. Foster Homestead in Pittsburg.

STEPHEN C. FOSTER.

Foster was largely self-taught as a musician, but he early familiarized himself with the music of Beethoven, Mozart and Weber. While he played the piano and composed on it, he preferred the guitar and the banjo. When he lived in Pittsburg he used to be a frequent visitor at the home of Mrs. Woods, member of a prominent family, who was a musician, and with whom he was fond of playing duets. Many of his best known songs were composed in this house. "Sadly to My Heart Appealing" was dedicated to her, and "Where Is Thy Spirit, Mary?" to her sister, Mary D. Feller.

"Nellie Bly" was suggested by an incident that happened in the Woods house. A colored maid suddenly put her head in the door, and Mr. Foster asked, "Who is that?" "Nellie Bly," replied Mrs. Woods. The composer laughed, went to the piano and composed the song bearing that name. He wrote in all 174 songs, both the music and words for most of them, and they range in character from "Nellie Was a Lady" to the four voiced serenade "Come Where My Love Lies Dreaming." They include, besides those referred to, such well known songs as "Old Uncle Ned," "Oh, Susanna," "The Louisiana Belle," "Old Dog Tray," "Massa's in de Cold, Cold Ground," "I Would Not Die in Springtime," "Laura Lee" and "Ellen Bayne," which has been said to have been the original of "John Brown's Body."

Those who love the old fashioned songs will rejoice to know that honor is to be accorded one who did more for the songs of America than any other person.

After Foster had composed many of his songs that are immortal, he lived in New York and peddled his manuscripts among the publishers of that time, receiving sometimes as little as $5 for a composition, or, when he was more fortunate, as much as $80.

Through his bohemian habits he had become somewhat estranged from his family and he lived often in the lodging houses of the Bowery. He used to wear a bombazine cap and often went about without a shirt and with the collar of his coat turned up to hide this lack of attire. His favorite haunt in New York was a Third avenue grocery with a "groggery" in the rear, and this was where he wrote a number of his songs.

In the morning he would first glance over a newspaper while he sipped a glass of "stone fence," a mixture of rum and hard cider. Then when the spirit moved he would start in to compose without the aid of a piano, writing sometimes upon a cracker barrel, after which he would go out to market his wares, returning usually to a lodging house at night. In his coat pocket he invariably carried a photograph of his wife and in his moments of depression he would sit on the side of his bed in his cheap lodging house and, taking out this photograph, would weep bitterly over it.

Next To Consumption.

There Are More Deaths From PNEUMONIA Than Any Other Lung Trouble.

Pneumonia is nothing more or less than what used to be called "Inflammation of the Lungs."

Consumption may be contracted from others, but as a rule pneumonia is caused by exposure to cold and wet, and there is only one way to prevent pneumonia, and that is to cure the cold on its first appearance.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup will do this for you if you will only take it in time.

Mrs. Wm. M. Steeves, River Glade, N.B., writes:—"Please allow me to express my gratitude for the presence of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup in the house, for I believe it saved our little boy's life. Three years this fall we were in the lumber woods, and it was very hard to get a doctor to us, and our little boy got pneumonia, and was very ill. The only relief he could get was to take Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and with the combined use of the Syrup, and your British Troop Oil Liniment, he soon got better, and was around in a couple of weeks. It certainly is a great remedy."

Price, 25 and 50 cents.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

The Amazons

A Story Showing How a Story Came to Be Written

By EMMA BLAKE

"What's this, Cartwright?" asked Mr. Chandler, managing partner of the firm of Chandler Bros., publishers. "This manuscript comes from Haythorn Hayes. I didn't understand when he went away that he had an unpublished novel finished."

"Nor I, sir. Nevertheless this manuscript has been sent us by express, and a letter has come by mail with regard to it."

Mr. Cartwright handed his employer a type written letter, which read as follows:

Messrs. Chandler Bros.:

Dear Sirs—On the eve of my departure I find a manuscript, which I send you by express. It was written some time ago and laid aside until I should have made a market for it by other work more likely to be accepted by a wider though perhaps lower grade of readers. I have no time to enter further into particulars. Perhaps you will use it during my absence. Very truly yours, H. H.

Mr. Chandler read the letter and looked puzzled.

"Do you think there is anything wrong about it?" asked Cartwright.

"I don't know that there is. If on either the manuscript or the letter there was a scrap of Hayes' writing I would like it better. However, you may have the story read and if there is a marked difference between its style and that of his other works let me know."

The reader reported that there was a considerable difference between the style of "The Aeronaut" and that of Mr. Hayes' other works. There was a crudity in it that indicated he had written it before he had had much practice.

Chandler Bros. were in a quandary. They had published two novels for Haythorn Hayes under his initials, "H. H.," with very good success. They had advised him to print his full name on the title page, and he had ignored their advice to his sorrow, for with success came a desire to be known as a successful author. But since "H. H." was well known to the public and Haythorn Hayes was not, a novel by the latter would not reap the benefit of the advertising of one by the former. He was therefore obliged to continue to publish under his initials.

"There's no hope of reaching Hayes," said the head of the publishing firm. "He has gone up the Amazon river to find the legendary amazon women, who he believes have or have had a real existence, with a view to writing a story about them. If we don't publish this 'Aeronaut' we'll doubtless offend him, and when he returns some rival firm will get his Amazon novel. Put the book in press and advertise largely that it is forthcoming. We must make sure of the story be is after, and the best way to do so is to put him under obligations to us by booming this 'Aeronaut' story."

"The Aeronaut" was offered to the publishers late in the autumn and was rushed through for the spring trade. A paragraph in a literary journal had announced Mr. Hayes' departure with a view to getting material for a unique novel, and his publishers occasionally jogged the memory of the public by an item as to the singular possibilities of such a theme.

However, when "The Aeronaut" appeared it very soon became manifest that it must stand on its own merits. Being unlike Mr. Hayes' other works, it did not appeal especially to his admirers. For some time it looked as though it would be a failure. Those dealers who had bought copies with the privilege of returning those that were unsold began to send them in by the hundreds.

"Never mind," said Mr. Chandler, "we'll make it all up on the Amazon deal."

But one day there came a call for more copies of "The Aeronaut" by a prominent dealer, which was followed by new orders from other booksellers. There was evidently a call for the work on the part of the public. It was not long before the fact was recognized that the sale of the book had taken a start. The start became a demand and the demand became a clamor from the dealers to supply the public. The sale of "The Aeronaut" far surpassed that of any of Mr. Hayes' other works and increased his reputation tenfold.

Chandler Bros. thought it a good opportunity to make advertising capital of the fact that no one knew who "H. H." was. They therefore had an item inserted in a newspaper stating that he was a prominent playwright named Henry Harbeson. Mr. Harbeson denied the change. Another item named another man, and it was not long before half a dozen prominent persons were trying to put off an honor that did not belong to them. Chandler Bros. chuckled and refused positively to give the name of the real author.

Meanwhile Haythorn Hayes was hunting for the amazons in the interior of South America. Nothing came from him for a year, at the end of which time he reappeared at the mouth of the river from the Amazonas province of Brazil and reported that he had found traces of the amazon women. But he would give no particulars. Chandler Bros. made as much of the news as possible and eagerly looked for his return to his home.

One morning he appeared, browned by the equatorial sun, in the office of his publishers.

"Well, Hayes," said Mr. Chandler when the greetings were over, "we've been making hay while the sun wasn't shining. Ha, ha! While you have been lost in Brazil we have been reaping a big profit for you out of your Aeronaut.'"

"That's a very good joke," replied the author, "but I don't know what you mean by 'The Aeronaut.'"

"Why, the novel you sent us at the time you were leaving. We have a check for some $12,000 for you for royalties."

"I sent you no manuscript as I was leaving, and I have never heard of a novel called 'The Aeronaut.'"

The two Chandler brothers and the junior partner, who were standing about smiling benignly upon the famous author, suddenly lowered the corners of their mouths and looked at each other.

"Nonsense, old fellow," said Chandler senior. "Your modesty has always stood in your way. You've written the biggest thing of the year. I hope you're not going to deny it."

Nevertheless Mr. Hayes maintained his denial and finally got the story of how the manuscript came to the firm, its doubts about the identity of the author and other information. He called for a copy of the book, took it home with him and did not pause after beginning till he had finished it. The next day he returned to the publishing house, was closeted with the head of the firm and said:

"Mr. Chandler, it does not reflect much credit on your house that you did not realize on reading this work that I had not the ability to write it. I haven't either the imagination or the ingenuity. Moreover, you should have known that it was not written by a man and that it was written by a woman. Some one endeavored to get it through by using my initials and succeeded, with a result far above anything I am capable of attaining. But what surprises me is that whoever the impostor may be she has not attempted to reap the pecuniary reward arising through her imposture."

"Wait," replied Mr. Chandler. "That will come in time."

After a prolonged interview Mr. Hayes departed, having obtained a promise that if the impostor were discovered he should be notified before any action in the premises was taken.

A month later the author received a telephone message that if he would call at the office of Chandler Bros. he would hear something of the imposture that had been practiced on him and on the firm. On arrival Mr. Chandler said to him:

"A lady named Helen Herbert some time ago published through us a little book of poems, on which we lost some money. Since then we have heard nothing from her till this morning, when we received this note."

He handed the note to Mr. Hayes, who read:

Messrs. Chandler Bros.:

Dear Sirs—On my departure for Africa about a year ago, where I have been with a view to investigating whether the pygmies there are the same as mentioned by the historian Herodotus, I sent you the manuscript of a novel called "The Aeronaut," hoping that you might use it during my absence. On a railway train I purchased a copy of the book published with your imprint. Why did you put my initials on the title page instead of giving my full name? I hear the story has been very generally read, and if you have anything in the way of royalties to my credit I should be obliged if you would send me a check. Cordially yours,

HELEN HERBERT.

Mr. Hayes looked up at Mr. Chandler and met that gentleman's eyes fixed on him with a singular expression.

"This beats any theme I ever worked up," remarked the author.

"It's the old story of truth being stranger than fiction."

"And we stupids could only interpret the mystery as an imposture."

"No imposture at all, nothing but a commonplace occurrence."

"If you are about to send the lady a check I beg you to make me your messenger."

"Certainly"

Mr. Chandler tapped a bell and called for a check for the balance of Miss Herbert's account. It amounted to more than $14,000. Mr. Hayes took it and later called at the address the author-ess had given. When she appeared Mr. Hayes found her to be about twenty-six years old, comely and with an intellectual head.

"I have a check for you for royalties on your 'Aeronaut,'" he said, handing it to her, "from Chandler Bros. They published it at your request, signed 'H. H.,' thinking I had written it. Had your name instead of my initials been attached to it, it would not have been published and might not have got the start required to make it a success."

"That being the case," said the lady, "this money belongs to you. I will make it payable to your order."

"It does not belong to me, for I could not have written the story. It is beyond my capabilities."

"But if the story was accepted on account of my initials being mistaken for yours and got its start from the same cause I have been trading on your capital."

"And I doubtless have received much credit from your novel. It seems to me that we are both fortunate through an error. The immediate benefit, the cash for royalties, is yours; mine will come later."

He handed her the check, and the first part of the partnership was closed.

This was the beginning of an acquaintance that produced that remarkable collaboration "The Amazon," a novel requiring the delicate touch of a woman, while the local color was supplied by one who had visited the wild country in which the scene of the story was laid. It was followed by "The Pygmies," which met with equal success.

THE ROAD TO THE RIGHT.

YOU'VE met at least one of those few good old souls, who are constantly getting the worst of it when shopping, who don't believe in advertising. A hundred disappointing and instructive experiences have failed to teach him their plain lesson.

When he bought his first watch he was beguiled into buying one without a known name or a trustworthy guarantee. That watch—a poor timekeeper—cost him dearly by reason of missed appointments and missed trains, and for frequent repairs. Yet he paid the price of a good watch.

It is the same story with regard to his underwear, his shoes, and his fountain pen.

This good old soul's case is not unique. Many of us, if the truth be confessed, resemble him; we allow ourselves to be sold merchandise with an unknown brand or trade mark instead of buying merchandise which is well known to us through the medium of advertising. In slang language, we get "stung" pretty often.

In most of these cases we have ourselves to blame, for "the road to the right" thing to buy has been made plain by advertising.

There is no good reason for passing by the known thing, soundly guaranteed, to buy a dubious article, which, quality for quality, cannot be cheaper than the known, branded article.

"It is better to be sure than sorry."

If you are doing a local business talk over your advertising problems with the Advertising Department of this newspaper.

If you are doing a provincial or national business it would be well for you to have the counsel and assistance of a good advertising agency. A list of these will be furnished, without cost or obligation, by the Secretary of Canadian Press Association, Room 903, Lumsden Building, Toronto.

URIC ACID SUFFERING

Uric acid is an accumulation of poison which finds lodgment in the system when the kidneys fail to remove it from the blood. In the kidneys and bladder it forms stones, in the joints and muscles it causes rheumatism. In any case the pain and suffering is almost beyond human endurance. Uric acid is promptly removed from the system when the kidneys are kept healthy and active by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

'Way up in Vermont Uncle Eph Kinney was looking over his field of clover when up drove a neighbour. "Grass is awful short this year, ain't it, Uncle Eph?" he said. "Short!" cried Uncle Eph. "Why, it's so short the bumblebees hev to git down on their knees to suck the blossoms."

Made Himself at Home.

James Hogg, poet, known as the "Ettrick Shepherd," was never quite happy away from the fields. Sir Walter Scott made a friend of him, but he was not a social success. "In a shepherd's dress," writes a historian, and with hands fresh from sheep shearing, he came to dine for the first time with Scott in Castle street, and, finding Mrs. Scott lying on the sofa immediately stretched himself at full length on another sofa; for, as he afterward explained, 'I thought I could not do better than imitate the lady of the house.' At dinner, as the wine passed, he advanced from 'Mr. Scott' to 'Shirra' (sheriff) 'Scott,' 'Walter,' and finally 'Wattie,' till at supper he convulsed every one by addressing Mrs. Scott familiarly as 'Charlotte'."

TO FIGHT BRIBERY

A. K. Maclean Secures Promise of Government Action

WOULD REVISE STATUTE

OTTAWA, Feb. 19. — The House spent the greater part of the day discussing a resolution offered by A. K. Maclean, of Halifax, calling for the appointment of a special committee to consider amendments to the Elections Act and the Corrupt Practice Act.

The resolution declared that it is desirable to enact more effective provisions to punish bribery and fraud at elections, to ensure thorough publicity as to expenditures by political organizations, to prevent the accumulation of campaign funds for corrupt purposes, and to prohibit contributions thereto by corporations, contractors and promoters, to expedite the hearing of election petitions; and to prevent collusive arrangements for the withdrawal or compromise thereof; or provide for a thorough investigation of corrupt practices, and, necessary, to appoint an independent prosecuting officer charged with that duty, to simplify the procedure thereof, and to enforce the laws so amended.

Mr. Burnham (West Peterboro) protested against encumbering the statute book with any more amendments to the Election Act. Our trouble was "popular apathy and cynicism," which saw nothing wrong in electoral corruption.

Judge Doherty, Minister of Justice, thought Mr. Burnham was too pessimistic, but at the same time feared that the Dominion Election Act, by its very severity, defeated its own purpose. It put in the same category innocent acts with those which were inherently corrupt. Bribery, he submitted, should be prevented, and also personation, which was a growing evil in our large cities. He was not prepared to say that a public prosecutor should not be appointed and thought something might be said in favor of making all campaign contributions public.

He did not favor compulsory voting, but thought it might be wise to require every voter to attend and register at the polling subdivision on election.

In conclusion, he promised that the Government would have a committee appointed along the lines suggested by Mr. Maclean.

Sir Wilfrid thought the subject in hand should be addressed in a candid and non-partisan way. He was inclined to think with Judge Doherty that the Elections Act was unduly severe in some respects. A young friend of his returned to Parliament had been unseated and disqualified because he gave a hackman a $2 bill for his fare. On the other hand, in a riding where the most damnable practices had been resorted to the successful candidate prevented all investigation and punishment by simply resigning his seat. He opposed Mr. Maclean's suggestion that election day be made a public holiday as tending to promote public disorder.

Mr. Borden, in adjourning the debate, said the committee might accomplish something, although similar committees in the past has not. The great need for reform, in his opinion, would be in the trial of election cases and he was inclined to agree with Sir Wilfrid Laurier that election protests and election trials had become little better than a farce. They were too expensive and the delays were intolerable. Sawing-off election protests was a great evil, which the appointment of a public prosecutor might largely do away with. The House could rest assured that before the next election the Government would endeavor to improve the Eelections Act, and provide cheaper and more summary procedure in controverted election cases.

Swedish House To Dissolve.

STOCKHOLM, Feb. 19.—The new Swedish Cabinet proposes dissolving Parliament and after the elections submitting its plans for the defence of the country to the new Parliament. Premier Hammerskjoeld made this announcement in the second chamber yesterday when outlining the policy of the Government, King Gustave, the Premier said, had entrusted him with the task of settling the question of national defence, without reference to political considerations. The funds necessary for carrying through the reform would, he said, be raised by a special tax. He asked the assistance of all parties in support of his scheme of national defence.

Stomach Troubles Due To Acidity

SO SAYS EMINENT SPECIALIST.

So-called stomach troubles, such as indigestion, wind, stomach-ache and inability to retain food, are in probably nine cases out of ten simply evidence that fermentation is taking place in the food contents of the stomach, causing the formation of gas and acids. Wind distends the stomach, and causes that full, oppressive feeling sometimes known as heart-burn, while the acid irritates and inflames the delicate lining of the stomach. The trouble lies entirely in the fermenting food. Such fermentation is unnatural, and acid formation is not only unnatural, but may involve most serious consequences if not corrected. To stop or prevent fermentation of the food contents of the stomach and to neutralize the acid, and render it bland and harmless, a teaspoonful of bisurated magnesia, probably the best and most effective corrector of acid stomach known, should be taken in a quarter of a glass of hot or cold water immediately after eating, or whenever wind or acidity is felt. This stops the fermentation, and neutralizes the acidity in a few moments. Fermentation, wind and acidity are dangerous and unnecessary. Seek to prevent them by the use of a proper antacid, such as bisurated magnesia, which can be obtained from any druggist and thus enable the stomach to do its work properly without being hindered by poisonous gas and dangerous acids.—M. P. P.

MANOEUVRES USELESS.

Britain Thinks Naval Practice Has Served Purpose, Says Mail.

LONDON, Feb. 19. — The London Daily Mail states "upon high authority" that there will be no British naval manoeuvres this year. An outlay of £500,000 will thus be economized. It is the first occasion since 1907 that the manoeuvres have been suppressed from motives of economy.

The reason for the abandonment is said to be that nothing new can be learned from fresh manoeuvres. The Government, it is stated, considers all that is necessary was learned from last year's exercises. The result of the 1913 manoeuvres was never made known to the public. The Daily Mail says that the decision is more extraordinary because last year the manoeuvres showed that the British plan for defence were faulty. Lord Roberts stated that they revealed the fact that a considerable force might be landed on the British coast.

Churchill Is Silent.

LONDON, Feb. 19.—Several members tried to draw Winston Churchill in the Commons yesterday regarding the naval strength in view of the absence of any Canadian ships, but the Minister declined to anticipate his statement on the naval estimates.

Mr. Middlemore, Unionist member for Birmingham, declared that, England two years hence would be three ships short without the expected Canadian ships, but Churchill refused to confirm or deny this statement.

CONDEMNS DIVORCE.

Strong Resolution To Come Up Before Ontario Synod.

KINGSTON, Feb. 19. — At yesterday morning's session of the Synod of Ontario a notice of motion was given by Rev. R. G. Glaskgrave, of Belleville, seconded by Rev. Rural Dean Creegan, of Tyendinaga, as follows:

"That whereas there is a resolution before the Parliament of Canada for the purpose of considering the whole question of divorce proceedings in this country, be it resolved, that this Synod, in line with the belief of the Catholic Church of the ages, is unalterably opposed to the whole principal of divorce, and do accordingly urge and pray that great care be taken not to widen or popularize a practice which undoubtedly undermines the integrity of the social order, but rather to discourage by every means anything that may tend to cheapen or weaken the marriage tie."

Lower Niagara's Ice Jam.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Feb. 19. —While ice jam conditions in the upper river are slightly improved, they are growing more serious in the lower river. At Lewiston the level of the river was four feet above normal and still rising. It is expected that Pitt's dock will soon be under water, and a repetition of the ice jam conditions of 1909 is feared. The great blockade of ice that fills the river from Lewiston to Youngstown, moved downstream a distance of about 1,000 feet.

Guelph Factories Close.

GUELPH, Feb. 19.—Notices have been posted in five factories, controlled by the proprietors of the Guelph Carpet Mills and Guelph Worsted Spinning Co., that all five will be closed down indefinitely on Saturday.

This move is said to be a result of the intention of the city to appeal against Judge Middleton's decision in the spring flood cases of 1912 and 1913, in which the two above-mentioned companies were awarded $25,000 damages and costs.

SENATE RESUMES.

Restriction of Appeals to Privy Council Is Discussed.

OTTAWA, Feb. 19.—After a holiday of three weeks the Senate resumed its sittings yesterday. The chief item was a proposal to curtail appeals from the Canadian courts to the Privy Council.

Senator David moved the appointment of a committee "to consider the advisability of limiting the right of appeal to the Privy Council to certain classes of cases." He said a committee had considered the question last year, and while it had gained much valuable information, it had been unable to complete its work before prorogation. He wanted the committee to take up the subject and make a report.

Senator Belcourt introduced a bill respecting the pollution of navigable waters.

Senator Casgrain gave the Government notice that he would call attention to unsatisfactory conditions regulating the importation of pure-bred horses.

RETAILERS NEEDED.

Merchants Will Ask Department For Their Protection.

OTTAWA, Feb. 19.—The ninth annual convention of the Dominion Board of the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada, assembled here on Tuesday and Wednesday, came to an end last night, when a banquet was given in the Chateau Laurier.

Some very important subjects were taken up at the convention during the two days' session. Among other subjects, they decided to press forward legislation during the present session, if possible, to make the false advertising of any article a criminal offence.

They will ask the Government to institute a department under the Minister of Trade and Commerce for the purposes of the retail trade similar to the departments that are now in operation for the protection of the laboring and agricultural classes. They propose starting a campaign for the purpose of educating the public regarding the necessity of the retailer.

Canadians Were Winners.

DALLAS, Texas, Feb. 19. — The $1,500 trophy for the best peck of oats, contested for at the National Corn Exposition, went out of the United States permanently when J. C. Hill & Sons, Lloydminster, Sask., were awarded the trophy for the third consecutive time. They requested the directors to allow them to offer a similar cup to be known as the Canadian trophy.

Gave Life For Employers.

NEW YORK, Feb. 19. — William Lehman, a night watchman at a coal yard in Brooklyn, gave his life early yesterday in a vain effort to save $7 belonging to his employers. The money was taken by burglars, who blew up the office safe and left the watchman bound and gagged after giving him a beating, from which he died.

There was no further change in the condition of the market for cattle today, prices being firm at the recent advance, owing to the somewhat limited offerings and the continued scarcity of choice steers and heifers. Good steers and heifers sold at $8.25 to $8.50; fairly good at $7.50 to $8, and the lower grades at from $6 to $7 per 100 pounds. Choice butchers' cows were also scarce, but there was a fairly good demand for the lower grades, and sales of the best were made at $6, and the common and inferior at from $4 to $5.50. A few extra choice bulls were on the market, which met with a ready sale at $7.50, while choice brought $6.50 to $7, and the commoner ones sold from that down to $4 per 100 pounds.

The trade in sheep and lambs was quiet on account of the small receipts and the tone of the market was firm.

QUIT MEAT WHEN KIDNEYS BOTHER

Take a Glass of Salts if Your Back Hurts or Bladder Troubles You

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which excites the kidneys, they become overworked from the strain, get sluggish and fail to filter the waste and poisons from the blood, then we get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, dizziness, sleeplessnessan durinary disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, stop eating meat and get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate the kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active, and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.

SAVE YOUR HAIR! IF IT IS FALLING OR FULL OF DANDRUFF—25 CENT DANDERINE

Ladies! Men! Here's the Quickest, Surest Dandruff Cure Known

Thin, brittle, colourless and scraggy hair is mute evidence of a neglected scalp; of dandruff—that awful scurf.

There is nothing so destructive to the hair as dandruff. It robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life; eventually producing a feverishness and itching of the scalp, which if not remedied causes the hair roots to shrink, loosen and die — then the hair falls out fast. A little Danderine to-night—now—anytime — will surely save your hair.

Get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store, or toilet counter, and after the first application your hair will take on that life, lustre and luxuriance which is so beautiful. It will become wavy and fluffy and have the appearance of abundance; an incomparable gloss and softness, but what will please you most will be after just a few weks' use, when you will actually see a lot of fine, down hair—new hair—growing all over the scalp.

Farm and Dairy Market Report

Toronto, Monday, Feb. 16.—Wholesale houses report that business men throughout the country are viewing the situation a trifle more optimistically. It is evident, however, that country merchants are placing their orders with reluctance as many of them are heavily loaded with winter stock not disposed of. This would seem to indicate that business will be a little on the dull side until another crop is harvested at least. Other business men prophesy a good average year's business.

Farmers' markets have been dull for the past week, owing to the exceedingly cold, and in many places, stormy weather. Particularly has this affected the cattle market, receipts being one day as low as 200 head. Taking products as a whole the tendency has been towards slightly lower levels, but the drop has not been serious.

WHEAT

The wheat market is holding firm, but all of the trade is on local account, foreign bids for both wheat and flour being below the Canadian. This is largely due to the heavy shipments of wheat from Russia, their wheat now finding favor on British markets. Ontario wheat has climbed above 90c, but still farmers are delivering slowly. No. 1 Northern, 96c; No. 2, 95½c; all-rail, 1c more; Ontario No. 2, 90c to 90½c; corn, 69½c to 70c; peas, 90c to 91; rye, 65c to 66c; buckwheat, 66c to 66c; barley, malting, 66c to 68c. At Montreal quotations ran as follows: Oats, C.W. No. 2, 42½c to 43c; No. 3, 40½c to 41c; local oats, 40c to 40½c; corn, 69½c to 71½c; barley, malting, 66½c to 68c; feed barley, 65c; peas, $1.78 to $1.85; buckwheat, 66c; rye, 90c to 91c; feed wheat, 76c to 80c.

MILL FEEDS

Mill feeds are decidedly stronger under the impetus of a good Canadian and United States demand. Quotations here are: Bran, $23 to $23.50; shorts, $25 to $26.50; middlings, $30; feed flour, $34 to $35. Montreal quotations: Bran, $23; shorts, $25; middlings, $28.

POTATOES AND BEANS

There is no change in the potato market, supply and demand being nicely balanced. Ontario's, 90c to 95c out of store; 75c to 80c in car lots; New Brunswicks, 85c more. Montreal wholesale dealers ask 80½c to 85c for Green Mountains, 77½c for Quebec Whites.

Beans are stronger. Primes are here quoted $2.20 to $2.25; hand picked, $2.30 to $2.35. Montreal dealers ask for hand picked, $2.65 to $2.12½; three-pound pickers, $2.75 to $2.80.

SEEDS

Merchants are paying farmers a bushel as follows: Alsike, No. 1, $6.50 to $9; No. 2, $7.50 to $9; No. 3, $6 to $7; red clover, No. 1, $6.25 to $6.75; No. 2 $7.50 to $8; timothy, No. 1, $2.75 to $4.25; No. 2, $1 to $2.50.

HAY AND STRAW

Hay shows a tendency to move to lower levels. The mild winter has been easy on feed and the surplus is larger than was anticipated. Quotations: No. 1 baled hay, $14.50; No. 2, $13.50 to $13.50; No. 3, $8 to $9; baled straw, $8.50. At Montreal little enquiry from the United States is reported. Prices are still firm: No. 1, $16 to $16.50; No. 2, $13 to $15.50; No. 3, $10.50 to $11.

EGGS AND POULTRY

Receipts of fresh eggs at United States points are now on the increase, and this has had a tendency to force down prices on our market. Wholesale dealers now ask of the retail trade as follows: New laid, 35c to 36c; selects, 34c to 35c; storage, 30c; the retail price is still 45c to 50c for choice new laid eggs. About 25 car loads of United States eggs have so far been received in Montreal. Importation is necessary as Canadian stock are exhausted. New laid, 31½c; No. 1 grade, 30c; selects, 32c.

Quotations on dressed poultry are: Fowl, 12c to 13c; alive, 13c to 14c; dressed spring chickens, 16c to 18c; alive 14c to 16c; geese, 12c to 13c and 13c to 14c; turkeys, 17c to 18c and 16c to 17c.

DAIRY PRODUCE

The dairy situation is still uninteresting. Trade is confined largely to Eastern Canada, and there are no developments as yet to warrant a price change one way or another. Farmers' separator prints, 28c to 29c; dairy prints, 26c to 27c; creamery prints, fresh, 32c to 33c; solids, 30c to 31c; storage, 1c to 2c less. Cheese quotations are: New large, 14½c; twins, 15c; old large, 15c to 15½c; twins, 15½c to 16c.

LIVE STOCK

The live stock market this week has been a strong one so far as prices are concerned, the advance on the Monday market being about 25c all round with a similar advance on the closing market on Thursday. These increased quotations were due not so much to a greater demand as to very short supplies. On the Thursday market, for instance, receipts of cattle fell to 200 head. Severe weather prevented the drovers from reaching the market. As usual there was a firm demand for all well finished stuff, with little of the receipts to meet the requirements. An average of quotations is about as follows:

Butchers' cattle, choice, $8.10 to $8.50; com. to good, $8.75 to $8.10; heifers, $8.50 to $8.25; choice cows, $8.50 to $7.25; common to good, $6.75 to $6.50; butcher bulls, $8.50 to $7.75; feeders, $6 to $7.50; stockers, $6.50 to $7.25; canners, $2.50 to $4.

Milch cows keep keen in especially active demand, choice ones bringing $65 to $100; com. to med., $40 to $60 and springers, $40 to $100. Veal calves bring $10 to $12; inferior to med., $6 to $10.

Mutton is stronger in sympathy with beef, wether lambs now being up to $9.50 to $9.75; buck lambs, $8.75 to $9; ewes $6.50 to $7; culls, $6 to $6.

Hogs are now mainly above the $9 mark packers quoting $9.25 to $9.30 f.o.b. country points.

The course of quotations on the Montreal market has been similar to Toronto in development, but advances have been more satisfactory to the drovers. No choice steers were offered, but good ones brought $8.25 to $8.50; fair to good, $7.75 to $8; com., $6 to $7; butchers' cows and bulls ranged from $4 to $7; milch cows ro at $100 to $110.

Small meats are arriving in limited supplies and the demand is firm; sheep, $6.50 to $6; lambs, $8 to $8.50. Calves went at $3 to $15, according to size and quality.

MONTREAL BUTTER AND CHEESE MARKETS

Montreal, Saturday, Feb. 14.—There is no change to note in the market for cheese this week. There is really no market here at present, so far as the export trade is concerned, as there is nothing left for sale, and only a few thousand left in store on English account to be shipped. Cable advices from the other side indicate a strong market in England; but, as the receipts from New Zealand will be pretty heavy during the next few weeks, an easier market is generally expected, with probably lower prices. Canadians, however, are pretty much out of the way and have cleaned up at high prices.

The market for butter is easier and there is a little pressure to sell on the part of some holders; as a consequence prices are lower, but not very much, a most of the goods in store cost high and there is a general feeling that there not any more than sufficient butter to supply the trade, and dealers generally will endeavor to hold until the last minute before sacrificing their stuff. Finest Septembers are quoted at 29c and finest Junes at 28c.

MONTREAL HOG MARKET

Montreal, Saturday, Feb. 14.—There were no new developments in the live hog situation this week, prices being very firm, with a good demand from packers and an active trade was done, with sales of selected lots at $9.75 to $9.85 per cwt., weighed off cars.

The demand for dressed hogs was good owing to the continued cold weather, and a more active trade was done. Abattoir fresh killed sold at $13.75 to $14, and country dressed at $11 to $12.

A RUSH OF QUESTIONS FROM THE OPPOSITION

Ontario Legislature Was Opened Yesterday With the Usual Display of Formality.

SPEECH FROM THRONE

TORONTO, Feb. 19.—Once more the Ontario Legislature has settled down to business. The opening day passed off with the usual display of formality, booming of guns, parade of militia and the assembly in the chamber of a host of fashionably-dressed ladies and their male escorts.

Although Sir James Whitney and Hon. J. J. Foy, his senior Minister in the Cabinet, were absent, the machinery of the occasion passed off without a hitch, and the ceremonies of the afternoon, by their brevity, constituted a new record in the pages of the clerk.

During the morning the whole Cabinet visited Sir James in the General Hospital. The appointment of Dr. R. F. Preston, chief Conservative whip, to the position of Minister without portfolio in the Cabinet, was discussed, and shortly afterwards was formally announced. This arrangement fills a vacancy which has existed since the death of Hon. Col. Matheson, shortly over a year ago, and also grants a new Minister to eastern Ontario.

Following close upon the motion for adjournment, came a long series of question from Opposition members.

There will be no lull in the number of questions which will be put to the administration and some of the more recent affairs of public interest throughout the province have already appeared in the form of questions to the different Ministers. These were submitted to the Speaker and will appear upon the order paper of Thursday.

The speech from the throne, after referring to the abundant harvest; the return of the Duke of Connaught to Canada, the restoration of the Duchess to health; the recent road conferences, says:

"It is gratifying to observe the increased interest on the part of the farmers of the province in approved agricultural methods. An indication of this is found in the fact that the attendance at the Ontario Agricultural College is about double what it was ten years ago, while the number of new students registered at the opening of the present term shows a marked advance over that of the previous year. To meet these conditions an enlarged equipment has been provided, and plans for further extensions are now receiving attention.

"The number of district representatives of the Ontario Department of Agriculture has been increased and the work of the individual representatives has been made more effective.

"In consequence of the increased consumption of power the Hydro-Electric Power Commission has been enabled to make a further reduction in the price of electricity. The commission has under consideration the duplication of the main transmission line, and is constructing a high tension line to the western boundary of the province. Information regarding radial railway projects has been furnished to communities asking the assistance of the commission, while the efforts to interest agriculturists in the use of electricity have been continued with promising results. During the past year the commission organized a department for the inspection of electrical installations and equipment in order to afford protection to life and property."

Northern Ontario roads, mineral production, industrial training are touched upon and the speech continues:

"Sufficient progress has been made in the work on the Central Prison farm at Guelph to warrant the anticipation that the Central Prison in Toronto will be vacated in November next. The plan of prison reform adopted in the new institution has passed the experimental stage and is proving satisfactory in every respect.

"The new hospital for the insane at Whitby is now well advanced, and it is believed that a large section of it will be completed and afford accommodation for 500 patients by the latter part of the present year.

"Legislation respecting compensation to workmen for injuries, representation in the Legislative Assembly and other matters of public importance will come before you for consideration."

Statute revision, T. & N. O. subsidy come in for mention and then the question of increased revenue is raised.

"The growing financial demands of the province, consequent upon its development and the extension of its public services and activities, call for increased expenditures from year to year. To meet these conditions a larger revenue will be necessary, which, with your approval, will be obtained from a number of sources on an equitable and reasonable basis.

"A serious and protracted illness has befallen my Prime Minister, evoking the deep sorrow and sympathy of the whole community. It is very gratifying to know that the recovery of health and strength seems now to be assured."

SECTION MEN ARE KILLED BY G.T.R. TRAIN

West Bound Passenger Train Crashes Into Hand Car Near Whitby and Two Men Lose Their Lives

THIRD BADLY INJURED

Special Wire to The Examiner:

WHITBY, Ont., Feb. 19.—A westbound G.T.R. passenger train Number six, struck and instantly killed Robert Ashby and Donald Grant and it is thought fatally injured Arthur Smith, all section men of Whitby, half a mile east of here at ten fifteen this morning. The three men were waiting on their hand car on the siding at a bend in the track about a half mile east of Whitby. It is thought the switch was left open and the heavy train was upon the crew before they could get out of the way. It is said that the train travelled right on after hitting the crew. Little hope is held out for Smith's recovery. Ashby was 50 years of age and unmarried. Donald Grant, the other victim, was 35 years of age and has a family of four children. Arthur Smith, the surviving member of the crew, is 45 years of age and married, but has no children.

WILL LEAD INSURGENT DETACHMENT

Special Wire to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, Feb. 19.—That R. B. Bennett, M.P. for Calgary, a former western solicitor for the Canadian Pacific railway will lead a detachment of insurgent Conservatives against the government if they harbour or in any way foster the demand of the Canadian Northern for financial aid from the government, is strongly rumoured in parliamentary circles to-day. It is stated that such stalwart Conservatives as E. A. Lancaster of Lincoln, W. R. Nickle of Kingston, W. A. Boyes of Simcoe and other Ontario members are prepared to follow Bennett on such a course. The Government has not shown its hand in the matter, but Sir William Mackenzie and other C. N.R. heads are still here in conference with Premier Borden.

Last Chance To-night

"The Last Days of Pompeii," the feature film which has been shown at the "Grand" this week, will be shown for the last time to-night, and those who have not yet availed themselves of the opportunity of seeing this wonderful photo-drama, should not miss this opportunity of seeing the greatest picture which has ever been shown in Peterborough. Owing to the splendid patronage given to this feature the management of the Grand have arranged to put on "Quo Vadis" for Monday and Tuesday of next week, with Matinee daily. There will be no change in the admission, the prices remaining the same, namely 10 cents, any seat. Messrs. Turner & Sons appreciate the fact that local patrons will patronize really high-class pictures, and intend to use their best endeavours to secure the latest and best subjects. Remember then, that on Monday and Tuesday of next week "Quo Vadis" will be put on at the Grand, and an equally splendid subject for Wednesday and Thursday, the title of which will be announced later.

ADDRESS BY MR. T. F. MATTHEWS

The Mid-week service of Murray Street Baptist Church was addressed last night by Mr. T. F. Matthews, who used the stereopticon, showing views taken by himself while in the Orient.

The meeting was largely attended and the views were particularly good. The tender references to the scenes of our Lord's life were such as made the hour one of real worship, as well as being of most instructive character.

Mr. Matthews was unusually fortunate in being able to secure with his own camera most interesting scenes depicting the life of the Jewish and Mohammedan people.

LIST OF CASES FOR DISPOSAL

At the Sitting of the Peterborough Court of Assize, Which Commences on Tuesday Next

A SHORT SESSION

The Peterborough Court of Assize will open at 1 o'clock on Tuesday next, with Mr. Justice Kelley presiding. There will be the usual quota of civil actions. No criminal cases appear on the docket.

Action for $5,000.

The case that will perhaps occupy the chief attention of the Court is that in which John Robinson of Havelock is suing the Coroporation of Havelock for a sum of $5000 for damage in connection with the death of his three children, who were killed when a gravel pit, owned by the Corporation, caved in. The plaintiff claims this amount for the benefit of himself, wife and the remaining members of the family, and he also claims cost of action.

J. D. Lynch is acting on behalf of the plaintiff, while Peck, Kerr and McElderry are representing the Corporation of Havelock.

False Arrest Alleged.

Another case which will come up for disposal is that of Wm. J. Kearns, vs. H. F. Jackson, for damages to the extent of $3,000, being claimed by the plaintiff for alleged false arrest and imprisonment. Hall, Medd and Davidson are representing the plaintiff, while G. N. Gordon is acting for the defendant.

Minor Action.

The Bank of Ottawa vs. Hall, is a civil action, in which the plaintiff seeks to establish certain monetary claims, will also be heard.

Other Cases.

The other cases that have been entered, viz., Sharpe vs. Canadian Pacific, Toronto, Hamilton and Buffalo Railways; Lakefield Building and Canoe Manufacturing Company vs. Sir Henry Pellatt, A. W. Stewart, Gerald Minto and Simre, and Debenture Corporation of Canada, and the State line and Sullivan Railroad Company of Massachusetts and J. H. McClellan of this City, have been deferred, and will not be tried at the coming Court of Assize.

The session will, in all probability, be a short one, and it is expected that it will conclude in less than a week.

Ernest G. McConkey, of McConkey's restaurant, Toronto, a well-known resort, which is now being investigated by the Magistrate, as the result of the revels of New Year's Eve. The investigation was ordered by the Provincial Government, and Mr. McConkey is charged with keeping a disorderly house. The policeman on the beat testified that between midnight and three o'clock New Year's morning he saw forty or fifty drunken women come out of McConkey's.

MEETING OF THE COUNCIL

Will Be Held on Saturday Night to Discuss the Post Office Question

MINORITY IN FAVOUR

A meeting of the City Council will be held on Saturday evening next, when the question of adopting the report of the Government engineer, respecting the proposed post office and customs house, will be discussed. It is understood that there is an aldermanic minority in favour of the present location for the post office. Mayor Buller, together with a number of the aldermen are in favour of erecting a combined post office and customs house at the corner of George and Sherbrooke streets, as recommended by the deprtmental engineer.

The Council will in all probability have a deputation or two to reckon with, when the time for discussion arrives. It is understood that East City will send a strong deputation to the Council to oppose the removal of the post office, unless the Council agree to support a compromise whereby, East City will be provided with a branch post office.

ABSENTEE LANDLORDS ARE CREATIVE OF LAND BOOMS

According to Dr. Adam Shortt, Who Addressed the Canadian Club Last Evening.

"HUMAN FORM DIVINE"

The regular periodical banquet of the Peterborough Canadian Club was held last evening in the "Savoy," with Mr. Duncan Walker presiding. The speaker of the evening was Dr. Adam Shortt of Ottawa, who claimed the attention of a large gathering of members for upwards of an hour. Dr. Shortt, who is chairman of the Civil Service Commission of Canada, gave an address on "Taxation," which among other things revealed the speaker's preference for the Lloyd George system of taxation and not the single tax system as evolved by Henry George Exchange and Tax Values.

The speaker outlined the various forms of taxation, dealing particularly with municipal revenue and its relation to land values. Exchange value he said was represented by the amount a person pays for the privilege of participating in certain recognised forms of service that is rendered by organisations instituted for the purpose of supplying a marketable commodity. For instance if you travel on a street car, a specified sum is levied to the service rendered. Tax value is represented by the amount of money you pay into the civil treasury for which you receive in return, fire protection, paved streets and other civic conveniences.

"That is the broad contrast," said the speaker, "between exchange value and tax value. It has frequently been stated that people should pay taxes in proportion to the value received, but we find that this is an unworkable basis. The question resolves itself into ability of the person to pay, and means by which taxes can be collected from those who are possessed of property qualifications.

Income Tax.

The incomes of some people, continued Dr. Shortt, assume a very definite form. These the assessor can get at, while others are diametrically opposite. Some say that you can never determine the income of a lawyer or doctor. We sometimes hear a great deal about large corporations, but strange to say they are much more easily got at by the assessor, because they have to keep books in a public way. The chief difficulty with corporations is that you can seldom determine the difference between gross income and net income.

"Community Values."

Dr. Shortt laid particular emphasis on community values. These he said were created by public opinion. Community values can be depreciated by over supply. A product without a community value is not a commercial asset. Land like everything else has this inevitable value. Community values do not move in well defined lines, because it is a matter of opinion. A striking example of this, is fashion. Dresses that were made years ago would be of very little value at the present time, but at the time of their creation, they cost like sin! The ladies would not like to wear them now and some of them did not like to wear them. Feminine opinion has rendered them obsolete. We used to hear of the human form divine, but the horrible caricatures, that fashion evolves, leads one to lose faith in the human form divine.

The Speculator.

"Land boom in the west," said Dr. Shortt, "were not created by people on the spot, but are the product of the land speculators, many of whom reside in England, Germany and various other parts of the world. Real estate agents went along the concession lines exchanging a piece of paper for a farmers bank account. That is what you call creating opinion.

The land speculator was immune from the tax collector, until after he had disposed of a large portion of his holdings. Then the burden of paying the taxes fell upon the ultimate owner. He not only had to pay the tax collector but the speculator.

As a remedy for this condition, the speaker suggested that the state or municipality levy a special tax upon the land speculator in proportion to the profits that would accrue from the sale of land for speculative purposes. He referred to a report that emanated from Vancouver, in which it was pointed out that only one seventeenth of the total taxes was paid by the wealthy, while the remaining sixteen seventeenths was paid by the people of moderate means. This, the speaker inferred, was attributable to the single tax system of taxation.

NEW K. & R. RESTAURANT IS OPENED

City's New Grill Room is Splendidly Appointed—Located Few Doors North of Market

RESTFUL TONE SECURED

The new K. & R. restaurant, opened this afternoon in the premises three doors north of the market arcade greets the public with appointments that are most inviting. The management have aimed to cater to a section of the people whom they regard as having been too long neglected. Their furnishings even to details are an evidence of their determination to carry out their designs which will be completely materialized with an excellent cuisine.

The decorators have obtained a quiet, restful effect in the wall colourings which is enhanced by the dull finished woodwork and the very tasteful hangings. There are fourteen tables, each accommodating four persons, and with immaculate linen and virgin silver, the new dining quarters breathed a refreshing atmosphere that needed but the material refreshment of good food to materialize the effect.

A creamy white ceiling paper has been utilized, and with an indirect system of lighting the tone produced is splendid. In fact the management is to be congratulated on the selection of their furnishings. The indirect lighting lends the required soft touches to the interior and everything tending to garishness has been eliminated.

Just inside the door a cosy corner has been provided for ladies and gentlemen, particularly for the ladies whose comfort and convenience receives special attention from the management of the K. & R. This resting corner may be used when the tables are "au complet." The kitchen is a model of its kind. The last word is that the service and viands will be of the best. Special dinners will be served on Saturday and Sunday, and an orchestra has been engaged for Saturday.

The proprietors, Messrs. J. C. Kingsborough and Chas. S. Kyerse, are providing a grill room that is surpassed by few in the province. There may be many that are larger, but the attractiveness and the quiet effect desired by those who lean a trifle to fastidiousness or just plain neatness could hardly be improved upon. The ladies of the city are assured that they will receive every consideration and polite attention. Special attention will be given to after theatre parties.

There's a nice fitness of things in the selection of Hon. Dr. Pyne, Minister of Education as acting Premier in the absence of Sir James Whitney and in the absence of Hon. Mr. Foy, senior member, seeking sanitary solace in the sunny south. Hon. Dr. Pyne's new dignity only makes him a figure head. Hon. Mr. Hanna is the real leader, the man with the brains and—lungs. Hon. Dr. Pyne, as Minister of Education, has been so long a figure head in his department, that playing at leadership as a figure-head comes easy. Pyne isn't a very robust wood for a figure head, but it will serve for ornamental purposes.

THE MYTHICAL EMERGENCY.

Mr. Borden founded his proposal of a 35-million dollar contribution to Great Britain to build Dreadnoughts on the existence of an "emergency" that never existed. An emergency in this connection meant that Great Britain and the Empire were in danger from the increase of the German navy to a point of dangerous superiority to the British. There never has been a day or a moment when the German navy, present and prospective, was not immensely inferior in fighting strength and number to that of Great Britain. Last December the official statistics of the naval strength of both Britain and Germany were made public, and show that both positively and potentially "Britannia rules the waves."

These official statements show that Great Britain has 58 battleships, Germany 33. Britain has in course of construction, 14 battleships, and Germany 14. Britain has of battle cruisers, armoured cruisers and light cruisers, 115; of these Gremany has 53, and Britain has 21 of these building to Germany's 7. Britain's smaller craft, destroyers, submarines and torpedo boats; total 264; while Germany's total in the same class is 179. Britain has 86 of these building, and Germany 24. Great Britain's navy consists of 172 more vessels in commission than Germany, while Britain has 106 more ships building than Germany, making Britain's preponderance, when the present programme of both is completed, 278 war vessels of all kinds. Not only is Britain's present total of battle craft universally superior to that of Germany, but Britain is building twice as fast as Germany. To talk of an emergency under such circumstances is little short of nonsense.

STONY LAKE FISHING.

The Stony Lake Cottagers' Association seems desirous of keeping up the pleasure resources and consequently the popularity of Stony Lake waters as a summer resort. At its recent meeting it demanded several things, one of the most important of which was a fish hatchery. It is to be admitted that one of the greatest attractions to visitors, especially outside visitors, is the excellent fishing, or fishing reputaton of, to be found in Kawartha waters; but this condition cannot be maintained or restored without some adequate measure of restocking. Stony and other lakes are being rapidly fished out, and for good reason. The most robust bank account would dwindle if repeated drafts upon it were not compensated by corresponding deposits. For years and years the fish deposits of these waters have been drawn upon with virtually no deposit of fish fry. If this continues the fishing in Kawartha waters will be reduced to the level of that of a "swimming hole" on a farm. One way to prevent this and make fishing better, is to restock the waters. To this end a fish hatchery would be a good thing. And it is easily, practicable. Years ago The Examiner advocated the establishment of a fish hatchery at Stony Lake. If the idea had at that time been acted upon, millions and millions of fry would have been placed in the waters, and would by this time have become of sufficient size for taking from the water. If anything is to be done the Cottagers' Association will have to do something more than pass resolutions. The powers that be are immune against resolutions. The only thing that will make them move is vigorous prodding. It is all very well to talk of petitoning the Government. Governments keep pigeon-holes for petitions. Personally conducted expeditions and delegations are necessary to get the government in motion, and, keep it moving till something is done—something that must be done if the fish of our waters are to be kept up to anything near the mark.

THANKS FOR CANAL.

At the meeting of the Great Waterways Union of Canada at Berlin, Ontario, it was decided to send a deputation to Ottawa to thank the Dominion government for its prompt and energetic action in undertaking the development of a new Welland Canal. This action as a matter of sentiment is well taken. One of the few things the Borden government has done in the public interest is to effectively apply the policy of Welland Canal enlargement, inaugurated and promoted by the Laurier government. If the present Dominion government has taken prompt action in this matter it has found it easy. It found everything ready to its hand and had only to get to work. The Laurier government had made surveys and other preparations, and its successor had only to find the money; and even in this the Laurier government was helpful. It left office with a full treasury, an abounding revenue, and the country with the hopeful spirit, born of a sixth of a century of good times. The new Welland Canal will be as important—if not more so—to Canada's internal development as the Panama and the Suez Canals are to the shipping service of the world. It will not only form an important link in waterways communication from the interior to the seaboard, but a great carrying medium for a great and growing internal trade, not to speak of its importance as a regulator of railway freight rates. As a material achievement it will be a credit to Canada and will rank among the great canal-building achievements of the world.

The government also deserves credit for continuing construction work on the Trent canal, inaugurated by the Laurier government — effectively at least—for previous to its advent to power, construction work on the Trent canal had gone on with the proverbial speed of a tortoise. The completion of this waterway will not only mean much for Peterborough, but it will do for the interlakes district a service similar to the Welland, in promoting the development of its natural resources and of its commercial possibilities as well as for the whole route of the waterway from the head of the lakes to tide water. Canada has done great things in solving the transportation problem. It has done more in this direction than any other country of its population and resources in the world. No other country in the world has so magnificent a stretch of waterways, present and prospective, as Canada. No other country in the world is so well equipped with transcontinental railways. We have spent a great deal of money in providing these things, but it has been better spent than it would have been in the military and naval waste that imposes so impeding a burden upon European countries. Transportation is the key to Canada's greatness, and if we could get the country in a state of immanent obsession as to the importance of improving our highway facilities of transportation, we would be providing the most effective means of fully realising the benefit of our great transportation systems, rail and canal. Good canals, good railways and good roads are the needs of Canada, as media of development and achievement.

THAT CHARGE OF WASTE.

The Hamilton Times points out that Mr. Gutelius and Mr. Lynch-Staunton were each paid $65 per day and travelling expenses, or a total to both of them of over $35,000, for their report on the National Transcontinental Railway.

If they have discovered a waste of over $40,000,000 on that great work, their services were worth what they cost. But if they merely prepared a partizan document for campaign use and paved the way for the handing over of the nations' railway to the Grand Trunk Pacific on cheaper terms than the contract calls for, that is a vastly different matter.

If there has been gigantic waste in the building of the railway, the country ought to know it. The country does not know it now, does not accept it on the showing of this partizan report. It is the frankest kind of campaign literature, and presages an early general election.

Parliament should call for an immediate and competent appraisal of the National Transcontinental and a clearing up of the loose charges made by Messrs. Gutelius and Lynch-Staunton. Neither our national credit abroad nor popular confidence in Government can endure the leaving of matters where they stand.

In attempting to damage the party out of office the Government has damaged the country in a delicate hour. It is impossible to leave the matter where it is. The whole world must be shown either that there was not the gigantic waste so cheerfully charged, or that, if there was, the Government and people of Canada demanded and procured a reckoning. —Toronto Star.

ELECTORAL CORRUPTION IN CANADA

A Rogerism Electoral Epidemic Breaking Out in Different Parts of the Country

All right thinking Canadians are hostile to electoral corruption. In that fact lies the confident hope that the recent exposures of glaring instances of the grossest kind of machine politics both in provincial and federal by-elections will soon work their own remedy. Once alive to the true situation, patriotic Canadians will enforce decency and honesty in politics.

Reference need not be made to the outrageous methods by which the by-elections in Macdonald, Hochelaga, and Chateauguay, respectively, were won for the Ottawa Government by the Rogers' "machine". Those methods have already been wildly discussed and condemned in the newspapers of the country. There have been of late other equally disgraceful instances of improper tactics in behalf of provincial Conservative candidates in the by-elections in Manitoba and Nova Scotia and New Brunwick.

In a provincial by-election in Nova Scotia last year an attempt was made to influence the electors by publishng to them the supplementary estimates for their riding before those estimates had been submitted to Parliament by Hon. Mr. Rogers, the Minister responsible for them. In the recent by-election in Victoria, Nova Scotia, a Dominion Government steamer, the Alert, was used to carry Conservative workers and Conservative whiskey into that local option constituency. In the Provincial by-election in York, N.B., promises of new Federal public works for the constituency were held out by a gentleman who said that he spoke with the authority of Mr. Rogers and a government engineer was hurried to the spot in order to give colour of sincerity to the promises.

But bad as these things may have been they were trivial when compared with the methods by which the Provincial riding of Gimli, Manitoba, was won for the Roblin Government by the Rogers-Roblin "machine."

Corruption almost unbelieveable was practiced last fall on behalf of E. L. Taylor, the Conservative nominee. His election was protested by the Liberals. By resort to legal technicalities, by absence from the Province at a time when it was sought to serve papers upon him, Mr. Taylor staved off the hearing of the protest until the opening of the Legislature, when proceedings were automatically stayed. To put final end to the case and prevent the revelation of the methods by which the election was won, Mr. Taylor and the Rogers-Roblin "machine" relied upon the fact that the Provincial elections are to be held shortly after the close of the Lgislature's session.

But this reliance is vain. The extent of the corruption practiced in Gimli has now been revealed in the charges made in the Legislature by T. H. Johnson, a Liberal member. Mr. Johnson has made his charges, and has pledged his seat in the House that they are true.

What are those charges? Are they serious or trivial? The facts answer.

Mr. Johnson charges that out of a total appropriation of some $140,000 for roads in Manitoba last year no less than $93,000 was spent in Gimli when the "machine" set out to win the riding for Mr. Taylor. Not only is this charge made but the items in the public accounts which establish the charge have been pointed out.

Mr. Johnson charges that employes of the Government directed and carried on the campaign of corruption —bribing, intimidating, distributing liquor in local option districts, protecting law-breakers. He does more than this. He cites names, dates, places, offences.

He gives the names of Provincial Constables, Road Inspectors and other employees of the Manitoba Government who gave money and liquor to electors. He tells of whiskey distributed among foreign voters in oil cans and in barrels marked "salt pork." He tells of J. B. Lauzon, a former Conservative of the Manitoba Legislature, offering money to electors. He cites the case of a man to whom Mr. Lauson offered no less than $300. He tells of the distribution of whiskey on Sundays, as well as week days. Bringing the matter directly home to Mr. Taylor, Mr. Johnson cites the case of an elector who had liquor which the man himself said he had received from Mr. Taylor.

Mr. Johnson had spoiled the "machine's" plan of preventing exposure. He has made the facts public and under circumstances which made it impossible to believe that they are other than he has stated them to be; a man does not pledge his seat in Parliament unless he is sure of his ground. Mr. Johnson has shown that Gimli was won by the Rogers-Roblin "machine" by means of a veritable carnival of election criminality.

The toleration of such methods as those outlined above must put a premium on crookedness in politics and makes the election trickster and scoundrel the man of power and the honourable citizen a man of no influence in the affairs of his country.

Whether followed by Grit or by Tory such methods merit only the severest condemnation. But they have become more frequent and their use more brazen since men of the Rogers' school of politics gained power in Dominion and Provincial affairs. Conditions will grow worse, not better, unless the right-minded Conservatives join with opponents of the Ottawa Government in teaching the Ministry's election "expert" the lesson which is imperatively necessary in the public interest.

SCHOOL-BOY BULLS.

Wrong answers to questions at school are not productive of much pleasure to the pupil, but teachers get plenty of laughs out of them. Here is what one teacher has gleaned from a boy more remarkable for imagination than accuracy:

To a question in the geography class he volunteered this:

"Continents are things you make big maps out of; islands are things you make little maps out of."

And, in an endeavour to retrieve himself later in the history class, he announced:

"Hannibal was a man that ate human beings, especially Romans."

DERRICK DITCHED NEAR NESTLETON

Traffic on the C.P.R. between Lindsay and Nestleton was tied up Monday night for several hours, and as a result the Toronto train due here at 7:55 o'clock, was obliged to go around by Bethany and come in on the grain line, reaching here at 9 o'clock.

The trouble was caused by the ditching of a derrick near Nestleton. The auxiliary from Havelock, it is understood, cleared the track for traffic. —Lindsay Post.

SAYS PREFERENCE IS SHOWN TO ITALIAN WORKMEN

Editor Examiner:

Sir,— Whilst reading my Examiner last night I was struck by a small item of news therein, to the effect that a siding was being put in the Henry Hope factory by a gang of Italians. Now, Sir, why twenty Italians? Are there no Canadians or Englishmen that are capable of helping to put down a siding? I hope I am cosmopolitan enough not to object to a man of any race whatever having a fair opportunity of earning a living, but what is the reason for this preference for the Latin race? Is it that they are better workmen than the English-speaking race, or is is that they are more amenable to the profane bullying of the foreman? If this case was a solitary instance of the employment of Italians nothing need be said, but it is not. It is general throughout the town, and a great deal of discontent regarding it is being shown by the English speaking working class. In my opinion it is a very short-sighted policy for the Italians as a class do not make homes here, but spend as little money as they can help and carry their savings to Italy. I do not object to Italians as Italians, but I do most decidedly object to them receiving a preference to the detriment of the English-speaking workman. There are many men out of work just now in this town who are struggling to keep their homes together, who at least are entitled to a share of the work.

Thanking you in anticipation, I am, etc.,

R. MITCHELL.
344 Water Street, City.

MR. OLMSTEAD SPOKE

The good-sized congregation that gathered at the Free Methodist Church was pleased and profited, by listening to the sermon preached by Rev. W. B. Olmstead of Chicago, Ill., from Hebrews 2:1, "Therefore we ought to give the more earnest heed to the things which we have heard, lest at any time we should let them slip." He noted that the "things we should give the more earnest heed to were spoken of by Jesus Christ, the Son of God, and therefore were of vital importance. There are many who carelessly let these things "slip" by and eternally regret having done so. Several bowed at the Altar of Prayer and recived help. Do not fail to hear Mr. Olmstead to-night.

A WONDERFUL DISCOVERY

An eminent scientist the other day, gave his opinion that the most wonderful discovery of recent years was the discovery of Zam-Buk. Just think! As soon as a single thin layer of Zam-Buk is applied to a wound or a sore, such injury is insured against blood poison! Not one species of microbe has been found that Zam-Buk does not kill!

Then again. As soon as Zam-Buk is applied to a sore, or a cut, or to skin diseases it stops the smarting. That is why children are such friends of Zam-Buk. They care nothing for the science of the thing. All they know is that Zam-Buk stops their pain. Mothers should never forget this.

Again. As soon as Zam-Buk is applied to a wound or to a diseased part, the cells beneath the skin's surface are so stimulated that new healthy tissue is quickly formed. This forming of fresh, healthy tissue from below is Zam-Buk's secret of healing. The tissue thus formed is worked up to the surface and literally casts off the diseased tissue above it. This is why Zam-Buk cures are permanent.

Only the other day Mr. Marsh, of 101 Delorimier Ave., Montreal, called upon the Zam-Buk Co. and told them that for over twenty five years he had been a martyr to eczema. His hands were at one time so covered with sores that he had to sleep in gloves. Four years ago Zam-Buk was introduced to him, and in a few months it cured him. To-day—over three years after his cure of a disease he had for twenty-five years, he is still cured, and has had no trace of any return of the eczema!

All druggists sell ZamBuk at 50c. box, or we will send free trial box if you send this advertisement and a 1c stamp (to pay return postage). Address Zam-Buk Co., Toronto.

THE NEW GOVERNMENT BUILDINGS

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—Should be pleased if you will give space in your paper to the following:

I note that there is being worked up by petition and otherwise, a very strong opposition to the location of the Government buildings, such as Custom House, and in the near future a new Post Office. While it is true that everyone has a right to work for his own interests and use what influence he can to have buildings placed where they will benefit valuations, it is also right for the general public to expect protection from the City Council in their deliberation on such an important subject as the placing of a new Custom House and Post Office, and in their deliberation they should be governed by what will give the greatest good to the greatest number of people residing in the City or its suburbs.

The business section of Peterborough is slowly creeping southward, and will continue to do so to a certain extent, regardless of influence used against such progress and also against the wishes of the few, who now are heavily interested in the northern portion of the business section of Peterborough. To my mind it is not sufficient to judge the proper location for either Post Office or Custom House, according to present conditions. The site chosen for the new Customs House is, at the present time, a central location, as regards manufacturies and railroads, and there should be no question in that regard. The site chosen for the Custom House and which may later be used also for a post office site, while not just at the present time the centre of the business section of the City, I venture to say that it is more central from the standpoint of population than the present Post Office, as it is a well-known fact that the City is building up rapidly to the South, and inasmuch as the Government has seen fit to appropriate money for Government buildings, which will no doubt be a very great credit to the City, that money was no doubt appropriated with the idea of pleasing the entire population of the City, and was not appropriated for the purpose of granting any one set of citizens extreme benefits. The progress that Peterborough has made in the last five years indicates very strongly that the next ten years will show a wonderful development, and that development for the most part must come from the South End, and on that account the business blocks must go towards the people.

It is only natural from a standpoint of beautifying the City and from the standpoint of advertising the City that public buildings should be placed as much as possible on the main thoroughfare of a City that gives first and lasting impression upon visitors. So long as the Government has been good enough to grant appropriation for handsome new buildings for Post Office and Custom House, let us not fuss and fume, petition and knock, about the site which their representatives have chosen, as being the proper site for the buildings, lest they should become disgusted and lay the matter over for an indefinite period, which in reality would mean for a great many years to come.

It is to be hoped also that the Council in their deliberation, as regards the proper place for the Post Office and Custom House, will not lightly discountenance the choice made by the representativa of the Government, but will bear in mind that they are representatives of the whole people, and that what they will probably approve of at the meeting on Saturday night will be for the benefit of the City, as it is ten or fifteen years from now and not a short sighted approval, based on present conditions.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, I am
Yours truly,
Public Buildings.

The proposed Free Concert which was to have been held To-morrow (Friday) at the Trades and Labour Hall is postponed owing to counter attractions.

MR. LAURENCE IRVING'S ABSTRACTION

Amusing Incident During the Run of "Typhoon" in London—To Appear at the Grand on Friday and Sat., Feb. 20 & 21

Mr. Laurence Irving, who is under the auspices of the British Canadian Theatre Organization Society, who is studying a new part, becomes so immersed in it that trivial matters and sometimes important ones, are apt to be forgotten. During his rehearsal of "Typhoon" at the Haymarket, a message was brought to him early in the morning, asking him to call and see his solicitors on an urgent matter of business, early in the day. The rehearsal proceded, and it was not until nearly mid-day that Mr. Irving suddenly remembered his important appointment, and, dashing out into the hall, determined to ring up his lawyers and tell them he could not come, he was met by his stage manager, who asked him some question as to the lighting of the scene. By the time Mr. Irving had replied to this he was near the stage door, and, seeing a taxi near, he hailed it, and jumped in, saying to the driver "1860 Holborn," and sank down on the cushions, once more giving himself up to his thoughts. An hour later the taxi pulled up in Holborn, and the driver apologetically thrust his head in at the window. "Beg pardon, sir," he said, "there aint no such number as I can find: I've been up and down both sides of the street twice." "What number; what number?" asked Mr. Irving, quite at a loss. "Why 1860 Holborn," said the man. "Of course there isn't," cried Mr. Irving, and then a light suddenly dawned on him. "I've given you the telephone number instead of the address"! Realizing now that over an hour had been wasted and that he was too late for the appointment, there was nothing left for Mr. Irving to do but return to his company and staff, who had been patiently awaiting the return of the producer for over an hour.

"Britain's Greatest Heroes Are Her Missionaries In North America." — This was one of the statments of Rev. Dr. Rainsford, noted preacher and author of New York City, who is visiting Canada, addressing Canadian clubs. Thirty years ago he was assistant rector of St. James' Anglican Church, Toronto, and the people of that church wanted to have him appointed rector, but the Bishop of those days wouldn't hear of it. Rainsford was very democratic. He went to New York and transformed one of the struggling missions of Gotham into one of the most influential churches of United States' Episcopalism.

A SOUND INVESTMENT

Deep Cutting Into Original Selling Prices of Barries' Limited, Furs

To stimulate the activity in [illegible]ying this month, as well as to help reduce present heavy stock Barrie's Limited, are featuring many capital investments for fur buyers. A careful perusal of their four column advertisement on another page will reveal the very substantial nature of these offerings. For every dollar invested in fur coats and fur sets just now, a guarantee of one dollar and fifty cents in fur value is promised—equivalent to a saving of fifty per cent. To those who failed, from whatever cause, to complete their contemplated fur purchases at Christmas, as well as to all others in need of furs, either now or for next season, this offer is a very attractive one. Barrie's furs need no word of commendation of their style or quality. They are standard Barrie exclusive models. There will be no reservation of any kind — every fur garment, and fur set, is subject to the above reduction.

Dragged By Train

Boy's Foot C[illegible] and Killed
He is Supposed to Death.

ST. JOHN, N.B., Feb 19.—Boarding a train at Bloomfield, on the Intercolonial Railway, yesterday to come to the city, Frank Gilchrist, the 16-year-old son of James Gilchrist, superintendent of Immigration for New Brunswick, was killed.

The train just started as he boarded it. He fell, hung by a foot, and was dragged half a mile. His father was on the train, but on boarding it had urged his son to wait for the next train. The boy evidently did not hear or understand his father. The finding of the lad's rubber on the car step was the first intimation of the tragedy.

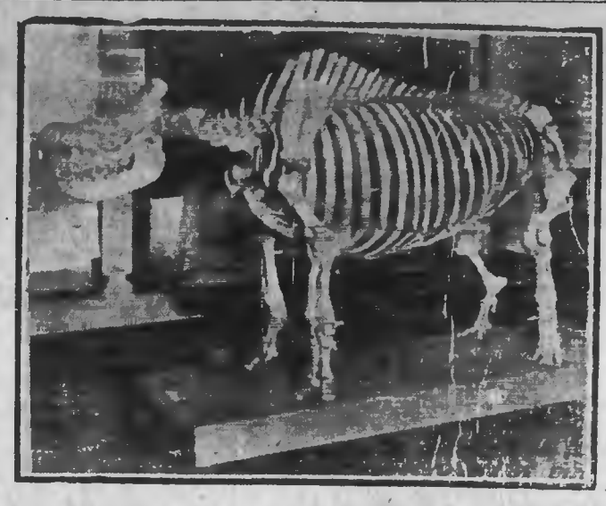
RAILWAYS MUST DO SOME WORK

Special Wire to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, Feb. 19.—In order to weed out charters of railway companies that never did any railway building, R. B. Bennett of Calgary moved in the Railway committee this morning that such companies be compelled to commence construction within one year and complete the road in three years. This was carried by a big majority. It effects many embryonic railway companies in Ontario and Western Provinces.



The Only Rhinoceros Skeleton in Canada.—The scraped and dried skeleton of the rhino presented to the Toron-to University by Barnum and Bailey's circus last summer. The job of tearing away the carcase from the skeleton was done by Dr. Pride, the curator of the museum when the temperature was about 90 in the shade.

THE GIRL'S SHARE

Is it fair that when the father dies all of the property should be left to the son or sons? This has been a burning question with me for many years, but an example of this kind of cruelty that has come to my attention recently has served to add fuel to the fire.

Three years ago when visiting with relatives about 50 miles from here, I went with my sister to visit one of her neighbors. The home was one of the finest that I have ever been in. The work staff of the farm consisted of the father, one son and five daughters. The mother had died years ago,—worked to death so her neighbors said. That farm with its fine appointments was due in no small measure to the hard work of the little mother who had gone and of the daughters. When we arrived at the home, three of the girls were working in the fields and I noticed later that they did the greater part of the chores. Hired help was not necessary only because of their faithful work.

I have just heard that the father is dead. In his will he leaves practically everything to his favorite son. The girls have a choice between getting married or trying to live on what they can beg from their brother. He is enjoying the fruits of their labors. Their chances of marriage are slim. They have worked away all the beauty that attracts in building up that fine farm of which their brother is now the proud possessor.

Is it right? I do not see how anyone with any sense of justice could say that it is. The father at least should have paid his daughters for all the years of hard work that they put in for nothing except board and clothes, the latter a somewhat limited quantity. The fact that such cruelty is common does not condone it in the least.

THE POLICE COMMISSIONERS

Will Hold a Meeting To-morrow Afternoon—Proposal to Raise the Salaries

A meeting of the Board of Police Commissioners will be held to-morrow afternoon. It is expected that the question of increases in salary will be considered, also additions to the police force. Chief Thompson has asked for three extra men, together with a morality officer. The latter to be appointed in place of the policewoman as asked for by the Local Council of Women.

The Appropriation.

The appropriations for the department may also be considered. These will exceed $9,000. In the event of a morality officer being appointed, it is altogether probable that a member of the local police force will be nominated. Should Mayor Buller find a seconder, there is every likelihood that the proposal to increase the salaries of the police force, will be defeated, as the Board of Police Commissioners is composed of three members, two of which would constitute a majority. The Mayor has declared himself opposed to increased expenditures in any form. It is stated that a few resignations may be expected should the increase be refused. Statistics show that the salaries paid to members of the Peterborough police force, are lower than any other city in the province of the same size, and in many cases, smaller.

BODY OF MURDERED MAN FOUND

Special to The Examiner.

WINNIPEG, Man., Feb. 19.— The murdered body of a Brandon man, a peddler named Alex Seede, missing for five weeks, was found to-day north of Edrans, Man., between Portage and Carberry, hidden under logs and snow in a clump of willows. This is the third murder of peddlers in recent years in this locality. Seede left on January 13 and was never seen again.

UNIONIST MAJORITY IS SMALLER

Special Wire to The Examiner:

LONDON, Eng., Feb. 19.— The results of polling in South Buckinghamshire, yesterday given out this morning, show no change except that the Unionists' majority was about two hundred less than at the last election. W. B. Dupre was the Unionist candidate and Touman Morsley the Liberal. All eyes turned to-day toward Bethnal Green, which is to-day in the midst of the most exciting election of its political history.

The Home Rule Situation To-day

Special Cable to The Examiner:

LONDON, Feb. 19.—(Special cable.)—The Unionists, having last week declared that the Ulster problem was settled and the government was in full rout, are now declaring that negotiations have failed. The Times today declares: "We have entered on a crisis without parallel in our history since the days of the long parliament. The government must exclude Ulster, go to the country or face civil war." Liberal uneasiness over the possibility of Asquith consenting to the exclusion of Ulster has been largely allayed. Bethnal Green election to-day will, it is anticipated, be close. The Unionists have made immense efforts to win the seat and are confident of success. The election has been fought on the Insurance Act, Home Rule being practically ignored. The outcome of the election is complicated by the activity of the Socialist candidate, Scurr, who is making an unexpectedly good fight. Liberal organizers admit that anything may happen.

Close Season For Emigration.

LONDON, Feb. 19.—Sam Robinson, well known in Manchester among trade union and social workers, writes to The Manchester Guardian yesterday, after a visit to Canada, advocating a close season for emigration.

"It won't be my fault if I don't get back there," he says, "but the way emigrants are being dumped there just now from all quarters of Europe into big, overcrowded cities, is nothing short of a scandal."

NETHERSOLE'S TRIBUTE.

Olga Nethersole, the famous English emotional actress, who has played in nearly every civilized country, and travelled throughout the length and breadth of the globe, has paid a high tribute to hotel accommodation in Winnipeg, in a letter addressed to Chas. L. de Rouville, resident manager of the Fort Garry hotel. At the conclusion of her week's run at the Orpheum Theatre she wrote: "Before leaving I would like to tell you how very comfortable I have been during my stay at your beautiful hotel. Your staff and service is perfect and the cuisine excellent."

ST. PAUL'S DEBATERS WERE WINNERS

Examiner Gave Credit to the Wrong Side Last Night

In the report of the debate between St. Andrew's Utopia Bible class and St. Paul's Young Men's class, it was stated that St. Andrew's had won the debate. This was a mistake, as the judges decision was unanimously in favour of the St. Paul's debaters.

TIME CALLED FOR BILLY SLEE

Well Known Toronto Sporting Enthusiast Died This Morning

Special Wire to The Examiner:

TORONTO, Feb. 19.— William J. Slee, past president of the Canadian Rugby Football Union, and well known all over Ontario as a hockey referee, died this morning of throat trouble, leaving a widow and four children. Slee had been ill for six months. He was very popular, and his death will be a great loss to clean sport in Ontario.

A WOMAN POLICE OFFICER

Is Not Approved of by a Well Known Local Minister

A well-known local minister was heard to remark a few days ago that the appointment of a policewoman in Peterborough would be utter folly. "She would have to be a good, strong woman to save herself from going to the devil," was the way the sky pilot in question expressed himself. Continuing he said: "The way to approach this question is to educate the parents. Many cases of immorality among the juvenile elemnet owe their inception to the indifference of the parents. The latter are, in many cases, blind to the sins of their chikiren."

The arrival of a street car at this juncture terminated what might have proved to be an interesting conversation.

WILL APPEAR ON CHARGE OF THEFT

Three men, Frank Longdo, Wesley Crowter and Brock Wright will appear before Magistrate Edmison to-morrow morning at 11 o'clock, on the charge of stealing the hides of four horses, the property of W. A. Branson. It will be remembered that some time ago four horses were killed by the C. P. R. train near Indian River. The section men removed the carcasses to a nearby field, and it is alleged the three men in question skinned them and kept the hides.

Previous to the above case Magistrate Edmison will render judgement in the case of Loch vs. Proffet.

A FEW DONT'S

Don't wear any more clothing than is necessary to keep the body comfortable.

Don't sit with wet clothing on, or your body may not be able to generate heat enough to compensate for the heat extracted from it with the evaporation caused by the drying of these clothes.

Don't allow the air of your dwelling, office or school to get too dry or become stagnant.

Don't under any conditions sleep with your window closed.

"Don't wear heavy underwear; remember that the rooms, offices, etc., that you ocupy in the winter time are usually about 70 degrees, or a nice average summer heat.

Don't be afraid of fresh air in the street car; if you feel a little breath of fresh air coming down over you from an open ventilator don't object. You would not object to ten times that breeze in an automobile going at twenty miles an hour.

"Why do they call those South American countries 'four-cylinder republics?'" "Because they have one hundred revolutions to the minute, maybe."

THE BATTLE OF THE BOARDING HOUSES WAS A GRAND FRAY

The House of Lords trimmed the House of Commons between 7 and 8 o'clock at Brock Street rink last night in the grandest burlesque that was ever staged without paint and circus accessories. Honestly, if the admission had been fifty cents it would have been dirt cheap. As it was the fray was supposed to have been pulled off behind closed doors, but Jack Meharry considered it too good a thing to be hid and let in a few of the interested ones.

To begin with the two houses are boarding houses, and judging from the "pep" displayed, "grub" must be short on prunes and long on steaks. The Lords are domiciled in the dwelling, No. 300 Rubidge Street, the Commoners "bunking" at 291 Stewart Street. It is understood that a few of the players were not regulars at the houses, although that makes but little difference.

The teams lined up as follows:

Commons — Goal, Field; defence, Rackham and Grasdinger; forwards, Rush, Whitby, Drummond and Phillips.

Lords — Goal, Briscoe; defence, Thompson and Boone; forwards, Parsons, Turner, Campbell and Fisher.

Referee—Mr. Dave Bradshaw.

Words fail to describe this game Reams would be required to tell of how George Briscoe held the fort; how he narrowly escaped with his life on numerous occasions; how he smoked his pipe as nonchalantly as Jean Bart and protected himself from the treachery of his skates by suspending himself to the back of the nets; and Tommy Thompson, he of wonderful uniform, likewise none too sure of his footing when burning up the ice. And he smoked along actually yards at a stretch, the embodiment of all that is dashing and splendid in defence work. Also of Dickie Boone "volumes" might be wasted in relating his exploits and how he stalled the Commoners. Ford Turner looped a loop on one occasion with a fall that was deafening. It was a beautiful spill, and was only equalled by Sid Rush who, near the end of a scintillating dash, was caught on Turners hip for a beautiful spill. Honest, it is a wonder the ambulance was not called out. Then there were Bud Fisher, Harry Parsons and Dinge Campbell, who produced hockey possibilities hitherto unknown. Not that they did not produce an odd flash or two, but when one man got the puck the other team gave chase like wolves that have been hungry for weeks. If Manager Meharry intends to stage any more games like that he will have to put in concrete boards, for the fellows went into them under full steam. Sometimes it was with intent, and occasionally because they had dropped their rudder and were hailing for the nearest port. At times they got the man, and then again they missed by inches, but the boards saved them from going through to Aylmer Street.

And there was Jerry Rackham, Whitby, Drummond and Phillips and the other representatives of the House of Commons. But enough! The surprise of the night was that in spite of all the bumps (for many feet went into the air when the nearest man was leagues away), and stick display, the boarders "star" and otherwise, emerged scratchless. Evidences—apart from the ice, skates and goal umpires—that the affair was a hockey match, were the cheers for the winners when the last gong sounded, ditto the cheers for the losers, and the sharp ejaculations of the admired or admirers, possibly it was mutual; in the latter case the boarding houses should not long remain with the present membership, that is if the old platitude that none but the fair deserve the brave, holds good.

Mr. Bradshaw was inclined to be lenient, but with friends in both the upper and lower houses he had to be careful to preserve the welcome on the mats.

SENSATION IN HOMEBURG

In the American Magazine, George Fitch, the Peoria funny man, writes about Homeburg, in an article entitled "The Homeburg Weekly Democrat." Mr. Fitch says that he never saw the editor of the "Homeburg Weekly Democrat" resent a joke but once. He goes on to describe that occasion and to show how the editor got even with his subscriber:

"That was when Peleg Amthorne told him that his wife considered the Democrat to be the best paper she had ever seen. He let Ayres burst a couple of buttons from his best in his swelling pride before he explained that the Democrat when cut in two exactly fitted his wife's pantry shelves, and that she didn't have to trim it a bit. The old man turned on his heel without a word and that week he kindled his old-time fires and wrote the following for the local page:

"'A citizen of Homeburg who hadn't done anything more exciting for 20 years than stand off his grocery bill poked fun at the Democrat last week to our face because there wasn't any more news in it. News? Say we, News in Homeburg? News in a town where an ice-cream social is a sensation and a dog fight suspends business for three hours? News in a town where it takes a couple five years to work up a wedding and seven kinds of wedding cake is the only news in it? Where the city marshal hasn't made an arrest for two years because no one has done anything after 9 p.m. except snore, and where they have to put up the lamps in pairs to keep them from getting lonesome?

'We don't print news from Homeburg because there isn't any, and the old rooster who joked us knows it. He's sore because we cant' make half a column out of his trip to Paynesville, eight miles away, last summer, but we promise to do better. We'll dump the paste pot in the fire, throw the old shears out of the window and get out a regular screamer of a Democrat some week; a paper with red ink on it and big headlines and a real piece of news in it. We will when this gabby old fossil does his part. When he pays his six years' subscription we'll write two columns about it. And even then no one will believe it.'"

BASEBALL

Terry Turner of the Naps, Joe Bush of the Athletics, and Grover Alexander of the Phillies were the first big leaguers to reach Hot Springs for the annual turning up.

Fred Glade, formerly a member of the St. Louis Browns' pitching staff, is now a baseball magnate. He is interested in the Grand Island Club of the Nebraska State League.

Two more Redskins are to take a fling at the national pastime. Manager Zellar of the Pittsfield Eastern Association team has signed Big Six Jocks and Pine Tree Nelson, full-blood Iroquois.

What with keeping tab on the headquarters of the American League, the Federal League, the Chicago Cubs and the Chicago Feds, Chicago baseball scribes have nothing to do till to-morrow.

Columbia, S. C., and Augustus, Ga. have re-entered the South Atlantic League, making an eight-club circuit. The other members of the League are Charleston, S.C., Jacksonville, Fla., and Macon, Albany, Savannah and Columbus Ga.

Pitcher "Big Ed" Walsh was the first member of the White Sox to report at Paso Robles, Cal., where the Chicago team is to get into condition this year. Ed. believes he is due for a great year on the mound.

"Whoa Bill" Phillips, former big league pitcher and now manager of the Indianapolis Federal League team, believes he can "come back". The fact that he has a son in the game will not deter Bill from doing a little pitching himself this season.

Geo. Davis, the former big league shortstop, is coaching the Amherst College baseball squad.

Tom Clarke and Grover Cleveland Hartley of the St. Louis Cardinals, have declined to sign contracts at the terms offered.

Wm. B. Hanna, a well-known New York baseball writer, has been appointed official scorer of the New York Giants.

Joe Berger and Russell Blackburne are to fight it out for the regular job at second base for the Chicago White Sox.

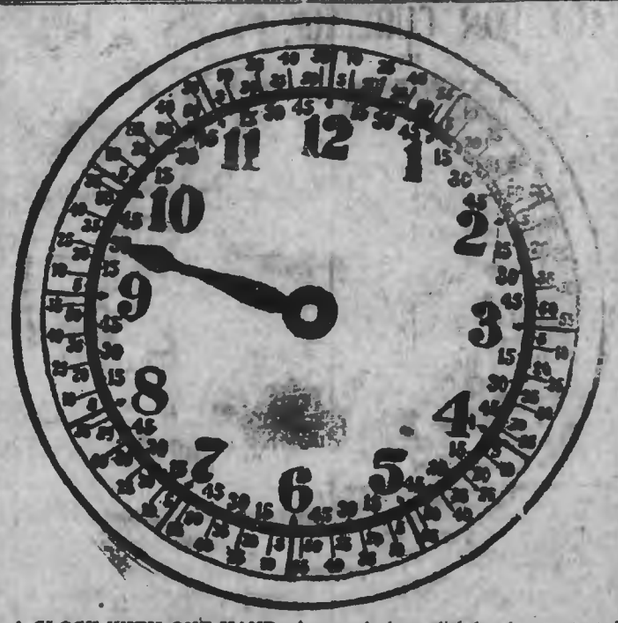
The Kansas Sate League has been reorganized, with Great Bend, Salina Hutcheson, Newton, Clay Centre and Emporia making up the circuit.

Contrary to published reports, Catcher "Gabby" Street did not jump to the Federals. The former battery-mate of Walter Johnson has signed with the Chattanooga Southern League team.

George Graham, the new President of the Tri-State League, believes in the strictly enforcing of a monthly salary limit. At the same time he advocates abolishing the individual limit of $175 a month.

The Louisville Club of the American Association will pitch its training camp this spring at Fort Myers, Fla. This will be the first time the Colonels have ever journeyed to the far South for Spring practice.

The flop of "Hap" Myers to the Federal League cost the Boston Braves $3,500. Boston traded Myers to Rochester for Quinn and Schmidt and agreed to pay Rochester $3,500 if Myers was not delivered.



A CLOCK WITH ONE HAND—A new clock, or dial, has been patented which may be placed on any clock and by removing the hour hand on the hour spindle transforming the clock into a one-hand, easy-to-read time teller. Children have difficulty in telling the time by two-handed clocks, and those who have occasion to send a child into the house for the time can hardly ever be sure that the youngster does not confuse the "long" and "short" hands. The accompanying illustration shows how simple is the device by which neither dark days, glare on the glass of the clock face, or a child's inability to distinguish between hour and minute hands can prevent correct time reading. In this there is no possibility of one mistaking, for instance, 12:05 for 1 o'clock.—From Popular Mechanics.

A tiny boy, so small that the clothes question had not yet become important in his special regard, on week days wore rompers or little aprons as convenience served, but on Sunday donned small kilts and trousers.

One Sunday morning Peter was discovered bathed in tears. "What's the matter? What's the matter?" cried his mother, rushing to the rescue. "Tell mamma what hurts you at once."

After further coaxing the difficulty was extracted. "Why do I wear girls' clothes one day and boys' clothes another?" came the sobbing secret. "How can I tell what I am?"

SENSATION IN HOMEBURG

In the American Magazine, George Fitch, the Peoria funny man, writes about Homeburg, in an article entitled "The Homeburg Weekly Democrat." Mr. Fitch says that he never saw the editor of the "Homeburg Weekly Democrat" resent a joke but once. He goes on to describe that occasion and to show how the editor got even with his subscriber:

"That was when Peltry Amthorne told him that his wife considered the Democrat to be the best paper she had ever seen. He let Ayres burst a couple of buttons from his best in his swelling pride before he explained that the Democrat when cut in two exactly fitted his wife's pantry shelves, and that she didn't have to trim it a bit. The old man turned on his heel without a word and that week he kindled his old-time fires and wrote the following for the local page:

"'A citizen of Homeburg who hadn't done anything more exciting for 20 years than stand off his grocery bill poked fun at the Democrat last week to our face because there wasn't any more news in it. News? Say we, News in Homeburg? News in a town where an ice-cream social is a sensation and a dog fight suspends business for three hours? News in a town where it takes a couple five years to work up a wedding and seven kinds of wedding cake is the only news in it? Where the city marshal hasn't made an arrest for two years because no one has done anything after 9 p.m. except snore, and where they have to put up the lamps in pairs to keep them from getting lonesome?

'We don't print news from Homeburg because there isn't any, and the old rooster who joked us knows it. He's sore because we can't make half a column out of his trip to Paynesville, eight miles away, last summer, but we promise to do better. We'll dump the paste pot in the fire, throw the old shears out of the window and get out a regular screamer of a Democrat some week; a paper with red ink on it and big headlines and a real piece of news in it. We will when this gabby old fossil does his part. When he pays his six years' subscription we'll write two columns about it. And even then no one will believe it.'"

BASEBALL

Terry Turner of the Naps, Joe Bush of the Athletics, and Grover Alexander of the Phillies were the first big leaguers to reach Hot Springs for the annual turning up.

Fred Glade, formerly a member of the St. Louis Browns' pitching staff, is now a baseball magnate. He is interested in the Grand Island Club of the Nebraska State League.

Two more Redskins are to take a fling at the national pastime. Manager Zellar of the Pittsfield Eastern Association team has signed Big Six Jocks and Pine Tree Nelson, full-blood Iroquois.

What with keeping tab on the headquarters of the American League, the Federal League, the Chicago Cubs and the Chicago Feds, Chicago baseball scribes have nothing to do till to-morrow.

Columbia, S. C., and Augustus, Ga. have re-entered the South Atlantic League, making an eight-club circuit. The other members of the League are Charleston, S.C., Jacksonville, Fla., and Macon, Albany, Savannah and Columbus Ga.

Pitcher "Big Ed" Walsh was the first member of the White Sox to report at Paso Robles, Cal., where the Chicago team is to get into condition this year. Ed. believes he is due for a great year on the mound.

"Whoa Bill" Phillips, former big league pitcher and now manager of the Indianapolis Federal League tam, believes he can "come back". The fact that he has a son in the game will not deter Bill from doing a little pitching himself this season.

Wm. B. Hanna, a well-known New York baseball writer, has been appointed official scorer of the New York Giants.

Joe Berger and Russell Blackburne are to fight it out for the regular job at second base for the Chicago White Sox.

The Kansas Sate League has been reorganised, with Great Bend, Salina Hutcheson, Newton, Clay Centre and Emporia making up the circuit.

Contrary to published reports, Catcher "Gabby" Street did not jump to the Federals. The former battery-mate of Walter Johnson has signed with the Chattanooga Southern League team.

George Graham, the new President of the Tri-State League, believes in the strictly enforcing of a monthly salary limit. At the same time he advocates abolishing the individual limit of $175 a month.

The Louisville Club of the American Association will pitch its training camp this spring at Fort Myers, Fla. This will be the first time the Colonels have ever journeyed to the far South for Spring practice.

The flop of "Hap" Myers to the Federal League cost the Boston Braves $3,500. Boston traded Myers to Rochester for Quinn and Schmidt and agreed to pay Rochester $3,500 if Myers was not delivered.

A tiny boy, so small that the clothes question had not yet become important in his special regard, on week days wore rompers or little aprons as convenience served, but on Sunday donned small kilts and trousers.

One Sunday morning Peter was discovered bathed in tears. "What's the matter? What's the matter?" cried his mother, rushing to the rescue. "Tell mamma what hurts you at once."

After further coaxing the difficulty was extracted. "Why do I wear girls' clothes one day and boys' clothes another?" came the sobbing secret. "How can I tell what I am?"

Y. M. C. A. Surprise Exploits, Beating Leaders After Twenty Minutes Overtime

Red and Black Team Made a Gallant Fighting Finish, Defeating the Bostons 7 to 5, After Being 3 Goals Behind.

A GREAT JUNIOR GAME

Like a famous Ottawa Rugby team, Peter Gettas' Boston Exploits were only "sixty minutes away" from the City League championship last night, when the game with the Y.M.C.A. opened. This morning they are still sixty minutes away, for the Red and Black team after as gallant an up-hill fight as has ever been seen on Brock St. Rink, handed the Exploits a 7 to 5 trimming last night. It took twenty minutes' overtime to decide the issue, and only the gameness and determination of the Y.M.C.A. turned the scales in their favour. The Exploits led by 2 to 1 at half time, and with the second period more than half completed, were in the lead with the comfortable margin of 4 to 1. Manager Gettas was making a mental calculation at this stage whether he would order a rosewood or mahogany cabinet for the Clarke-Graham cup, but before he couid decide the question, the Y.M.C.A. made a grand rally and forced the Exploits back on the defensive. They banged in two goals, the second with five minutes to play, and with the Exploits a goal ahead the battle was fast and furious. The Y.M.C.A. were not to be denied, however, and with only 30 seconds left to play they slammed through the tying goal, and the demonstration that followed has not been equalled in the Brock St. Arena this season.

In the first five minutes overtime, the Y took the lead for the first time in the game, but the Exploits tied it up in the second period. After a rest the teams were sent at it again, and the Y.M.C.A. cinched the game by scoring a goal in each of the five-minute periods.

It was one grand battle, and the two hundred fans present found it the most entertaining game of the year in any series. The pace never slackened, and throughout the eighty minutes it was constant fireworks with each goal assaulted in turn. The checking was close and hard, and there was little to choose between the teams, until the last fifteen minutes and the overtime periods when the Y's superior condition and plucky determination gave them a decided edge, the Red and Black out-scoring the Exploits 6 to 1 from the middle of the second half on. It was as game a fighting finish as the most ardent fan would like to see, and the wild roar from the crowd when the Y.M.C.A. tied the score, showed how thoroughly the fighting spirit of the Y youngsters had aroused the admiration of the fans.

For the Y.M.C.A. Darling performed superbly in the nets. He had a lot of dead-on shots to handle, and blocked them in cool fashion. Captain Smyth used good judgment in his defence methods, and rushed well. On the forward line the stars were Knapman and Jackson. The former never stopped for a moment. He backchecked with every Exploit rush, and led the Y attack with a dash and vim, showing some beautiful stick-handling. Jackson was the boy with the punch, his great shooting being responsible for six of the Y goals. He was always in his place at centre, and in adition found time to do a lot of useful back-checking. Stevenson and Cranfield, who alternated at right wing and the defence, gave good accounts of themselves, in both positions, and Quinn, who was moved over to left wing, a new position for him, did some prety work along the boards.

For the Exploits "Lorrie" Rose at left wing was the bright shining star. Fast and shifty, his spiral dashes along the boards were a constant menace to the Y defence, and he never stopped trying. The youngster carries a great shot, and is one of the best boys the City League has uncovered. Graham was very conspicuous in the early stages, doing some beautiful stick-handling, but he faded on end. Butcher was closely covered, but he worked his head off, playing his usual clean, hard game. The speedy little Exploit captain has only been on the fence nce this season. Latimer made some fine stops. Phelan did some good checking and rushing, but his methods were not by any means too clean, and he finally wound up with a four-minute penalty during which time the Y scored the tying goal. Regan made one fine dash for a goal.

Referee Len Dobson was efficient and impartial, and neither team could have anything to complain of.

The line-up:

Y.M.C.A.		Exploits.
	Goal.
Darling		Latimer
	Defence.
Smyth, Cranfield		Phelan, Regan
	Rover.
Knapman		Graham
	Centre.
Jackson		Butcher
	Right Wing.
Stevenson		Wolff
	Left Wing.
Quinn		Rose

It was even going from the start, and both Darling and Latimer had shots to stap in the first few minutes. The back-checking was close and hard and neither team got a chance to break clean away. Finally, however, Rose took a pass from close in and fooled Darling, and the Exploits were in the lead.

The Y got inside with a combination rush, but Latimer blocked the shot. The Exploits came back and Darling had to stop two in succession from Rose and Phelan. After five minutes' hard playing Phelan slipped up the side and beat Darling with a neat shot into the corner of the nets.

Two goals behind the Y began to come. The line broke away nicely and half a dozen times the Red and Black swept inside on combination rushes only to shoot wild or right at Latimer. They kept hammering along, however, and finally Jackson hammered in a rebound on a shot by Knapman after a combined dash and it was 2 to 1. The figures remained unchanged until half time.

It was even up for some time in the second half, with little advantage to either team. Then Rose got away with a beautiful dash down the side. He passed to Butcher who returned, and Rose's side shot bulged the twine. Shortly after Regan got clean away, and dashing between Smyth and Cranfield went in on top of Darling for the Exploits' fourth goal. With the Bostons three to the good and only twelve minutes to play, it looked like the championship for the Purple and White.

The Y were not beaten, however, and they let out another link driving the Exploits back on the defence. Jackson made it 4 to 2 when he took a pass from behind the nets by Cranfield and slammed the rubber past Latimer. The Y were doing all the attacking at this stage. Knapman dodged inside on a beautiful rush, but his shot hit the post. The Red and Black kept coming and their stock went up when Jackson scooped one into the nets on a neat shot from the side. There were five minutes to play, and the Exploits fought desperately to hold their slender margin. The Y kept steaming in, however, and the Exploits' chances were not enhanced when Phelan drew a four-minute penalty for a cross-check. With less than a minute to go the Y worked in with a neat passing rush. The shot went wide, but the rubber was passed out in front and Jackson batted it through tying the score with only a few seconds to play.

After a rest the teams were sent out to play five minutes each way. The Y were full of fight in the overtime period and made things interesting. A minute and one-half after the period opened, Knapman went three-quarters of the length of the rink on a pretty dodging rush. He got right inside, but Latimer blocked the shot. Jackson was on the job as usual, and hammered in the rebound, and the Y.M.C.A. were ahead for the first time. They held their lead until the middle of the second period, when Graham evened it up by a spectacular individual rush and a shot from close in.

A ten-minute rest was ordered and the second ten-minute period was commenced. The Y shot into the lead at once. From the face-off Jackson made a short rush and then took Latimer's measure with a beautiful shot. The Exploits fought like trojans to tie up the game, but the Y kept their heads and checked them closely. The Bostons had one splendid opening when Butcher took a pass in the mouth of the nets, but Smyth slammed the rubber away. When the teams changed goals the Y cinched the game by scoring again. From the corner Jackson passed out to Knapman uncovered in front of the nets, and the little rover banged the gypsum past Latimer for goal No. 7. The Y.M.C.A. covered their checks closely for the few remaining minutes, and held their lead until the finish.

ALERTS 4, WANDERERS 3.

The Wanderers and Alerts were the contestants in the first game and for a while it looked as if the Wanderers had shaken their jinx and were going to break into the win column. It was one all at half time and in the second half the Wanderers set up a two goal lead, being ahead 3 to 1 at one stage. However, the Alerts finished strong, and were helped out by some lucky long distance shooting. It was a well-contested battle with the Wanderers showing their best form of the season. Legendre and O'Connell were perhaps the best for the winners, while Brotherson, Revoy and Coughlin did good work for the losers. The teams were:

Wanderers		Alerts
	Goal
Guerin		Legrow
Revoy		Davidson
	Defence
Coughlin		Lowes
	Rover
Stuart		Legendre
	Centre
Brown		Doughty
	R. Wing
Primeau		O'Connell
	L. Wing
Brotherson		Heath

Band at Street Railway Rink to-night. Good skating.

ST. JAMES' AND ALL SAINTS' PLAY A TIE GAME

A fast game of hockey was played on the Sacred Heart Rink last night from 7:30 to 8:30 between the St. James' Junior team and All Saints, the result of the game was a tie, 1 to 1. This was the second game these teams have played, the first being 8 to 3 in favour of All Saints. The game was fast all the way, and everyone played a good game for their respective teams. Freeburn found the nets first for St. James. All Saints disputed the goal but after an argument the umpire decided in favour of St. James. Petley for St. James stopped some hard shots, but about one minute before time Brown scored on an easy shot from outside. The stars for St. James were Freeburn and Jeffries; for All Saints Field and Frank Lundy. Muggy Barclay umpired satisfactorily to both teams.

Penalties — Jeffries and Willie Lundy.

The line-up was as follows:

St. James—Goal, Petley; right defence, Ruffer; left defence, McLeod; centre, Jeffries; left wing, Cunningham; right wing, Freeburn (Capt.); rover, Sloane.

As a result of their victory last night the Y.M.C.A. are still in the running for the Junior City League title. They have a tie game to be played off with the Alerts, and if the Red and Black win, the Exploits and Y.M.C.A. will be tied for the championship. Here is the standing:

	Won.	Lost.	Tied
Exploits	5	1	0
Y.M.C.A.	4	1	1
Alerts	3	3	1
Wanderers	0	6	0

ALL READY FOR CURLING FINALS OF VICE-SKIPS

Several of Last Night's Games Produced Fine Curling—Geo. Hill Had Hard Journey Beating Benore—Ray Best Lost to W. G. Read.

FINALS TO-NIGHT

The Vice-Skips are displaying no end of good curling these nights, the work of some of them being in the class of many of the regular skips. The younger element are coming on nicely, and it is just contests such as this that encourages them and give hem a chance to depend upon themselves, thereby bringing out any curling facts thy may have learned. Last night the second round was played and the rinks cut down to those who will go into the semi-finals and finals. A fairly large crowd followed the play.

On Ice No. 1.

Llewlyn Hall's good rink won another when they trimmed Andy Webb's hard workers. It looked like easy money, in the beginning, for Hall, but Webb picked up towards the finish and got in fairly close.

Ray Best started off like a winner against Billie Read. His lead (Campbell) was absent, and Smith played four stones. Read was ahead on the seventh end after tieing it on the sixth. Best scored in the ninth, but could only lay a counter inside of Read's best two. There were closer ends in this game than the last one. Dobie, Hooper and Jack Read gave their skip good support, and will take some beating yet.

Herb Martin Won Another

Robert Harstone was laid away by the fastgoing Menzies-Martin combination, not overlooking Bob Gollop and Billie Lytle. It was fairly easy picking for Martin, who appeared to have a good rink behind him.

On Ice No. 5.

The best game of the evening was played on this ice, between George Hill and George Benore. Benore was well up by the sixth round, but by a quick turn, what promised to be a one-stone end for Benore, was turned to five for Hill. This closed the gap neatly. That sixth end was keenly fought, in fact nearly every one of them was a hard battle. The leads laid a couple of stones well in and placed guards in front of them. Fitzgerald and Tooley fought it out for position, licking one another from the inner shrine. Hill and Benore took up the fight. Benore, with his last shot, lay on the "button" with four of the enemy near him. Hill got away a dandy that cleaned out Benore and left good ones to chalk up. Hill counted two on the last end when Benore went a little wide on a draw, missing position and leaving two for Hill. It was anybody's game up to the end, and the element of luck was not absent. The ice was decidedly keen and the stones travelled easily.

James Skinner gave Alex. Kay a battle all the way, but got few of the breaks. Besides Adamson strengthened the Kay rink and a nice round of curling was shown. There were closely played ends, but the count was not near enough to make it of particular interest.

Hockey—That's All

In the Senior Church Hockey League at Brock Street Rink to-night Knox Church will play the Y.M.C.A. Ponies between 7 and 8 o'clock, and St. Andrew's and All Saints' will clash between 10 and 11 o'clock. Two good games may be looked for.

BASKETBALL

In the Junior School Boys' Basketball League, at the Y. M. C. A., yesterday, Young's Buglers defeated Whitcroft's Maple Leafs, 12 to 4. Saturday's game will bring together the White Caps and Indians, and a lively battle is expected.

According to Clyde Milan, the Senators' star outfielder, the jinks will surely tag any player who signs a contract before he arrives at the spring training camp. Clyde never signs up until he is on the ground ready for work.

TORONTOS BEAT THE SENATORS 4 GOALS TO 1

OTTAWA, Feb. 18.—The Torontos completed a night of surprises by downing Ottawa by 4 to 1 in the N.H.A. game here this evening. They scored the first goal fifteen seconds after the face-off, while Goalkeeper Benedict was preparing for the start, and thus got a lead which Ottawa did not tie until with a few minutes before the end of the first session.

Foyston slammed in the first for Toronto before any other man on the ice had touched the puck, and Gerard tied it up for Ottawa on a pass from Broadbent. In the second period Cameron rushed and scored two for Toronto, while Ottawa failed to find the nets of the visitors. In the third Foyston cinched the game for the Blue Shirts by making it four to one on a beautiful bit of play. Ottawa had several chances, but the defence work of the Torontos, coupled with poor shooting on behalf of the Senators, threw their opportunities away. Jack Marshall brought three men back on the defence in the third and Ottawa could not get within shooting distance often enough to be dangerous.

The result was a big disappointment, and over 7,000 fans went home in sadness. Toronto certainly deserved to win on the night's play, as their forwards outskated Ottawa, while their defence blocked with far more success than did Shore and Merrill, who were not by any means as reliable as usual. Cameron and Foyston were the individual stars for the Torontos, each scoring two. Merrill and Gerard were the only Ottawa men who played up to form. Darragh, who was badly hurt in the Canadien game, was only on the ice a short time.

Play was clean in the first two periods, but in the third it grew rough. McGiffin jumped into Duford just a minute after he had gone on and was promptly sent away by Referee Power, who evidently scented trouble. Drragh struck Walker with his fist after having his stick knocked away, and he, too, was sent off. The Torontos roughed it and drew a total of $32 in fines, while the Ottawa penalties only reached half that amount. Davidson had nine minors. The result gives the Torontos an excellent chance for the championship, as the Canadiens have yet to play in the capital and to face the Blue Shirts at Toronto.

SARNIA HAS LEAD OF ONLY TWO COUNTERS

SARNIA, Feb. 18.—Sarnia's fast O. H. A. intermediate team to-night won the first game of the semi-final round from Hamilton by 3 to 1. The game was one of the fastest and most exciting exhibitions ever witnessed in the local rink, both teams being of the same calibre and willing to work all the time. The ice was in splendid condition, which made fast playing possible and allowed for considerable combination. The stars of the game were Reese and Taylor of the visitors, and Arthurs and McCort of Sarnia. The playing of Arthurs was particularly spectacular. Lesueur was also good. The line-up:

Referee, H. Sproule, Toronto.

JIMMY DISSETTE

Captain of the St. Michael's team, regarded as the best amateur team in Canada, which played the Cleveland A.C. team, champions of the United States and conquerors of a score of other Canadian cities, in Toronto last night.

BIG BENEFIT GAME ON SATURDAY NIGHT

Everything is ready for the big benefit game for Charley Ray at Brock Street rink on Saturday night, and judging from the advance sale of tickets a big crowd will see the battle between the stars of other years and the team which wore Peterborough's colours this year. In the list published on the bills the names of Harold Matthews and Augus Richardson were omitted, but both boys will be along to help out the old boys, who will certainly make the homesters step all the way. If you haven't bought your ticket, do so at once and help on the good work. The money is going to a good cause. The old boys are paying their own expenses, the bill posting, printing and other incidentals are being donated free of charge, and the proceeds will all go to help Charley Ray. Get in line and be a booster for the game will be the hockey classic of the year.

'VARSITY JUNIORS SURPRISE BERLIN

BERLIN, Feb. 18 — For the first time this season Berlin Juniors lost a game on their own ice, University of Toronto carrying off the honours by 3 to 2 in the semi-finals for the Junior title. U. of T. had much the better of the play, being superior in combination as well as speed. Berlin were away off colour, especially in the first half, but loosened up toward the end of the game, when too late to be of use.

Toronto's first goal was a lucky one, rolling in over Merner's stick. Saunders did the trick after twenty-five minutes of play. Berlin tied the score after seven minutes in the second half. Klaehn scoring. Six minutes later Adams made a lone rush and drew out Merner for the second counter. Smythe notched the last goal for U. of T. four minuts later, on a combination rush with Adams. Berlin's last goal was scored with one minute to play. Malone put up a great exhibition in the second half. Milne played hard for U. of T. while all the forwards played a steady game. White and Klaehn played best for the locals. About 2,300 saw the game.

BOXING

Arthur Pelky and Fritiz Holland have been signed by Promoter Howe of Australia to box for him in the Antipodes.

Jim Corbett, former champion heavyweight, has taken up court tennis for exercise. Jim has picked out a strenuous game.

Jimmy Johnson, the New York Manager, is directing the affairs of sixteen pugilists. Some of them are fighters.

Champion Johnny Kilbane says he can make 118 pounds and be right for a battle. Let's see you do it, John.

Packey McFarland wants to be reinstated in the good graces of the Wisconsin boxing Commission. Why? They still allow him to go in and see a fight.

Sid Smith, having outgrown the flyweight class, will tackle Alf. Wye, the bantamweight, at Dick Burge's Club in London next week.

Tommy Ryan, who is promoting bouts in Syracuse, is trying to bring Packey McFarland and Kid Alberts together for a 10-round fight.

"Uncle Tom" McCarey of Vernon Cal., has put out his afternoon boxing shows, since he dropped $1,200 in the recent Williams Campi engagement.

George Carpentier, the French champion, has declined an offer to meet Eddie McGoorty.

February 23rd has been selected as the date for the Lo Houck-Willie Meehan bout at San Francisco.

Followers of the boxing game in Texas will make an effort to have a new boxing law passed in that State.

Eddie Campi, the Los Angeles boxer, is to quit the bantamweight ranks as he can no longer make the weight in good condition.

CANADIAN LEAGUE NOTES

Ottawa Free Press: Secretary J. H. Farrel, of the National Association, wired from Auburn, N.Y., this morning that Shortstop Al Tesch had been awarded the Ottawa Baseball by the association. The Brockton Club, of the New England League, claimed Tesch as their property on the ground he had finished the season with them and they were entitled to his services, under the reserve clause. Ottawa's contract for 1914 with Tesch signed and filed before he joined the New England Leaguers was given precedence, and the Andover speed merchant will to Fort Wayne with the Senators this spring.

The signed contract of Petie Powers the outfielder and utility catcher was received to-day by Manager Shaughnessy. Petie also signed a pitcher for Ottawa who will be given a trial at Fort Wayne.

The announcement the Federal League had thrown up the sponge in Toronto insures the success of the Canadian League in the Queen City. Had the Feds placed a team there, it would have meant clashing with the Canadian League games and it is hardly likely the Class B leaguers could have commanded the patronage with Joe Tinker and other ex-big leaguers cavorting on another diamond the same afternoon. All the Canadian League games will be played while the International club is on the road.

LONDON, Feb. 17.—Plans for a spring training trip, which shapes the destinies of many a baseball club in organised ball and one which is only rivaled by the League teams, which go farther south than Ohio, is the one which Manager Reisling, of the London Club, has planned for the 1914 Tecumsehs.

No less than fifteen exhibition games have been arranged for, one as far south as West Virginia, and this points to a well-seasoned team by the time they land in London on May 4th, ready for battle on May 6th, when the League games open.

The squad has the use of the college grounds and gymnasium equipment at Marietta, Ohio, for about ten days previous to the fifteen days' trip. League teams of all classes will be encountered during the trip, including Dayton, of the Central League. Adrian and Jackson, of the South Michigan, and Ypsilanti, of the Border League.

Th following dates have practically been closed for, but are subject to slight variations, but the schedule will be followed as closely as possible as mapped out by Manager Reisling.

Marietta, Ohio, is the place where the team reports on April 10 to 14:
Huntington, W. Va., April 15.
Marietta, Ohio, April 16th to 18th.
Ironton, Ohio, April 20 to 21.
Chillicothe, Ohio, April 22 to 23.
Dayton, Ohio, April 24, 25, 26.
Adrian Mich., April 27 and 28.
Jackson, Mich., April 29 and 30.
Ypsilanti, Mich., May 1.
Detroit, Mich., Tackards, May 2; and Schmidts and Schroeder 8. and 8. team May 2.
Arrive in London on May 4, with League game opening on Wednesday, May 6.

RECORD LOAD ON THE MARKET SCALES

Mr. Sam Dancey weighed a load of ice—an ordinary looking one at that—on the market scales to-day and it registered 10,720 lbs., over 5 tons. This is believed to be the heaviest load ever weighed at the market.

JAMES BICKLE WAS FINED.

It was stated in the Examiner last night that John Bickle had appeared in Police Court on a charge of being drunk. It should have read "James Bickle." There happens to be a John Bickle in Peterborough and the paragraph, as published, was an injustice to him.

A CORRECTION.

We regret that, owing to a compositor's error, the name of Collins was substituted for that of Mr. W. S. Wilson in referring to the violin solo played on the occasion of the presentation to his Lordship Bishop O'Brien on Monday evening last. Mr. W. S. Wilson played the violin solo in exceedingly good style and Mr. James Collins sang an effective solo.

The Danger Line

It is said that the most dangerous point in building up any business is that point where the business is just on the point of paying but not quite. I know that this is true of the cow business in which I have spent many years. There is a danger line in the cow business and it is just at the same point as in any other business,—where the returns are just so-so.

In talking cow testing with various men I have found that the man with cows producing 2,500 to 3,000 lbs. of milk is easier to interest in the subject than the man whose cows are producing 4,000 lbs. annually. The man whose cows have the lower production is almost sure to know that they are not paying. That gives you a point for discussion. He knows that there is something wrong and the chances are that he has some interest in finding out what the trouble is. The man with the 4,000-pound cow, however, is making returns enough to keep himself going without mortgaging the farm, even though it does mean rigid economy, and I find him exceedingly hard to get in touch with. He is quite satisfied and the satisfied man is the dead one when it comes to talking these things.

It may be that some of those who read this little epistle are themselves on the danger line. I was there once myself. I now know, however, that it is just as easy to have 7,000 to 8,000-pound cows as 4,000-pound cows, and much more satisfying. My method of getting away from the danger line started with cow testing and purchase of a pure-bred sire.

Concert In Aid Of Church Funds

Given in Otonabee Last Night —Large Attendance

A sleighing party consisting of some 30 people from St. George's parish, South City, drove out to St. Mark's Church, in Otonabee last evening, where an excellent programme had been arranged.

The first item on the programme, and the one worthy of special note, was a song by St. George's Glee Society, entitled "Ten Men went to Mow a Meadow," which was rendered by 12 people in an exceptional style.

The remainder of the lengthy list was taken up with songs, recitations, and dialogues, which were all well presented. The funds of the concert, which would be considerable owing to the large attendance, were devoted to the church funds.

The party arrived home at 11.45 p.m.

WILL RELATE STORY OF HIS LIFE

Interesting Address at Bethany Tabernacle To-night

Rev. Lucius B. Compton, the "Mountaineer Evangelist," of Asheville, N. C. who is conducting revival meetings in Bethany Tabernacle, will relate the story of his life to-night. Mr. Compton comes from a class known as "Southern Mountaineers," a people who in the early history of the United States, fled to the mountains to escape the ravages of war.

There are said to be 42 counties of Western Virginia, 25 of W. Virginia, 20 of Eastern Kentucky, 46 of Eastern Kentucky, 45 of East Tennessee and the eastern part of Middle Tennessee, 24 of Western N. Carolina, 25 of Northern Georgia and 17 of Northern Alabama, with a population of at least 4,000,000 mountaineers. About 1,000,000 of these people live in such abject poverty and isolation that they are afforded practically no educational advantages.

Mr. Compton was born and reared among this class of people. In his address to-night he will tell of how God delivered him from those conditions and elevated him to his present station in life. Don't fail to hear his wonderful story.

THE POST OFFICE

Editor, Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I observe that a writer in last night's Review states that there is more mail delivered and received south of Sherbrooke Street than there is north of that street. This may be true, by reason of the large number of factories mailing several hundreds of letters each day, but there are more individual cases of using the Post Office for mail and purchasing express orders north of Sherbrooke Street than there are south of Sherbrooke Street.

There are more depositors in the Post Office Savings Bank, by a large proportion, from north of Sherbrooke, than there is from south of Sherbrooke St.

Is not the proper method to leave the Post Office where it is, and to erect a building on Sherbrooke and George Sts. for the Inland Revenue Office, Customs and Canal Office?—Yours truly,

Ward One.

Stock Markets

A. H. Stratton & Co., Brokers, report the following:

To-morrow may see some further covering of shorts in the general market on the last news concerning the late situation. On reactions we think good stocks should be bought. In conservative quarters there is a growing impression that the February reaction has run its course, and that while immediate recovery is not likely, better absorption will be found in the general stocks on recessions from current prices. The Industrial list appears to be favoured by a majority of houses, especially the metal stocks. The buying of U.S., A.C.P., and equipments is understood to be of very good origin. We believe G.Q. and St. Paul should be bought on reactions. The absorption of low-priced rails is good, among them Erie and Southern Railway appear best favoured.

Bank of England rate unchanged.

JUBILEE IS CELEBRATED BY THE PYTHIANS

Big Gathering of Members From all Over Continent

Special to The Examiner.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Feb. 19. — Leading Pythians from almost every nook and corner of the United States and Canada assembled in the ball room of the New Willard Hotel yesterday and joined in the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the Knights of Pythias and all that the order has accomplished during the half century of its existence. It was on February 19, 1864, that Justus H. Rathbone, a clerk employed in one of the Government offices here, called together a handfuld his friends and submitted to them a plan to form a new fraternal and benevolent society. Together they took the initial steps which brought into existence the order of the Knights of Pythias, which in fifty years has increased in membership until it now ranks as the third largest organization of its kind in America.

The anniversary exercises began at 10 o'clock in the morning and continued through the entire day. Supreme Chancellor Thomas J. Carling of Macon, Ga., presided and addresses of welcome were delivered in behalf of the District of Columbia and the local lodges. Responses were made by representatives of many of the State and Provincial grand lodges of the United States and Canada. Leading members presented papers and addresses reviewing the history of the order. Occupying places of honour on the platform during the exercies were Edward S. Kimball and Abraham D. Vanderveer, two of the original members of the order.

The anniversary will be continued to-morrow, concluding in the evening with a great mass meeting, at which Supreme Vice Chancellor Brig S. Young of Ohio, will preside.

MUST REPEAL TOLLS.

Panama Canal Exemption Stands in Way of Treaties, Says Wilson.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—Extension of general arbitration treaties with foreign nations as the first move in the general policy of the administration to rehabilitate foreign relations of the United States assured last night, after the Senate had taken up consideration of expired treaties and had closely defined the issues involved in the situation confronting the nation.

Before the debate in the Senate began on treaties with Great Britain, Japan, Italy, Spain, Norway, Sweden, Portugal and Switzerland, President Wilson had conferred with Senators and representatives about the treaties, as well as the paramount issue of Panama Canal tolls. He was assured by leaders of both Houses that they would vote to repeal the toll exemption for American ships after the treaties had been ratified.

During his conferences, the President explained that it was the universal view of European nations that the United States had violated the Hay-Pauncefote treaty by the exemption clause in the Panama Canal Act.

He said no official representations to that effect had been presented—in fact that there had been no protest from Great Britain during the present administration—but that he knew the impression was broadcast in Europe that the United States was becoming remiss in the keeping of treaty obligations.

HEARSE CATCHES FIRE.

Auto Funeral Car Blazes While the Crowds Look On.

NEW YORK, Feb. 20.—The sight of an automobile hearse, containing a body, and ablaze from end to end, attracted 2,000 curious pedestrians on Lower Broadway yesterday. Harry Duris, the chauffeur, swathed in a big fur coat, also caught fire and was slightly burned before volunteers stripped off the garment.

The body, that of a woman being taken to the cemetery, was removed from the blazing hearse by the police. Firemen then put out the fire. It had caught from the motor.

MASTERMAN BEATEN

New Minister Defeated in British Bye-Election Contest

ANOTHER SEAT IS READY

LONDON, Feb. 20.—The great bye-election necessitated by the recent election necessitated by the recent changes in the Cabinet resulted in the defeat yesterday of C. F. G. Masterman in the southwest division of Bethnal Green by the narrow margin of 24 votes. The Unionist candidate, Major Sir M. Wilson, was elected, receiving 2,828 votes to 2,804 polled by Masterman. The Socialist J. Scurr, polled 316 votes.

C. F. G. Masterman was appointed Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster to succeed C. F. Hobhouse, who becomes Postmaster-General. In the last election he polled a vote of 2,745 to 2,561 polled by the Unionist candidate.

The Conservatives fought the election almost exclusively on "the vicious insurance act," home rule and tariff reform being little referred to. Hon. Mr. Masterman gave the premier place to home rule, the Parliament Act and church disestablishment.

The appearance of Jim Larkin in support of the Socialist candidate gave a distinct stimulus to the mild excitement which has pervaded outdoor gatherings. Regularly throughout the campaign Larkin denounced the Government and their "foul insurance," stigmatized Liberalism as a thing that had to be scotched and killed, and declared the downfall of Masterman would be the heaviest blow the Government has yet received.

In order to find a seat for Mr. Masterman, it is announced that Sir Thomas Roe, Liberal member for Derby, will immediately resign his seat. Derby is a two-member seat, and figures at the last election were: Sir Thomas Roe, 9,515; J. H. Thomas, Labor, 9,144; A. E. Beck, Unionist, 8,150.

Accounting for his defeat, Mr. Masterman said: "It was due to misrepresentations of the Insurance Act. It is by those misrepresentations that the fight has been lost and won, and by nothing else."

Scurr, Socialist, rejoices to have defeated the Government by taking away votes. "Now we will see the Insurance Act amended and the Government compelled to go ahead faster We have also struck a blow for purer government."

Mr. Wilson says: "I regard the result of the election as a most emphatic condemnation, not of an one measure nor of any one plank in the Liberal platform, but of the whole policy of the present Government."

South Bucks Stays Unionist.

LONDON, Feb. 20. — The South Buckingham bye-election resulted in a Unionist majority of 2,331, as follows: W. B. Dupre, Unionist, 9,044; Tonman Mosley, Radical, 6,713. The electorate numbers 18,286, and in last election the Unionist majority was 2,556. The constituency embraces several small towns, some of which contain the residences of a large number of London business men. It is understood a large proportion of this section of the electors did not vote.

Against the Cigarette.

NEW YORK, Feb. 20.—The war against the cigarette is going to be carried into the public schools, if Mrs. Jennie Hobson Milligan, state superintendent of the Anti-Cigarette League, can get permission from the Board of Education. She is going to call upon the board as soon as possible and ask them to permit her and several physicians to visit public schools after hours and paint with silver nitrate the throats of little boys and girls who ask for the treatment.

WAR OFFICE LOSES.

Major Gets Damages For Libel In Confidential Report.

LONDON, Feb. 20.—The British War Office system of confidential reports on which officers of army may be condemned and sentenced to professional ruin without being heard in their own defence, was severely censured by the judge of the King's Bench Court yesterday. A jury awarded Major W. Augustus Adam, formerly of the Royal Irish Lancers, the sum of $10,000 damages against Sir Edward Ward in his capacity as Permanent Secretary of the War Office.

Major Adam, who distinguished himself in the siege of Ladysmith, South Africa, and was at one time employed on special service in Japan, brought a suit for libel, alleged to be contained in a letter written and published by Sir Edward Ward, saying that Major Adam had had to retire from the army in consequence of adverse reports.

Major Adam contended that the letter suggested he had been guilty of dishonorable conduct and incompetence.

The letter was written in consequence of an attack made by Major Adam while he was a member of the House of Commons on the late Gen. Scobell, who had made the adverse reports.

Reinforce Law Against Trusts.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20. — President Wilson desires that the proposed bills dealing with the trust problem be so phrased and adapted to the decisions already rendered by the Supreme Court of the United States on the Sherman anti-trust law, that the efficiency of that statute shall be neither impaired nor compulsory, but properly supplemented.

Would End All Immodesty.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Feb. 20.—Delegate Snowden of Montgomery County, introduced in the House of Delegates yesterday, by request, a bill to prohibit the wearing by girls and women of high-heeled shoes and slit skirts, and of dancing such "immoral dances as the turkey trot, the bunny hug, the tango or the loop-the-loop.

The bill prescribes that money collected from fines for violating its provisions shall be used to "educate girls how to dress decently."

"THE FREE RANGE"

By ELWELL LAWRENCE

"I've got it!" bawled Stelton, pounding his thigh. "Larkin's men have been here and carried off all the owners. Oh, won't there be the deuce to pay?"

Then he picked out the cowboys who had come with their bosses and added:

"Crowd yore grub and ride home like blazes. Get your punchers an' bring grub for a week. Then we'll all meet at the junction of the Big Horn and Gooseberry Creek. If yuh punchers like a good job you'll get yore owners out o' this. And I'm plumb shore when we get through there won't be a sheepman left in this part of the State. To-morrer night at Gooseberry!"

Then was such a scene of hurry and bustle and excitement as the Bar T had seldom witnessed. The parting injunctions were to bring extra horses and plenty of rope, with the accent on the rope, and a significant look thrown in.

By seven o'clock, the time that Larkin, bloody, humiliated and suffering, would already have paid his penalty, there was scarcely a soul at the Bar T ranch, for the cowboys had disappeared across the plains at a hard trot.

The Bar T punchers were sent out on the range to scour for tracks of fugitives, but, after following them for some distance from the river bottom, gave up in despair when a night herder admitter that the Bar T horses had been feeding in the vicinity the night before, thus entangling the tracks. Meantime the cook was preparing food for the punchers to carry, guns were being oiled and overhauled, knives sharpened, and ropes carefully examined.

Yet as the men went about their duties, there was a kind of raser, subdued air in all they did, for it was indeed hard to realise that the ranch owners of nearly a quarter of Wyoming's best range had disappeared into the empty air apparently without a sound or protest.

The following afternoon the entire Bar T outfit, excepting a couple of punchers who were incapicitated from former round-up injuries, swept out of the yard and headed almoost directly across the plain.

Julie and her mother watched them go and waved them farewell, the former with a clutch of fear at her heart for her lover, and the latter in tears for her husband, thus unconsciously taking opposite sides in the struggle that they knew must ensue.

It must not be thought that Juliet had turned against her father since their final difference. After her first outbreak against his narrow views and unjust treatment of Larkin, the old love that had been paramount all her life returned, and with it a kind of pity. She knew that in a man of her father's age his nature could not be made over immediately, if ever; the habits of a rough lifetime were too fully ingrained. But at the same time there was something gone from the sweet and intimate affection that had formerly characterised their relations.

Lovers of married folk who declare for the efficacy of a quarrel as a renewer of love are wrong in the last analysis. Loss of control always entails loss of respect, and fervent "making up" after such an outbreak cannot efface the picture of anger-distorted fetturres or remove the acid of bitter words. Thus it was with Juliet and her love for her father.

As to his safety she was not worried, for she knew that Bud would not allow any harm to come to him as he was in command of the men who had affected the taking off. What Larkin's plans were she did not fully realise, but she knew this sudden coup had been executed to further his own ends in the imperative matter of getting his sheep north. And of this she finally convinced her mother, although that lady wept copiously before the thing was accomplished.

The evening following the departure of Mike Stelton and his punchers was made notable by the arrival of a man on horseback, who carried across his saddle a black box, and in thongs at his side a three-legged standard of yellow wood. His remaining equipment was a square of black cloth.

Without invitation he turned his dejected animal into the Bar T corral and made himself at home for the evening. At the supper table he revealed his identity and explained his purpose.

"I'm Ed. Skidmore," he announced, "and I take photographs. This thing I've got in a camer." He had already mounted the instrument on his tripod. "I've been going around from ranch to ranch and the pictures have been selling like hot cakes."

Juliet, listening, noticed that his conversation was that of a comparatively well-educated man and that he had none of the characteristic drawl or accent of the plainsmen. To her a camera was nothing out of the ordinary, although she had not seen one since her final return West, but her mother was vastly interested.

In those days photography was not a matter of universal luxury as it is now, and the enterprising Skidmore was practically the first to introduce it as a money-maker in the widely scattered ranches of the cow country.

"How do yuh sell 'em?" asked Martha Bissell, fluttering with the possibilities of the next morning, the time the young man had set for his operation. Martha had not been "took' since that far-off trip "East" to St. Paul, when she and Henry had posed for daguerreotypes.

"Five dollars apiece, ma'am," said Skidmore, "and they're cheap at the price." And they were, since the cost of something universally desired is dependent on the supply rather than the demand.

After supper Martha retired to her bedroom to overhaul her stock of "swell" dresses, a stock that had not been disturbed in fifteen years except for the spring cleaning and airing. This left Skidmore and Juliet alone. She civilly invited him out on the verandah, seeing he was a man of some quality.

"I had a queer experience today," he remarked after a few commonplaces. "I was riding to the Bar T from the Circle-Arrow, and was about twenty miles away, rounding a butte, when a man rode out to me from some place of concealment.

"When he reached me he suddenly pulled his gun and covered me.

"'Where are you goin'?' he said. I told him I was on my way here and why. He examined my outfit suspiciously and let me go. But first he said:

"'Take this letter to the Bar T and give it to Miss Bissell.'" Skidmore reached inside his shirt and pulled forth a square envelope, which he handed to Juliet. "The whole thing was so strange," the photographer went on, "that I have waited until I could see you alone so that I could tell you about it."

LOOK!

If you were told of a new discovery for the treatment of coughs, colds and bronchitis, as certain in its action on all chest troubles as anti-toxin is on diphtheria, or vaccination on small-pox, wouldn't you feel like giving it a trial? Especially if you could try it for fifty cents!

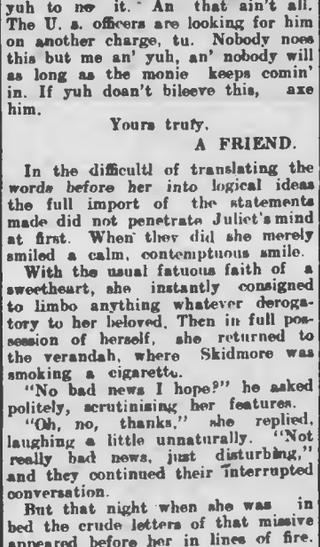
Peps is the discovery!

Peps are little tablets, neatly wrapped in air and germ-proof silver foil. They contain certain medicinal ingredients, which, when placed upon the tongue, immediately turn into vapour, and are at once breathed down the air passages to the lungs. On their journey, they soothe the inflamed and irritated membranes of the bronchial tubes, the delicate walls of the air passages, and finally enter and carry relief and healing to the capillaries and tiny air cells in the lungs.

In a word, while no liquid or solid can get to the lungs and air passages, these Peps fumes get there direct, and at once commence their work of healing.

Peps are entirely distinct from the old fashioned liquid cough cures, which are merely swallowed into the stomach, and never reach the lungs. Peps treatment of coughs and colds is direct treatment.

If you have not yet tried Peps, cut out this article, write across it the name and date of this paper, and mail it (with 1c. stamp to pay return postage) to Peps Co., Toronto. A free trial packet will then be sent you. All druggists and stores sell Peps at 50c. box.



Juliet, surprised and startled, turned the missive over in her hands, hopeful that it was a letter from Bud and yet fearful of something that she could not explain. When Skidmore had finished she excused herself and went into her room, closing the door behind her.

On the envelope was the simple inscription, "Miss Bissell," written in a crabbed, angular hand. This satisfied her that the message was not from Bud, and with trembling fingers she opened it. Inside was an oblong sheet of paper filled with the same narrow handwriting. Going to the window to catch the dying light, she read:

This is to tell yuh that Mr. Larkin who yuh love is already merried. It ain't none of my bisnis, but I want yuh to no it. An that ain't all. The U. s. officers are looking for him on another charge, tu. Nobody noes this but me an' yuh, an' nobody will as long as the monie keeps comin' in. If yuh doan't bileeve this, axe him.

Yours truly,
A FRIEND.

In the difficult of translating the words before her into logical ideas the full import of the statements made did not penetrate Juliet's mind at first. When they did she merely smiled a calm, contemptuous smile.

With the usual fatuous faith of a sweetheart, she instantly consigned to limbo anything whatever derogatory to her beloved. Then in full possession of herself, she returned to the verandah, where Skidmore was smoking a cigarette.

"No bad news I hope?" he asked politely, scrutinising her features.

"Oh, no, thanks," she replied, laughing a little unnaturally. "Not really bad news, just disturbing," and they continued their interrupted conversation.

But that night when she was in bed the crude letters of that missive appeared before her in lines of fire. Of late the old mystery of Bud's past life had not been much in her thoughts: love, the ohliterator, had successfully wiped away the last traces of uneasiness that she had felt, and like all true and good women, she had given him the priceless treasure of her love, not questioning, not seeking to discern what he would have shown her had it seemed right in his mind that she should see.

But this scrayled letter to-night brought back with stunning force all the distress and doubts that had formerly assailed her. She guessed, and rightly, that Smithy Caldwell was the author of it, but she could not analyze the motives that had inspired his pen.

She told herself with fatal logic, that if all this were a lie, Caldwell would not dare write it; that Larkin had paid this man five hundred dollars on another occasion not so far gone, and that it was avowedly a case of impudent blackmail. She knew, furthermore, that Bud carefully avoided all references to Caldwell, even when she had brought forward the name, and that in the conversation overheard by Stelton there had been mention of someone by the name of Mary.

What if this money were going to another woman!

The thought overwhelmed her as she lay there, and she sat up gasping for breath, but in a moment the eternal defence of the man, inherent in every woman who loves, came to the rescue, and she told herself very if nothing else. Then the sentence concerning the United States officers wanting him on another charge recurred to her, and she found her defence punctured at the outset. If he were honourable, how could it be that the officers were after him?

In despair at the quandary, but still clinging to her faith, she fell back on the unanswerable fact of feminine intuition. Bud seemed good and true; it was in his eyes, in his voice, in his very manner. He looked at the world squarely, but with a kind of patient endurance that bespoke some deep trouble.

Then for the first time the thought came to Juliet that perhaps he was shielding someone else.

But who? And, if so, why did Caldwell write this letter?

Unable to answer these questions, but confronted by the thought that Bud's love was the sweetest thing in the world to her, she at last fell asleep with a smile upon her lips.

CHAPTER XVII.

A BATTLE IN THE DARK.

"Everything ready?"

Bud Larkin sat his horse beside Hardwinter Sims and looked back over the white mass that grew dimmer and dimmer in the dark.

"Yes." Sims lounged wearily against the horse's shoulder. It had been a hard day.

"Get 'em on the move, then."

Sims, without changing his position, called out to the herders. These in turn spoke to the dogs, and the dogs began to nip the heels of the leader sheep, who resented the familiarity with loud bleating and lowering of heads. But they knew the futility of resisting these nagging guardians and started to forge ahead. Other dogs got the middlers in motion, and still others attended to the tailers, so that in five minutes from the time Larkin gave the word the whole immense flock was crawling slowly over the dry plain.

Eight thousand of them there were; eight thousand semi-imbecile creatures, unacquainted with the obstacles they must encounter or the dangers they must face before they could be brought to safety or lost in the attempt. And to guard them there were nearly seventy men whose fear lay not in the terrors to be met, but in the sheep themselves: for there is no such obstacle to a sheep's well-being as the sheep himself.

The last flock had arrived the night before, well-fed and watered. The preceding six thousand were in good condition from days and weeks of comfortable grazing in the hills; all were in good shape to travel.

In moving them at this time Larkin had seized the psychological moment.

The disgruntled cattle owners, under a guard of ten men, were resting quietly for from anything resembling excitement in one of the untracked places among the mesas and scoria buttes. Bud had ascertained, by spies of his own that scoured the country, that the great posse of rescuing cowpunchers had gone safely on a wild-goose chase, misled by one of the sheepmen who was unknown to the country.

For the present, therefore, the range was clear, and Bud reckoned on it remaining so until the cattlemen had been rescued from their durance vile. In such a time the sheep ranger shrank into insignificance,, and Larkin counted on having his animals across the Bar T range before the finding of the cattlemen, after which, of course, the men would be turned loose with much commiseration an apology.

Of the seventy men guarding and driving the sheep not more than thirty were regular herders. Forty were mounted and belonged to Jimmie Welsh's fighting corps, which was composed mostly of owners and superintendents from the north country.

Your usual Western shepherd is not a fighting man and cases have occurred in the bitter range wars where a herder has been shot down in cold blood unable to make a defense because of the grass growing out of his rifle.

Years alone in the brooding silence of the Sierra slopes or the obscure valleys of the northern Rockies take the virulence out of a man and make him placid and at one with nature. Into his soul there sinks something of the grandeur of cloud-hooded peaks, the majesty of limitless horizons and the colors of sky-blue water and greenward. With him strife is an unknown thing except for the strife of wits with another herder who would attempt to share a succulent mountain meadow.

Common report has it, and such writers as Emerson Hough put in their books, that a sheep-herder can scarcely follow his calling for seven years without going mad. On the other hand, those who have lived for years among the sheep declare that they have never seen a sheep-herder even mentally unbalanced.

Probably both are right, as is usual to a degree in all discussion; but the fact remained that, sane or insane, the herder was not a fighting man; something had gone out of him. Therefore in bringing men other than herders south with him. Jimmie Welsh had shown his cleverness. To fight the riders he had brought riders, and these men now helped to direct the river of animals that flowed along over the dry plain.

There were cook outfits to feed the men, one of which contained the incomparable Ah Sin, who had amply revenged himself for his warm reception at the camp.

That first night they marched ten miles, and, as before, found the water-holes polluted by the cattle, which take delight in standing in the mud, and thus in a' dry country work their own destruction by filling the springs.

The next day the sheep cropped fairly well, although the sun was terrific and no more water was discovered. Nighafall found them becoming nervous and uneasy. They milled a long while before they bedded, and more of them than usual stood up to watch.

Not a rider had been seen all day. Through the baking glare there had moved a cloud of suffocating dust, and under it the thirsting, snorting, blethering sheep, with the dogs on the edges and the men farther out at regular intervals along the line.

After supper some of the men slept, for it was not planned to start the sheep until midnight, as they needed the rest, being footsore with long travelling. It was calculated also that they would reach the ford at the Big Horn by shortly before dawn.

Thought She Would Go Mad WITH HEADACHE.

In all cases of headache the treatment should be directed to remove the cause, for with the cause removed the headache vanishes for all time. Headache powders just relieve for the time being, but what is necessary for a permanent cure is something that will go right to the seat of the trouble. For this purpose it is impossible to find a better remedy for headaches of all descriptions than Burdock Blood Bitters, acting as it does on every organ of the body to strengthen, purify and regulate the whole system.

Mrs. Althea Bowman, Hamilton, Ont., writes:—"I have suffered terribly with my head for weeks at a time till I thought I would go mad. A friend advised me to give Burdock Blood Bitters a trial, so I got a bottle and found relief. I have used four bottles in all and I am glad to say that I have had no more headaches since. I would advise all sufferers to give it a fair trial."

SENSE OF HUMOR

Laughter One of the Finest Tonics For Jaded Nerves

Women ought to develop a sense of humor, because laughter was one of the finest tonics for jaded nerves and tired-out systems, said Professor Earl Barnes, of Toronto, in a lecture on "Recreation as a Constructive Force in Life." The human system broken down either by overwork or by working in one particular groove to the detriment of the other parts of the nervous system demanded, said the professor, a "pick-me-up" of some sort, and one was laughter. A man or woman with a tired-out feeling might work himself or herself into a second or a third wind as it were and in the end accomplish something brilliant, but that was more frequently than not the way to physical and mental destruction. Men and women must have a distinct change of life after an arduous day's work. Merely going off to sleep was not sufficient. Dealing with the problem of recreation as a form of rest, Professor Barnes said England had $250,000,000 invested in permanent paid players engaged in sport, and Scotland out of her 16,000,000 acres devoted 3,000,000 of these to sport. It was a pity that women had so little interest in organised sport, which was a recreative of marvelous power. Music and art were not forms of recreation unless those educational senses had been trained. When men and women balanced their lives with a sufficient amount of recreation they had arrived at a very large solution of the problem of human life.

How Musicians Are Produced

Great composers and musicians have always sprung from people who had a folk music. In Germany, in Italy, in France, in Hungary, it has been so. Long ago, when the common people of England were instinctively musical, England produced the greatest songs and the greatest composers. When England began to get its musicians, and to take its musical standards from the Continent, the popular music was shamed out of existence, and the race of English musicians died the death.

COOKING AS A REFUGE

A well known Parisian, a club man and sportsman, disappeared from the boulevards and its diversions and was found in a monastery, where he was acting as cook. He was tired of the old life, he says. No other reason. Let us place our emphasis less on the monastery than on its kitchen. Other French noblemen have retired to monasteries, but few have taken an active hand in the cooking. Very likely this particular count, only too well aware of the emptiness and unsatisfactoriness of his earlier life, yearned to turn his hand to something practical and useful. Being a French count, he turned his hand to cooking. There is nothing more practical and useful than that. There is nothing which, when well done, is capable of yielding a more general satisfaction all round. Every man should be able to cook a little, and should cultivate appreciation and respect for good cooking by others. Of course there drawbacks to such a career. Few cooks can enjoy their own cooking and few get a due measure of praise for their work, however well done. Perhaps the count is an exception. Since he has kept his "place" two years, he may enjoy his work as an artist if not as a gourmet, and he may have been heartened, now and then, by a word of approbation from the brethren he serves. Such a word goes well in any kitchen.

MAINTAIN THE WOODLANDS

Too Little Attention to the Subject by the General Public

Prof. E. J. Zavits, Provincial forester, in speaking of the results of co-operative work in forestry in Ontario said two hundred thousand trees had been placed last year in 29 counties of the province. The department had a plantation in every county, and the trees put out have been planted in waste types of soil, in blow sand steep hillsides, etc. They prove a big factor in the protection of roads from the drift sand and landslides There is only nine per cent. of wood lands in southern Ontario, less even than in closely populated Great Britain, the speaker said. The quality of our forests also is not improving, as the best trees are being cut down and not replaced. Labor, or the want of it is partly to blame for the fact that we do not keep up our woodlands, but the professor hinted that indifference, and the fact that there was no immediate return, was the chief factor. In Norfolk County there are one million trees in the nurseries and sixteen thousand acres in connection for experimental planting. Prof. Zavits, however, is quite frank about the fact that but little encouragement, much too little, is given by farmers and the general public on the subject of reforestation. Especially is this pronounced when we consider that trees can be had for the asking.

Terribly Afflicted With Lame Back.
Could Not Sweep The Floor.

When the back aches and pains it is almost impossible for women to do their housework, for every move and every turn means an ache or a pain.

Women are beginning to understand that weak, lame, and aching backs from which they suffer so much are due to wrong action of the kidneys, and should be attended to at once so as to avoid years of suffering from kidney trouble.

On the first sign of anything wrong with the back Doan's Kidney Pills should be taken.

They go right to the seat of the trouble.

Mrs. Wilfrid Jolicoeur, Nouvelle, Que., writes:—"I take pleasure in writing you stating the benefit I have received by using Doan's Kidney Pills. About three years ago I was terribly afflicted with lame back, and was so bad I could not sweep my own floor. I was advised to try Doan's Kidney Pills. I only used three boxes, and I am as well as ever. I highly recommend these pills to any sufferer from lame back or kidney trouble."

Price, 50 cents per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Toronto, Ont.

If ordering direct specify "Doan's."

PRAIRIE TREE-PLANTING

Government Helps Prairie Farmers Establish Woodlots

For several years over two and a half million tree seedlings and cuttings have been distributed annually to the prairie farmers by the Dominion Government Forest Nursery Station at Indian Head. The young trees are supplied only to bona fide farm-owners in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, and then only in small lots not exceeding five hundred seedlings in any one year. The success of western tree-plantations depends not so much on the climate conditions, as is erroneously supposed, but rather on the care taken with the delicate young seedlings before and after planting. The principal trees planted in the West are ash, maple, cottonwood, willow and Russian poplar. The first two do well together, and ash especially is much in favor with the farmers, having probably the lowest death-rate of any. Willow and poplar are usually supplied as cuttings and do well together. The Russian willow is growing in popularity with the farmers on account of its ease of propagation, its quick-growing qualities, hardiness and freedom from disease. That spruce, larch (tamarack), and Scotch pine will also do well on the prairies is no longer questionable.

The best results are in all cases attained by planting the trees in the spring in belts at least twenty yards wide on well-prepared soil, such as summer-fallow, or garden land, the trees being spaced about four feet apart and planted in rows to permit machine cultivation in order to protect the soil from weeds and evaporation until the trees grow large enough for their branches to meet.

As a thankoffering on the coming of age of their elder son, the Marquis of Titchfield, and to mark their silver wedding, the Duke and Duchess of Portland wrote asking the Committee of Management of the Mansfield Hospital to accept a sum of between $30,000 and $35,000, to liquidate the debt on the King Edward Memorial Wing that is being erected.

WITH THE ESKIMO

Twenty Years of Mission Work Brought Good Results

"Mission Work Among the Eskimo" was the theme of an interesting illustrated lecture by Rev. C. E. Whittaker who took his audience on a pictorial tour of the Arctic region, starting at Athabasca Landing, proceeding north to St. Matthew's Anglican Church at Fort McPherson, the most northerly church of the British Empire, being 100 miles within the Arctic Circle. Views were shown depicting the habits and customs of the Eskimo and the progress of civilization among them. Referring to certain strictures that have been made and the aspersions cast on the work of missions in the Far North by some individuals, the lecturer was able to prove these were not only uncharitable, but unfounded. Twenty years of mission work among the Eskimo had been productive of great beneficial results. When the Church sent the first missionaries to the Eskimo those people had every mark and every habit of barbarism. Those conditions had been changed. Instead of living in snow houses, as formerly, most of them now lived in huts built on hygienic principles. The missionaries did not attempt to change any habits of the Eskimos that were not hurtful to their character. Any evil habits they had contracted were due to the influence of certain commercial adventurers, whose regard for the ten commandments was not very strong. That class of people were enemies to religion and morality wherever they went. To prevent any of the "adventurer class from contaminating the 'Blonde Eskimos'" the Church proposed to establish a mission among them at the earliest possible moment.

OFFICIAL AUDITOR

Some Curious Rulings of an Important John Bull Authority

The Local Government Board employs a small army of auditors, whose duty it is to check the accounts of local authorities, such as Boards of Guardians, Town Councils, District Councils, and the like. An auditor has power to disallow any items which he considers unjustifiable expenditure. This means that the individuals who authorised it have personally to "stand the racket." On one occasion a curious surcharge was made in the course of the audit of the accounts of the Southampton Poor Law Authorities. It was for the cost of hymn books supplied for the use of the workhouse inmates, at the price of four shillings and sixpence per copy. The books were Moody and Sankey's "Sacred Songs and Solos," which, it was gravely stated, had been purchased, "with music complete," so that the paupers should be "in tune with the choir." In the circumstances, it was scarcely surprising that the guardians had to face the music of the surcharge. A purchase made for the recreation of the nurses led to a curious surcharge on a West of England union. Amongst the accounts was one for a croquet set, which the auditor did not consider justifiable expenditure. As might be supposed, the guardians did not agree with him in this; but, rather than have any trouble, they raised the amount of the account amongst themselves.

Swallowed False Teeth

Frederick Williams, aged thirty-nine, of Garndiffaith, Wales, died at Pontypool Hospital. He was admitted to the institution, having swallowed his false teeth while asleep. Every effort was made to remove the teeth, but without success.

Bored Holes In Skull

One of the most remarkable and heroic experiments of surgery ever attempted went to naught when a patient at St. Mary's Hospital, Philadelphia, died from the effects of the operation made in an effort to save him from the ravages of paresis.

Physicians at the hospital who found the patient hopelessly afflicted bored a series of holes in his skull and injected a serum of salvarsan. This is the one method known to medicine by which the disease may be checked. Salvarsan is the compound used in the most dangerous of all blood diseases. The physicians so far have made no report on the case. It is said the patient did not revive sufficiently from the shock because of previously weakened vitality.

With the Habitants

In the province of Quebec, as one can see from reading Doctor Drummond's charming book, "The Habitant," seldom a night passes, no matter how stormy, without 15 to 20 neighbors gathering together at one of the French farm houses, which are strung close together for 100 miles along the banks of the St. Lawrence, where, by the wise orders of Louis Fourteenth, the farms were divided into narrow strips two acres wide and a mile and a half long. It is a pity that in surveying the Great Empire of the West that a similar plan had not been followed, for then there would have been a house every 400 feet on each side of the railroad or the division line, and a great comfort and convenience in time of sickness, while a great joy in time of health.

Discovery in Potatoes

Three French scientists, Dr. Sartory, M. M. Gradist, and M. Thiebert, announced successful results of their experiments to restore the constitution of the potato. They discovered that edible tubers can be obtained from potato seeds with the aid of a certain microscopic ground mushroom, which fastens to the roots and causes tuberisation desired.

Experiments produced potatoes free from disease, and savants assert the regeneration of the potato is now assured. Important economic results are expected.

NERVES ARE SORE AND PAINFUL

Neuritis, or inflammation of the nerves, is the most painful of nervous ailments. You may feel the soreness or tenderness throughout the body, or it may be confined to certain nerves. In the head it is called neuralgia; in the hips and legs, sciatica; in the face, tic douloureux, and in the chest, intercostal neuralgia.

The application of dry heat affords relief from the lance-like pains, but the essential thing is to build up the exhausted nervous system by the persistent use of such a restorative as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. You will have other symptoms to warn you of the depleted condition of the nervous system, and this is your opportunity to restore to the body the energy and vigour of health.

While this great food cure is instilling new vitality into the starved nerve cells it is also forming new, firm flesh and tissue, and, by noting your increase in weight, you can prove beyond doubt the benefit being obtained by its use. This is Nature's way of curing diseases of the nerves, and it is the only way to obtain lasting benefit.

A Story from Real Life

Tragedy of Polish Crown

Emblem of Unrest, Lost in 1795, Is Found in Cracow

POLAND'S crown, emblem of unrest, torn the other day, as the cables tell, from its hidden repository under the roots of a riven elm at old Cracow, has come to light.

Uneasy beyond all that the ancient proverb implies have been the heads which have worn that insignum of the might of a restless people who fought with such success the battles of all nations and lost their own dominions.

It is believed that this crown, one of several, dates as far back as the fourteenth century and that it disappeared in 1795 at the time of the last partition of the unhappy country.

It has been the custom from time immemorial to lay the woes of Poland to the rapacity of her neighbors and to base ingratitude. There are evidences, however, throughout the centuries of many mistakes of policy and of selfish ambitions which also might have contributed to the many vicissitudes under which the whilom nation passed.

A pawn of power, indeed, has been this crown of Poland. Sometimes fought for with desperation by scythe-armed peasants, again offered for a price in foreign capitals to whomsoever would wear it—it has changed frequently from one owner to another, and has often remained unworn to collect the dust of time.

What revelations, if gold were quick and jewels could speak from crystal depths, this ancient sign of regal power might make! It is in a good state of preservation, except that some of the gems have fallen from the settings, just as one by one the principalities of a once mighty realm slipped from their national unit.

The story of Poland goes back into remote antiquity. At first a pagan nation, a group of Slavonian tribes in the marshes and fens of southeastern Europe, it grew into a land of warriors and patriots and became the Buckler of Christendom.

War for the Hand of Queen Wanda.

The legendary founder of the Polish nation was Lezsek, for whom a genealogy was invented going back to the time of Noah. His son Cracus founded the city of Cracow. Then came the son of Cracus, who slew his elder brother and ruled as Leszek II. and was banished when his dark deed became known.

His sister Wanda was made ruler and refused to marry or to share her realm with another. The Crown of Poland played its part in the game of destiny from that hour as the prize of international conflicts. Rudiger, a German Prince, sought the hand of the Queen in marriage and when he was repulsed brought an army against her country to compel her submission. He persisted in pressing his suit when the two armies faced each other on the field and gave battle against the advice of his officers. His defeat was overwhelming and he committed suicide. The Queen returned to her palace and afterward, either to escape further importunities or on account of remorse for her own intractability, drowned herself in the waters of the Vistula.

For centuries afterward the keeping of the crown of Poland on a Polish head and the liberating of the country from the foreign foe was to be the labor of the nation.

Crown Won in a Horse Race.

The emblem of power was conferred on a Duke who had won it in a horse race. He was not first at the winning post, but he had exposed the guile of a successful competitor who had placed pointed iron stakes in the sand along the course against which his own mount was protected by being shod with iron plates.

After the reign of several demoralised kings came the rule of the pious Pilsi, of humble origin, who entertained two angels unawares and by them was nominated for King.

In the history of Poland the crown was generally bestowed by votes of councils or by popular acclaim. The house of Pilsi did much for Poland. It organized its army and the system of discipline which was started there made the warriors of a later age renowned for their bravery and skill.

The golden age of Poland was attained only to be followed by one of lawless anarchy and the rule of dissolute petty chieftains. There followed that dark age when King Boleslaw caused the slaying of Stanislas, the Bishop, and brought upon himself excommunication by the Pope.

The Repulse of the Moslems.

The union of Poland with Lithuania was brought about by the marriage of Hedwig, the daughter of Louis, and Jagello, one of the Lithuanian chieftains. Jagello, succeeding to the crown, established the Polish law on a firmer foundation. He was magistrate, preacher and lawmaker, and the spirit of freedom which became a part of the Polish character more and more was fostered by him.

His son Wladislaw succeeded to the Crown of Poland at the age of nine. Developing into a warrior, he fought for Poland and for Hungary, and defeated invading Moslem hosts with great slaughter.

He committed an error of judgment, however, in soon violating a treaty of peace which he had made with the Turks, and perished with thousands of his followers.

The Teutonic Knights, a German order of Crusaders, had been invited into the kingdom to act as a buffer against Germany, and they in turn became oppressive and were continually engaged in warfare with the Poles.

Casimir IV. inflicted upon them several defeats which kept them in subjection. It was in the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries that learning was especially cultivated by the Polish gentlemen who had hitherto found the call of battle and the call of chivalry enough to occupy them. This was especially so in the reign of Casimir IV.

How the Poles Became Linguists.

He had a conference with the King of Sweden and was abashed to find that it was necessary for him to converse in Latin. He was obliged to employ a monk as an interpreter. He at once began the study of Latin on his own account and laid an injunction upon all the Polish nobles that they should study the Latin tongue. The court took up the study with avidity and the Poles became especially distinguished as linguists. Latin, indeed, became a living tongue in Poland, and there are Poles to-day who speak it with the facility one uses in his own vernacular.

The first printing press in Poland was erected in 1474 at Cracow and distinguished scholars and writers developed. A new system of internal policy was instituted in this reign and it was proclaimed that the King was not to make war without the permission of the representatives of the people. A constitutional monarchy, indeed often a republic with a king, Poland continued to be for centuries. The Poles at this time cultivated a taste for art and the refinements of life. Jewels and adornments of all were in demand and a little from Persians, tradition says, established Poland looms on which were made very beautiful rugs that to this day are highly prized.

Reckless Electors of Rulers.

In part the rights of Poland, in part the reckless electors of rulers were to place the crown in jeopardy. In the domain all were welcomed and Jew and Christian dwelt together in harmony. The church and the synagogue were side by side. Under the reign of the Jagellos for 196 years Poland seemed to be on the way to realize the best which human destiny offers, yet there were influences at work which caused jewel after jewel to fall from the crown until it came to be but a simple badge of distinction. The last of the Jagellos, Sigismund, died, and his funeral knell seemed the signal for anarchy in Poland. He left no heir and therefore gave his crown back to his subjects to do with it as they would.

"The Polish crown," to quote from the Historians' History of the World, "thus became the prize of competition for foreign princes and it still possessed sufficient temptations to have many candidates, for besides the opportunity that a monarch backed by extraneous force might have of extending the authority, there yet remained still many important privileges like interdictes between the enclosures of the laws. The neighboring potentates now began a struggle for Poland and at length the unhappy country became the prey of their conflicting interests, in addition to the perils of internal dissension."

Countess Potocki.

The Castle.

John Sobieski.

The nobles meanwhile had met and had adopted laws which considerably curtailed the powers of the king. Among the candidates for the office mentioned were Ernest, the son of the Emperor Maximilian of Austria, and Henry Duke of Anjou, son of Catherine de Medici and brother of Charles IX., the reigning King of France. The Duke of Anjou was chosen and an embassy was sent to Paris to escort him to Poland.

The arrival of the embassy is graphically described by an eyewitness, De Thou, whose words are quoted by Dunham and by Guizot.

Polish Ambassadors Came Armed.

"It is impossible," he wrote, "to express the general astonishment when we saw these ambassadors in long robes, fur caps, sabres and arrows and quivers. But our admiration was excessive when we saw the sumptuousness of their equipages, the scabbards of their swords adorned with jewels, their bridles, saddles and horse cloths decked in the same way, and the air of consequence and dignity by which they were distinguished. One of the most remarkable circumstances was the facility with which they conversed themselves in Latin, French, German and Italian. These four languages were as familiar to them as their native tongue. There were only two men of rank at court who could answer them in Latin—the Baron of Milau and the Marquis of Castelnau-Mauriasiere. They had been commissioned expressly to support the honor of the French nation, that had reason to blush at their ignorance on this point. The ambassadors spoke our language with so much purity that one would have taken them rather for men educated on the banks of the Seine and the Loire than for inhabitants of countries which are watered by the Vistula and Dneiper. This placed our courtiers to the blush, who knew nothing, but were open enemies of all science, so that when their guests questioned them they answered only with signs and blushes.

Henry of Valois, as the new King was called, did not take kindly to the crown of Poland. He showed reluctance in starting for his new realm and accustomed to the luxuries and splendors of life in Paris, he regarded his obligations to the land beyond the Danube as something of an exile.

The New King Flees Poland.

[illegible] he had to [illegible] death of his brother, and his heart was set at once to succeeding to the throne of France. He did not acquaint the Polish nobles with the fact of his brother's death, for it was easier to suppress news in that day than now. Instead, he gave a great dinner and ball in defiance of the conventions of fraternal grief. At night he disappeared from the palace and gained the frontier, pursued by embassies sent to implore his return. When he reached Paris he gave evasive answers to the representatives of the Poles, and never again saw the lands by the Vistula.

The Cossacks Under Discipline.

Factions developed the more strongly over this turn of affairs. Instead of seeking some one bound to them by ties of blood and familiar with their traditions, the Poles looked abroad for a king. The process of disintegration and disorganization was insidiously at work, to be later completed by the legions of foreign foes. One faction desired to confer the crown upon Maximilian of Austria, but finally the faction which favored more of home rule chose Anne, sister of Sigismund, and Stephen Bathori, Duke of Transylvania, was selected for her husband. Bathori brought the Cossacks, then under the control of Poland, under military discipline.

More foreign intrigue followed Bathori. Maximilian of Austria and Sigismund, Prince of Sweden, were in turn asked to wear the crown. Then followed war with Sweden over the claim in later years that the crown of Sweden should be joined with that of Poland.

Partition of Poland.

Jan Sobieski distinguished himself in this epoch and held the Russians at bay. Partition of Poland was narrowly averted by the treaty of Oliva in the reign of Casimir.

The monarch, weary of the crown and of the world, abdicated and retreated to a monastery, predicting that the "Republic" would eventually be disintegrated. He retired to France and became the Abbot of the monastery of St. Germaine de Pres.

In his farewell to the people of Poland he said: "It is now 240 years that you have been governed by my family. The reign of my ancestors is passed and mine is going to expire. Fatigued by the cares of war, the cares of the cabinet, and the weight of age, oppressed by the burdens and the solicitude of a reign of more than twenty years, I, your king and father, return into your hands what the world esteems above all things, a crown, and I choose for my throne six feet of earth, where I shall sleep in peace with my fathers."

Three more candidates for the throne—the Prince of Conde, supported by the primate and the great barons; the Prince of Neuberg, ally of Louis XIV. of France, and Charles of Lorraine, dominated by the Austrian influence—were mentioned. Dobieski, Grand Marshal of the Crown, became the partisan of Conde. Then came the cry for one of the old line, a Piast, from the Russian quarter of the field where the electors were assembled, and Michael Korybut was proclaimed king—and all unwillingly he took the crown.

The weak and inefficient Michael, so poor that he had not sufficient clothes and lived almost in poverty, ruled for only a short time and was succeeded by John Sobieski. The world well knows of the brilliant reign of that monarch, who withstood the Saracen and saved Vienna. As he entered the Austrian capital soldiers kissed the hoofprints which his horse made.

Once more the crown went begging, and young Stanislaus Leszczinski, a Polish Deputy, was chosen. The crown was literally foisted upon him by Charles of Sweden. A mere youth, he was proclaimed King of Poland. He once gave up the crown and returned to it again; in the meantime he had become the father-in-law of Louis XV. of France. His daughter was the beautiful Marie Leszczinska, whose portrait by Nattier is well known to all who enjoy the art of the period in which she lived.

Memoirs of Beautiful Countess Potocki.

And so the crown, a bauble of chance, was passed from one to another throughout the centuries. The Prussians overran Poland in 1795, and the first partition was made. Dreams of the recrudescence of a national spirit came in 1806, when Napoleon and his Grand Army swept over Russia and the Grand Duchy of Warsaw, formed of some of the old palatinates, was erected and toppled when the Grand Army was destroyed by harsh, relentless nature.

The beautiful Countess Potocki, whose name is familiar to thousands of Americans and whose picture hangs in many homes, wrote in her memoirs of that troublous time. She was the Greek wife of Stanislas Potocki and was noted throughout Europe for her beauty, charming personality and cleverness.

The crown of Poland disappears from the view of men, the Kings of Poland are no more. The Poles are scattered to the utmost parts of the earth.

They fight in the foreign legions of Napoleon, they gain victories for freedom in lands beyond the seas. Kosciusko and Pulaski offer their swords to Washington and gain high rank in the American army. Kosciusko returns to his native land and leads the Poles, sorely armed with scythes only, and defeats the Russians. He falls on another bloody field, as freedom shrieks, and, covered with wounds, is taken prisoner, to die later an exile in a foreign land.

BATHING IN EARLY DAYS

Almost Unknown Until the Time of of the Crusades

Most barbarians, judged by modern standards, were anything but cleanly in their personal habits. In England, France and Germany bathing was an almost unknown custom until after the Crusades. The pilgrims from the East brought home with them ideas of the bath as a help in the treatment of disease, and bathrooms were gradually introduced into the hospitals. From the hospitals the ideas of bathing spread generally. People who had been treated there saw the value of keeping the body clean in order to resist disease. The great plague that swept over Europe in the early years of the fourteenth century helped to teach this lesson. By the fifteenth century there was scarcely a large city that did not possess well-patronized public bathing establishments, although it was not until the seventeenth century that the Turkish bath was introduced, and not until the eighteenth century that sea bathing so common among the American Indians, was tried experimentally. Saturday was chosen as bathing time, and the reason is not difficult to imagine. On Sunday everybody was compelled to go to church, whether he would or not. As the Moslem in the East bathed before entering the mosque, so did the mediæval man before entering his church, only he must take his bath on Saturday afternoon in order to be clean the following day. There was even a distribution of bath money to the children whose parents were unable to pay for their baths.

Newsy Gleanings From British Isles

Solitary confinement as a punishment for girls in Chapelton Reformatory was strongly objected to at the Glasgow Juvenile Delinquency Board meeting. The discussion arose over a suggestion for a new isolation room.

Emigration and Desertion

Mr. James R. Motion, Inspector of Poor, at Glasgow, in his half-yearly report drew attention to the increasing number of desertions of families by emigrants, and expressed the opinion that the time was ripe for reciprocal legislation to deal with this class of offenders.

Leap into the Clyde

An exciting incident took place at Jamaica Bridge, Glasgow, when a man, supposed to be a sailor, attempted to enter the Clyde from the Broomielaw. He was prevented from doing so, but afterwards ran across the bridge to the Customs quayside where he jumped into the river. He was soon fished out, and arrested.

Boy Falls From Train

As a little boy, three-and-a-half years of age, son of William Prentice, a hatter and hosier, of Venvue street, Glasgow, was travelling with his mother on the railway to Clarkston, he fell from the train. According to his mother he just touched the handle when the door flew open. He sustained concussion of the brain.

Insured on Day of Death

Chief Constable Macnaughton, Inverness, received a communication from Merritt, British Columbia, inquiring for the relatives of a young Inverness man named D. J. MacLeod, who was killed on the railway in British Columbia. On the day of his death the young man took out an accident insurance policy, of which he made his mother, whose address he gave as Inverness, Scotland, his beneficiary.

Public House for Every Fifty Adults

The town of Caerwys, Wales, was stated by Mr. F. Llewellyn Jones, at the local sessions, to have one licensed house for every fifty adult inhabitants. On behalf of the temperance party, he was opposing the transfer of four licenses in the town.

Lost Charter Claimed

Criccieth became famous through Mr. Lloyd George's connection with the place and at the Criccieth Council meeting Mr. Rowland Hughes moved that the council should take steps towards restoring to Criccieth its charter of incorporation and creating a municipal corporation. He said that Criccieth was now of world-wide reputation, and it was high time to restore to it its lost charter. The resolution was adopted.

Railway Engines Lost

Some amusement was occasioned by the discovery in the stocktaking at the South-Eastern and Chatham Railway Works at Asford that two railway engines were missing.

Inquiries were made up and down the main lines, but no trace of their whereabouts could be found. One of the engines was of up-to-date pattern.

A local skit runs: "Passengers who sometimes lose, the train will be interested to learn that the railway company have lost the engines."

Land For Nothing

The Llanfyllin Rural Council discussed the housing problem as it affected Llanfair Caereinion and Llangynog. The chairman moved that Lord Powis be asked to give the land to the council as an inducement to build houses. Mr. Edward Jones: "You are asking for charity." The Chairman: "Yes. If he makes no use of it himself. I consider it's a dog-in-the-manger policy." The motion was carried, a member remarking: "I think we are starting very safe on the begging line."

Coroner Warns a Jury

The Manchester coroner warned a jury at Ashton-under-Lyne that they should return in accordance with the medical evidence, and not have regard to the Workmen's Compensation Act. The inquest was on John Williamson, aged fifty-six, a packer, who, it was stated, had strained himself while lifting a bale of cotton. Medical evidence showed that the man had died from natural causes and that death was not in any way due to the alleged strain.

The coroner said it did not matter one brass farthing what the jury's conclusions were with respect to any question under the Workmen's Compensation Act. If the relatives wished to take legal proceedings under the Workmen's Compensation Act that was a matter to be dealt with elsewhere.

The jury returned a verdict of "Death from natural causes."

TAKE SALTS TO FLUSH KIDNEYS

Eat Less Meat If You Feel Backachy or Have Bladder Trouble

Meat forms uric acid which excites and overworks the kidneys in their efforts to filter it from the system. Regular eaters of meat must flush the kidneys occasionally. You must relieve them like you relieve your bowels; removing all the acids, waste and poison, else you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get irritated, obliging you to get up two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids and flush off the body's urinous waste get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine and bladder disorders disappear. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys and stop bladder irritation. Jad Salts is inexpensive; harmless and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then, thus avoiding serious kidney and bladder diseases.

QUEER OLD MART

The Caledonian Provides Many Strange and Amazing Contrasts

There are many queer markets scattered over the face of the globe, but London, among its many other unique features, is the proud possessor of what is perhaps the strangest and most extraordinary of them all. At the Caledonian market, Islington, whence the great metropolis draws a large proportion of its meat supply, the cobbled pavements, with their countless rows of white-fenced pens, are usually given up to the display of fat stock, but on Fridays "a change comes o'er the spirit of the dream." The cobbled pavements are there, the white pens still break up the wide expanse, but no cattle or sheep are to be seen. On that day, says a writer in The Wide World Magazine, the great market is given over to a throng of miscellaneous traders, whose wares provide the most amazing contrasts imaginable. There is nothing in the whole gamut of human devices and needs which one may not come across displayed in some odd collection set forth on the cobblestones. The traders use few counters or stalls; each of them, whether he has a stock worth three or four hundred pounds or a few rusty old bolts and spindles to purchase for a shilling or two, dumps his wares on the pavement of the market. Moreover, at this remarkable place there are markets within markets, each taking its regular turn and place during the day and then packing up and vanishing. The market was opened by Prince Albert, Queen Victoria's consort, about sixty years ago.

GOT RID OF BRONCHITIS

The worst feature of bronchitis is the tendency to return year after year until the system is worn out and gives way to consumption, or other disease.

Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine owes much of its great popularity to the fact that it positively cures bronchitis, and this is about as severe a test as can be made of a medicine of this kind.

Mr. W. H. Walker, Calmar, Alta., writes: "I am pleased to say that Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine has done much good to myself, wife and children. My eldest girl, seven years, had bronchitis, and the doctor who attended her did not seem to do much good. We got Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linsed and Turpentine for her, and she soon got well. We always keep this medicine in the house now ready for use, and find that it soon cures coughs and colds."

In fighting diseases of the throat and lungs half the battle is in having Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine at hand to be used promptly. This is why many people prefer to buy the large family size bottle.

WONDERFUL GARDENS

Horticulture and Floriculture in Its Most Attractive Phases

The kingly castle of Windsor is well known. Not so, however, the private gardens, which form part of the royal domain and are approached from the castle by a drive through part of the forest where monarch and prince have followed the chase, says E. T. Cook.

The gardens reflect the domestic attributes of the Royal family and artistic perceptions of the right use of powers in relation to tree and shrub have not been simply the will of the landscape gardener but the realization of well considered schemes of the King and Queen. Roses, roses all the way, flood the gardens with color and the air with drowsy fragrance, the incense of a pleasaunce fair, in which kings and queens, princes and princesses have sought sanctuary from the stress of public life. The gardens represent the skill of the landscape artist in its ripest development, and the rosary is a flowery retreat wherein all the most beautiful variations are completely represented, from the old-world "moss" of childhood days to those that waft a very pot-pourri of scents into the June air. Noble trees adorn the pleasure grounds of both Frogmore and Sandringham, but the exquisite surroundings of the Royal mausoleums, the perfect peace that breathes over these hallowed resting places of the noble dead fulfil the mission of a garden conceived in a way to weld the natural and the artificial into one complete and wonderful whole.

One of the most marked features of the Royal gardens and their surroundings are the trees, many of the most perfect in the world. Casting shade over the tea rooms in which Queen Victoria in the evening of her glorious reign passed many restful hours are the two famous evergreen oaks. Horticulture in its most splendid phases is the glory of Frogmore. Roses are the most treasured of the galaxy of flowers that entrances the Royal orchid and carnation, as well as the modest, perfumed violet, and the plants are grown in ways rarely seen even in places where the gardening art is practised assiduously.

A crimson rambler rose grown over an arch-like foundation of wirework is a blaze of color from its thousand sparkling blooms, a huge snowdrift of white comes from the aimee vibert, and as one wanders on fresh pictures are unfolded. An avenue of fruit trees—peach, nectarine, apricot and pear, leads to acres filled with those trained in many forms, and a glow of color is seen as the glasshouses are approached, well filled at this season with a throng of varie-hued chrysanthemums, grapes and other fruits brought to unsullied perfection under the kindly influence of artificial conditions.

Remarkable School Records

The Flintshire Education Committee reports that eighty-three children have attended school for an unbroken period of not less than six years. Two of them have attended every time the school has been open during the past nine years, six during eight years, and twenty-three during seven years. All these children will receive special prizes of medals.

SIXTEEN YEARS' FEUD.

Murder Trial Is Culmination of Persecution of Family.

STE. SCHOLASTIQUE, Que., Feb. 20.—The father, mother and sister of young John McGibbon, sat in the witness box at the McGibbon murder trial yesterday and told how he met his death at the hands of his cousin, Leonard McGibbon, on Aug. 21 last. The aged father, John McGibbon, sr., told a graphic story of persecution on the part of his brother, Peter McGibbon, and the latter's two sons, covering a period of sixteen years and culminating in the violent death of his only son. The sister, Elizabeth McGibbon, a witness of the tragedy, was still being examined when court adjourned for the day.

Voted $2,500,000 For Roads.

WINNIPEG, Feb. 20.—The Manitoba Legislature has found it necessary on the eve of prorogation to rush through a bill for two and a half million dollars. The money is to be used under the Good Roads Act passed at the present session. Yesterday afternoon Provincial Treasurer Strong explained that it had been found that there was no provision in the Good Roads Act for raising the two and a half million dollars required.

Inflammable Darts For Aeroplanes.

DUBUC, France, Feb. 20.—An inflammable dart for use by aeroplanes was tested yesterday in the presence of military air experts with satisfactory results. The dart carries a small reservoir containing gasoline which explodes on contract. Its purpose is to set fire to dirigible balloons or buildings. Three of the darts were dropped yesterday from an aeroplane at an altitude of 600 feet and found their mark.

Another Pedlar Murder.

WINNIPEG, Feb. 20.—The murdered body of a Brandon, Man., pedlar, named Alex. See-e, missing five weeks, was found yesterday north of Edrans, Man., between Portage and Carberry, hidden under the logs and snow in a clump of willows. This is the third murder of pedlars in recent years in this locality.

Comb Sage Tea In Lifeless, Gray Hair

If Mixed With Sulphur It Darkens So Naturally Nobody Can Tell

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and abundant with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair fell out or took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, ready to use, for about 50 cents. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural colour and beauty to the hair and is splendid for dandruff, dry, itchy scalp and falling hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the grey hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural colour and looks glossy, soft and abundant.

The ceremony was attended by the American charge d'affaires and the other members of diplomatic corps.

BIG TANK DESTROYED.

C. P. R. Structure at Agincourt Was Nearing Completion.

AGINCOURT, Feb. 20. — In the space of an hour Wednesday night the huge water tank here, which was in the course of construction by the C.P.R. to accommodate the increased traffic owing to the opening of the line along the Ontario shore, became a heap of ashes and scrap iron. About eight o'clock in the evening flames were seen issuing from the roof of the tank, but before help could be secured the situation was hopeless. How the fire originated is a mystery. There have been no fire in the building since it was begun last October, and everything was as usual when the workmen left their work at 5.30 last night. The loss is estimated at about $15,000.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A Ring and A Letter

The Latter Was More Valuable Than the Former

By DWIGHT NORWOOD

Going to my room at my hotel one morning after breakfast, I was surprised to see a young lady coming out. I glanced at the number on the door, wondering if I were not about to make a mistake. No; there were the figures 24, and No. 24 was my room.

"Where are you going, sir?" she asked haughtily.

"Into my room."

"Your room?"

"Yes, my room."

"I beg your pardon, this is my room."

"I beg to differ with you."

The young lady was becoming angry. Her cheeks flushed, and her eyes flashed. At that period of my life a pretty girl showing fight was an attractive object to me. Now, an elderly woman under the same circumstances is just the reverse. I was amused at this young lady's heat, especially since I knew she was wrong.

"WHERE ARE YOU GOING, SIR?"

"What is the number of your room?" I asked her.

"No. 24."

"Are you sure?"

"Yes, of course I'm sure. Don't you suppose I know the number of my room?"

What should I do? I couldn't very well go into the room with the lady to investigate matters. Noticing a speaking tube for the use of the employees of the hotel, I said to the girl:

"Suppose you ask the clerk to give you the number of your room."

"I'll do no such thing. Do you suppose I'm going to let him think I've lost my senses?"

"Perhaps I am the one that is mistaken. I'll ask him myself."

I stepped to the tube, whistled and, receiving attention, said:

"Give me the number of my room, Eldridge."

The young lady was not so far from the tube but that she could hear the reply:

"No. 24, Mr. Eldridge."

The young girl's look of astonishment was very amusing. She came for the tube like a whirlwind, scarcely giving me time to get out of her way.

"What's the number of Miss Chalmers' room?" she asked.

"What name?"

"Chalmers—Marian Chalmers."

"One moment, please."

The girl waited impatiently while the clerk was evidently consulting the records. Presently the reply came:

"Miss Chalmers' room is 34."

I have never seen a madder girl. Without a word to me she strode to a staircase and disappeared. I went into my room. There was nothing of mine in it except a suit case, and that was where it would not be noticed. On the porcelain washstand was a ring and beside it a letter addressed in a feminine hand to Charles P. Atwood, U. S. A. It was sealed and stamped, ready for the post. I was not willing to trust my reputation in the hands of so impetuous a person, so, catching up both ring and letter, I hurried downstairs and gave them to the clerk for safe keeping. I told him the circumstance connected with my turning them in and asked him not to notify Miss Chalmers of their receipt till I asked him to do so.

"When the young lady misses them I think we shall have a cyclone," I remarked.

"Quite probably," he said, with a smile.

I returned to my room and had not been there ten minutes when I received a message from the clerk that Miss Chalmers would like to meet me in the public parlor at once. I gave her a little time to cool, then went to the parlor.

"Through my mistake," she said, "I left a letter and a ring in your room. Will you kindly give them to me?"

"Here is the key to the room. You may go or send there to recover your property."

"Please do give me the letter," she said in a pleading tone. "You may keep the ring."

This was adding insult to injury, but it did not irritate me in the slightest. If thus insulted by a man I would have turned on my heel and left him. But I was becoming every moment charmed with this wayward creature.

"You are inclined to be complimentary," I replied.

There was something connected with the letter that deprived Miss Chalmers of any reasonableness she may have possessed in her calmer moments. She plunged deeper into the quicksand.

"Do tell me if you have posted my letter."

"I assure you that I have not done anything of the kind."

This seemed to give her some relief. "I'll do this for you," I said. "I'll go to my room and if I find anything there belonging to you I'll bring it to you."

"Will you? Oh, how kind! I knew you for a gentleman the moment I laid eyes on you."

"Indeed!" I replied with difficulty, restraining a smile.

In order to preserve the letter if not the spirit of truth, I went to my room, then to the hotel office and asked the clerk to give me the ring. He did so, and I returned with it to the young lady, who was impatiently waiting for me.

"Here is your ring," I said, handing it to her.

"The letter?"

"It is not there."

"Oh, heavens!" she moaned.

I don't pretend to excuse myself for my action on this occasion, except on the ground that "all's fair in love and war." And this excuse may be far-fetched. From the lady's action, I fancied that this Mr. Atwood was an object of interest to Miss Chalmers, and my own interest in her was developing with lightning rapidity.

"Are you quite sure," I asked, "that you did not post it?"

"No, I did not, thank goodness, but I nearly did. I put it into a letter box, but I held on to one corner and didn't drop it."

"Are you fearful of its reaching the wrong person?" I asked, throwing sympathy into my voice.

"I'm fearful of its reaching the right person."

"Can't you write a letter recalling it?"

"The person for whom it was intended starts for the Philippines tomorrow morning. But that isn't the chief difficulty in the way. To recall it would expose a contemptible fickleness."

"A lady is always privileged to change her mind, you know."

"If she says 'No' a change may be excusable, but if she says 'Yes' it's a very different matter."

My conscience, which should have restrained me in holding this advantage over the girl and permitting her to tell her affairs to a stranger, was really growing weaker all the while under the excuse I have offered, for I was becoming very anxious to discover whether all was fixed between my charmer and this army man. Her last statement was a dead giveaway. It was now plain to me that the letter in question was an acceptance and that that acceptance was regretted. Such being the case, the pleasure I had taken in tormenting her ceased, and I began to plan how I could return her property without incriminating myself.

"I have an idea," I said, pretending to think very hard.

"About what?" she asked eagerly.

"What has become of your letter."

"Do tell me."

"No; should I be mistaken you will meet with a disappointment. Remain here for a few minutes while I make an investigation."

She followed me eagerly with her eyes as I left the room. I went to the clerk of the hotel and asked him to take the letter I had given him to Miss Chalmers' room and leave it on the dresser. He assented, and on his return I asked him to send a maid to the room and bring it to me. When the maid did so I took her with me to the parlor and told her to give it to Miss Chalmers.

The look of relief on the lady's face was a sight to behold.

"Where did you find it?" she asked the maid.

"On the dresser in room 34, miss."

"Are you sure?"

"Yes, miss."

"I can explain it," I said, continuing my Anannias performance. "When you met me this morning you were very much rattled. Indeed, you said some very unkind things to me."

"Forgive me."

"You must have thought you left the letter in my room, whereas it was all the while on your dresser."

"I wonder if I did."

"I am certainly very happy to be the instrument for the return of that which you seem to prize so highly."

"I wish I could reward you for your kindness and make up for my horrid treatment of you."

"You can."

"How?"

"By permitting this episode to result in a permanent acquaintance."

"I am pleased to do so. I live in Chicago, and if you are ever in that city I should be happy to have you call on me."

"I go there frequently."

I had never been there in my life, but this was the only truth I told on that eventful day, for during the next four months I did go there frequently for no other purpose than to court Miss Chalmers.

After our wedding I made a confession to my wife. I have said that she was mad when she departed with me about the room in the hotel, but that mad was not a circumstance to the mad she developed at my confession.

NORTHERN ONTARIO HAS GREAT FUTURE

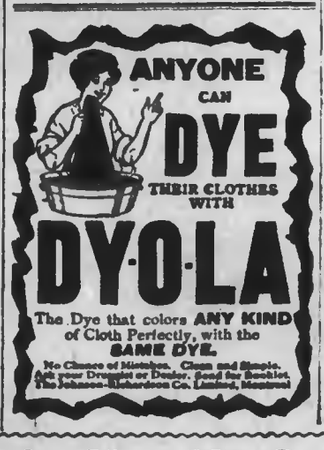
Uninhabited Wilderness of Forests and Lakes Being Transformed Into Peopled Region

Without attracting much notice from the older and more settled parts of Canada, the northern portion of Ontario is being gradually transformed from an uninhabited wilderness of forests and lakes into a civilized region dotted with small towns and homesteads with a strong individuality of its own.

A traveller who recently visited Northern Ontario expressed himself enthusiastically with regard to the prospects of that portion of the Dominion.

"In ten years that country will be like a new Province," he said. "It will not be like old Ontario—not in the least. Neither will it be like the Western plains or like British Columbia. I am not speaking in a partisan way when I say that the future administration of old Ontario will have to stretch their powers and their imaginations in order to do justice to this new region. In fact, it is going to be hard to treat it as part of old Ontario. That clay belt will support an enormous population. There will be great cities up there and whole counties that know not Toronto, except as a far-off report."

The speaker went on to point out that when New Ontario is once developed it will have a strong set of characteristics of its own. He pointed out that the very toil which is necessary in order to clear the land will call for the best kind of settlers and will bring out rugged qualities in the children of these settlers. The population of New Ontario is still small. It is getting a splendid type of settler, chiefly from Old Ontario but many are men from Europe, who have been employed in the mines to the south, and who have reverted to the soil. The farmers of this region are producing excellent foodstuffs and finding ready markets in the mining camps to the south. They pay little attention to wheat growing except on a small scale. Practically every farm, no matter how small the clearing, is going in for mixed farming.



The Bar Wins

It costs money to put soap into cakes and it doesn't improve the soap. See this: One bar of N.P. SOAP at 15 cents weighs more than four 5¢ cakes of soap—more than 5 cakes of some. And ask any woman if N.P. isn't the best soap.

When The Stomach Goes Back to Work

Then Is the Whole System Glad. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets Will Quickly Put the Stomach In Shape.

When the stomach fails to do its work properly the whole machine of man is unstrung and wholly incapable of work. This condition obtains from the tiniest nerve to the big, strong, pumping heart.

It is a wise law of nature that has made the stomach man's strongest organ, but when it stops work man ought to realize that it does so because it can continue no longer.

"Hooray! Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets Are the Real Appetite Bringers."

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will certainly give the stomach the repair it needs and is always crying aloud for.

A tablet taken after each meal will in the course of several hours become a portion of the digestive fluids It will build up these fluids. First in the stomach, then in the intestines.

The liver is the storehouse of the body. Here are assembled all the reserve fluids of the system and here the various ingredients of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets mingle with the faulty natural juices and strengthen them, or if they are too strong then they will be reduced to their proper strength and proportion.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets contain a single ingredient, one grain of which is sufficient to digest 3000 grains of food. Just think how gratefully such an element is received into a body that cannot digest at all without a new weakening of the already depleted juices.

Go to your druggist this very day and obtain a box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, price 50 cents. A week's trial will make you a new man and your stomach will go back to work.

Young Hero Saves Brother.

BROCKVILLE, Feb. 20. — Wilfrid Dillabough, aged 13 years, performed a heroic act in rescuing his brother Percy, aged eight, who had fallen into an unprotected well. SICK, SOUR STOMACH, INDIGESTION OR GAS

Take "Pape's Diapepsin" and in five minutes you'll wonder what became of misery in stomach

Wonder what upset your stomach—which portion of the food did the damage—do you? Well, don't bother. If your stomach is in a revolt, if sour, gassy and upset, and what you just ate has fermented into stubborn lumps; head dizzy and aches; belch gases and acids and eructate undigested food; breath foul, tongue coated—just take a little Pape's Diapepsin and in five minutes you wonder what became of the indigestion and distress.

Millions of men and women to-day know that it is needless to have a bad stomach. A little Diapepsin occasionally keeps this delicate organ regulated and they eat their favourite foods without fear.

If your stomach doesn't take care of your liberal limit without rebellion; if your food is a damage instead of a help, remember the quickest, surest most harmless relief is Pape's Diapepsin which costs only fifty cents for a large case at drug stores. It's truly wonderful—it digests food and sets things straight, so gently and easily that it is really astonishing. Please, for your sake, don't go on and on with a weak, disordered stomach—it's so unnecessary.

CHARGED WITH OUTRAGE.

Watchman Is Arraigned In Connection With Bomb Affair.

SARNIA, Feb. 20.—Tom Lyons, a watchman on the new Northern Navigation steamer Noronic, is in custody, charged with attempting to blow up the home of Thomas Taylor at Point Edward.

He was given a hearing before Magistrate Fleck, who remanded the case until Friday. One of the witnesses stated that Lyons had told him that he was going to blow up the place, and even told him how.

Lyons was a former boarder at the Taylor home and was turned out to make room for Charles Webster, the old man who was slightly injured in the explosion.

NINE ARE CHOSEN.

Sir Wilfrid's Advice Taken on Redistribution Committee.

OTTAWA, Feb. 20.—The special committee to make the Parliamentary distribution was named by Premier Borden upon the second reading of the redistribution bill at the opening of the House yesterday afternoon.

The committee consists of Postmaster-General Pelletier, Hon. Robert Rogers, Hon. J. D. Reid, E. N. Rhodes of Cumberland, N.S., and R. B. Bennett (Calgary), Conservatives, and Messrs. Buchanan (Medicine Hat), Pardee (West Lambton), Beland (Beauce), and Macdonald (Pictou, N.S.), Liberals.

Long Sault Rapids Frozen.

OGDENSBURG, N.Y., Feb. 20.—Long Sault Rapids present an unusual appearance as a result of the extreme cold in this region. Normally forming one of the roughest stretches of the St. Lawrence river, they are to-day wholly tranquil, frozen smooth from bank to bank. At almost any point persons can cross on the ice, where ordinarily the current is so swift that a boat cannot traverse it.

MOTHER! IS CHILD'S STOMACH SOUR, SICK?

If tongue is coated or if cross, feverish, constipated give "California Syrup of Figs"

Don't scold your fretful, peevish child. See if tongue is coated; this is a sure sign its little stomach, liver, and bowels are clogged with sour waste.

When listless, pale, feverish, full of cold, breath bad, throat sore, doesn't eat, sleep or act naturally, has stomach-ache, indigestion, diarrhoea, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul waste, the sour bile and fermenting food passes out of the bowels and you have a well and playful child again. Children love this harmless "fruit laxative," and mothers can rest easy after giving it, because it never fails to make their little "insides" clean and sweet.

Keep it handy, Mother! A little given to-day saves a sick child to-morrow, but get the genuine. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Remember there are counterfeits sold here, so surely look and see that yours is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." Hand back with contempt any other fig syrup.

Opposition Demands Prompt Action by Government

MR. FOSTER LOOKS ABROAD

OTTAWA, Feb. 20.—Ocean freight rates and the power of Parliament to control transportation at sea engaged the attention of Parliament yesterday, there being a spirited and somewhat protracted debate in committee of supply, after a brief explanation by Hon. Mr. Foster of the work of the Imperial Trade Commission, upon which he represents the Dominion of Canada.

W. F. Maclean (Con., S. York) asked if the Imperial Trade Commission was seized of the question of ocean freight rates.

Mr. Foster, in reply, said that during the Parliamentary recess the Dominion Government had sent Chairman Drayton of the Railway Commission to England for the purpose of having a joint commission appointed by the United Kingdom and Canada to enquire into the question. The British Government had not received this proposal with favor, partly because the general subject of ocean freight rates had been already committed to the investigation of the Imperial Trade Commission.

As a member of that commission, he could assure the House that some investigations had already been made in England and in Australia, and the inquisition would be continued when the commission visited Canada. No nation, he said, could exert any control over ocean freight rates, but such control might be acquired by international agreement, or possibly by joint arrangement between Great Britain and Canada.

W. F. Maclean said that he could not endorse this view. The ocean combine was effective to-day, and levied the heaviest tax which the Canadian farmer had to pay. It would take a long time for the Imperial Royal Commission to make a report at all, and then many delays might follow before any agreement could be reached between the Dominion and the Imperial Government. The question was too vital to be surrendered to a royal commission, over which the Parliament of Canada had no control. Mr. Maclean went on to discuss the bearing of railway rates and lake shipping combines upon the question.

Hon. Mr. Foster suggested to the chairman that the discussion had gone far afield and should be checked.

Mr. Knowles (Moose Jaw) took issue with Mr. Foster on this point. The item before the committee, he said, was a vote for the Imperial Trade Commission, and one purpose of that commission was to enquire into ocean freight rates.

The situation in the west, he declared, was a critical one. The farmers were not allowed to sell to the United States, but were compelled to export their surplus wheat to England. This gave the monopoly to the Canadian transportation companies which they took advantage of to rob the farmer.

Hon. Frank Oliver said that the price of wheat in the world's market between 1907 and 1913 had fallen from $1.23 per bushel to 98 cents per bushel, while the cost of producing and marketing had largely increased. It cost a great deal more to produce the wheat, and 15 cents a bushel more to market it.

The rate by lake had risen per 1,000 bushels from $10 to $20, and on the ocean from $40 to $75. It was also to be noted that our Canadian wheat was largely going in American bottoms to American ports. The transportation combine will hurt the east as well as the west.

Hon. Mr. Foster said the question of ocean freight rates was not a new one. The late Chairman Mabee of the Railway Commission had suggested to the Laurier Government the formation of a joint commission. In 1910, the Laurier Government had communicated with the Colonial Office and the Imperial Government had indicated its willingness to join in the formation of such a tribunal, but there the matter had been allowed to drop.

Mr. W. H. Bennett (East Simcoe) challenged some of the statements made respecting the combine on the great lakes. The American vessels outnumbered the Canadian ten to one, so that a Canadian combine would be unable to control rates. The rate from Fort William to Georgian Bay ports could never be higher than from Fort William to Buffalo, otherwise all our grain would go through American channels.

Mr. McCrea (Sherbrooke), who is a practical lumber man, said that the farmers were not being held up by the ocean combine to the same extent as were the lumbermen. The rate upon lumber from Gaspe to Liverpool had been advanced from $4.50 to $6 per 1,000 feet board measure, and the rate upon square timber had been still more increased.

Fatally Injured By Tree.

LONDON, Ont., Feb. 20.—Thomas Watkins, aged 63, of the second concession of Westminster Township, was fatally injured in the woods near his home yesterday, when a tree he was cutting down fell on him. A doctor who was summoned discovered that the man had sustained a fracture of the leg at the thigh, a triple fracture of one arm, and injuries to his head. An ambulance was summoned to bring him into the city to a hospital, but in the meantime he succumbed to his injuries.

Havoc To Orange Crop.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Feb. 20.—Two lives were claimed and damage estimated at from $500,000 to $1,000,000 was wrought by the storm which sent a record rain to six southern California counties during the last two days. At several points near Los Angeles a precipitation of from six to eight inches was recorded between midnight Tuesday and 8 a.m. yesterday. The orange growing section and the railroads suffered the most.

Car Shops Close Down.

ST. THOMAS, Feb. 20.—Five hundred employes in the locomotive and car departments of the Michigan Central shops, as they filed out at the close of the day's work, read a notice on the order board that their services would not be required again until Monday, March 2.

Master Mechanic Webb, in reply to a question as to the reason, stated that it was simply "a lack of funds."

HOW TO STOP YOUR HAIR FROM FALLING

By a Scalp Specialist.

It isn't the bald headed man or woman who needs or wants a hair remedy most. The majority of people with bald, shiny scalps have long since resigned themselves to fate and either wear a wig or go about as living examples of warning to the countless thousands of others whose hair is merely "growing thin" and coming out at an alarming rate. These people are in the initial stages of a dangerous scalp condition which must inevitably lead to certain and complete baldness unless prompt and effective measures are taken. Most of my patients, both men and women, are of this very class and almost invariably I find their trouble due to one and the same cause. I then prescribe a simple remedy which I have used for years and which I know has preserved the hair of thousands of people, saving them from complete baldness. A combination of dandruff germ and mal-nutrition of the hair root has done the damage in nearly every case. The root has become devitalised by this attack upon it both from without and within and the muscular tissues which are designed to hold and protect the hair also have become relaxed and flabby. To effect a cure and save the hair the scalp must not only be cleansed of dandruff scales, but the germ life itself must be permanently and completely destroyed and the scalp tissues must be forced to assimilate through the pores a form of nourishment that will promptly check the falling of old hair and start a growth of new hair. For such a purpose I believe nothing is so effective as a lotion which anyone can prepare at home or have any druggist mix for them. Dissolve one-half drachm of Menthol Crystals (about 10c worth) in 6 oz. of Bay Rum. Pour in an 8 oz. bottle and add 3 oz. of Lavona (de Composee). Shake well and allow to stand one hour before using. Used as indicated above and applied night and morning, rubbing into the scalp with the finger tips, this hair remedy is unequalled. A few days' use and you cannot find a single loose or straggling hair, dandruff will disappear and itching cease and in about ten days you will find your scalp covered with fine, downy new hairs and these hairs will grow with amazing rapidity.

1183 ARRESTS MADE DURING THE YEAR EVER-GROWING POLICE COURT RECORD

The Civic Treasury Benefits to the Extent of Several Thousand Dollars—Annual Report of the Police Department.

CASES INCREASING

There are few annual reports of more general interest than the one which issues from the Police Department. Literally speaking, its pages portray the half-tones and shadows of the city. It contains a figurative exemplification of the immorality that is common to thickly populated centres, and brings indisputable testimony to bear upon the need of an adequate and efficient Police Department.

Peterborough's police force has almost doubled within the past five years, but the increase in the criminal record for the year 1913 makes all the more patent the fact that the expansion is justified. The annual report of the department does not reveal in its entirety the amount of crime that has its initiation in Peterborough. It merely exposes that which, by force of circumstances, has been brought within the shadow of the law.

A Large Increase.

Chief of Police Thompson's fourth annual report, which was submitted to the Board of Police Commissioners this afternoon, shows a large increase in the number of cases disposed of in the Police Court during the year 1913. Among other things noted is the fact that murder is not included in the calendar for the year.

The number of arrests made during the year total eight hundred and forty-six, while a total of one thousand one hundred and eighty-three cases were disposed of in Police Court. The total number of cases for the previous year was six hundred and nipety. The increase for 1913 is four hundred and ninety-three cases.

Fees and Costs.

The fees and costs collected and handed over to the City Treasurer for 1913 total $3,212.99. For 1912, total $2,231.00; increase, $981.99.

The ages of persons apprehended and cited during the year 1913 were as follow:

Magistrate Edmison Deals With Case This Morning in Which Young Men Were Involved

MATTER IS SETTLED

Three men, Frank Longdo, Wesley Crowter and Brock Wright, appeared before Magistrate Edmison this morning, charged with stealing the hides of four horses belonging to Mr. A. A. Branson.

Mr. G. N. Gordon conducted the case for the accused, while Mr. Wearing appeared as Crown Prosecutor.

Some time ago, Mr. Branson had three horses killed by a C.P.R. train. The carcasses were removed to a nearby held, where, it is alleged, that the skins were taken off.

It was the object of the defence to prove that the skins were not taken with any criminal intent, the accused having thought that the animals had been abandoned. The field in which they had been placed, was a bog, and according to the defence, it was the object of Mr. Bronson in placing them there, that when the mild weather came, their bodies would be buried in the bog. That, the prosecutor said, was not the case. Here Mr. Gordon ejected that any rate it should not be, as there was an incinerator in Peterborough, which would consume anything at all ,horses included, and even went to the extent of consuming a considerable portion of the public money.

The accused admitted their guilt in taking the skins, but their counsel would endeavour to show that it was done without any criminal intent whatever. The evidence was then proceeded with.

The first witness was W. A. Brownson. When the horses were killed he left them till the following morning, when he, with the consent of a neighbouring farmer, Mr. Price dragged them into an adjoining field, where he left them, intending to have them skinned. He engaged a man for this purpose, and when he went to do the work, he found the skins taken. Cross examined by Mr. Gordon, he said that it was his intention to leave them there until the spring, when they would disappear into the bog. Evidence was also given for the prosecution by Mr. Price and Mr. B. Lee, at the conclusion of which the Magistrate asked if some arrangement could not be made between the counsels.

Mr. Gordon said that the accused were willing to pay for the skins.

This course was agreed to by the Crown, and notes for the amount were duly signed.

Fine Of $20 Was Imposed

In the Case of Lech vs. Proffett This Morning

This morning at 11 o'clock in the County Council Chambers, Magistrate Edmison rendered judgment in the case of Lech vs. Proffet. Proffet, it will be remembered was charged with doing injury to a valuable hound belonging to Mr. Lech. The defence offered by Proffet was that the dog was on his property. Magistrate Edmison, in rendering judgment, said that the expenses of the case were rather large, amounting to $10.91. The fine imposed was $2. I am satisfied, said the Magistrate, that Mr. Lech should receive some compensation for the injury done, as the expenses of a veterinary surgeon and several other items had to be taken into consideration. The whole amounted to $22.00, which was paid into court.

FIFTEEN DAYS FOR MOTORIST

Special Wire to The Examiner:

TORONTO, Feb. 20.—A sensation of more than usual proportions was caused in police court to-day by the sentencing of Dr. E. Ray Tyrer, a young and well known member of the medical fraternity to fifteen days in jail on a charge of doing grievious bodily harm, while in charge of a motor car, to G. R. Roberts, an elderly man, at the intersection of Church and Shuter Streets. The evidence of five witnesses, that Dr. Tyrer was drunk at the time of the accident, influenced the court towards conviction.

AMMUNITION CAUSED LOSS OF THE TROPHY

Special to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, Feb. 20.—Lieut.-Col. Helmer, reporting to-day on the Palma trophy contest, says that it was the ammunition used by the Canadians in that contest last year that was responsible for their defeat. The rifles and riflemen he says, were in excellent condition.

PROBABILITIES.

LISTOWELL TO HAVE A YOUNG PEOPLE'S BUILDING

LISTOWEL, Feb. 20.—E. D. Smith, a wealthy bachelor farmer, aged sixty, caused a sensation here to-day when he called on the Mayor and announced that he would give a valuable site in the centre of the town, one hundred loads of gravel and one hundred loads of sand, toward building a place where young men and women can congregate rather than in picture theatres, pool rooms, hotels, etc. The town will take up his offer.

DEATH CLAIMS AN OLD RESIDENT OF MARIPOSA

Mr. Richard Dowson, of Bailieboro, Passed Away Yesterday—Was in His 90th Year

A STRENUOUS LIFE

An old and highly respected resident of South Monaghan passed away yesterday in the person of Richard Dawson.

Deceased was born March 27th, 1824, nearly ninety years ago. He was probably the oldest living man who first saw the light of day in South Monaghan. He was one year old before the Hon. Peter Robinson brought his army of Irish immigrants to Peterborough. The late Mr. Dawson was the fifth child of the family and the fourth one born in Canada, so it is well nigh a century since his father, the late William Dawson, left Yorkshire, England, and settled in Monaghan.

The late Richard Dawson was born

MR. RICHARD DAWSON,

Whose Death Occurred Yesterday at His Home in Bailieboro, at the Advanced Age of 90 Years.

on Lot 7, Concession 2, South Monaghan. His brother, William, was the first child born in the Township. In all there was a family of seven; the only other surviving member is a younger sister of the deceased, Mrs. Gillandrs, now living in British Columbia. When the late Mr. Dawson was twenty-five he left the parental roof and married Miss Harriet Barnard, of East City. The late Mrs. Dawson passed away in 1884, leaving a family of seven children, the youngest is now deceased. They are as follows: Mrs. N. Kerr, Mich.; Mrs. W. Wood, Hope, Mrs. John Perrin, W. E. Dawson of St. Marys, and J. W. Dawson and Harriet, at home.

In politics, the late Mr. Dawson was a Liberal and has always been a close student of public affairs. He was a member of the Methodist Church, Bailieboro.

Judgment For The Plaintiffs

In the Case of the Computing Scales Co. vs. Thos. E. Hall

Judgment was rendered by Judge Huycke this morning in the case of the Computing Scales Company of Canada versus Thos. E. Hall. By mutual consent of counsels the case was heard before His Honour this morning. The claim of the plaintiffs was to recover the possession of four scales, and costs, of $30.

The defendant denied that he had unlawfully detained the scales, and denied possession of the said goods.

His Honour gave judgment in favour of plaintiffs, giving them possession of the chattels without cots.

Hall, Medd & Davidson acted for the defence, while Mr. E. W. Hatton conducted the case for the plaintiff.

THE SUDDEN DEATH OF MR. JOHN GRAHAM

Well Known Resident of Otonabee Seized With Apoplexy and Dies Within an Hour

SHOCK TO HIS FRIENDS

The Township of Otonabee is today mourning the loss of one of its oldest and most highly respected members. Death came very suddenly yesterday morning to Mr. John Graham, who resided on lot 27, concession 7, Otonabee. He partook of his breakfast and was in his usual good health, and left afterwards to work in the woods. When he had been but an hour engaged at his occupation he felt a sudden illness, and told the lad was with him that he had better go home. The latter helped him into the cutter, but death occurred from apoplexy before the house was reached.

Mr. Graham had always enjoyed the most robust health, and it was a decided shock to the community to hear of his sudden demise. He was well known and the sterling qualities that he possessed had gained for him the friendship of the whole community. He leaves to mourn his loss, a wife, three sons and two daughters.

The funeral arrangements, which are not yet completed, will be announced later.

SUCCESSFUL "AT HOME" BY "C" COMPANY

Enjoyable Event Held at the Armouries Last Night

A very successful At Home was held by "C" Company at the Armouries on Thursday, Feb. 19, Col. Clegg, Major Mills, Capt. Carruthers, Lieuts. Comstock and Tomlin being present. The reserve forces were represented by the well-known veteran, Colonel Miller. The first part of the evening consisted of a splendid musical programme, rendered by members of "C" Company.

The stage presented a pleasing appearance, being augmented by "footlights," the work of Private E. Bartle. Private F. W. Wainwright presided, and in a neat speech welcomed the visitors. The "White Coons" Orchestra gave a couple of selections in splendid style. Private Custance, the "Contented Coon" charmed the audience with his singing and dancing breakdown, an encore being loudly demanded. Mr. Fred Hartshorn was at his best as a dry and humorous comedian, and the Hartshorn quartette was good. Corporal Nicholls was an ideal "Cockney Scotchman," in that well-known song, "What's the Use of a Pair of Kilts," and, later in the evening, obliged with that popular nautical song "Three For Jack." Lieut. Brooks of the 3rd Dragoons once more showed his good will to the Company by giving a recitation in his own inimitable style. A break from the humorous side was provided by Pte. "Bert" Hartshorn, who ably sang the Bedouin's Love Song, which was well received. Colonels Clegg and Miller expressed their pleasure at being present and spoke a few inspiring words to the "boys".

A vote of thanks to the artistes and comittee was proposed by Capt. Carruthers and seconded by Lieut. Comstock.

At 9.30 refreshments were served, and at 10 o'clock a move was made to the band room, where, under the direction of Pte. F. W. Wainwright, dancing was indulged in till 12 o'clock, Colonel and Mrs. Clegg leading off the dance, music being provided by members of the "White Coons" Orchestra. One of the most successful socials held this season was brought to a close this season ing of the National Anthem.

MONTHLY CONCERT.

St. George's Socley will hold their regular monthly concert in the Woodmen of the World Hall to-night at 8 o'clock.

Government's Neglect of the Toiler is Severely Condemned by the Leader of the Opposition and Amendment of Address in Reply to Speech From Throne Calls for a Department of Labour.

NEW MINISTRY IS NEEDED

TORONTO, Feb. 20.—Mr. N. W. Rowell, K.C., leader of the Opposition, opened attack on the Government in the Legislature yesterday, calling for immediate investigation into the conditions of unemployment in the province, and for the creation of a Department of Labor, presided over by a Minister, to bring about a betterment of social and industrial conditions in the province.

It was the first gun fired in the debate on the address in reply to the speech from the throne and emphasized the alertness of the Opposition to seize upon problems that are pressing in the public interest. Mr. Rowell said that while Ontario was in the vanguard of the nations in regard to prison reform, it was regretably backward in those matters of legislation which affected the conditions of the toiler.

Mr. Colin Cameron (Con., N. Grey), who moved the address in reply to the speech from the throne, referred in opening to the absence of Premier Whitney, and expressed a hope of his speedy return to the chamber.

There had been a general increase of prosperity in the province, said Mr. Campbell and conditions of farm life had shown steady improvement. He referred to the administration of the prisons and asylums, the achievements of the Hydro Electric Commission and to the approaching Workmen's Compensation Act.

Mr. George Henry (Con., N. York), took occasion in seconding the address to dispute the talk of rural depopulation. The statements were only partly true. The census of 1911 showed a large increase in the number holding five acres and upwards. He looked for a great improvement in conditions with the advent of better roads and Hydro-radials.

When Mr. Rowell took the floor his first remarks were by way of tribute to the absent Premier and to Hon. Dr. Pyne who had so patiently stood beside him in his illness.

After a reference to the completion of statute revision, which he said was quite unparalleled in its tardiness, he expressed his regret at the absence from the speech from the throne of any reference to assessment reform.

A proposal should have been brought down at least to show appreciation of the deep-seated desire of the people for his move. Anti-treating also had suffered from a gradual retreating. Had the Provincial Secretary blundered, or were his allies drawing the lines too tight?

Mr. Rowell then dealt with the industrial situation and the increase in unemployment. In both country and city was an increasing industrial unrest. By the 1911 census the rural population had decreased by 111,000 from that of forty years ago, and as the cities grew larger so did the social unrest increase. About 42,000 were directly affected by the conditions of Toronto, and the same state prevailed in London, Ottawa and Hamilton. A survey in London had shown that a family could not live on less than $597, and yet the average income of many was only $445. It was good to help men in prisons, but it was better to help them when out. The labor exchanges of the old land might work well here.

In conclusion, he moved that the Government consider steps to better the workmen's condition by uniting the bureau of labor and the factory inspection branch and that conditions be studied with a view to remedying the whole affair.

His amendment to the address also declared that existing conditions emphasized the need for a department of the Government presided over by a Minister to promote the betterment of the workers of the province.

Hon Mr. Hanna, in opening his speech in reply, predicted that Sir James would yet return to serve the country from his position in the House, an announcement received with great acclaim. He at once took exception to Mr. Rowell's remarks on the temperance situation and the liquor alliances of the Government.

"If the hon. gentleman will take the pains to analyze the returns of the bye-elections he will find that the figures are directly contrary to the statement that the Conservative party

HOUSE WAS DESTROYED

Home of Mr. Patrick O'Brien, Douro Was Consumed by Fire Yesterday Afternoon

STARTED IN CHIMNEY

The home of Patrick O'Brien, lot 5, concession 4, Douro, was destroyed by fire yesterday afternoon, very little of the contents being saved. The blaze is thought to have originated from the chimney. The men of the house were absent at the time and the fire had obtained considerable headway before it was detected. Neighbours were hurried to the rescue, but found the building in flames and nothing could be done to check the progress of the fire. The house, which was a frame structure, was burned to the ground.

WONDERFUL FEATURE FILM AT THE ROYAL

Manager Clayton of the Royal Theatre is announcing the inauguration of a new attraction for his already big programme in the shape of feature films which will be shown exclusively at the Royal and which will be the finest in their line shown anywhere. He has made arrangements with the Union and Consolidated Feature companies to supply the Royal all their biggest feature films. The first of these will be offered the first two days of the week in "The Tigress," a five-reel film that will prove a sensation. "The Star of India," another spectacular picture in five reels, will be shown on Wednesday and Thursday, while for the last two days of the week 'The Rogues of Paris," another five-reel feature, will be the offering. Manager Clayton is going to big expense to secure these attractions and to put on a show that will please the patrons who like feature films. He is building a bigger and better show all the time, planning for the future when the alterations are made in the Royal. Mr. Clayton will offer a programme that is duplicated no where for the admission price, 10 to cents.

THE WEATHER

The thermometer this morning was down to nine below zero. Every night since the 8th inst., with the exception of yesterday morning, we have had zero temperatures. Such a continued cold spell is unusual.

...ver the honor ...ums are in any way allied," he declared. In Middlesex the figures showed the county very strongly temperance, and the votes for the new member were almost identical with those of the local option vote. Every time Mr. Rowell spoke in that way he was doing a lasting injury to the temperance cause. They were making the question a party one.

He asked if there was a liquor alliance in North Grey, where once a Liberal member had been returned with a majority of 750, and that was now converted into a majority of 400 for the Government. It was not fair to suggest that 1,100 Liberals had entered a liquor alliance and gone to the polls, declared Mr. Hanna.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unparalleled."

PROMISE AND PRACTICE.

Assuming that the wholesale dismissals of Government officials by the Borden government have been justified, on the grounds of "offensive partisanship," one would naturally think that a government so zealous of the non-partizan character of the public service would apply the same principle in the selection of officials to succeed the "offensive partisans." But the government appears to proceed on the principle of appointing officials because of their partisanship. In 1911, when Hon. Frank Oliver was Minister of the Interior, there were 38,909 homestead entries in Western Canada, and 40 homestead inspectors. Last year, with nearly 500 fewer homestead entries, there were 60 homestead inspectors, an increase of fifty per cent. The object of this increase seems to be to increase the number of "offensive partisans" holding office, a great saving to the party funds when these workers can be financed by the public treasury.

Two instances of what is going on in this connection were brought to the attention of the Commons by Dr. Neely of Humboldt. In one case it was shown that Arthur Smythe, who was appointed homestead inspector for the district of Humboldt under the present Government, was fined $50 and costs for attempting to force voters to vote for Conservative candidates in the Saskatchewan elections of 1912. Dr. Neely asked if Mr. Smythe was still in the public service, and received the following laconic answer, "Yes, still in the employ of the Government." In the other instance an affidavit was read showing that Glen Campbell, former Conservative member for Dauphin and now Chief Indian Inspector in Manitoba, took an active part in the by-election in the constituency of North Qu'Appelle on behalf of the Conservative candidate. The affidavit told of the purchase of much whiskey by Indian Inspector Campbell for halfbreeds amongst others during the campaign. In one case a halfbreed was bought drinks until he became helplessly drunk. He left the hotel and went to sleep on the prairie in the month of January. When discovered in the morning one foot was entirely frozen and he is crippled for life.

With such examples of the way that "offensive partisanship" is made to constitute the public service an element in the operation and effectiveness of the party machine we have some reason to doubt the sincerity of the Borden government in attempting to purify political methods and improve the public service by eliminating "offensive partisanship"—in one form and enabling and amplifying it in a far more offensive form.

KEEP AND GET MORE.

Peterborough is fortunately situated in many respects. We do not have to dread and fight the flood danger that menaces other cities like, say, Guelph and Brantford, where trickling little rivers become rampant at flood time, and without being of much use during the other parts of the year, at these times do great damage. Guelph in the matter of the spring flood cases of 1912 and 1913 has been fined by Justice Middleton $20,000 damages on account of injury by spring floods to two factories, the Guelph Carpet Mills and the Guelph Worsted Spinning Company. Now the city proposes to appeal against the judgment, and in protest in five factories controlled by the proprietors of the two factories mentioned, notices have been posted to the effect that all five factories will close down indefinitely if the appeal from the judgment is made. This action would put four or five hundred workmen out of employment and a deputation of workmen is to wait upon the city council to urge it not to enter an appeal, so that the factories might be kept running. This is mentioned to emphasize the advantages Peterborough possesses in being free from flood dangers and the incidental disturbance they are liable to create. Peterborough manufacturers are assured of abundance of power and no interference from flood disasters, and of freedom from the necessity of actions for damages. In these regards our factories can congratulate themselves on having selected Peterborough as a home. And other factories seeking location will note that in coming to Peterborough, they not only have the absence of disadvantages, but the benefit of many advatnages not to be found in other places. This matter is not referred to in order to disparage other cities, but out of gratitude for Peterborough's more favoured situation as a manufacturing centre and place of residence. It is the duty of our city authorities to promote everything that will add to our desirability as a manufacturing and residence centre. We must not only provide power and the assurance of not only uninterrupted operation of factories, but the most favourable residence conditions that will appeal to the population produced by the presence of industrial establishments. All factories must be run by men, and in this regard the sanitary and residential conditions are necessary to keep their human machinery in good physical condition, and contented state of mind—to insure service under the best sanitary conditions, that are obviously as important, and more important, than cheap power and railway sidings. We must provide all necessary conditions to desirable residence—equitable assessment, as low a rate of taxation as possible. We must provide first rate sanitary conditions that will with other things make Peterborough a desirable place of residence. In this regard we bespeak, on the part of the authorities, a broader and more liberal view of their responsibility in regard to safeguarding the lives, and promoting the health of, our citizens. We must strive to make the city a good place to live in. We must have good streets, well lighted streets, streets beautified by trees and our public places of recreation made as attractive as possible. With all this we must strive for as perfect as possible sanitary conditions. We may have all the material advantages, in the way of manufacturing, in the way of making money by industrial and other means, but if we do not aim as far as human aims permit, to give the people health, we are only wasting money and effort. The greatest wealth, the highest commercial and industrial success become worthless without health. Let us unite to work for keeping the advantages we have and providing more, and improving upon those we possess.

REDISTRIBUTION.

This is the fifth parliamentary redistribution that has taken place since Confederation. Three of them took place under Conservative auspices and one under the Liberals. Now the fifth again falls to the share of the Conservatives. It is a matter of record and history that the first three failed not only to give satisfaction to the Liberals, but also to many Conservatives, and Sir Wilfrid Laurier is entitled to all the credit for inaugurating a new and better system. Of course, this, too, failed to please everybody, and the present committee, even if they follow the advice of Sir Wilfrid, and are "guided not by desire to have an advantage over the minority, but simply by the principles of equity, justice and fair play," will fall in like fashion. But if they will resist pressure brought to bear in the way of manipulation and decide all questions on prinoiple, they will do great service for the country.

For the parliamentary instiutions to have anything like their full meed of service, it is necessary that the constituencies shall be carved out on some just system, a system adhered to in principle throughout, although, of course, the exception that proves the rule may have to come into play. —Ottawa Free Press.

A GOOD SPEECH.

As a general thing speeches in reply to the address from the Throne in the Ontario Legislature are filled with platitudes rather than with important material, but N. W. Rowell, Liberal Leader, in his opening speech on Thursday afternoon, established a precedent for incisiveness and directness in dealing with the question of unemployment—a problem of prime importance and one which is figuring largely this winter in many of the industrial centres of the Province. That unemployment is a grim fact in many cases, was shown by the figures given by Mr. Rowell of conditions in Toronto, Hamilton, Ottawa and other points. What gave distinction to Mr. Rowell's speech and raised it to a high level was its breadth of view and its inclusiveness. Not only did he enter into details of the present conditions of employment in Ontario and urge effective and systematic methods of dealing with them, but he reviewed what had been done in other countries. He provided a wealth of information on the subject, carefully prepared. He traced the history of efforts to cope with this difficulty in Great Britain and continental countries, and told of the labour exchanges and unemployment insurance of Great Britain and the labour colonies of Holland, Belgium and Germany.

This story, as outlined even in the limited time at Mr. Rowell's disposal was so fresh, so vital and so timely and so direct that it held the attention of every member of the House. Mr. Rowell was most convincing as he linked up this question of unemployment with the whole problem of social reform. He also made it clear that Ontario was not an exception in suffering from unemployment this winter, but showed that periods of trade depression followed periods of trade expansion inevitably throughout the world. He also emphasized the need of systematizing the treatment of the difficulty.

Not only was it a notable speech—it was also a heavy attack on the government. Mr. Rowell claimed that their failure to do anything effective in the present circumstances was simply a sample of their general carelessness of the interests of labour. He asked specifically that the Bureau of Labour, factory inspection and other branches of the Government affecting labour should be grouped into a separate Department of Labour, not scattered about irresponsibly—as a "poor relation," among various departments, as at present. Mr. Rowell, with his small following in the House, may not accomplish much in the way of voting; but he and his little band seem determined to see that the government shall not have ambition sleep at its post.

Lodgers.

During the year 176 persons were given lodging and shelter in the Police Cells, and those whom we considered deserving cases were provided with food.

Visits Made to Residences Whose Occupants were Absent from City.

During the summer season (from June to September), the police visited the homes of citizens who were absent from the city twice every night during the temporary absence of the owners or occupants. The above houses were entirely under our care, and I am pleased to say that no report reached this office of any of the above-mentioned houses being entered or anything stolen therefrom.

Fires.

The police attended fires during the year to the number of 49.

Lost Children.

During the year, as usual, a large number of children who had strayed from their homes were taken care of by the police until their parents could be located and notified.

Arrests for Outside Places.

In addition to our local work there were a number of arrests made for outside places, of which I will only mention the most important ones:

2 for Hastings—Shopbreaking and theft.

2 for Mimico Industrial School—Running away from school.

1 for Gooderham—Theft.

Outages of Street Lamps.

These were reported by the police to the Inspector of Lights—Outages to the number of 1,185, of which 691 were reported out all night and the remainder at different periods during the night.

Recommendations.

The report recommends and concludes as follows:

Our city is growing by leaps and bounds, in fact at the present time it is heading the list of all the cities in Ontario in this respect, which is undoubtedly due to the good work of the City Council, to whom we cannot express ourselves sufficiently for their good work.

It covers an area of 2,807 1-3 acres, being 6¾ miles in length and 2 miles in width, and is nearly half the size of London, Hamilton, and Ottawa.

It is also bounded on the south by the township of North Monaghan, with somewhere about 3,000 population, and which is practically part of the city.

During the summer months petty complaints from the residential districts of the city are innumerable, and we frequently receive complaints as to ladies and young girls being molested in said districts, and I contend this is due to those districts being unpatrolled by the police.

The strength of the force is ten, all told. An officer has to be in attendance at the Police Station continuously. We cannot do without plain clothes men for their particular branch of work, and I may also state that in the majority of cases people scorn the idea of a uniformed man calling at their homes while investigating any offence, which may from time to time arise, so I leave it to your Honourable Board to judge as to what men are left to patrol and keep the city in order throughout the 24 hours of each day.

Inadequate Protection.

There is another very important matter which I must mention, and that is the safeguarding of lives and property. It is evident that during the dead of night, when people are asleep, that they should feel assured that should fire break out in any of their dwellings there would be someone to arouse them before their lives were endangered and they themselves left homeless.

The above all goes to show inadequate police protection, and it is an established fact that the presence of a police officer in any district has a telling effect in the prevention of crime.

I feel that the above reasons are sufficient to warrant the strengthening of the force and bringing it up to a higher state of efficiency. I therefore urge that four men be added to the force, thereby enabling me to install a morality officer, whose sole time would be given to that particular branch of work, and even then the strength of the force will be inadequate compared with other cities of similar size in this province.

I would also recommend that a typewriting machine be purchased for my office.

My correspondence with other forces is becoming greater every year, and I feel that a typewriter is a necessity. I have also a large amount of work in connection with the printing of circulars regarding stolen property, etc., which have to be circulated throughout the country, most of which could be done from my own office if a typewriter were installed.

Remarks.

P. C.'s Bullied, Gamble, and Tucker sent in their resignations during the year. These vacancies were very favourably filled by the appointment of William Patterson, George Phimester, and George Hayward.

I regret to report that two of the oldest members of the force have been incapacitated through severe illness for a considerable time during the year, one of whom has been forced to retire.

I cannot express my appreciation sufficiently for the good work that has been done by Mr. George Cochrane, agent for the Children's Aid Society, and Mr. J. E. L. Goodwill, solicitor for the said society, in looking after the needy and neglected children of our city, and assisting us in connection with our Juvenile Court.

I also desire to express my appreciation to the local press for their fairness in reporting all Police Court cases.

The Chief Constables' Association of Canada meets this year in the city of Winnipeg, and I trust, gentlemen, that you will make it convenient for me to attend, accompanied with the necessary appropriations.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

D. THOMPSON,
Chief Constable.

Load Weighed Over Five Tons

A load of ice, drawn by a team of horses, was weighed at the market scales this morning that tipped the scales at 10,720 pounds, a little over five tons and a half. The sleighs weighed 1,390 pounds, making the net weight of the ice 9,330 pounds. The ice was taken from the Trent Canal. It is being used to supply Stock's bakery. The load, which was in charge of Mr. Samuel Dancey, constituted thirty-four blocks.

HUSBAND AND WIFE ON TRIAL FOR MURDER

Special Wire to The Examiner:

SHREVEPORT La., Feb. 19.— Mr. and Mrs. Hervey S. Little were arraigned in the district court here today to stand trial on a charge of having murdered J. J. Van Cleve. The murder of Van Cleve, a prominent real estate man, occurred in the corridor of a downtown office building on November 18 last, and created a widespread sensation. According to the statement of those who witnessed the tragedy Little shot down Van Cleve when urged to do so by his wife, who was standing near by.

Many conflicting stories have been circulated as to the underlying cause for the tragedy. According to some of the friends of the accused husband and wife, Van Cleve had been intimate with the woman before her marriage to Little and had endeavoured to force his attentions on her after her marriage. These statements, however, are not in accordance with much of the evidence offered at the preliminary hearing of the accused couple. Friends and business acquaintances of the slain man testified that he had determined to sever his relations with Mrs. Little and that it was his refusal to have anything more to do with her that led to the tragedy.

Van Cleve and Little were partners in the real estate business. For some time prior to the tragedy, according to statements made by those employed about the building in which Cleve and Little had their offices, the former had endeavoured to avoid meeting Mrs. Little who repeatedly called at the offices to see him and who, it is said, had threatened him with bodily harm.

As a result of the trouble Van Cleve and Little decided to end their partnership. On the morning of the tragedy a deal was concluded whereby Van Cleve bought out the interests of his partner in the business. After the papers were signed the two men and a mutual acquaintance stood engaged in friendly conversation in front of the building. According to the testimony of witnesses Mrs. Little approached the trio and asked her husband if he had whipped Van Cleve. Little replied that he had not and that everything had been settled amicably.

According to the statement of the mutual acquaintance who witnessed the tragedy Mrs. Little applied a vile epithet to Van Cleve and told her husband that if he did not whip him she would. It is said that Little thereupon drew a revolver and answered "I'll whip him."

Van Cleve, who had been standing a few feet away, but taking no part in the conversation, turned around and started to enter the building. He had reached the elevator, when Little pulled him back and shot him. After the victim had fallen to the floor, Little fired four more shots into the prostrate body.

Splendid Address By Mr. Olmstead

Evangelistic Services in Free Methodist Church Continued Last Night

Rev. W. B. Olmstead spoke last night at the Free Methodist Church from Heb. 7: 25, "Wherefore he is able also to save them to the uttermost that come unto God by Him, seeing he ever liveth to make intercession for them." In his address he exalted the divinity of Christ, and drew special attention to the fact that he had died for our sins, but was now a living Saviour, and therefore able to fulfill his promises. The word "uttermost" implies that he is able to save the very worst, those who are farthest away, and to save all completely and keep us from falling, no matter how svere our trials may be. Rev M. S. Benn of Toronto, will preach this evening at 8 o'clock. His subject will be "Foreign Missions." On Saturday at 2 p.m. a very interesting session of the Sunday school convention will be held. Short addresses on live Sunday school subjects will be given by nine speakers. The district meeting will ocntinue over the Sabbath. Several preachers and evangelists and a number of laymen from the various circuits on the district are to arrive to-day. The public is cordially invited to attend.

RAISING AND REDUCING WAGES

To the Editor, The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Some months ago my attention was drawn to a notice in your paper concerning an advance in wages which a local firm was giving to the employees. This notice, I may say, was in the press a considerable time before the advance was to come about. Now, I regret to say, there has been a reduction in wages by the same firm, but as yet I have not seen anything of this in the press. Would you oblige by publishing this in your paper.

Yours,
Wage Earner.

DANGER AFTER GRIPPE

Lies in Poor Blood, Cough and Worn-out Condition.

Grippe, pleurisy, pneumonia are greatly feared at this season.

To prevent grippe from being followed by either pleurisy or pneumonia, it is important to drive the last traces of it out of the system.

Our advice is to take Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron preparation without oil, and get your strength and vitality back quickly.

W. W. Lake of Aberdeen, Miss., says: Grippe left me weak, run-down and with a severe cough from which I suffered for a long time. I tried different remedies, but nothing seemed to do me any good until I took Vinol from which I received great benefit. My cough is almost entirely gone and I am strong and well again."

Try Vinol with the certainty that if it does not benefit you we will give back your money. McDermid & Jury, druggists, corner George and Charlotte Streets; also Payne's drug store, corner George and Simcoe Streets.

Stories Of Gideon Bibles

Nearly Three Hundred Have Been Placed in Peterboro' Hotels

Those who travel through the Province and use the hotels have doubtless frequently met with the Bibles placed by the Gideons (Christian Travellers' Association) in hotel guest rooms. There are nearly three hundred of these in Peterborough hotels. Could these volumes but speak, many of them would tell a remarkable story.

In the first place the way they arrived at the hotel is interesting. At some time or another, a commercial traveller wearing the well-known Gideon Button entered the hotel, fixed up for a room and stayed the day or two necessary for the transaction of his business in the city. But before leaving he approached the proprietor: "Have you not the Gideon Bible in your rooms?" "No" was the reply, but the hotelmen added that he had seen the books in other houses, and would not at all mind having them also, if he only knew how to get them. The Gideon explained that the books would be supplied freely if he would consent to have them placed in his rooms. So it came about that within a few days or weeks, each room was supplied with a copy of the Word of God, in a convenient sized and clear print volume ;and perhaps, as happens in the majority of cases, the proprietor himself had paid the express charges on the package.

Once in its place the book starts upon its interesting career. Many a time it brings encouragement and cheer to a weary heart. One man wrote to the Gideon Office: "I have experienced their benefit there, and know that others have too. The relief and consolation that come to a tired soul in reading the "Word" can be found nowhere else. I would like to be enrolled as a member."

Others are awakened out of indifference. A man entered his room in a hotel down east one night under the influence of drink. In this same room lay a copy of the Bible, and this he kicked about the room in his drunken frenzy. Returning to Toronto he hired a room at a hotel, and here while perfectly sober, another Bible faced him. It seemed as though this book was following him everywhere, and fear and trembling seized him as he remembered his former abuse of it. In this state he called for some commercial men whom he knew to be Christians. These stayed with him through the night, not leaving him till he knew his sins pardoned through the Lord Jesus Christ.

W. D. Quigley, a Gideon travelling man, was spending a night at Welland, Ont., and called in at a Mission there. During the meeting he gave his testimony, remarking also that he was a Gideon. As soon as he had resumed his seat, another rose and said: "I am glad to meet a live Gideon, having often wondered in past days who they were. I am a hotel porter, and had been accustomed for a good while to see the Gideon Bibles in hotels where I worked, but was afraid of them, thinking they belonged to some new religion. Finding one at last in my room in this city I began to read it, and was led to see that I was a lost sinner. This conviction so wrought upon me that I came to this Mission, and here found Christ as my Saviour."

No; it is not in vain that the Word of God is introduced into these places. Many other interesting accounts could be given of the useful ministry exercised by it in the hotels.

MOUNTAINEER EVANGELIST CONTEMPLATED SUICIDE

A Narrative of How the Rev. Lucius B. Compton Was Brought From the Southern Appalachians to the Position he Has Now Acquired.

HIS LIFE STORY

Last evening at the Bethany Tabernacle, a large number of people assembled to hear the Rev. Lucius B. Compton, the Mountaineer Evangelist, who is conducting revival meetings at that Church, relate the story of his life.

Mr. Compton comes from a class of people known as the Southern Mountaineers, a people who, early in the history of the United States, fled to the mountains, to escape the ravages of war. Ther wer, at that time, somewhere in the neighbourhood of four millions of these people, and of these one-fourth lived in the most abject misery and poverty, and were never afforded the means of education which now prevails.

Mr. Compton was born and reared among this class of people, and the following narrative throws some light on the means by which he was brought from the depths of isolation and ignorance and elevated to the position he now holds in life.

The Rev. Mr. Compton has a personality that commands his hearers, while his delivery is of an exceedingly clear, forceful and appealing nature.

Before proceeding directly with his life story the speaker gave some historical and gographical statistics, concerning the regions in which he was raised. He gave numbers of counties in several of the different States that constituted the mounain district, the whole of which covered some 100,000 square miles, which is a territory much larger than England Wales and Scotland, and twice as large as the immediate State of New York. This country is known as the Southern Appalachians. It has been stated that of the 4,000,000 people which constitute the mountain people, of these at least one-fourth live in abject poverty and misery. As a matter of fact, in 1711, more young men at the age of twenty years, could sign their name, than in 1903. Continuing, the Rev. Compton said: "It was my fortune to be born in a very, very poor family; my father at that time earned 37 1-2 cents per day, on which to raise a large family. These circumstances left the whole family in the direst of poverty and, to crown all, at the age of five years the Evangelist became a cripple and also a stammerer. His father was a Mountaineer Baptist preacher, who exerted all his energies among the mountain people, influencing them wherever possible with the Word of God.

"I have often wondered," said Mr. Compton, "why God permitted me, a stammerer and a cripple, to live in the poverty and pain which was my lot. There was a school about four miles distant from where we lived in a little log cabin, but to that I was not able to go, and I don't think that altogether in my life I attended school for six months. I eventually ran away from that mountain country and went to the city, where I found a totally different set of conditions. At the age of 15 I was doing a man's work. At the age of 17 I had addicted myself to habits of which I am sorry to tell you. I had to mix with a set of men of a very low type and soon became so that I drank and played cards. My work consisted of swinging a ten-pound sledge hammer, ten hours a day, for ninety cents, and of that I soon became sick and tired of my life, and on three different occasions I contemplated suicide.

One winter's evening I was walking through the City of Cincinnati; I heard some singing and decided to go and see from what source it came. I went to the mission and when I arrived there I saw people get up and give their testimony, and I heard a testimony from every class in life. For three nights I went and the third night I was a changed man, for on my way to the mission I received the call from God. The Church finally took me and ordained me. My work then laid. I decided to go among the people in the mountain, whither I returned".

From that time on the career of the Evanglist has been one of decided success as such, he having inaugurated a home for the upbringing and care of, desolate and orphaned children. At a certain time in his life he left the Baptist ministry, having arrived at the conclusion that his ministry was not for one particular sect of people, but a world-wide message to all people, of what ever denomination they were. Especially interesting were the portions of his story that touched upon his cures of stammering and his crippled condition, both of which he declared were secured through prayer and fasting.

The Rev. Mr. Compton has been in all but three countries in the world, and it is his fervent hope and desire that before three years more are past he will have preached the Word of God in every country in the world.

Throughout his addres the congregation remained silent, except for an occasional murmur of assent or approval of a remark, and it could be easily noticed that those present were full of emotion.

The meeting was concluded with prayer.

Commission Favours Publication Of The Assessment Rolls

Examiner Leads in a Move That is Creating Widespread Interest--The Three Column System of Valuation---Business Assessment.

It is interesting to note that the Civic Survey Commission of Toronto in their report of the Assessment Department, have recommended wider and more consistent publicity in connection with the civic assessment. The publication of the assessment rolls would be an almost gigantic task, but the surveyors say that it would be worth the money.

In Peterborough the publication of the assessment roll was first undertaken by the Examiner. It will be a matter of several weeks before the work is completed. That public opinion favours such a move is indicated by the widespread interest that is manifest.

Special Attention.

"From the standpoint of administrative methods and results," the civic surveyors say that "the most serious failure of the Toronto Assessment Department has been lack of adequate publicity It is only through continuous publicity that it is possible to focus the attention of those who are familiar with property valuations on the work of the department in assessing property for purposes of taxation; it is only through publicity that official attention can be called to efficiency on the part of the individual assessors."

The report points out that the two-column system of assessment is rapidly replacing the three-column system, which is used in Toronto.

Three-Column System.

"The three-column system requires the assessor first to determine the actual value of the land; second, to determine the value of the building, and third, to determine the total value of the real property. The columns in the field, or rough book, which is used by the assessors in the field, are headed as follows: Actual value of the land, storeys, material, size of buildings, value of buildings, the total actual value of real property.

"The law of the State of New York requires that the two-column system only be used; in other words, that the assessor determine first the value of the land, and second the total value of the land and improvements. The value of the improvements is then determined by subtraction. In Toronto the Assessor first judges the value of the land, and second, the value of improvements upon the land."

The Assessment Act provides adequate and sufficient means for handling complaints and adjusting errors in the assessment roll, but the Court of Revision can do nothing on cases not brought to its attention. To do this the property owner and the general public mus be informed.

"Under the present procedure, the only requirement in the assessment act in the matter of publishing the assessment rolls is that the roll must be on file for public inspection in the office of the City Clerk. The provision is meagre and wholly incompetent to bring to the attention of the great mass of property owners and tenants the true situation in the assessment of property."

RID THE MARKET OF LOAFERS IS WRITER'S GOOD SUGGESTION

Editor Examiner:

Dear Sir,— I was much pleased to read in your paper a few days ago an article regarding the entrance to and from the market. Certainly this is a step in the right direction, and was very much needed. There is also another matter that needs attention very badly and that is this: Why are so many loafers allowed up the stairs, getting themselves crowded around the stoves, spitting and keeping the women from getting near them after driving a long way on a cold morning. Every Saturday the place is blocked with these loafers that are neither buying nor selling. Perhaps it would be well to get a few easy chairs and a couch or two, so they could be more comfortable. Thanking you, Mr. Editor for your valuable space.

Yours, etc.,

SUFFERER.

SANATORIUM WILL HAVE TWO PAVILIONS

One for Men and One For Women —Will Increase the Capacity of the Institution

MORE THAN RECOMPENSED

BRANTFORD, Feb. 20.— Following a meeting of the Brant Medical Association, at which co-operation of the doctors was promised in the work of the Brant Sanatorium, the recommendation will be made to the board of governors that the plans for increased accommodation at the institution be gone on with. These plans include the erection of two pavilions outside the hospital proper, one for men and one for women, with an accommodation of from six to eight each. They are for the incipient cases. There are at present nine patients at the hospital, which has an accommodation for 12 or 14. The pavilions would increase the capacity by 12 or 16 cots. Dr. Ashton expressed himself as satisfied that the community would be more than recompensed for the extra expenditure, and the usefulness of the sanatorium, will be greatly enhanced.

Wiarton Has Lead Of Three On Orillia

WIARTON, Feb. 19.—In the Orillia-Wiarton O.H.A. fourth round intermediate game to-night Wiarton won by 5 to 2, the half time score being 1 to 1. A crowd of 1,400 people was present from the town and surrounding country and from Chesley, Palmerston, Hanover, Stratford and Orillia. Owen Sound also ran a special with 350 rooters.

It was the fastest and cleanest hockey ever seen here. The combination, speed and back-checking of both teams were excellent. At one time Orillia started roughing it and two men were sent off and Wiarton scored their lone tally. Orillia scored the tie goal ten minutes later. After five minutes playing in the second half one Orillia man got hit in the jaw and was laid up for fifteen minutes. Porter went off to even up. Shortly after this Wiarton scored another, and in a couple of minutes Orillia tied the score. Then the play was hard and fast and all of it near the Orillia net. Corbeau saved the game from being a slaughter. He stopped 100 shots. Wiartons next goal was scored by "Dad" Ashley on a pass from Gildner, and the last also by "Dad" Ashley on a pass from Allan Ashley. It was the cleanest game here this year. The teams:

Referee—Harvey Sproule, Toronto.

Makes Healthy Bowels

THIS simple rule of health is daily called attention to by every doctor in the land, whose first question to the patient almost invariably is, "Are your bowels regular?" Yet there's not one person in fifty who takes proper care of the bowels. And the result of this foolish neglect is nine-tenths of all ill health.

If today you are unable to free your body of waste matter at the usual time, or if the act causes straining, pains and discomfort, don't let that condition occur again tomorrow. Unless your bowels can carry away the waste materials left after food is digested, decay sets in, the poisons of which, taken up by the blood, increase the risk of Typhoid Fever, Appendicitis, and many other serious diseases.

In treating constipation, there is a right way and a wrong way. The wrong way is to take harsh purgatives which even though they do clear the bowels, cause griping and nausea, injure the delicate tissues, and so disturb the normal functions as to cause the return of constipation. The right way is to help Nature to produce natural movement, without pain or discomfort, by using

Rexall Orderlies

More Than One Hundred Million Were Sold Last Year

This enormous quantity was used with good results by busy men who suffered from constipation, due to lack of exercise, or indigestion caused by overwork—by children whose parents realize the harmful effect of common purgatives—by old people whose systems cannot stand anything harsh—by women during pregnancy, and after childbirth, when any medicine with a violent action would be particularly dangerous. Many of these people are your neighbors and friends. Ask anyone who has ever used them—they'll tell you Rexall Orderlies satisfied and helped them.

—a gentle laxative in the form of a chocolate-tasting tablet. One of these tablets eaten just before going to bed will help to restore your bowels to normal activity at a time when, your body being at rest, the medicine can do its best work. As a result of taking that tablet (or say two, if your case is obstinate), your bowels will move easily and naturally in the morning. The use of Rexall Orderlies for a few days afterward will restore normal regularity. Even chronic constipation is benefited by them, and it is not necessary to continue the treatment for a long time, because, instead of driving Nature, they simply help her to help herself.

Sold only at the more than 7,000 Rexall Stores and in this town only by us. In vest pocket tin boxes, 10c, 25c, 50c

You sign nothing. We won't hesitate, or ask you any questions. Your word is enough. If Rexall Orderlies do not do all you expect them to —if you don't feel better after using them and find that they are the pleasantest-acting and best laxative you have ever used, we want you to tell us and get your money back.

ATTENTION TO ROOFS

Dear Editor—Kindly allow me space in your valuable paper to call the attention to the authorities of this City. I think better attention should be paid to the roofs of the stores. Three ladies walking on George Street yesterday thought another disaster had occurred when lumps of ice fell on their heads, almost stunning them at the time. Many men in need of work would be thankful to get the job of cleaning the roofs. Hoping this will be a warning in future.

Thanking you, dear Editor, for the space in your paper.

Yours respectively
AN OLD RESIDENT.

Strong Line-up Announced For To-morrow Night's Benefit Game

Old Boys Will Arrive on the 5:30 G. T. R. Train and the Game Will Commence Sharp on Time.

BIG CROWD EXPECTED

The weather man is evidently in sympathy with the Charley Ray benefit game to-morrow night and the ice will be in the best of condition for the battle. The keen interest that is being taken in the contest assures a big house to see Peterborough's present team clash with the stars of seasons gone by, who are adding to their hockey laurels in other towns. In a letter from Pete Campbell the originator of the game, he says that Fred Whitcroft, one of the most famous of all Peterborough's graduates, tried to make the trip East in order to participate in the game, but could not arrange his affairs in Edmonton in order to get away. This shows the interest all the old boys are taking in the game and their eagerness to assist in the project.

The Old Boys' team will arrive on the 5.30 G.T.R. train, so that the game will be started promptly at 8.30 o'clock. It is not known exactly how the All Stars will line up to start with, but they will use all their players at one stage or another. The following players will be in action:

Goal—Derocher, Ottawa College.
Richadson, Toronto.

Defence—Heffernan, T. R. and A. A.; Morrow, Toronto Bank League; Parker, Hamilton.

Forwards — Campbell, 'Varsity; Burritt, Argonauts; Crane, Argonauts; Clancy, Toronto Bank League.

Te Petes will start out with the same line-up as played Orillia, with Pete Spratt replacing Denison. Ray Rose and Frank Barrie of the Juniors will be used for part of the game, as will Orville Kenneally.

The line-up will be as follows:

Goal, Janes.
Defence, Bond, Spratt.
Rover, Halpin.
Centre, Park.
Substitues, Rose, Barrie and Kenneally.

The Owen Sound Times refers to the Orillia team as follows: As to their being bona fide juniors, that is another matter, and one upon which for want of proof we prefer to express no opinion further than to remark that for juniors they allow their whiskers to grow wonderfully well, and some of them look as if there was a sprinkling of grey through their locks.

ENORMOUS GATE RECEIPTS AT ENGLISH CUP GAMES

Enormous was the attendance at the sixteen games in the second round of the English Cup, the receipts totalling the vast amount of $91,530. Following are the attendances at the various games:

Sheffield U. v. Bradford	51,006
Bolton v. Swindon	50,558
Leeds v. West Brom.	29,000
Wolverh-ton v. Wednesday	32,942
Liverpool v. Gillingham	46,000
Manchester v. Tottenham	36,256
Sunderland v. Plymouth	37,132
Millwall v. Bradford C.	20,735
Birmingham v. Huddersfield	40,000
West Ham. v. Crystal P.	18,000
Blackburn v. Derby	29,098
Burnley v. Derby	29,992
Brighton v. Clapton	15,727
Exeter v. Aston Villa	9,000
Swansea v. Queen's Park R.	14,000
Glossop v. Preston	10,731

A Record.

The attendance at Bramall-lane constitutes a record. Thus the record for the city held by the Wednesday club at Owlerton since November 30, 1907 has been broken. On that occasion the attendance at the league match with Manchester United was 45,000.

The previous largest attendance at Bramall-lane was on January 1, 1912, when 43,000 people watched Sheffield United play Newcastle United in the league, and the previous highest receipts on October 25 last, when £1,192 5s. 3d. was taken at the Sheffield United v. Wednesday league match.

Manchester City took more money at the turnstiles than at any previous match—even at the notorious Sunderland game, when the stand tickets had all been sold. Bolton also established a Cup-tie record.

"Cabes" Collapse.

Beith F. C., one of the oldest in Scotland, has come to an end, financial difficulties being the reason, combined with the fact that, of late, there has not been a great deal of unity in the management. Beith has played a very interesting and conspicuous part in Association football history, and quite a number of excellent players have been taught the rudiments of the game in that quaint Ayrshire town. Many of the older generation will remember McGuire, who was a dashing forward. He is still keen on sport.

Has Left Barnsley.

Evidently there was no chance of the differences between Geo. Travers and the Barnsley club being got over, for Travers is now a Manchester United player, and is already preparing with the rest of the United players at Chingford. The Manchester club is, to say the least badly in need of new blood, and from what we know of Travers he's bound to add strength to the attack. Travers was a big success with Barnsley, especially when the latter lifted the Cup. A strong forward of the go-ahead type, Manchester United's new forward should turn out a good investment. The United club have in the past been fortunate with Barnsley captures, for haven't they already got George Stacey and George Wall—two men good enough for any international team?

Sunderland Benefits.

The Sunderland directors have arranged the dates for the benefits of A. Milton and J. Mordue, each of whom has been guaranteed £500. On March 14 Milton has the match with Tottenham Hotspur, and on April 18 Mordue takes his reward in the encounter with Chelsea. The three players went to Sunderland in the spring of 1908. Thomson made his league debut on September 1, 1908, against Manchester City (away), and on the 9th of the same month Milton and Mordue played in their first league game for Sunderland against Middlesbrough, on Tee-side. Thomson took his benefit last Saturday in the game with Derby County.

57th Band Concert To-Night, Brock Street Rink—Good Ice.

George Hill's Rink Won From W. G. Read In Grand Finish

Nearly 12.30 This Morning When Vice-Skips' Bonspiel Was Concluded—Hill Had to Battle it Through the Whole Series.

KAY'S RINK MAKE A BID

G. A. Wood,
W. J. Padgett,
P. D. Fitzgerald,
George Hill.

Such is the personnel of George Hill's rink, winners of the Vice-President's Bonspiel. It was just 12:25 a.m. this morning when Billie Read got his last shot away in a final effort to beat Hill. in the very best game of the entire series. It was great curling in one sense. Both rinks played ten ends in the semi-final game, and then went back for fourteen in the final, until Tommy Hooper was leaning against the posts between sweeps and then sallied out on the ice singing "We won't go home till morning," when a neat shot turned the whole aspect of a particular end. Every step of the game was fought to a finish with the Hill rink coming from behind nd shooting out in front for a win.

A Cool Skip.

George Hill proved himself a good, game skip. He was out there plugging away as cool as the best of them. He was forced to battle through the earlier rounds, through the second right up to the end, and the meeting with Read was no walf-away. Last year Hill worked his way into the semi-finals and was laid up with pneumonia for months. Last night he demonstrated his fitness for the first position among the vice-skips by topping of a keenly fought series with an exceptionally fine game. In Percy Fitzgerald he has one of the younger curlers who are showing marked progress in the game. Percy worked all the way and with Padgett gave the skip every support.

A Fatal Mistake.

While the Hill rink had to come from behind to win, there was one little incident in the thirteenth end in which Read practically beat himself. He was laying three, all of them just within the second circle and a little to the left of the ice. Hill had a stone on the port path, but it was just outside the second circle. There were acres of room to beat out Read, but Hill had nothing left and it was Read's last shot. The score was a tie and there was only one more end. It was not clear to the handful of enthusiasts what his plan was, but in any case it miscarried. His stone came smoothly down the ice, tapped the lone Hill outside counter with just sufficient force to put it into the inner circle and practically on to the button. That was surely tough going.

Good Sports.

That extra one put the Hill trio in the lead. But there was still a chance to sew it up. It must be remembered that these two rinks were a man short. As a result it was difficult to get anything like a decent guard out. This was exemplified on thel ast end when as quickly as one stone was laid inside it was picked out by the other side and usually their stone was left counting. With only a few stones left, Read was laying close to the inner circle. Hill shot down a neat one tha lay practically on the button, but with a dangerous opening in front. After playing fine curling all through the games it seemed that Read was just a trifle off on those last few ends. Here was a chance that he would never miss when going in his usual form, but he fell feet short of the front line and the game was over.

Were Evenly Matched.

The two finalists were evenly matched rinks. It was an odd coincident that they were both short their first stone men, and as a result each of them was penalized two points. In spite of these handicaps they won out and then went at each other. Instead of the lead playing four stones, it was agreed that two only should be used, and this opened up the play to a great extent. It also meant a great deal of work for Hooper and Padgett, both of whom were stiff and sore from the strenuosities of the twenty-four ends. Read curled in great shape through the series and usually won by comfortable margins, but a second's falter right near the end was his undoing. This is not robbing Hill of any of the credit of his win. He was six down on the third end and yet he came back undaunted and won in the romp home to the barrier. Tommy Hooper displayed good curling and Mr. Robert Dobie, who was unavoidably absent last night, had played well in the preliminary series. Jack Read made a good vice and has shown fine improvement during the year. The losers lost graciously, and were the first to congratulate Hill and his men. Both rinks felt that they had been through a real contest when they had put the stones away, and their muscles began to contract a bit.

The score by ends:

W. J. Padgett	T. H. Hooper
P. D. Fitzgerald	J. C. Read
George Hill, skip.	W. G. Read, skip.
Hill	00020103032111—14
Read	13202020200000—12

The Semi-Finals.

The feature game of the semi-finals was the Hill-Kay struggle. It was followed by quite a gallery (vide H.R. H.K.) of the talent nearly every member of which played the game, not only two stones but t least eight of them. That is where the fun lies. As before stated Hill was set back two points, a point for every five ends, on account of the absence of A. H. Wood, his regular first stone. On the sixth end they were tied, five all, on the score, but Hill was two down on the penalty. By the eighth end he had tied the score. Then Kay took two on the next end, but that Hill fighting spirit was there all the time. Laying two on the tenth end he tied the score and on the extra laid on three more, thus cinching it. The aforementioned gallery was delighted with this game. Kay and his rink played well, and as the fraction of an inch may change the appearance of an end, there were several fractions that messed up intended plays. The gallery went home at ten o'clock satisfied that the Hill-Kay game was good enough for one night. And so it was, but the handful who saw the last one declared it the best of the bunch.

The score by ends:

W. J. Padgett	L. A. Potvin
P. D. Fitzgerald	L. A. Turner
	W. Adamson
George Hill, Skip	Alex. Kay, Sk.
Hill	xx3x2x11x23—12
Kay	21x1x1xx2xx— 7

Subtracting the penalty of two points the net score was 10 to 7.

Herb. Martin was Laid Away.

Herb Martin's rink was pretty well shot to pieces last night in the semi-final with Read's rink. They went well all the way and in defeating Llewllyn Hall they seemed strong enough to run into the finals. Billie Menzies gave Martin fine support through the preliminary series, but he and his skip were not showing their best stuff last night. It was either that or the leads were not up to form and the style of play had to be changed. In any case the reversal was something of a surprise to the gallery which concentrated attention on the close-going Hill—Kay game. When the Skip took too wide ice on a shot he usually made Billie Lytle remark "too much Flavelle". At that Martin showed a flash of the form he had been playing when, on the eighth, with four stones just outside a good one that Read had laid near the "button," he neatly removed the Read stone and left five up. Hooper played 4 stones throughout the game and swept himself sore because of the absent lead.

The score was as follows:

W. H. Lytle
R. P. Gollop	L. H. Hooper
W. Menzies	J. C. Read
H Martin, Sk.	W. G. Read, Sk.
Martin	1x3xxxx5xx— 9
Read	x4x1323x1x—14

The last end was dead, not a stone being left within the rings.

There should be an interesting game at the Charlotte Street rink on Monday night, when Tom Brightman meets Jas. Connal in the final for the inter-rink honours. Brightman has been going well this winter, and if Connal plays his usual game it should be a pretty fair contest.

You couldn't chase George Stevenson from the rink while there is anything doing. He followed last night's games till the stones had clicked for the last time.

Norwood and Lakefield are expected for this afternoon and this evening.

WEDDING BELLS

O'BRIEN—SHEA.

At the Bishop's Palace, Pembroke, on Wednesday morning, Feb. 18th, 1914, a marriage was celebrated of local interest because one of the principals, the worthy son of one of our most respected citizens, Mr. John D. O'Brien, of Cobalt, eldest son of Mr. M. O'Brien, Provincial Separate School Inspector, 309 Red street, was united in marriage to Miss Mamie Shea, one of Pembroke's most charming and attractive girls. The nuptial mass was sung in the Chapel of the Bishop's Palace, by Rev. Father John Kimpton, rector of St. Columbus' Cathedral, at 8:30 o'clock. The wedding assistants were confined to the immediate members of the two families concerned. The bride, who was quietly, but tastily attired, in a suit of dark Seeden cloth, was unattended, except by her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Shea, in the capacity of witnesses. After the ceremony, to the joyous notes of the chimes of St. Columbus' Cathedral, the wedding party proceeded to the residence of the bride's mother, where the wedding breakfast was served. After a day spent in Ottawa and a day or two passed in Peterborough, Mr. and Mrs. O'Brien go to Haileybury, New Ontario, where they will reside, followed by the good wishes of a host of friends in Pembroke and Peterborough.

Mr. A. W. Dunkley, classical master of Oakwood Collegiate, Toronto, brother of the groom, was groomsman. The bride's mother was in black brocaded satin. Miss Lizzie Dunkley, Principal of Picton Public School, a sister of the groom, wore black and white silk, with net overdress and touches of Oriental embroidery. Miss Mary Dunkley, another sister, wore a light grey crepe de chine, with lace tunic. The wedding march was played by Prof. Baird.

SENTENCED TO FOUR YEARS IN KINGSTON

Special Wire to The Examiner:

TORONTO, Feb. 20. — Steve Charron and Wm. Besso, two young men of the "gentlemen burglar" type, who entered into a partnership of crime, on four charges of housebreaking were to-day each sentenced to four years in the penitentiary. Both Charron and Besso have the appearance, clothes, manners and speech of young down town business men.

FAMOUS ACTOR AT THE GRAND

Melchior Lengyel's "Typhoon," the great play which Mr. Laurence Irving is presenting at the Grand, has certainly justified its title by within no less than three years of its composition sweeping over Europe to the United States and now visiting Canada under the auspices of the British Canadian Theatre Organisation Society.

The principal character, that of a young Japanese entrusted by his Government with a very weighty and perilous mission, has been played in Paris by the celebrated character actor, Mr. de Max, in Berlin, by Herr Ching, in New York by Mr. Walker Whiteside, described as the American Martin Harvy, in Stockholm by Ivan Hegdvist, and Mr. Frederick Harrison has chosen for the English representative of the part Mr. Laurence Irving.

The difficulty of representing a true study of this character is greatly increased by the fact that throughout the greater part of the play he is dressed in European costume, practising his carefully-acquired European manners. The line of demarcation between Japanese and European is naturally not nearly so hard to draw when the Japanese is to be presented entirely unalloyed with European ideas and culture. The broadest strokes can then be used to fill in the picture, but in a nation so wonderfully gifted for the assimilation both of external characteristics and internal comprehension, only by a multitude of delicate nuances can anything approaching a faithful picture be achieved. The far simpler development of Japanese civilization which should nevertheless peep through the assumption of European habits—the extraordinary cult of politeness, the custom of performing the ordinary functions of life sitting upon the ground, the walk and carriage of the arms, acquired by the wearing of Japanese shoes and gown-like garments, the smile that answers so many purposes in Japanese expression, these and a thousand other fine details, while not being grossly underlined should be delicately indicated, and permeate the representation of the Japanese residents in Europe.

At the same time any one who has been fortunate enough to make the acquaintance of many members of this extraordinary race will have observed that between individual Japanese there are differences both in accent and appearance and in manner as between Englishmen, Irishmen and Scotchmen.

To-night Mr. Irving will be seen in that splendid drama "The Unwritten Law," the most inspiring play since "The Sign of the Cross," when he appeared in it at Montreal on Monday, the 16th, his acting caused a veritable sensation, Mr. Morgan Powell, in the "Star," acclaiming it as "among the really great creations of the modern stage. I know of no such terrible scene," he says, "as that in which Bezak, the examining judge, reconstructs the crime before Baskoluckoff's eyes. It is compelling tragedy. It fascinates; it enthralls, it appals!"

For Chapped, Blotchy, Red or Wrinkled Skin

(From Family Physician)

Do you realize that just beneath that coarse, rough or discoloured complexion there's an exquisitely beautiful skin of youthful tint and delicacy? If you could only bring this complexion to the surface, discarding the old one! You can—in the easiest, simplest, most natural manner imaginable. Just get an ounce of ordinary mercolised wax as any drug store, apply nightly like cold cream, removing in mornings with warm water. The wax assists Nature by gradually taking off the lingering particles of dead and half-dead surface skin, causing no discomfort whatever. Ordinarily it takes from a week to ten days to complete the transformation. Cutaneous defects like chaps, pimples, blotches, liver spot, moth patches, freckles, of course disappear with old skin. Nothing else that I know of will accomplish such wonderful results in so short a time.

Fine lines and even the deeper wrinkles often appear at this season. In such cases nothing is better than a face bath made by dissolving 1 oz. powdered saxolite in ½ pt. witch hazel. This is remarkably effective.

SUCCESSFUL DANCE HELD

One of the most enjoyable evenings of the season was held last night in the C. O. F. Hall, Simcoe Street. About one hundred couples took part in the amusements of the evening. The ball was arranged by J. A. Faulkner of Peterborough, who had the able assistance of Mr. A. Vass and Mr. F. Grady as floor managers. The music was greatly enjoyed. At 11.30 o'clock enjoyable refreshments were served.

After supper the programme was followed as usual and the ball rolled on till the early hours of the morning.

Mr. J. A. Faulkner, who is an expert at such affairs, may hold another later in the season.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE LOCAL COUNCIL OF WOMEN REPORTS OF VARIOUS COMMITTEES

The School Nurse Referred To---Dr. Cameron Refers to the Erection of a Sanatorium---Deaths From Tuberculosis Average One Every Ten Days--Other Matters Dealt With.

A large concourse of women gathered in the Assembly Hall of the Public Library yesterday afternoon, when the first annual meeting of the Local Council of Women was held. Mrs. (Rev.) J. C. Davidson, the President, occupied the chair.

After the previous minutes had been read and confirmed, and the communications read, the reports for the past year were read.

The following is the address of the president on the past year's work:

THE ADDRESS.

At this, our first annual meeting, I feel that, as a Local Council, we have much to encourage us. Some time ago, your Executive endorsed a suggestion by the National Executive, that each Local Council "should have a luncheon once a year, as a means of bringing the work of the Council before the public. This is scarcely needed here at present, as already our Council work is being felt in our city.

Our committees have been doing hard and faithful work, of which you will hear in their reports.

I congratulate Dr. Birnie and her committee (on Public Health), on being the direct means of stirring our School Board into action regarding a school nurse. The nurse has, as you know, been appointed, and is at present busily engaged in getting her work organized. Mrs. Rollins and her committee, strongly backed by the whole Local Council, have done most untiring, steady work. The Mothers' Clubs, about to be begun, will be a constant monument to their energy and zeal; and if a Police Woman is not appointed at once, there has, at least been much stirring of the public conscience, which can only result in good.

From the other committees—Objectionable Printed Matter, Feeble-Minded, Laws for Women and Children, etc., we expect to hear more in the near future. The Educational Comittee are taking an interest in Industrial Schools, and some objectionable advertisements have already been removed by the efforts of that committee, who are also keeping themselves informed regarding moving picture shows.

To the Press convener and her committee we all owe a debt of gratitude. They are constantly on the alert, and have done pioneer work in keeping our Council before the public, both in the local press, who have also been kind, and in the Canadian, which is at present the only official reporter of the National Council. Through this comittee, also, our work here has been brought before the Local Councils.

Too much praise cannot be given your Corresponding Secretary, whose work and interest for the L.C. is most most untiring. She has been trying to help our finances by selling copies of the Constitution to members of our affiliated societies. Your Recording Secretary also has a great deal of writing to do, and does quiet and most valuable work.

A suggestion by one of the Executive, that the Public Library should be open on Sunday afternoons for reading, met with approval, but so far nothing has been done. This suggestion ought to be taken up by one of our committees for consideration. What has been accomplished by the committees will be brought before you in their reports. The multiplicity of meetings is to be deplored, but they are necessary, and of course, your Corresponding Secretary and President are the only unfortunates, who are expected to attend them all.

Last November your Executive sent me to Toronto to attend the Quarterly Executive meetings of the National Council, which gave me a certain insight into the workings of this great body. The principal business then on hand seemed to be arrangement for the quinquennial meetings, to be held in Rome in May, when the National Council send nine delegates. Your Executive was privileged to vote for these delegates, and we are now asked to contribute towards the expenses of the President, Mrs. Torrington, who will represent the National Council there.

The annual meeting of the National Council, which this year is its "Coming of Age" will be held in October; time and place to be announced later.

The Year Book, which some of you have received for 25 cents, is published at a cost of $1.75 per page for type. Each book costs 37 cents without postage, so at 25 cents we are getting a bargain. It contains all reports of annual meetings and conveners of Standing Committees, also the Constitution and By-laws of the Council. Lesson Leaves are for sale by the Council in Toronto, and are to be used in teaching English to foreigners in our midst.

Advertisements are much needed for the Year Book in order to make it pay.

Since my last report in October, I have, as President, attended 7 committee meetings, 6 executive meetings, I have been on three deputations and read a paper before the Mothers' Club at the Y.M.C.A. Our Council has sent deputations to interview Mr. Turner re Evelyn Thaw; the Mayor re Mrs. Stebbins-Wells' lectures; the Police Commissioners separately and at their meeting, and the School Board. We have also had lectures by Mrs. Stebbins Wells, which was largely attended, and also by Dr. Struthers, of Toronto, also well attended by the public. I have missed one Executive meeting, which was kindly taken by your Vice-President, Mrs. Scott.

We regret that Mrs. Dunn has not been able to act as a vice-president and your Executive have decided to have three vice-presidents for the ensuing year, nominations for whom have been received.

Two months ago letters were sent to each affiliated society, asking for nominations for officers for the ensuing year. These were sent back to the secretary and all the present officers thereby selected except the new vice-presidents, for whom we will have to vote to-day.

Though this report sounds optimistic, there is still much to be done, and, of course, always will be, but in that the women of our city are awakening to their responsibility. We have much cause for thankfulness and encouragement in our work. Let us not be discouraged by difficulties, but let them be the incentive to "go forward" with faith and hope.

I wish to thank all the officers and Executive for their support and encouragement, and with the hope that by our next annual meeting this Local Council may be so established, that it may be a power in the community for the general good.

In regard to our future operations, may I beg to suggest, that instead of the Council striving for a multiplicity of reforms, we should consider and agree on what is chiefly demanded under present circumstances, and concentrate our efforts on these.

In conclusion, it would seem of the utmost importance to keep always in mind that woman's work can only be fittingly and effectively done in a truly womanly spirit, avoiding carefully anything approaching to masculine or aggressive methods, and keeping scrupulously in the path of the gentleness and humility, in which lies our truest strength.

Mr. Morris, on motion of Mrs. Travers, which was seconded by Mrs. Stevenson, was appointed auditor.

The Treasurer's statement showed a balance of $18.05 on the credit side.

The reports from the secretaries of the numerous societies which are affiliated with the local Council of Women, were then read, but these were too numerous and of too lengthy a nature to reproduce.

SANATORIA.

The Council was indeed lucky to secure Dr. Cameron to give a short lecture on Sanatoria, having an especial reference to Peterborough, and the following are the terms that constituted his address:

"In the Spring of 1911, a number of gentlemen got together, to deal with the question of tuberculosis in Peterborough. These gentlemen had been brought face to face with this position, and of necessity something had to be done. During the winter they conducted meetings on "Health," and the following spring the ladies took up the question, and concentrated their efforts to a successful issue, whmich terminated with the Summer Fair being arranged, by means of which we were given the money to start.

In 1912 we decided to put on a district nurse. In the spring of 1913 we found that we had to increase that number, and we engaged another nurse in the field. One is now exclusively engaged looking after cases of tuberculosis, while the other is exclusively engaged in general nursing. Now we think that the time has come when we should take more active means of dealing with cases in Peterborough, and with that object in view, the question of providing a sanatorium has now loomed up. We have taken up the issue with our municipality, and it is plain to see that all the municipalities in the country are taking up the question. Institutions built by the State and managed by the State have not proved successful where it has been tried. Municipal corporations should take up the matter of building sanatoria themselves, and greater success will be obtained, and this is the reason that many cities and towns have built their own institutions. We have brought the matter before the public of Peterborough and before the Council.

There are certain arguments which we are certain arguments which we might give some consideration. The idea has been formed, that congregating a large number of patients who have the disease, would be catering to the detriment of the public health of the city, and would design to have an insanitary effect upon the whole community, if these people were to walk about the cities. I want it understood,, and distinctly understood, that such an institution would be built for Peterborough, and for Peterborough only. As far as the parties are concerned they would not go mingling among the people of the community, for those that were not confined to their beds would live on verandahs.

An even more pertinent argument has been made, and that is, that the present hospitals are properly equipped and qualified to handle these cases. I say that it is practically impossible to take care properly of a case in one of our general hospitals. As far as that goes, the hospitals don't want them, and they have not got the proper accommodation for them. Tubercular patients require an altogether different kind of treatment to that ordinarily given in a general hospital. In consequence of this, the expense of caring for tuberculosis patients in sanatoriums is much greater than the expense of treating other diseases in general hospitals. The cost per patient in a sanatorium varies from $1.00 to $1.50 a day in Ontario. We would hope to meet the cost of the maintenance by getting from the city 70 cents a day per patient, who pays less than $7.00 per week. The municipality is empowered to pay this now. Then we get $3.00 per week from the Provincial government, making a total of $7.90 per week. If our expenses exceeded this amount we would have to raise it in some other way, but we would hope to keep the expense inside the $7.00 per week.

On the other hand if it were possible to keep these patients in a general hospital, you lose the $3.00 per week government grant and get in place 20 cents a day, or $1.40 a week for 190 days, then 40 cents a week & you can see that providing the hospitals were prepared to give modern sanatorium treatment they would be doing it at a loss of from one to two dollars a week at the lowest count This loss would have to be met by the public.

We have made a proposition to the city, and we think there will be something done. If the city will give us $10,000, we would undertake to raise a similar amount by means of private subscriptions, and that would be $20,000, and the Government would then give us a fourth of that, making a total of $24,000. That would enable us to erect an institution that would accommodate 15 patients. We were not asking for something for nothing. The Council were in a position to give us the money without even asking the people, but the proposition will be submitted to a by-law, at some time when the society deems advisable. Even should that pass, the amount would not be turned over to us, until we had raised a similar amount.

Many people do not, and you may not, think that the matter is so important. Take the vital statistics for last year. There were recorded 30 deaths from tuberculosis. Even if we include the surrounding districts, and make an aggregate total of 25,000 inhabitants, at that rate, there was one death every ten days from the disease. If that had occurred from diphtheria, or any other contagious disease, the people would be in revolution. I simply took this opportunity of laying the matter before you, and if we have an opportunity of laying this matter before the electorate of Peterborough. I hope that you will give us your support.

The conveners of the different affiliated societies then made their reports, but owing to lack of space, we regret that we cannot publish the whole of these to-day, but one is herewith appended, and the remainder will appear in the course of a few days.

THE HEALTH COMMITTEE.

Madame President.—During the past year your Committee on Health have been working on more than one line. Efforts have been made to see that the by-law regarding the covering of fruit was enforced, and some of the members personally visited and inspected stores for the purpose. They report that the by-law was only partially carried out, and recommended that bakeshops should be more thoroughly inspected, and that bread should be delivered in sealed paper. The garbage system of our city was also considered by your committee. It was thought that garbage thrown into cans should be wrapped first in paper and tied that the cans were often awkward and unsuitable, and were seldom cleaned and that the parts containing the refuse should be covered when driven through the streets. A deputation also waited upon the Board of Education regarding medical inspection of schools, and a nurse has been appointed Medical Supervisor. As there are about 2,500 children this inspection must be necessarily be somewhat superficial, and it is to be hoped the Board of Education in time will make it more thorough. Tubercular children and those who are feeble-minded should receive special attention. The report of Sanitary Inspector Stones regarding the excessive mortality of infants in Peterborough aroused the attention of the committee and literature was obtained regarding "A Better Baby Contest." This is a scientific exhibition of babies. They are weighed, measured and tested mentally and physically. With the co-operation of the Council your Committee advise one to be held in Peterborough; suggestions and plans have also been obtained for a Pure Food and Public Welfare exhibition at the same time.

JESSIE BIRNIE,
Convener.

The election of officers for the ensuing year then took place, resulting as follows, all but the vice-presidents being re-elected by acclamation.

The singing of the National Anthem concluded the session.

Report of Education Comittee, A. E. Mowat, Convener.

The only meeting of our Committee was held the beginning of October, all the members being present.

It was felt that our committee might be of service to the Directors of the Technical classes being formed, and the chairman of the Comittee on Technical Education was communicated with, but so far our services have not been required. It is a satisfaction, however, to know that these classes are proving a success, and of much benefit to those attending. It is a matter of great regret that they do not seem to reach a class to whom they might be of untold benefit in bringing into their lives the benefit of pleasant employment during the winter evenings instead of idle wanderings on the streets.

It was decided that something be done towards spring in the matter of supervised playgrounds, and in the meantime our influence has been used towards the opening of free skating rinks for the children of the city.

P. HARSTONE,
Secretary.

"THE FREE RANGE"

By ELWELL LAWRENCE

But the sheep would have none of it, and moved and milled uneasily until, in order to save the lambs that were being crushed in the narrowing circle, Sims gave the order to resume the march.

The night "walk" of sheep is a strange thing. First, perhaps, rides a shepherd, erect and careless in his saddle, the red light glowing from the tip of his cigarette; and beside his horse a collie dog, nosing at objects, but always with ears for the sheep and the voice of his master.

Then come the sheep themselves, with cracking ankle-joints, clattering feet, muffled blethering, a cloud of dust, and the inevitable sheep smell. Perhaps there is a moon, and then the herders must watch for racing cloud-shadows that cause stampedes.

Such was the picture of the Larkin sheep that night, only there was no moon. They started at ten, and Sims and Miguel forward to walk before them, so they would not exhaust themselves with too fast travelling. On the move the sheep seemed more contented.

It was perhaps one o'clock in the morning that Larkin, in company with his chief herder, spurred out far in front of the advancing flock to reconnoiter. The sheep would be within approaching distance of the ford in a couple of hours, and Bud wished everything to be clear for them.

Nearing the Big Horns Sims suddenly drew up his horse, motioning Bud to silence. Listening intently, they heard the voice of a man singing an old familiar plains song. The two looked at each other in amazement, for this was one of the "hymns" the cowboys used to still call their cattle at night, the time of the most dreaded stampedes. It was the universal theory of the cow country that cattle, particularly on a "drive," should not be long out of hearing of a human voice.

So the night-watchers, as they rode slowly about the herd, sang to the cattle, although some of the ditties rendered were strong enough to stampede a herd of hedge-anchors.

"Cows here?" said Sims. "What does this mean, boss?"

"It means that we're beaten to the ford and will have to hold the sheep back."

"Yes, but who's driving now? This is round-up and branding season."

"I don't know, but between you and me, Sims, I'll bet a lamb to a calf that the are rustlers are running their big pickings north. There are some mighty good heads at the top of that crowd, and they have taken advantage of the deserted range, just as we have, to drive their critters."

"By George! You've hit it, boss!" cried Sims, slapping his thigh. "Now what do yuh say to do?"

For a long miute of silence Bud Larkin thought. Then he said:

"Here's my chance to get those rustlers and at the same time benefit myself. There can't be more than a dozen or fifteen of them at the outside. Ride back to the camp, Simmy, and get twenty men, the best gun-rollers in the outfit. Tell anybody that's afraid of his hide to stay away, for the rustlers are top-notch gun-fighters."

"But what'll yuh do with a thousand cattle on yore hands?" demanded Hardwinter in amazement.

"I'll tell you that if we get 'em," was Bud's reply. "As I see it, we can't do without them."

The plan of campaign was somewhat indefinite. The last intention in the world was to frighten away the cattle by a grand charge and a salvo of young artillery. With great caution the sheepmen approached near enough to discern the white cover of the cook-waggon, when it was seen that the whole herd was slowly moving toward the ford, the singing rustlers circling around it.

Bud told off a dozen of his riders and instructed each to pick a man and to ride as near to him as possible without being seen. Then, at the signal of a coyote's howl twice given, to close in and get the drop on the rustlers, after which the remainder of the body would come along and take the direction of things.

Sims was put in charge of this manoeuvre, and was at liberty to give the signal whenever he thought circumstances justified it. It was a strange procession that marched toward the ford of the Big Horn—the fifteen hundred head of calves and young steers, guarded by unsuspecting rustlers; then the knot of sheepmen and the dozen riders closing in on their quarry, and, last of all, three miles back, eight thousand sheep clattering through the dust.

For what seemed almost half an hour there was silence. Then suddenly came the far-off, long-drawn howl of a coyote, immediately followed by another. Bud set spurs to his horse, revolver in hand, the remaining eight men at his heels, and made directly for the cook-waggon, where he knew at least one or two of the outfit might be sleeping.

The drumming of the horse's hoofs could now be plainly heard from all sides, and a moment later there was a stab of light in the dark and the first shot rang out.

After that there were many shots, for the rustlers, keyed up to great alertness by the hazardness of their calling, had opened fire without waiting for question or answer.

Bud, as he dashed up to the cook-waggon, saw two men crawl out and stand for a minute looking. Then, as their hands moved to their hip-pockets like one, he opened fire. At almost the same instant the flames leaped fro mtheir guns, and Bud's hat was knocked away by a bullet that went clean through it.

Meanwhile the man who had been riding beside him gave a grunt and fell from his saddle. One of the rustlers doubled up where he stood.

Larkin, to avoid crashing full into the cook-waggon, swerved his horse aside, as did the others. The horse of the man who had been shot stood still for a moment, and in that moment the rustler who remained standing gave one leap and had bestridden him.

Bud saw the manoeuvre just in time to wheel his horse on a spot as big as a dollar and take after the man in the darkness, yelling back. "Get the others!" as he rode.

It was now a matter between the pursuer and the pursued. Pounding gopher-holes, sunken spots, and otherwise away into the darkness, heedless of er dangers, the two sped. Occasionally the man ahead would turn in his saddle and blaze away at his pursuer, and Bud wondered that none of these hastily fired bullets came near their mark. For his part he saved his fire. It was not his idea to shoot the rustlers, but rather to capture them alive, since the unwritten law of that lawless land decreed that shooting was too merciful a death for horse or cattle thieves.

But Larkin found, to his dismay, that the horse of the other was faster than his own, and when they had galloped about a mile he had to strain his eyes to see the other at all. He knew that unless he did something at once the other would get away from him.

He lifted his revolver and took careful aim at the barely perceptible form of the horse. Then, when the other fired again, Larkin returned the shot, and almost immediately noticed that he was creeping up. At fifty yards the fleeing man blazed away again, and this time Bud heard the whistle of the bullet. Without further delay he took a pot-shot at the rustler's gun arm and, by one of those accidents that the law of chance permits to happen once in a lifetime, got him.

After that the rustler pulled up his failing animal to a walk and faced him around.

"Hands up!" yelled Larkin, covering the other.

The answer was a streak of yellow flame from the fellow's left hand that had been resting on his hip. The bullet flew wide as though the man had never shot left handed before, and Bud, furious at the deception, dashed to close quarters recklessly, not daring to shoot for fear of killing his man.

This move broke the rustler's courage, and his left hand shot skyward. His right arm being broken he could not raise it. Larkin rode alongside of him and peered into his face.

It was Smithy Caldwell.

Quickly Bud searched him for other weapons.

"Wha're yuh goin' to do with me, Larkin?" whined the blackmailer. "Don't take me back there. I haven't done nothin,."

"Shut up and don't be yellow," admonished Bud. "If your're not guilty of anything you can prove it quick enough, I guess."

"I saved your life once," pleaded the other. "Let me go."

"You saved it so you could get more money out of me. Think I don't know you, Caldwell?"

"Let me go an I'll give wou back all that money and all the rest you've ever given me. For God's sake don't let 'em hang me!"

The cowardice of the man was pitiful, but Bud was unmoved. For years his life had been dogged by this man. Now, an openly avowed rustler, he expected clemency from his victim.

"Ride ahead there," ordered Bud. Caldwell, whimpering, took his position.

"Put your hands behind you." The other made as though to comply with the command, when suddenly with a swift motion he put something in his mouth.

Instantly Bud had him by the throat, forcing his mouth open. Caldwell, forced by this grip, spat out something that Bud caught with his freehand. It was a piece of paper. Larkin slipped it into the pocket of his shirt and released his clutch. Then he bound Smithy's hands and started back toward the scene of the raid.

When he arrived with his prisoner riding ahead on the limping horse, he found that all was over. Two of the rustlers were dead, but the rest were sitting silent on the ground by the side of the cook-waggon. One sheepman had been killed and another's broken shoulder was being roughly dressed by Sims.

Others of the sheepmen were riding around the herd, quieting it. That there had been no stampede was due to the fact that the shooting had come from all sides at once, and the creatures, bewildered, had turned in upon themselves and crowded together, in sheer terror, trampling to death a number in the centre of the herd.

Less than half a mile ahead were the banks of the Big Horn and the ford. A mile behind the leaders of the sheep were steadily advancing. There was only one thing to be done:

"Drive the cows across the ford," commanded Bud. Then he told off a detail to guard the prisoners, and the rest of the men got the cattle in motion toward the crossing.

Bud did not join this work. Instead, he pulled from his pocket the bit of paper that Smithy Caldwell had attempted to swallow. By the light of a match he read what it said:

The range is clear. Drive north fast to-nite and travel day and nite. Meet me to-morrow at Indian Coulee at ten. Burn this.

STELTON.

For a minute Bud stared at the incriminating paper, absolutely unable to digest the information it carried. Then with a rush understanding came to him, and he knew that Mike Stelton, the trusted foreman of the Bar T ranch, was really the leader of the rustlers, and was the most active of all of them in robbing old Beef Bissell.

For a long time he sat motionless on his horse, reviewing all the events that had passed, which now explained the remarkable activity of the rustlers and their ability to escape pursuit and capture.

"I don't know where Indian Coulee is, Stelton," he said to himself, "but I'll be there at ten if it's within riding distance."

CHAPTER XVIII.

THE IMMORTAL TEN.

Jimmie Welsh threw his hand into the discard and grinned sheepishly.

"Yuh got me this time," he said.

Billy Speaker, who held a full house, kings up,, smiled pleasantly.

"I allow yuh'll have to put yore gun in the next pot if you want to stick along," he said. "An' if yuh do I'll win off yuh and get away from here."

"No," said Jimmie, regretfully, "if it was any other time I might reak it, but now."

Red Tarken, who had been shuffling the single greasy pack of cards, began to deal. In the game beside these three were two more sheepmen and another cattle raiser.

The six sat in the shade of a huge bowlder that had broken off and rolled down the side of the red scoria butte. The game had been going on for hours, and captors and captives alike played with all the cowboys' fervent love of gambling. Larkin, Speaker and their companion were free to move as they liked, but were on parole not to try to overpower their guardians.

Others of the eleven owners sat about in the shade of rocks, playing cards, or talking and doing their best to pass away the time. It was a strange gathering. Only one man remained sitting by himself with bent head and his hands bound behind him. This was Beef Bissell, the cattle-king, who had steadfastly refused to give his word to remain peaceable, and fumed his life away hour after hour with vain threats and recriminations.

At either end of the small inclosure that backed against the butte, two men with Winchesters in their hands bestrode motionless horses.

This perpetual guard, kept night and day, though invisible from all but one small point, was the only sign that there was anything but the kindliest relations among all the members of the party.

When the cowmen had found that no personal harm was to be done them, all but Bissel and one other had resigned themselves to making the best of a laughably humiliating situation. It was Billy Speaker himself who had suggested the idea of the paroles, and as Jimmie Welsh knew the word of a Westerner was as good as his bond, the pact was soon consummated.

It was a remarkable formation in a desolate spot that the sheepmen had taken for a prison. It is a common fact that on many of these high buttes and mesas the pitiless weather of ages has chiseled figures, faces, and forms which, in their monstrous grotesquery, suggest the discarded clay modelings of a half-witted giant.

This place was a kind of indentation in the side of a precipitous butte, above which the cliff (if it may be so called) arched over part way like a canopy. The floor was of rock and lower than the plain, but over it were scattered huge blocks of stone that had fallen from above. Other stones had, in the course of time, made a sort of breastwork about this level flooring so that the retreat was both a refuge and a defence.

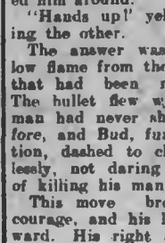
WOMAN ESCAPES OPERATION

By Timely Use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Here is her own statement.

Cary, Maine.—"I feel it a duty I owe to all suffering women to tell what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for me. One year ago I found myself a terrible sufferer. I had pains in both sides and such a soreness I could scarcely straighten up at times. My back ached, I had no appetite and was so nervous I could not sleep, then I would be so tired mornings that I could scarcely get around. It seemed almost impossible to move or do a bit of work and I thought I never would be any better until I submitted to an operation. I commenced taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and soon felt like a new woman. I had no pains, slept well, had good appetite and was fat and could do almost all my own work for a family of four. I shall always feel that I owe my good health to your medicine."—Mrs. HAYWARD SOWERS, Cary, Maine.



If you are ill do not drag along until an operation is necessary, but at once take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

Prominent Ontario Merchant Says He Is Enjoying "The Best Health I Ever Had" Thanks To "Fruit-a-tives".

B. A. KELLY, Esq.

HAGERSVILLE, ONT., Aug. 20th, 1913

"About two years ago, I found my health in a very bad state. My Kidneys were not doing their work, and I was all run down in condition. I felt the need of some good remedy, and having seen "Fruit-a-tives" advertised, I decided to try them. Their effect I found more than satisfactory. Their action was mild and the result all that could be expected.

My kidneys resumed their normal action after I had taken upwards of a dozen boxes and I regained my old time vitality. Today I am as well as ever, the best health I ever had, and I unhesitatingly give you this letter and my photo for publication if you wish" B. A. KELLY

"The greatest kidney remedy in the world", is what thousands of people say about "Fruit-a-tives". And it is true. "Fruit-a-tives" heals the kidneys, strengthens the kidneys, cures the kidneys, as nothing else will. All over Canada today, hundreds of people who were sick and suffering, are curing themselves of kidney and bladder troubles, Rheumatism, and Lumbago by taking "Fruit-a-tives", the famous medicine made from fruit juices.

"Fruit-a-tives" is sold by dealers everywhere at 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c.—or will be sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

COMMISSIONERS FOR OTONABEE RURAL TELEPHONE SYSTEM

Examiner Special:

KEENE, Feb. 20. — A meeting of the Otonabee rural telephone petitioners was held in the town hall, Keene, on Wednesday, Feb. 18, for the purpose of electing three comissioners for the year. The meeting was called to order with Mr. W. A. Anderson in the chair, and F. A. Eason acting as secretary.

After Mr. Dagger of the Ontario Railway Board gave a very interesting talk on organization, construction and conections of the lines, nominations for commissioners were called for and elected in the following:—Mr. David Armstrong, Mr. W. A. Anderson and Mr. F. A. Eason.

The anual meeting will be held at Keene on the first Wednesday in Feb., 1915.

In regard to renters (tenants) the matter is in the hands of the Commissioners and any person wanting a telephone will have to consult the commissioner, Mr. David Armstrong, Keene. Subscribers will only be taken at the present time between the 2nd and 6th line north of the Norwood Road (Block Road) and south of the Norwood road between the 2nd and 11th lines of Otonabee. Farmers who have poles to dispose of along the lines can get all information they require from any of the commissioners in regard to the size of poles, etc.

The Secret of Good Digestion

In perfect health, with regular and healthful action of the liver and kidneys, you need not know there is such a thing as digestion or indigestion. Unfortunately, however, modern life is artificial, and not many people avoid suffering more or less from troubles of this nature.

The great secret lies in keeping the liver and kidneys in health and vigour, for then the food is passed quickly along the alimentary canal, the nutritive portions being assimilated in the blood stream and the poisoned waste materials are passed out of the body.

When the liver and kidneys get wrong you will obtain relief most promptly and effectively by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. If chronic indigestion is to be cured it must be by enlivening the action of these filtering and excretory organs. To persons who have thought only of the stomach as being the offending organ this may seem strange, but any competent physician will tell you this is correct.

Lake Tragedy Checks To Be Paid Monthly

TORONTO, Feb. 18.—Mark H. Irish, representative of the Ontario Government on the committee administering the "Lakes Disaster Fund," stated that the details of the plan of distribution were practically completed and would be announced in a couple of days.

"There will be no lump sum payments," said Mr. Irish.

"The method is to distribute the money over a period of five years in proportion that the wages of each deceased person for that period bears to the amount of the fund."

A compilation has been made of what would be the total earnings of those who lost their lives in the great storm of November, for the next five years, and this has been divided into the total amount of the fund. The money will be distributed by the Toronto General Trust Corporation in monthly checks.

CHECKS $10 TO $70.

The figures are not quite ready at present, but it is understood that the amount of the checks will range from $10 to $70 per month. The dependents of the deceased sailors are to be direct beneficiaries. If a wife and children are the dependents the check will go to the wife and if she does not survive the five years it will go towards educating the children. If father and mother or brother and sister are the dependents the check will go to the woman in every case. The committee is taking every precaution to see that there is no overlapping on the one hand and that every case is equitably and fairly treated on the other.

TIRED OUT KIDNEYS
Kidney troubles are so frightfully common because the kidneys are so easily upset by overwork or excesses of eating and drinking. Cure is effected not by whipping them on to renewed effort, but by awakening the action of liver and bowels by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney Liver Pills. This rests the kidneys and makes them well. Backache and urinary disorders then disappear.

LETTERS GOT A SOAKING.

Wave Washed Over Toronto Mail Bags In New York Harbour.

TORONTO, Feb. 20.— The damage tag was pasted on a dozen bags of mail matter from New York on Wednesday. The mail which was composed of first-class postal matter, landed in New York, off the steamer Campania. In the harbour a wave is said to have swept over the deck of a tender, and the result was a rather bedraggled bunch of letters.

When the bags got to Toronto they were frozen as solid as blocks of ice. They were melted out and heated up some in the post office until some dryness had been induced, and this caused a delay of one delivery.

Throughout the city many letters and newspapers have been received which were in a limp and damp condition. The addresses were in some cases badly blurred, but none were reported destroyed.

Labels containing the following explanation were gummed on this matter.

"This article was received in damaged condition through accidental contact with water while in transit."

A portion of the mail was consigned to Peterborough.

Radway's Ready Relief

Mrs. J. Wintermyer of Fairmount, N. J., writes: "I have a large family of small children, and it has saved me many a doctor's bill. For sudden sore throat it is a thing over that. My little girl has sprained her ankle and is getting around fine without any other doctor than Radway's Ready Relief."

CURES SORE THROAT

Apply the Relief to the throat and chest until the surface reacts and reddens. Give Radway's Pills in such doses as will freely move the bowels. For a sudden cold, take a large dose of Radway's Pills, and a teaspoonful of Relief with a teaspoonful of molasses, in a tumbler of hot water. Do this at once on going to bed. A profuse perspiration will break out, and in the morning the cold will be gone.

The reproducing point of the new Edison Cylinder Phonograph is a diamond

It was appropriate that when Mr. Edison was seeking the utmost perfection in sound reproduction he should find that this power lay in the diamond. He discovered it in the course of more than 2,500 experiments, always looking toward rarer sweetness, mellower, stronger tone.

Edison Amberola I
Has Diamond-Point reproducer, double spring motor, wood horn and concealing door, plays all records, 4 minutes, Standard, Amberol and Edi.

He has equipped every new

When this marvelously impervious tip rests upon the surface of the unbreakable Blue Amberol Record, the heavier pressure can produce but one result—wonderfully increased volume combined with rarest sweetness. Hear a Blue Amberol at your Edison Dealer's today.

EPWORTH LEAGUE'S SUFFERING

TORONTO, Feb. 20.—In his address at the afternoon session of the Toronto Conference Epworth League Convention Wednesday in the Metropolitan Church, Mr. E. E. Pugsley, president, reported that during the past year there had been a decrease. Three senior Epworth Leagues had gone out of existence he said, and over 500 members had dropped. He was all optimism, however, and was sure that the League of the future would be more prosperous than the League of the past or present.

Dealing with the word "Vision," he declared that the Leagues were suffering from a lack of seers. The members must get a new vision of Christ and all must get in closer touch. They also needed an insight to the good which is in man. A vision of the basic principles of the Epworth League was necessary. Mr. Pugsley gave those present three mottoes, "Duty, Ideals and Sacrifice."

Speaking on the Christian Endeavor department of the League, Mr. M. D. Tressider advised that to attain success in this part of the work, the officer concerned should arrange his programme at least three weeks ahead. He knew a league, where on the night of the meeting, the programme was arranged, and the Christian Endeavour department was a failure. In his opinion this was the most important work of the League, and too many members could not take part in soul winning.

A PAGE OF THE BEST HUMOR OF THE WEEK

Preferred to Hide His Light.

The editor of a great magazine sent for a certain author who had submitted unsolicited manuscript.

"I am glad to make your acquaintance, sir," said the editor, enthusiastically. "The story you sent in is perfectly splendid. But why use a nom de plume? Let us publish it over your name, and it will make you famous."

"I'm not after fame," objected the author. "It's money I want."

"But you'll get just as much money in either case."

"No, I won't. If I publish it over my own name my wife will get the money."

"So the Younswede have separated? I suppose it was because he couldn't support her in the style to which she was accustomed?"

"Say, rather, because she couldn't accustom herself to the style in which he could support her."—Boston Transcript.

"Didn't you ever contemplate matrimony?"

"Yes, my boy," owned up the old bachelor, "but always from a safe distance."

His Windward Anchor.

And many a man's wonderful self-control is due to the fact that he has a helpmeet

The Wrong Term.

Senator William Hughes of New Jersey, told a story in demonstrating that when a man wants to lucidly express himself he cannot be too careful in picking out the right brand of language.

The parson of a small church in one of the back counties tenderly announced that he had received a call from another field. At the conclusion of the service the parson was approached by one of the deacons.

"I have been thinking about the announcement you made, parson," said the deacon. "Are they offering you any mor money in that new field?"

"Oh, yes, brother," was the prompt rejoinder of the parson, "three hundred dollars."

"Well, I don't know as I blame you, parson," thoughtfully returned the deacon, "but in making the announcement you didn't use the right term. That isn't a 'call,' its a 'raise.'"

Tit for Tat.

Grocer: "What do you mean by sending me only 13 ounces of steak when I send for a pound?"

Butcher: "Oh, I don't know; but I'll tell you what I did. I lost my pound weight, and so used one of your pound packets of tea instead."

"Are these all your own children or is it a treat?"
"They are all my own children, and it ain't no treat."

"I don't see how it is," Jenkins began, eyeing the tramp and his performing dog with frank envy. "Here is this mongrel of yours doing all these tricks, and there is my dog, with a pedigree a yard long, that can't be taught a single thing! I've hammered at it till I'm tired, and he can't even be trusted on to roll over when he's told to."

"Well, sir, 'tain't so much the dog," the tramp replied, confidentially. "You have to know more'n he does, or you can't learn him anything."

First Lady: "Too bad! Mrs. S. always has such abominable weather for her afternoon teas."

Second Lady: "Yes, she never pours but it rains."

"What is the meaning of that big 'D' on the dustbin?" asked the servant.

The haughty footman replied:

"Damsel, the 'D' displayed on the dustbin denotes that the despairing domestics of this detached domicile desire that the deserving dustmen during their daily diversions will deign at their delightful duty to dislodge deliberately and deftly the dirt and dust deposited in that disagreeable dustbin."

Tardy Candor in a Card of Thanks.

We wish to thank those who officiated and assisted us in the death of our uncle, Samuel Ardrey."

S. N. Ardrey.
Andy Ardrey.

"This is what I call adding insult to injury."

"What's the trouble?"

"An editor not only returns my manuscript, but he wants me to subscribe for his paper."

Drug Clerk: "Did you kill any moths with these moth balls I gave you?"

Disconsolate Customer: "No. I tried for five hours, but I couldn't hit one."

"No man can serve two masters," observed the good parson, who was visiting the penitentiary.

"I know it," replied Convict 1313. "I'm here for blimmy."

No Relief.

A cynical person was standing in front of a part of an exhibition of art talent labeled "Art Objects."

"Well, I suppose Art does object, and I can't blame her, but there doesn't seem to be any help for it," he finally said.

A Valentine.

"Do you know," said Dicky Byrde to one of his friends at the club, "Miss Twilkens told me she never really appreciated good poetry until she read the Valentine sonnet I addressed to her?"

"Yes," was the answer; "she told me the same thing."

"Did she, then?"

"Certainly. She also remarked that there was nothing like contrast to assist one in forming an opinion."

A Prudent Man.

"What induced you to cut your friend Gushly?"

"His very highflown sentiments about the duties of friendship. I was afraid the day might come when I couldn't afford them."

Eyes and Ears.

"Our little four-year-old darling is so bright—she picks up everything she hears."

"That's nothing—our two-year-old picks up everything he sees."

Called for the Clergy.

Mrs. Hen was in tears; one of her little ones had been sacrificed to make a repast for a visiting clergyman.

"Cheer up, madam," said the rooster comfortingly. "You should rejoice that your son is entering the ministry. He was poorly qualified for a lay member, anyhow."

"Well, miss, what can I do for you?"

"Please, sir, mother says to change a dollar for her an' she'll give you the dollar tomorrow."

At the Movies.

She was well over eighty years of age, and for the first time in her life she had been taken to a moving picture theatre. As she came out a friend met her in the vestibule.

"Hope you enjoyed yourself, Mrs. Smith," she exclaimed.

"Yes," replied the old dame, "I did, but I'm getting that deaf nowadays I couldn't hear a word they said."

What They Went By.

Little Maggie, who is staying in the country, always goes out to the chicken run in the morning to see if there are any eggs. The other day she found none, except the china nest egg.

"No eggs this morning," she announced when she went back to the house, "only the one the chickies measure by."

The End.

"What has become of that aviator you were in love with? Wouldn't he fall for you?"

"Yes ,that's just the trouble. He did."

Proof.

"Ethel has great talent for painting."

"How d'ya know?"

"I can see it in her face."

Overdue Now.

"How is De Fer financially?"

"All at sea."

"Eh?"

"He says he's going to pay up everything when his ship comes in."

In the Dark.

A little colored girl was called upon at school to write a sentence on the blackboard containing the word "delight." This is what she wrote: "Where was Moses when de light went out?"

She Knew.

"If there were four flies on a table and I killed one, how many would be left?" inquired the teacher.

"One," answered a bright little girl—"the dead one."

The Give Away.

"Who gave the bride away?"

"Her little brother. He stood up right in the middle of the ceremony and yelled, 'Hurrah! Fanny, you've got him at last!'"

Easy for Brooks.

"Young Brooks is relieved of one trouble, anyhow."

"What's that?"

"He won't have to lie about his salary to the girl he's going to marry. He works for her father."

Both Careful.

"Our cook is so careful about thieves. She always locks the door, even in the daytime."

"That's nothing. Our cook always keeps a policeman in the kitchen."

SCENE—An Army Boxing Competition.
Civilian: "Rather a fearful man, that!"
Soldier: "Well, 'e ain't really very fearful. You see the big fellow 'a 'is sergeant an' this is the only chance 'e 'as of getting a bit of 'is own back."

THE HOLIDAY ENTERTAINERS.

"We took them to the Pantomime;

And we allowed them to sit up late,

They came out golfing with us;

But the only time they smiled was when they said good-bye."

Extract from Mr. Herbert Stodge's letter to his sister. "We were glad to have our nephew and niece with us, but, frankly, they are too solemn.

Not If He Knew It.

"Everybody says we are engaged," said Miss Antique.

"What of that? Nobody believes it."

Collector: "Why haven't you paid your gas bill?"

Consumer: "The light was so poor I could not read the bill."

The accomplished and oblivging pianist had finished several selections in the hotel parlor, and the guests were discussing other numbers. One turned to an elderly lady and said: "Now, for instance, that is Mozart's Twelfth Mass. You remember that, Mrs. Toombs?"

"Remember it? I should say so. Why, my husband served thru the war [illegible] regiment!"

Ophelia: "I figured out this morning how many ancestors I really had, and found there were several thousand.

Miss Blunt: "And just think of the magnificent result of all those ancestors.

The First Lady: My husband wired me from Paris on my birthday asking whether he should buy me a Rembrandt or a Titian. Now, which would you have?

The Second: Well, as far as that goes, any of those French cars are pretty good.

One Advantage.

"There's one thing I like about these new-fangled dinner dances."

"What's that?"

"They keep a man from wondering what to do with his hands between courses."

"I understand you got into jail," said the warden, "on account of a glowing mining prospectus."

"I was quite optimistic," admitted the gentlemanly prisoner.

"Well, the governor wants a report on conditions in my jail. I want you to write it."

Some Popular Lies.

"Thank you, I never slept better in my life."

"I never smoked a better cigar, old man."

"Can't tell you how sorry I am there is no room for your little boy in my car."

"Yes, we get nine eggs a day."

"I couldn't possibly live without you."

"Pretty good for me—I went around in ninety-nine."

"I nearly died laughing."

"Oh, no, mother, my feet are not wet."

"Yes, I smoke occasionally, just to be sociable."

"He is the living image of his father."

"Just twenty minutes from the City Hall."

"You'll find this just as good, madam."

"I love you."

"Madam, the feather in your hat is getting in my eye," exclaimed a man in a crowd. The woman turned around, looked him over, and then inquired, "Why don't you wear glasses?"

"The any of the good things you hope for come to pass?"

"They all come to pass, but they come and pass so abominable swift I can't grab 'em."

Quite Possible.

Pat was a young recruit, and was under-going his first course of musketry at Aldershot.

The soldiers had just finished firing, and Pat was taken before the officer for his bad shooting, who told him he would have to do better at the next distance, which was seven rounds of quick-firing.

"Now, Pat, you fire at No. 5 target."

Pat banged away his seven rounds and waited for the result, which showed he had hit No. 4 target the possible number of hits, but had not hit No. 5 target once.

"What target did you aim at?" asked the irate officer.

"No. 5, sir," answered Pat.

"And have hit No. 4 every time," continued the officer, getting cross.

"Bedad, sorr, retorted Pat, "the same thing might happen in war. I might aim at a private and hit a general!"

When a clergyman announced that there would be a fete in the church an old lady whispered that she "knew the party to whom he referred."

Overheard in a quiet corner of the ball-room. He: "I adore you; but, unfortunately, I am as poor as Job. Still, I have a rich uncle of 60, who enjoys very poor health."

She: "Is he married?"

He: "No."

She: "Well, my dear friend, it would be silly to rush headlong into misery; come, be reasonable, give me up, and introduce me to your uncle without delay."

Caught.

Lodger (who thinks his whisky has diminished, and wishes to prove it): "Mrs. Prigem, if your cat has been at that bottle labeled 'whisky' it is doomed, for it contains a mixture of deadly poison and whisky, which I use for cleansing purposes."

Landlady (faintly): "Send for the doctor; I'm dying."

He (masterfully): "I don't propose to be trifled with!"
"Why did you, then?"

Definitions.

Stomach trouble: Hunger.
Speaks for itself: The phonograph.
A penny weight: The one obtained by dropping a cent in the slot.

A Swede was being examined in a case where the defendant was accused of breaking a plate-glass window with a large stone. He was pressed to tell how big the stone was, but he could not explain.

"Was it as big as my fist?" asked the judge, who had taken over the examination from the lawyers in the hope of getting some results.

"It ban bigger," the Swede replied.

"Was it as big as my two fists?"

"It ban bigger."

"Was it as big as my head?"

"It ban about as long, but not so thick," replied the Swede, amid the laughter of the court.

Same As Before.

The driver of a prison van was hailed by a would-be wag.

"Got any room inside, Robert?"

"There's room for one," replied the driver; "we kep' it for you."

Not entirely disconcerted, the would-be wag had another shot.

"What's your fare?" he asked.

"Bread and water — same as you had before," said the driver.

Disappointed.

A minister was once preaching at a little chapel on the subject of "giving." During the sermon his heart was rejoiced by the fact that a member of the congregation went to the side of the chapel and placed a coin in a box, and a little later another did the same. Surely, the minister thought, his sermons had never met with so practical a response before.

On leaving, he was accosted by one of the brethren, who said:

"I hope we didn't disturb you, sir; but ours is a penny-in-the-slot meter, and we should have been in darkness if we hadn't attended to it."

An Order for Hose.

A large engineering firm recently received an order from Russia, and, altho the receiver of it had a fair knowledge of the language, there were two words he was unable to translate. Somewhere in the works, however, a real Russian was employed. They brought him along and he read the letter carefully, but was still puzzled by those two words.

Literally, he explained their meaning was "hot stockings," which seemed absurd, but was presently seen to be the nearest known Russian synonym for "fire hose."

What He Noticed.

An inspector, examining a class in grammar, wrote a sentence on the blackboard, and asked if anyone noticed anything peculiar in it. After a short silence a small boy exclaimed:

"Yes, sir; the bad writing."

Artistic Economy.

"Of course, I want my daughter to have some kind of artistic education. I think I'll let her study singing."

"Why not art or literature?"

"Art spoils canvas and literature wastes reams of paper. Singing merely produces a temporary disturbance of the atmosphere."

Killing the Goose.

The old family physician being away on a much-needed vacation, his practice was entrusted to his son, a recent medical graduate. When the old man returned the youngster told him, among other things, that he had cured Miss Ferguson, an aged and wealthy patient, of her chronic indigestion.

"My boy," said the old doctor, "I'm proud of you; but Miss Ferguson's indigestion is what put you thru college."

Charging It Up.

"That lawyer of mine has a nerve."

"Why so?"

"Listen to this item in his bill: 'For waking up in the night and thinking over your case, ten dollars.'"

Caesar's Condition.

"Imperious Caesar, dead and turn'd to clay,
Might stop a hole to keep the wind away."
Thus Shakspere spake of him of Roman blood.
So in the filmy days now long since worn,
A trite expression 'o the world was born
When Shakspere said: "Great Caesar's name was mud."

"Has the lady whose portrait you painted paid you yet?"
"No, she is suing me for defamation."

HOUSEWIFE'S ECONOMY

At this time of the year potatoes are at their worst. Yet at their worst potatoes are good enough to the taste for most persons to eat them seven times a week. And that is more than you can say of any other vegetable. A government agricultural bulletin on potatoes calls attention to the fact that they are easily digested and that, moreover, almost every method of cooking them adds to their value. For in almost every way they are eaten milk or fat of some sort is added to them. Mashed potatoes, for instance, contain both milk and butter. French fried potatoes and potato chips contain a good deal of fat. Scalloped potatoes contain butter and milk and sometimes flour—all nourishing ingredients.

Here are some suggestions for ed to be full of nutriment, into palatable fare:

Potatoes boiled in their jackets lose less of their nourishing qualities than those boiled after they are pared. But sometimes old potatoes are so full of eyes and knots that they are better boiled without jackets. In that case, put them immediately into cold water, seasoned with salt, to stand while they are waiting to be boiled.

When put on to cook boil them in boiling water, in which there is a little lemon juice. The boiling water immediately expands the starch cells on the surface of the potatoes and keeps the rest of the tuber from absorbing moisture. The lemon juice keeps the potatoes from turning black—just as the salt does in the water into which the potatoes are put when they are peeled.

When potatoes are boiled in their jackets their skins should be thoroughly cleaned before they are boiled. A ring of skin about the middle of the potato should be removed before the potatoes are put into the water so that the moisture on the inside may escape and the potato will not be soggy.

In many cases twice-cooked potatoes are the best at this time of the year. Scalloped potatoes, made from cold boiled potatoes finely chopped and covered with milk, seasoned with pepper, salt and butter, mashed potatoes, potatoes sliced after they are boiled and baked with cheese—these dishes can be made from old potatoes.

Baked potatoes are also good at this time of year. Clean the potatoes to be baked thoroughly, then rub them with butter or lard to make the skin thin and smooth, so that it will peal readily, and prick them with a fork so that the moisture within them, when it expands with the heat, may escape; otherwise the potatoes may burst.

FASHION'S DECREES

Why is it that, as the days grow brighter and warmer the favoured colours grow darker an d more sombre?

Nobody knows. Perhaps in our desire to counteract winter gloom, we arrayed ourselves in the colours of summer when the frosts began. Now, when we can already sniff spring in the air, we don the sombre brown of autumn leaves, and simple, dark blue serge, to remind us that winter is not really past.

Whatever the reason, the fact remains, that brown, in many shades, is in high favour, and blue serge — reliable, serviceable blue serge—is considered smart.

Brown in every shade, from a light tan to tobacco and seal brown, and the new shade, called pheasant which has much red in its makeup, appears in the new frocks. It is a good deal seen at the morning musicales, held in the fashionable hotels, at which smart women gather to listen to the music and show their new frocks.

Combining two fancies, brown taffeta is developed into some charming gowns. One worn at one of these musicales by a widely-known society woman showed a skirt of plaid taffeta — brown and black wit h a line of green—made with a white tunic that was drawn up into a bustle at the back. There was a wide folded belt of brown silk, with suspenders of the same material, that crossed each other back and front, over a cream net bodice. A cutaway coat of brown taffeta and a black tulle and taffeta hat completed a most interesting costume.

Another type of pretty frock shows that brown taffeta is much liked Skunk bands about a short, pleated tunic, and a flat, wide collar and the cream lace of the collar and cuffs harmonize admirably with the brown, and at the same time give it character.

It is a good point to bear in mind that cream net or lace bring out the best points of brown. And another good point is this: Net or tulle are needed with taffeta to soften it. In spite of the fact that the taffeta of this season has a softer finish and surface than taffeta of preceding seasons, a little ingenuity on the part of the dressmakers in softening it is necessary.

One of the most interesting new uses for blue serge is its use as a trimming. It appears as a panel, edged with soutache, on a taffeta frock. Or it is fashioned into a wide belt, with suspenders, on a frock of silk and net. Again it is used for a tunic. This use of serge for the trimming fabric on frocks of relatively thin materials is new. And it is effective.

BABY'S OWN TABLETS CURE SICKLY BABIES

If your baby is sickly, if his little stomach is out of order or his bowels need regulating, no other medicine will have such prompt or beneficial effect as Baby's Own Tablets. Thousands of other mothers use no other medicine for their little ones. Concerning them Mrs. John G. Crockett, Glenberrie N.S., writes: 'I have used Baby's Own Tablets for stomach troubles, vomiting and constipation, and in every instance they have proved successful. I would use no other medicine for my little ones.' The Tablets are sold by mdicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

HOUSEHOLD NOTES

Tassels of braid, silk fringe or beads are found on everything, from hair ornaments to tailor-mades.

Separate skirts are of woollen plaids and worn with plain, coloured, black, navy blue or green coats.

Evening wraps appear in very daring colours. Those of chiffon velvet are extensively worn at the opera.

Some of the velvet street costumes have extremely long coats, reaching nearly to the hem of the gown.

Silk is the most favoured material at present, and the smart afternoon frocks are fashioned of this material or velvet.

The business girl will look smart and modish in navy blue. She should choose one of the hats of black velvet for her head.

Girdles are very important accessories to the costume, and they are made in all styles and sizes of every material.

The big muff must have on it a very large bunch of flowers. They should be at its front, side, near the centre or near one corner.

The skirt of the fashionable garments must not fit. It is draped, usually gathered around the waist, and is met by a baggy blouse.

Chic velour hats are modish for outdoor wear. They are good either in black or colors. They match the sport coat or liven up the sombre suit.

There is a light change in the shape of the black of the collaries blouse. They are high in the centre front and lower on the shoulders.

Fashion has taken a fancy to light coloured suits. The tones known as cate aut lait, biscuit, string, oyster and pale pink have appeared in coats and skirts.

Dry bran is an excellent cleaner for dainty velvet flowers and woollen fabrics. Rub the soiled spots harded than the rest, then brush it all off.

WORTH REMEMBERING

Do not throw away the vinegar left from homemade picklee. It is very nice to use on salads.

To prarent icing from running, dust the cake lightly with cornstarch.

Equal parts of powdered alum and cream of tartar will take out ink spots on colored goods.

Try serving orange fritters with ham; it is a delicious accompaniment.

If you have a little mashed potato left over, don't throw it away, but put it in a double boiler, add some milk and grated cheese, sufficient flour to make a batter, form it in and fry.

A little kerosene oil will soften a child's shoe after it has been wet.

If you wish cut flowers to keep, add a little carbonate of soda to the water.

An Attractive Winter Gown.

Velvet one piece gowns are wonderfully popular this season, and the old objection to this fabric as a dress material, its weight, has been eliminated.

IN PANSY VELVET.

In fact, all materials of the season are light in weight, although displaying a rather heavy surface.

The costume in the cut is of pansy velvet, and the pegtop skirt is slit at the front to give freedom in walking. The opening is artistically filled in with a matching shade of charmeuse, which also makes the wide bodice revers and collar. The chemisette is of cream colored shadow lace. A gold buckle holds the girdle at the waist.

THIN-BLOODED MEN AND WOMEN

Need the Rich, Red Blood Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Actually Make

Thin-blooded people do not remain so from choice, but from indifference, in some cases from despair. People who are pale, languid, with palpitation of the heart, some difficulty in breathing and a tendency to be easily tired are suffering from thin blood. They need only the resolution to take right treatment and stick to it until cured. The remedy that can be relied upon is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. With every dose they make new blood, and new blood means health and strength. The red cheeks, good appetite, increasing weight and strength that follow the use of these Pills prove their great value to thin-blooded people. Here is an example: Mrs. R. Steele, Afton Road, P. E. I., says: "Following child-birth I took a pain in my head which grew so bad I had to call in a doctor. He told me that my blood had turned to water and that I was in a serious condition. He treated me for four months, but still the pain remained, and my condition was growing pitiable. I lost my appetite and was so weak and run-down that I could no more than walk across a room. I was as pale as a corpse, and the doctor told my friends he had but little hopes of my getting better. A cousin who came to see me urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I sent and got a supply. In about a month after beginning their use I had much relief, and by the time I had taken six more boxes I was fully cured and felt as well as ever I did in my life. I have never had a twinge of the pain since, and feel that I owe my life to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, as they cured me after the Doctor had failed."

Good Form

Social Asset of Good Memory.

"What do you do," said a woman the other day, "when somebody greets you cordially and you haven't the least idea who it is?"

"Why, I usually try to be as diplomatic as possible and discover who it is I am talking to before I give myself away," replied the social mentor. "Nobody is so humble minded that he likes to be forgotten. Every one of us resents the fact, even if it is only unconsciously."

"Yes, but after you have felt around as cautiously as possible and still fail to get a clew, then what do you do?"

"Well, if I can't get even a tag to hang a shred of memory on I think the best thing is to be frank or at least partially frank, for socially absolute frankness degenerates sometimes into brutality. So I usually say something like this: 'I can't quite recall your name, although I know it should be very familiar to me.' And then, of course, I get the desired information."

"I think we should train our minds to remember both faces and names when we are young," said an advising friend. "It seems to me the woman who is always forgetting names and faces is in a way guilty of a breach of good manners. The faculty of remembering people often makes all the difference between success and failure in holding friends."

"I agree with you absolutely," replied the questioner. "How often do we hear people say: 'Oh, I never can remember faces; it's no use for me to try. I am always offending somebody by cutting him dead because my memory is so bad I didn't know him from Adam.' And yet these same women, for it is usually a woman you hear talking in this way, do not seem to realize that this sort of memory, the lack of which they are deploring, can be and should be cultivated. I used to be a great offender in this respect once upon a time, when all at once I began to realize that I was making myself unpopular by my heedlessness, so I took measures to correct it."

"How did you go about it? I have often longed to cultivate a better social memory, but I didn't know quite what to do."

"I decided that the chief reason that makes most of us forget people we have met is indifference. We do not pay sufficient attention to what we are doing. Nowadays whenever I meet anybody I study his features, and in the course of my conversation with him I try, if I can do so without making it conspicuous or sounding in any way queer, to repeat his name several times, and usually when I have done this both face and name will return to my memory the next time we meet.

threads, is the material of which this lovely afternoon gown is fashioned.

The bodice is cut low, and a vest of tucked net relieves the somewhat somber effect of the wine shade.

Only a Tool.

Opportunity makes the man, but only when he knows what to do with it.

Shining Noses.

A shining nose is an effect that is hard to overcome. A mixture composed of one ounce of distilled water, eight minims of distilled tincture of lavender and two grains of sulphate of zinc will, if applied with a soft piece of muslin four times daily, do much to correct the trouble. The balm should be well mixed and should not be allowed to remain overnight.

The New Massage.

A pleasant way to massage the face is to have one of the little rubber cups that are filled with a good cold cream and are manipulated by suction. Put it on different parts of the face and work the rubber gently. It gives a wonderfully refreshing feeling. The face should first be washed in lukewarm water.

How to Rest.

An excellent way of resting if you have fifteen spare moments is to lie flat on your back on a couch or bed. Relax all your muscles, stretch your arms straight out and draw in several deep, sighing breaths, then release them slowly. You will be surprised how much fresher you feel when you rise from this brief rest.

Waves of Water.

Cayuga lake, New York, is 150 feet deep in spots.

The current of the Thames averages two miles an hour, that of the Rhine six miles.

The English channel is nowhere more than 900 feet deep. The Irish sea is 2,130 feet deep.

The river Orinoco, in South America, has more tributaries than any other river. The total number is put at 3,500, including 436 large streams.

Disproving a Proverb.

Lady Cook (Tennessee Claflin) was talking in Pittsburgh about time's changes.

"Woman used to wear the hoop-skirt," she said, "and the wind blew it up outrageously. She now wears the slashed skirt, a much more modest affair.

"Time changes all things," ended Lady Cook. "I said to a young man the other day:

"'Distance lends enchantment.'

"'But not,' he answered, 'when you are taking your girl home in a taxicab.'"—New York Tribune.

WOMEN CURED AT HOME

Women's disorders always yield from the very beginning of the treatment to the mild, but effective, action of Orange Lily. Within two or three days after commencing its use the improvement becomes noticeable, and this improvement continues until the patient is completely cured. Orange Lily is an applied or local treatment, and acts directly on the womanly organs, removing the congestion, toning and strengthening the nerves, and restoring perfect circulation to the diseased parts. In order to convince all suffering women of the value of this remedy, I will send a 25-cent box, enough for ten days' treatment absolutely FREE to each lady sending me her address. MRS. FRANCES E. CURRAH, Windsor, Ont.

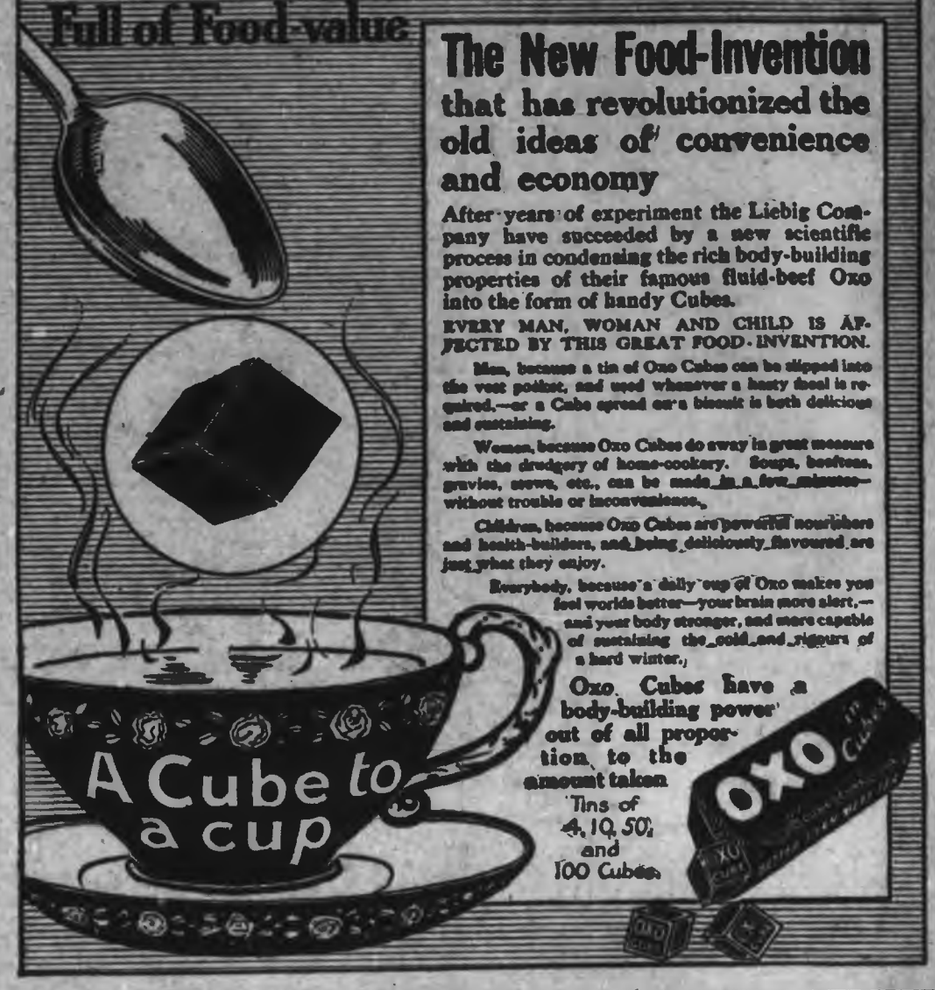
OXO CUBES

Full of Food-value



The New Food-Invention that has revolutionized the old ideas of convenience and economy

After years of experiment the Liebig Company have succeeded by a new scientific process in condensing the rich body-building properties of their famous fluid-beef Oxo into the form of handy Cubes.

EVERY MAN, WOMAN AND CHILD IS AFFECTED BY THIS GREAT FOOD-INVENTION.

Man, because a tin of Oxo Cubes can be slipped into the vest pocket, and used whenever a hasty meal is required.—or a Cube spread on a biscuit is both delicious and sustaining.

Woman, because Oxo Cubes do away in great measure with the drudgery of home-cookery. Soups, beefteas, gravies, stews, etc., can be made in a few minutes—without trouble or inconvenience.

Children, because Oxo Cubes are powerful nourishers and health-builders, and, being deliciously flavoured are just what they enjoy.

Everybody, because a daily cup of Oxo makes you feel worlds better—your brain more alert,—and your body stronger, and more capable of sustaining the cold and rigours of a hard winter.

Oxo Cubes have a body-building power out of all proportion to the amount taken

Tins of 4, 10, 50, and 100 Cubes.

Is the Odour From the Incinerator Intimates a Correspondent

To th Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—I have been reading the various discussions regarding the proposed post-office site, and wish to call your attention to one thing. There is considerable talk about erecting the post office and custom house at the corner of George and Sherbrooke Streets. If the people of the City come to the agreement of building the post office and custom house at the corner named above, they must also take another thing into consideration, namely, the "chicinerator." The incinerator is also located in Ward One, just south of the C. P. R. tracks. As far as I can learn the incinerator was built to dispose of the garbage. It was to do this without leaving an odour of any kind. Instead of this it is just the very opposite. It does away with the garbage all right, and you can easily tell so by the disagreeable smell that arises from it. The odour that comes from it is something most detestable. You can smell it for blocks. The very idea of having a plant like that built in the heart of the City! It lessens the value of the people's property a great deal, and besides, it injures the health of the citizens nearby. The neighbours cannot even raise their windows to let in a bit of pure air, because the atmosphere is filled continually, with a noxious and injurious smell. It would be all right to build the post office and custom house in Ward One if it would do anything towards the removal of the bad smell that arises from the incinerator. If the building is erected at Sherbrooke and George Streets and the same smell keeps arising from the incinertor it will not be long before the post office and custom house officials will be in the cemetery.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your most valuable space in the paper, I am, Yours, etc.,

"Lonelydale."

Sale of Remedies for Headache!

There are more ZUTOO tablets for headache sold in this country than all other remedies combined. Think how good these tablets must be to have such an immense sale.

Dealers could not sell them nor would people buy ZUTOO tablets in such large quantities, were they not what all users say they are, that is, a perfectly harmless and reliable cure for headache.

Do YOU use these tablets which so many people have chosen as best? If you do not, it is your next move. 25c at dealers

HASTINGS NEWS

Examiner Special:

Mr. John Brown and family were the victims of a very serious and peculiar accident in which Mr. Brown had a couple of ribs broken and was badly shaken up, and Mrs. Brown and their two daughters, Mrs. David Halstead, of Alnwick, and Miss Brown, were also considerably shaken up.

Mr. Brown was descending to the cellar when the top step gave way and he fell the rest of the way down the stairway. His two daughters, in turn, came to find the cause of the trouble, and, missing the top step, also fell down into the cellar. Mrs. Brown came to the stairway with a lamp in her hand and followed the others. All but Mr. Brown fortunately escaped any serious injury but Mr. Brown, who has been in very poor health for some time, is in a serious condition.—Hastings.

The Skin Troubles of Childhood

School Records Show Much Time Lost From Eczema.

Chafing and skin irritation, whether from changing temperature, rough winds, strong soap or the action of the clothing, naturally develop into eczema, spread over the body and defy ordinary treatments.

Most doctors do not give much attention to skin diseases, and, consequently, it is necessary for parents to select some treatment which has proven a cure for such ailments. If records of cures count for anything, then you can turn to Dr. Chase's Ointment with fullest assurance that in this you will have the means of controlling itching skin diseases.

By affording prompt relief from the terrible itching, Dr. Chase's Ointment puts an end to suffering, and removes the cause of scratching. As the fires of eczema die away the ointment sets up the process of healing, and brings about thorough and lasting cure. As a treatment for the skin troubles of children nothing has ever proved so satisfactory as Dr. Chase's Ointment.

By CLARISSA MACKIE

The station platform was crowded with people waiting for the gates to open to admit them to the Boston express waiting down there on the tracks.

Rosalind Mereton, with a devoted cavalier on either side of her graceful little velvet clad form, caught a glimpse of her reflection in the narrow mirror of a slot machine, and the tired look vanished from her lustrous hazel eyes. Rosalind in a tip tilted little hat with a velvet strap under her round white chin, with a pink rose tucked under the brim, where two little brown curls dangled coquettishly, was an enchanting sight even to herself.

With a pale youth at either elbow Rosalind was safely piloted through the crowd and reluctantly released at the gate, through which she passed with a farewell smile that included them both. Dearly as they believed they loved the pretty little actress, there was no jealousy between them, because they had a common ground of fellowship—they were both acutely jealous of a third young man, Hanford Beeks, the millionaire, whose bouquet of violets and orchids nestled in the lace frills of Rosalind's coat.

The train left the city and went thundering out into the country toward the New Hampshire hills, where Rosalind had been born. She was going there to spend a few days. The stock company of which she was a member was undergoing the throes of reorganization before going out on the road, and there was something that Rosalind wanted to think over in the quiet of the country.

Hanford Beeks wanted to marry her. She pined for the happiness that she was sure must be attained when one had millions of dollars to spend upon pleasure. She saw in her mind's eye the old red farmhouse transformed into a beautiful mansion set in the midst of a formal garden, while her father and mother rode luxuriously in costly motorcars. Gone would be the ancient surrey and the fat white horse, Becky, who had drawn them to church each Sunday every year within Rosalind's recollection. Riches and ease would follow her beloved parents the rest of their days if she married Hanford Beeks. How glad they would be, too, to have her give up the profession which she had adopted after a brief summer's acquaintance with some actresses who were summering in Putwold.

Because of her ignorance of the world and its evil ways Rosalind had brushed aside all tempting pleasures and thrown herself into her work, for which she possessed some talent. But she was weary of it. Unknown to herself, the call of her blood was for those simple domestic duties which a long line of Puritan ancestors had nobly fulfilled.

But this offer of Hanford Beeks! He was a splendid type of young American, and he was honest in his desire to make Rosalind happy. She had been dazzled by his proposal, and she had begged for time.

There was one obstacle in the way. She didn't love Hanford Beeks.

The dining car was attached at Springfield, and Rosalind slipped off her coat and went to dinner. There was just one available seat in the crowded car, and that was at a table where sat a solitary young man.

A waiter drew out her chair and handed her the menu card. Rosalind lifted her eyes in one swift appraising glance of the man who was calmly eating his soup. She had not noticed him at first beyond the fact that he had arisen and sat down after she had been seated.

It was a homely countenance, rugged and strong as her own New Hampshire hills, with steady gray eyes and dark hair that was rusty red at the ends. It was the face of a man who would and could do things, who might surmount obstacles. His big brown hands were capable too. Rosalind looked him over from the crown of his well brushed head to the shoulders of his perfectly fitting gray coat. He was immaculate. Yet the last time Rosalind had seen him he had been garbed in blue overalls, and a ragged straw hat had been tossed on the back of his head. He had been loading cornstalks on a farm wagon the very day she left Putwold to go on the stage.

"How do you do, Ben?" asked Rosalind demurely.

Benjamin Hall looked up quickly and stared at Rosalind. His first careless glance at her entrance had seen both the crown and brim of the tip tilted hat. He had not looked under it because he rather thought girls were a pest, all save one.

"Rosie! Rosie Mereton!" he gasped, holding out one of the big brown hands.

"Ben, do you mean that you didn't recognize me?" asked Rosalind, with tears in her eyes, because it was so good to see a face from home once more. "Are you going home?"

"I am. And you are, too?" he asked eagerly, his eyes never once leaving her lovely face.

"Yes, just for the week end. Tell me where you have been and what you have been doing?" answered Rosalind, feeling an odd embarrassment in Benjamin Hall's presence.

Benjamin told her, his eyes studying her face as if he would read in its clear openness some record of the three years since they had parted.

He told her that he had left Putwold a few months after her own departure. The death of his parents had left him free to start life anew. He had sold some woodland and had rented the homestead to strangers. He had gone west and bought an interest in a mine which his uncle controlled. He had prospered. He was going back to Putwold. He was going back to the land which his ancestors had tilled.

"I'm homesick for the farm," he told her. "I've been west, and I've studied the way they do things out there, and I shall know how to make it pay. Now tell me about yourself, Rosie."

Rosalind told him briefly. There seemed so little to tell in her narrow life of hard work.

"And you are going back?" he asked.

"Yes, I suppose so," said Rosalind, flushing warmly.

"Is this true?" asked Benjamin quietly as he took a newspaper clipping from his notebook and gave it to her.

Rosalind read it with down bent head: "It is rumored that Miss Rosalind Mereton, the lovely little ingenue in the popular comedy, 'Lavender Flowers,' is soon to wed one of our most energetic young millionaires."

"Is it true, Rosie?" asked Benjamin.

Rosalind shook her head.

"No, not yet," she said impulsively, and then blushed scarlet at her self betrayal.

Benjamin looked at the violets and orchids at her breast and sighed sharply. He had hoped to be in time to offer Rosalind many things, but he was too late. He wondered fiercely what sort of chap this man was. Did Rosalind love him or was she dazzled by the millions? Who could blame her? he asked himself fiercely.

Adroitly he changed the subject, and when the meal was over he accompanied Rosalind back to her seat in the day coach. Sitting there beside her with the rugged scenery of New Hampshire blurring into the dusk, Benjamin felt a growing confidence in himself. He was nearing his own hills; he was on his own ground, and the girl he had always loved was beside him, wearing another man's orchids, perhaps half promised to this rich man.

"Rosalind," he said suddenly, "are you engaged to this man?"

"No," said Rosalind quickly.

"Do you expect to be?" he demanded bluntly.

"He has asked me," admitted Rosalind.

"Do you love him?" went on Benjamin relentlessly.

Rosalind hesitated. She wondered, because she felt no anger against Benjamin and his questioning.

His hand touched her arm, her hand, and held it warmly.

"Do you love this man, Rosalind?" he asked quietly.

Rosalind looked up into the gray eyes and, looking, could not withdraw her gaze.

"No, no, no!" she said intensely.

"Ah, Rosalind, I have always loved you," he said chokingly.

"And I, oh, Ben, I believe I have. That's why I've longed for Putwold and the old farm, and father and mother will be so glad, and, Ben, some one will see you!"

"I don't care," said Ben boldly. "The whole world can know how happy I am in winning the girl I love!"

And he kissed Rosalind.

"Did you send word to your mother that you were coming?" he asked as they neared Putwold.

"Yes. Won't they be surprised to see us together, you and I, old playmates?" asked Rosalind gleefully.

Ben bent down suddenly and pressed his cheek against hers. "Rosalind, you are sure—sure that you won't regret the money and the motorcars and yachts and everything that this man has offered you? I've heard he is a splendid fellow," he added generously.

"Sure, Ben," said Rosalind steadily. "There was one thing lacking and that was love. We can never be poor with that blessing."

The train came to a standstill, and Rosalind peered from the window an instant.

"Ben," she cried breathlessly, "there's father and mother, and they're driving old Becky. How dear they all look!"

So the train rumbled on after bringing back to Putwold village two of her children who had gone out into the world to seek wealth and happiness only to come home and find it there after all.

Heart and Nerves Were Bad.

Could Not Sleep.

To the thousands of people who toss on a sleepless pillow night after night, or who pace the bedroom floor with nerves on the jump, the heart action all wrong, and to whom eyes sleep will not come, Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills offer the blessing of sound refreshing slumber, as they restore the equilibrium of the deranged nerve centres and correct the wrong action of the heart.

Mrs. Charles Teel, Horncastle, Ont., writes:—"Just a few lines to let you know what Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills did for me. My heart and nerves were so bad I could not sleep, and the least noise or excitement would make me feel so that I used to think I was going to die, and I would tremble until I could hardly stand. I took doctor's medicine, but it did not do me much good. At last I tried Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and can certainly say they did me a great amount of good. I can recommend them to anyone who is suffering as I was."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have been on the market for the past twenty years, and have done more to steady shaky nerves and strengthen weak hearts, than any other known preparation.

ONE WAS GOOD ENOUGH.

Robert Bridges, the new English poet laureate, is a fastidious critic, and hence sees little to admire in commonplace verse.

A poet once brought to Mr. Bridges two very long odes that he proposed to submit to the English Review.

"I'll read them both aloud," the young man said, "afterward you will tell me which is in your opinion the more likely to be accepted by the English Review."

Poor Mr. Bridges sighed and settled himself in his chair, and the other in his loud, harsh voice read the first ode. It was very long, and at its conclusion Mr. Bridges leaped to his feet and said briskly:

"Now, my young friend, I can advise you. Send the other one to the Review."

GETS HIS OWN WAY

Wilson Victorious So Far in Matter of Arbitration Treaties

PANAMA TOLLS ARE NEXT

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—By defeating amendments to general arbitration treaties pending renewal with Great Britain, Japan and six other nations, the Senate took yesterday the first decisive step in the policy of the Administration to lift the United States from what officials have characterized as its "isolated position" in foreign relations.

The supreme test of strength in the treaty controversy came on an amendment to the Spanish treaty urged by Senator Chamberlain, of Oregon, which would withhold from arbitration such important international issues as immigration, the question of admitting aliens to domestic schools, affairs involving the Monroe doctrine and the provision of the Panama Canal act exempting American coastwise shipping from tolls. This amendment was rejected by a vote of thirteen to forty, more than two-thirds majority. This result was regarded by Administration leaders last night as marking the end of the controversy over the Government's foreign policy, and assuring the ratification of the treaties which expired more than a year ago with Great Britain, Japan, Italy, Spain, Norway, Sweden, Portugal and Switzerland. The way is also clear for the repeal of the Panama tolls exemption for American shipping.

President Wilson let it be known yesterday that he is for out-and-out repeal of the tolls provision; that there can be no compromise in the situation in order that it may be signalled to the world that the United States will stand firmly by its international obligations.

Buxton retaining the seat by 1,829 majority.

The vote yesterday was: Alfred Yee (Lib.), 3,548; Kerr Clark (Unionist), 3,270; J. Jones (Labor), 893.

At the general election held in December, 1910, the figures were 2,977 for the Liberal candidate and 2,148 for the Conservative. At the previous election in January, 1910, the Liberal majority was 1,057.

Atlantic Liners Delayed.

MONTREAL, Feb. 21.—In the absence of the customary wireless notices from the Alsatian, due at St. John yesterday, the Allan Line officials sent out radios asking what was the cause of the delay. Similar reports were received by the Canadian Northern. It was reported yesterday that the Royal Edward was struggling in the teeth of a tremendous gale to reach St. John.

TO IMPROVE PORTS

Government Will Loan $17,000,000 to Montreal and Quebec

VOTE TO PEACE CENTENARY

OTTAWA, Feb. 21. — Hon. J. D. Hazen has given notice of resolutions which he will move on Monday next to provide for loans to the harbor commissioners of Montreal and Quebec for the purpose of carrying out the development plans of these two important harbors. Fifteen million dollars will be provided for in the case of Montreal and two millions in the case of Quebec.

With regard to the Montreal loan it is stipulated that the money is only to be advanced from time to time as found necessary.

It will be used to pay off and retire debentures of the corporation to the value of $235,000, which mature in 1917, and to enable the corporation to construct the terminal facilities of the port of Montreal for which the plans have been approved by the Government, and to construct such additional terminal facilities as are necessary to equip the port properly.

It is provided that during that period of construction the interest payable on debentures receivable by the Minister of Finance for such advances may be paid out of the $15,000,000. It is stipulated that the harbor commissioners shall deposit with the Minister debentures of the corporation equal in par value to the advances made, repayable within twenty-five years from the date of issue and bearing interest payable half yearly at the rate of three and one-half per cent.

The conditions in regard to the Quebec loan are practically the same.

Navigation on the St. Lawrence, port facilities at Montreal, and marine insurance rates were discussed in the House yesterday, when estimates for the Marine and Fisheries Department were under consideration.

Replying to Hon. Mr. Lemieux, the Minister of Trade and Commerce said that while the Government was in sympathy with any movement to secure lower insurance rates on the St. Lawrence, representations made to Lloyds had not accomplished much. The Canadian shipping people had been assured by the Government that if they would undertake to do their share in organizing a new plan of insurance the Ministry would do its share.

Speaking of the water level on the St. Lawrence, Hon. Mr. Hazen explained that the commission which had been investigating the water levels during the last season, had found that further investigation this summer would be necessary before a report could be presented.

Nothing had so far been learned, however, that would cause the Government to abandon the plan of deepening the channel to thirty-five feet. Work on the scheme is to be carried on vigorously during the coming summer.

A new ice-breaker is also to be built for use on the St. Lawrence. This vessel is to be built in Canada, but so far no satisfactory tenders have been received.

Mr. Welchel (North Waterloo) asked if it was the purpose of the Government to grant financial aid to the centennial of peace celebration.

Mr. Borden replied that the Canadian section of the Peace Centennial Commission had aroused great interest all through the country in the proposed celebration. The Prime Minister said that the Government was heartily in favor of the proposed celebration, and would make a grant of $25,000 at this session to defray the preliminary expenses of the Canadian commission, of which Sir Edmund Walker is chairman.

Panama Canal Open In July.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Feb. 21.—Col. G. W. Goethals said yesterday that barring unforeseen accidents, the Panama Canal will be open for merchant ships July 1.

The colonel added that he had always been opposed to the exemption of American coastwise shipping from the payment of tolls, because it would decrease the revenues of the canal, would not benefit consumers, and would merely increase profits of the ship owners.

Guarantee for Tunnel Asked.

OTTAWA, Feb. 21.—Asking for a fifteen-million-dollar bond guarantee for a tunnel under the St. Lawrence river, a Montreal deputation waited on the Prime Minister and other members of the Government. The proposal is to connect Montreal and Longueuil. Premier Borden stated that the application was an unusual one, but would be given consideration.

To Serve Prohibition Term.

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—Seven and a half years of total abstinence from liquor instead of seven and a half years in jail, was the sentence imposed by Supreme Court Justice Davis yesterday upon Joseph A. Sheridan, president of the Independent Ice Dealers' Association, convicted of attempting to extort $1,000 from the Knickerbocker Ice Company by threats to institute a newspaper campaign against the company.

"It is apparent," said Justice Davis, "that you are a victim of drink, and it would be a good thing to send you away to get liquor out of your system."

Seven and a half years was the maximum penalty for the crime.

Assassination In Prison.

LONDON, Feb. 21. — The Suffragette, the organ of the Women's Social and Political Union, charges the Government with trying to kill Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst. The paper prints a sworn statement by Mrs. Smith, the woman who was arrested at Campden Hill Square in mistake for Mrs. Pankhurst, alleging deliberate police brutalities committed on herself.

The Suffragette expresses the opinion that the Government has abandoned torture for direct assassination.

PREMIER GRATEFUL.

Sir James Expresses Appreciation of Sympathy During Illness.

TORONTO, Feb. 21.—At the opening of the short session of the Legislature yesterday the Speaker read a letter from the Prime Minister, which was as follows:

"Dear Mr. Speaker,—The session now being open, I feel it incumbent upon me to endeavor to express, through you, to my fellow-members of the Legislature, and to the people of the province generally, my grateful appreciation of the warm sympathy which has been extended to me during my recent severe illness, and, above all, for the prayers that were offered for my recovery.

"Apt and fitting language to express as I could wish what I desire to say on this subject would be difficult indeed for me to find, and I confine myself to this simple expression of my hearty and earnest thanks."

The message was received in silence by the House, until just before adjournment Mr. Rowell arose and moved that the Speaker send a message to Sir James, expressing the "gratification with which the House has received the message of the Prime Minister, and the hope for his early and complete recovery."

The resolution, which was seconded by Hon. Dr. Pyne, who was acting as leader of the House, was received with applause from both Liberal and Conservative benches.

Mr. J. C. Elliott (West Middlesex) introduced his bills to extend the municipal franchise to married women who were otherwise qualified to vote.

Mr. J. Wesley Johnson (West Hastings) has given notice of a bill to amend the municipal act to prevent municipalities from investing their sinking funds in their own debentures.

The House adjourned after sitting only fourteen minutes.

AMMUNITION BAD.

Poor Shooting at Camp Perry Explained In Report.

OTTAWA, Feb. 21.—That Canada's ammunition, not her riflemen, was responsible for the poor showing of the Canadian team in the Palma trophy match at Camp Perry, Ohio, last fall is the interesting statement of Lieut.-Col. Helmer, director of musketry and commander of the team, in an analysis of the result, published in the annual report of the Dominion Rifle Association, out yesterday. His statement has been eagerly awaited by Canadian riflemen. It is a condemnation of the low ballistic power of the ammunition as compared with that of the United States and Argentine teams, both of which beat Canada in the Palma.

Homes Are Injured.

CHICAGO, Feb. 21.—Three buildings were partially wrecked and a dozen persons were injured by flying glass and thrown from their beds, and windows a block away were shattered early yesterday, when a bomb exploded in the doorway of Leonardo Melon's grocery in the Italian quarter.

The grocer received a Black Hand letter demanding $2,000 three months ago. He did not comply with the demand, and four days ago received another letter saying his store would be blown up unless he paid $5,000.

TO CONTROL PETROLEUM.

Bill Introduced In Commons to Secure Power to Prohibit Export.

OTTAWA, Feb. 21. — Presumably acting upon a hint from the Admiralty, the Government yesterday asked authority from Parliament to control and if necessary, to prohibit the export of petroleum from Canada. The committee of the whole after a brief debate reported favorably the following resolution: Resolved, that it is expedient to amend the Export Act, chapter 5, of the revised statutes, 1906, to give the governor in council power to prohibit the exportation of crude or partly manufactured petroleum.

Thereupon, Hon. J. D. Reid, Minister of Customs, introduced a bill founded upon the resolution which was read the first time. A more extended debate is anticipated upon a second reading of the bill. The Prime Minister in presenting the resolution, said it was deemed expedient to give the Government power to regulate and even prohibit the export of petroleum in the interest of national and imperial defence.

Hon. Frank Oliver said that oil had been struck in Alberta, and great developments were expected. To put arbitrary power in the hands of the Government would be to discourage all industry.

It had been intimated that the power was asked by the Government for reasons of imperial defence, remarked Sir Wilfrid Laurier. Was that the only reasons? he inquired.

Mr. Borden said that the conservation of our oil supply was a defensive measure which might not be invoked, but, if it were, then all private property depreciated thereby would be paid for by the Government.

The Prime Minister said that possibly rather wide power was conferred by the proposed legislation, but there was no intention on the part of the Government to use such power, except for the purpose of defence.

Four Lost Lives In Wreck.

MONCTON, N.B., Feb. 21.—Four men were killed yesterday when an engine and snowplow went through a small bridge at Scotch Settlement, 10 miles northwest of here. The dead are: Frank Hall, superintendent of the crew; Engine Driver Smith, Fireman Freeman, Brakeman Bourque.

The dead men were on an engine and snowplow sent out from Buctouche to clear the track of the Moncton and Buctouche Railway to this city.

Dropped Dead In Street.

ST. CATHARINES, Feb. 21.—Stephen McCullough, aged 53 years, formerly of Kincardine, but lately residing in St. David's, dropped dead on Geneva street yesterday afternoon after purchasing some lumber. He leaves a widow, four sons and one daughter. The body will be taken to Kincardine for interment.

200,000 Have Learned to Play the Piano In One Hour

Without Lessons or Knowledge of Music Anyone Can Play the Piano or Organ in One Hour.

Wonderful New System That Even a Child Can Use.

Impossible, you say? Let us prove it at our expense. We will teach you to play the piano or organ and will not ask one cent until you can play.

A musical genius from Chicago has invented a wonderful system whereby anyone can learn to play the piano or organ in one hour. IF BACKACHY OR KIDNEYS BOTHER

Eat less meat also take glass of Salts Before eating breakfast

Uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish, ache, and feel like lumps of lead. The urine becomes cloudy; the bladder is irritated, and you may be obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night. When the kidneys clog you must help them flush off the body's urinous waste or you'll be a real sick person shortly. At first you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, you suffer from backache, sick headache, dizziness, stomach gets sour, tongue coated and you feel rheumatic twinges when the weather is bad.

Eat less meat, drink lots of water; also get from any pharmacist four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active. Druggists here say they sell lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

POLICEWOMAN WILL NOT BE APPOINTED

Board of Police Commissioners Are a Unit in Declaring Their Disapproval of the Scheme—Mayor Buller Explains His Position in Regard to the "Lost Plank."

JUDGE HUYCKE'S REPLY

The veto of the Board of Police Commissioners has been applied to the proposal to appoint a policewoman in Peterborough. The quesswas again revived at the regular meeting of the Board, which was held yesterday afternoon.

Those present were: His Honour Judge Huycke, Police-Magistrate Dumble, and Mayor Buller.

All three members declined to support the measure, and expressed themselves accordingly.

His Honour Judge Huycke indicated his position respecting the proposed appointment in the following terms:

"Some weeks ago we were waited on by a deputation, urging the appointment of a policewoman in Peterborough; since then, an intermittent agitation has been kept up in the press and elsewhere. On that occasion, I publicly informed the members of that deputation (a reverend gentleman to the contrary, notwithstanding) ha this Board would carefully consider the matter, adding that I myself would make investigations before that this Board would carefully conclusion I more than hinted must be mine, not theirs.

First, I wish to make clear the constitution of this Board, and more particularly my own position on it. What I say, too, regarding myself, applies largely to the Police Magistrate, though I do not in any way speak for Mr. Dumble, nor does be know what I am about to say.

A Judicial Appointment.

"It would appear as if certain persons assume that I represent the people of Peterborough in this matter, and that, as one is reported to have said, they were my constituency. This is quite incorrect; I am not amenable to the people of the city in any way, nor am I responsible to them or any of them for my acts or words. I am appointed by the Crown to be judicially the representative of the Crown in this city and county, and am responsible only to the Crown and to the Department of Justice for Canada.

"I have also been referred to as a 'civic official'; while I do not think any reflection is implied in the term I certainly am in no sense a 'civic official.'

The Commission.

"The Police Commission is statutory in its formation; the Statute provides that in cities police affairs shall be under the control of a Board of Commissioners, to consist of the Judge of the county, the Police Magistrate of the city, and its Mayor. It will thus be seen that the Mayor is the only member, even indirectly, representing the public in the Board. I certainly do not. If the people of Peterborough want it otherwise, they must change the law. If they do this I shall welcome it, be very glad to be relieved of a duty and responsibility I do not want, and do not like.

"The Board is so constituted for the express reason that it may be independent, and not subject to public clamour, not be influenced by every wave of popularity or unpopularity, and deal with men and measures judicially and impartially, and without the slightest reference to popular prejudice.

A Commissioner's Duties.

"My sole duty as Police Commissioner is the suppression and detection of crime, and, of course, incidentally promote the best interests of the city. The long experience of the ages has convinced Britons, at least, that administration of the criminal law is too sacred a thing to be left to the populace for adjudication. The logical result of that is lynch law.

"I, therefore, am a member of this Board solely and simply because I am a Judge, to act as a Judge, and independently and impartially to perform the duty, the sworn duty, of a judicial officer.

Opinion is Divided.

"At the present time a large section of the community favours the appointment of a policewoman; another section, less noisy, but not less numerous, probably more so, are opposed to it. It is my duty not to favor or

THREE MEN ARE SHOT BY TRAIN ROBBERS

Thieves Hold Up Train and Get Away With Five Thousand Dollars in Money and Jewels

PASSENGERS TERRIFIED

Special Wire to The Examiner:

VANCOUVER, B.C., Feb. 21.—M. B. McElves, passenger, and T. S. Wadsworth, conductor, both of this city who, with R. L. Lee of Bremerton, Wash., were shot and killed by masked bandits who help up the International Limited train of the Great Northern last night at Bellingham, a border town, are well known here, and great sympathy is expressed for the families. It is probable that this city will add to the ten thousand dollar reward offered for the apprehension of the murderers. The three victims refused to hold up their hands and be robbed like other passengers in the coach.

After shooting the conductor and two passengers, the three bandits shot out the coach lights and signalled the train to stop. Hysterical women and men screamed for them not to shoot them and held out their rolls of bills and purses as the bandits passed out. It is thought they got away with five thousand dollars in money and jewels.

Gave Address On Architecture

Last night a very successful and enjoyable concert was held in the W. O.W. Hall. The chair was taken by Mr. Walter Stocker, the President, and the artists who helped to make it an interesting evening were: Mr. J. Johns in recitations; the Mandolin Club selections; Mr. George Allan in vocal solos Miss Leader, recitations, and Mr. Wm. Barry pianoforte solos.

The feature of the evening was an address on Architecture by Mr. W. Barry, which proved both interesting and instructive.

Mr. Barrie avoided any technical treatise on building but gave a comprehensive account of the various architectural periods of history with some comparisons of the methods of past ages as compared with those of to-day. He spoke of the origin of building and referred to the architecture of different nations in a scholarly manner that proved intensely instructive to all who heard it.

POLICE FORCE TO BE INCREASED

Police Commissioners Sanction the Appointment of Two Additional Men, Also a Police Matron.

MAYOR BULLER OPPOSED

The Police Commissioners have sanctioned the appointment of two additional policemen. Chief of Police Thompson asked for three men and a morality officer. Mayor Buller was the only member of the Commission opposed to the appointments. He manifested marked oratorical symptoms of parsimony, whereupon Magistrate Dumble reminded the "peoples' candidate" that there were sufficient surplus lights on George Street to pay the salaries of more than one Police Constable.

The Mayor submitted that it was his duty to keep down the tax rate, and that the present police force was adequate.

Magistrate Dumble—"I think you take a wrong conception of your duty The taxes of the City should be what the City actually needs."

"I think we should have four additional constables," said Judge Huycke. "We have less policemen per thousand of population than any other City in Canada. As it is the residential districts are not adequately patrolled, also the main thoroughfares, which are frequently congested, especially on Saturdays."

An Immoral Influence.

Magistrate Dumble—"I think that the Saturday night parading should be stopped. It has an immoral influence and should be broken up."

Judge Huycke—"I think so, too."

Magistrate Dumble—"I would move that two additional men be appointed."

Mayor Buller—"I refuse to second the motion."

"I know something about the troubles of a Mayor," said Judge Huycke in addressing Mayor Buller. I have occupied a similar position myself, and know what it is to have to contend with an ever increasing tax rate. I think, however, that the present police force is inadequate for the needs of the City, and if we are to keep up our good reputation we must provide for the expansion of the Department."

Mayor Buller—"I don't agree with the proposal to enlarge the force: We have enough policemen as it is."

LINDSAY CHOOSES SAME FAIR DATES

Conflict With Peterboro' in Spite of Agreement Made by Representatives—Will Write Lindsay.

USUALLY WEEK LATER

Lindsay Fair directors have selected the same dates as Peterborough for their annual exhibition this year, Sept. 17, 18, 19. The two directorates held their annual meetings on the same day when the selections were made. The local Fair Board has no desire that this conflict should exist and in deciding upon the dates of their show they were guided by the arrangements made by Lindsay's representatives at the convention of Fairs held recently. Wm. Collins and Chas. E. Moore, delegates from the local fair, talked the matter over with the Lindsay men and it was agreed that Peterborough's show should be held during the week following the close of the Toronto Exhibition, and Lindsay's would be during the following week. At the meeting of the local directors last night the secretary was instructed to write the Lindsay Board asking them to reconsider their dates.

REV. R. J. BRYDGES WILL SPEAK

FAVOUR SCHEME FOR RELIGION IN SCHOOLS

Representatives of Many Sects Warmly Approve Dr. Seath's Plan

SOLUTION OF PROBLEM

TORONTO, Feb. 21.—A large gathering of clergymen and laymen representing many shades of opinion, met in St. James' Parish House yesterday afternoon, and decided to urge upon the Ontario Government the necessity for the teaching of the Scriptures in schools, and, as an encouragement to the pupils, ask that the successful passing of a projected examination in theology, should be a means of assisting a pupil, who may have failed in another subject, to pass his or her entrance examination to the High School. A resolution was passed, which reads as follows:

"Resolved, that this conference cordially approves of the proposed scheme presented by Dr. John Seath, Superintendent of Education for the Province of Ontario, and urges him to bring it before the Minister of Education and the Government, and also promises to bring the proposed scheme again before the bodies here represented to secure their support of his, his scheme for religious instruction in public schools as well as systematic teaching of morality."

The meeting was attended by adherents of Anglican, Roman Catholic, Methodist, Congregational, Presbyterian, and P[illegible]

Daughter In Run Away Marriage Was Only Sixteen Years

Cobourg was treated with another runaway episode on Tuesday, but we hope to escape the publicity given this fair Town by the Auli affair. Albert Lonsberry of Fenella came to Town on that day and secured a license to marry Miss Amy McNutt, giving their ages to the license issuer as 21 and 18 years, respectively. They were later married in due and solemn form by one of our local clergymen. On Wednesday appeared the irate parent of Mrs. Lonsberry (nee McNutt) claiming his daughter to be only sixteen but, sad to say, the birds had flown.—Cobourg Star.

BISHOP O'BRIEN WILL BLESS NEW STATIONS OF CROSS IN COBOURG

His Lordship Bishop O'Brien of Peterborough, will visit Cobourg Parish, and will be present at St. Michael's Church Sunday. He will officiate and preach at the morning service. In the evening, at 7 o'clock, the canonical erection of the new stations of the cross will take place. These beautiful oil paintings are the work of the celebrated artist, P. C. Brown, whose decorative work in St Michael's Church was completed last August. These stations of the cross are the gift to St. Michael's congregation of Mr. Michael Gerin of Sioux Falls, S.D., a former resident of this Town and a member of St Michael's congregation. — Cobourg Star.

46th Regt. May Camp at Petawawa

From present indications it seems altogether likely that the rural regiments which in past years have held their annual training camp at Barriefield will this year train at Petawawa. This change has been made in order to give the regiments the benefits of combined training with the regular troops which camp each summer at Petawawa. The officers of the various regiments are being consulted as to when their units will be ready for camp.

Disapproving of the Proposed Post Office Site—Petition is Said to Have Found Its Way Back to Mayor Buller.

MEETING TO-NIGHT

A petition originating with a number of local merchants and others, expressing disapproval of the proposed post office site at the corner of George and Sherbrooke streets, was widely circulated a few days ago. The petition, it is said, found its way to the Minister of Public Works, Ottawa. The latter it is stated, referred the matter to Mr. J. H. Burnham, Federal member for West Peterborough, who it is alleged promptly returned the petition to Mayor Buller, with the explanation that it was against the laws of etiquette to submit a petition to a Cabinet Minister over the head of the Parliamentary representative.

Was Largely Signed.

The petition in question was largely signed by the ratepayers of the city, including a large representation of merchants and others actively engaged in business.

A special meeting of the City Council has been called to-night for the purpose of considering the report that has been received from the Department at Ottawa. The report recommends the adoption of the site at the corner of George and Sherbrooke streets for a combined post office and customs house.

Mayor Buller, together with a number of the Aldermen are in favour of the proposed site. Others of the Council are opposed, and it is expected that a warm discussion will ensue. It is altogether probable that a deputation will wait upon the Council to urge upon the retention of the present post office at the corner of Hunter and Water streets, in the interests of East City.

DRESS AND MORALS.

The legislators of Maryland are locking the stable after the horse is stolen. They are aiming, with a fine disregard of cause, to deal with the effects of the assumed moral delinquencies of the ladies. They are considering a measure to "prohibit the wearing by women of high-heeled shoes, slit skirts and the dancing of the tango and the turkey trot." One provision of the bill is that the money collected in the form of fines for its disregard, should constitute a fund to be used "to educate girls how to dress decently." The Maryland legislators are beginning in the wrong place, and working in the wrong way. They are "locking the stable after the horse is stolen," trying to reform the ideals of girls whose character is formed. The time to begin to educate girls to "dress decently" and live decently is at the cradle—at the mother's knee. If we don't begin character building at the foundation we don't succeed. If the home, the Sunday School, and the Church pew don't teach good morals and good manners—don't develop right ideals—we can't teach these things by act of parliament. Such legislation as that proposed is freak legislation, and is not worth the waste of time its enactment involves. Decency or indecency in dressing is a mere matter of fashion. If fashion demands a style of dress that is indecent, according to previously prevailing standards, that fact makes it decent—according to new standards. Ten years ago a woman wearing some of the extreme body-mapping modes of the present day in public, would have been arrested for indecent exposure. Now the indecency consists in not being in the fashion. Decent dressing for women is a relative matter, and millions of women whose virtue is unimpeachable are the followers of what we call indecent styles of dress. We can assume that, apart from the now obsolete idea of covering nakedness, the chief object of women, in the matter of dress, is to please the men, and if men admire female beauty of form they cannot fail to be pleased with the fashions of female attire that leave little to the imagination. In the past few years we have changed our attitude to sexual questions and relations. Now-a-days, in mixed society, men and women, and young men and women, too, discuss sexual relations with a freedom which to our grandmothers and grandfathers was utterly unknown—secrets held as sacred in the innermost shrine of their minds. This laxity extends to dress ideals. A woman or girl, modest and pure, will now submit to exposure of person that would have shocked her ten years ago, but withal, they are and will, remain as pure in mind and as virtuous in life as if they wore the enveloping garments and face-hiding veils of the Turkish woman, whose dress conceals her person while it does not always mend her morals. Morality is not a matter of dress; it is a quality of heart and mind. Morals cannot be measured by the length of a skirt. It is the heart that counts; it's the mind that makes the virtuous man or woman; and in this regard the saying applies: "As a man thinks so he is."

NO POLICE WOMAN.

The question of the appointment of a police woman for Peterborough, is disposed of for the present, as far as the Police Commissioners are concerned. They have decidedly shelved the proposal, but in partial compensation adopted the principle of the appointment of a police matron and an addition of two to the police force, with the understanding that the increase of the force would admit of the patrolling of the residential part of the city. This is something that is needed to prevent the debauching of girls of which these sections of the city are the favourite scenes, especially during the months of open weather. Effective patrolling of the residence streets and public places should serve to decrease the indiscriminate haunting of these places by young girls, who do so to their undoing. If we can have this police supervision effectively done we shall be doing something to lessen the ruin of girls who are under present conditions allowed full opportunity to have their run effected. Police patrolling no matter however thorough, will not prevent the insults to women on our public streets. A policeman can't be omnipresent, and in his absence from a particular district a tough or a rough may insult respectable women by accosting or otherwise. No police force, women or otherwise, can prevent things of this kind. After all though they are annoying they work no real harm. A woman with self respect and dignity, will suffer little except the momentary annoyance from such accosting, so long as it stops short of physical mishandling. But police protection can and will prevent the presence of young girls in the dim residence streets without proper and legal escort; and in this the danger lies. But the best thing that can be done in the matter of prevention, though police activity cannot prevent all the evil that should be prevented. To do this with even approximate effectiveness we must go further back. We must begin with the home and must interest to greater activity the influences that can bring into operation the sense of responsibility of parents to their children, especially of mothers to their daughters. There is too great absence of right home training. Mothers, to a lamentable extent, neglect the training of their children. Some of them are so engrossed with social frivolities, with selfish pleasure seeking day and night that the education and training of children is neglected—according to the proverb, which says, when the cat's away the mice want to play. When to this is added the further fact that hundreds of mothers do not know where their daughters spend their evenings or what associations they form. Girls in the formative stage, physically and morally, are left to their own devices, to the guidance of their nascent sexual impulses, without wholesome advice or example. It will take more than a police woman or policeman to deal effectively with these conditions. The struggle must be to bring about better home training and parental oversight. To effect these, there is need of more effective application of the only true basis of moral excellence and moral character—religion. We naturally look to the church, the divinely organized administration of divine and moral law to provide the conditions that make for safety. The policeman or police woman is the last resort, a most inadequate substitute for sound moral and religious home training, the absence of which is the basis of the whole ugly structure of trouble.

HOW THE RISE IS MADE.

Mr. J. W. Flavelle of Toronto, a former Peterborough citizen, has been airing his views upon the causes of the high cost of living. As was to be expected he puts the blame on the poor consumer and the poor producer and completely absolves the combine element from any blame. This evidence, or this reasoning is not quite as ingenuous as one wishes. Mr. Flavelle, himself, has made money as a member of a combine, and if combine promoters and exploiters get rich they do so largely at the expense of the consumer and producer, who become poorer instead of richer. Between the producer and the consumer there is a wide gap where prices grow as they go, and this wide gap is covered by the middleman. Whatever one calls him—a middleman or a cog in the combine machinery—the result is the same. He makes, in his various capacities, a serious addition to the price of foods on the way from the producer to the consumer. A little parable, or statement of fact, furnished by the New York Press, shows how as simple a thing as a cabbage head grows from the 1 1-2 cent the producer gets, to the 13 cents the consumer pays:

The head of cabbage is grown by a small farmer in Connecticut, who gets a cent and a half for it. It first goes to the commission merchant, who lives on Riverside Drive, pays $2,000 a year for his apartment, keeps an automobile, and spends $7,000 a year. Next, the cabbage is sent to the wholesaler, who lives on West End Avenue and in an $1,800 a year apartment, keeps an automobile, and spends $6,000 a year. Thence the cabbage goes to the jobber, who lives on Upper Broadway, keeps an automobile, and spends $5,000 a year. From him the cabbage travels to the retailer, who lives in a $700 aaprtment on a side street, has a corner store for which he pays $250 a month rent, keeps two delivery waggons at a cost of $140 a month, and spends $2,500 a year on his living. Finally the cabbage head gets to Mr. Ultimate Consumer, who lives in a $40 a month tenement, rides in the trolley or subway, spends all he can make or a little more to live and pays for that head of cabbage the sum of 13 cents."

Thus the cabbage head and the food products it represents, on its swelling way from producer to consumer, pays big rents and the cost of stylish living, and pays for two or three automobiles. A combine is a combine, no matter what name it goes under, so long as the result of its existence is to enhance the price of a commodity on its way from the growers or producer to the consumer. If the cabbage head of the story had been sold direct by producer to the consumer the former would get 3 or 4 cents instead of 1 1-2 cents for it, and the consumer would have got it for 6 or 7 cents instead of 13 cents. In the case of imported goods the tariff adds its little mite, of cost, and helps to make the mickle become a muckle.

EXPOSING A HUMBUG.

According to the figures in the trade returns for last year, our purchases in the United States grew twice as rapidly as our purchases in Great Britain. Our purchases in Great Britain grew one-quarter as rapidly as our sales in that country; while in the United States our purchases grew more than half as fast as our sales. Instead of giving masses of figures, these results are enough to show that what our present ministers gave warning against as likely to happen had reciprocity gone through is actually taking place under their own maangement. What do the members of the government propose to do about it?

The peregrinations of the Minister of Trade and Commerce at the public expense have apparently had so little result that one can find no trace of it in the official returns. At any rate it has not turned the tide of trade to any appreciable degree. If there was danger in such results in 1911, can it be different in 1914? The evils, if evils, are as dangerous to-day as then. The chances are, too, that each passing day sees these evils accentuated. In the meantime the government sits idly by and makes no effort, apart from the abortive one attempted by Mr. Foster to remedy the state of things which they declared to be a menace and a danger. The mere recital of th facts is sufficient to show what a humbug was the declared opposition to reciprocity. At present Canada is reaping most of the drawbacks of a one-sided agreement without any of the advantages of a mutual one.

Trade laughs at governments, and in particularly such governments as we have at present—a government professing to be afraid of trade and doing nothing but looking helplessly on while the country is rushing fast to ruin—if the predictions to which they committed themselves two years ago contained a single atom of economic truth. Surly the mere fact that the Borden government does nothing to attempt to stem the tide which has gone on every day since their accession to office is proof positive that they themselves did not believe in the statements they made at the last election.

It looks as though under their administration Canada is about to become an "adjunct" of the United States, so far as trade is concerned. —Ottawa Free Press.

POLICEWOMAN WILL NOT BE APPOINTED

listen to, or be influenced by, either one or the other of these factions. It is my duty to consider calmly, this, as all other questions, and to conclude in accord with facts and evidence as I see them, with my own eyes, not through other people's spectacles, more or less coloured.

Impartial Judgment.

"It is my duty to use my own best judgment in the same way as in the trial of an action, civil or criminal; a Judge should be absolutely independent, uninfluenced, and uninfluenceable, should not regard, or be subjected to, or even listen to any outside influence or interference. I tried to hint or even state this to the ladies' deputation, but it was certainly either misunderstood or ignored. This being my duty as Judge and ex officio Police Commissioner, I propose doing my duty as I see it, and refuse to move even a hairbreadth from the line of duty, notwithstanding deputations and petitions, mass meetings and resolutions, inuendo and misrepresentation, coarse abuse and brazen falsehood, yellow pulpiteers and deeper yellow irresponsible scribblers—any or all of these do not move me one iota.

Have No Effect.

"I try to make them of no effect, but if they have any effect at all, it must be to injure and destroy the object they so unwisely and illegally endeavour to promote and advance. I say illegally advisedly. The Code makes it a criminal offence to influence a juror on a case; it is not less so, and a contempt of court, to endeavour to do so with a Judge, only it is, I trust, less rare generally. I say generally; I wish I could say it was less rare in Peterborough. I regret so many people here either do not see or affect to see the impropriety of seeing or addressing a Judge about a case pending for trial. Some years ago it became so frequent and intolerable that I made a public statement in Court, and threatened to make a public example of some one. After that it was no better, but now it has broken out in a new place and with renewed vigour.

Done in Ignorance.

"I always refuse to listen as soon as I know what is attempted, but I cannot prevent being approached or having letters or resolutions sent me. Sometimes it is undoubtedly done in ignorance; in other causes, I am not so sure. Only the other day a man tried to tell me of a great injury he had suffered, and about to come before me for trial. I refused to hear him and sent him away evidently hurt, because I told him I would hear his woes and their causes at the trial, and not before. I do not even know the name of his opponent, but should that opponent be active in the present propaganda, let me ask him how he would like it, had I listened to the man's complaint, and prejudiced the case, hearing only one side; and how much less he would like it had I heard a whole horde of his opponent's friends and sympathisers in his support. Yet this is the very thing the promoters of this idea have been doing for the past month, and doing it in the most extravagant and improper manner. If this were a case up for trial, after what has transpired, I should refuse to try it, and send for another Judge to come in and dispose of it. The law provides for that contingency, but in this Commission I cannot do so. No other Judge has the authority. But I do not desire to delegate my duty in spite of contemptuous attack and unkind references. These I resent and deplore, but not for my own sake—I can afford to ignore them or hold in in well-deserved contempt—but for the sake of the public sentiment. Things have been said and written whose only effect, if any, is to lessen or destroy respect for the officers of the law and for the law itself.

Law and Order.

"A community or any part of it that loses due regard for law and order, loses an elment most vital and necessary for its welfare, and those whose words or actions bring this about, are more dangerous than scorpions let loose.

"Now as to the question in hand. We are told two things: First, that Peterborough is a very bad place, one of the worst, if not the worst, in Canada; and second, that this can and should be remedied by the appointment of a woman police officer. True, neither of these propositions is supported by evidence of any kind, but we are so told, and forsooth, should act accordingly. It is alleged, not proved; stated, not demonstrated.

"As to the first, I do not believe it at all. Peterborough is not, I think, worse than most other places of its size, and I regret to say, I am quite sure it is not any better; but we are old a great wave of immorality is now sweeping over us and must be stemmed. I must crave pardon if I do not accept or believe that either. The wave most noticeable of late is one of ignorance and bad taste; if not ignorance, it is impertinence, which is worse.

One Complaint.

"I have tried to learn something about the instances referred to in the petition presented and its support. The trouble is, no complaint was ever made at the time, and no particulars given, so it is quite impossible to trace them; the only one cited, in which the police were notified, I have inquired into and located. I find it occurred five years ago. If that is not sufficient answer in itself, I am assured the whole matter was satisfactorily explained and cleared up then. I do not attempt to condone or cover up rowdyism or wrongdoing; those who know me best will be the last to suggest that. It is my supreme desire to maintain and enforce the strength and dignity of the law, but things will happen we deplore, even if we quadrupled our force; and is not a charge five years old, rather stale? I was not here then, and the Chief of Police of that time is departed. I am quite aware we must increase our force, but for its number, I believe it most attentive and efficient, and not excelled anywhere. In fact, quite recent events show it most capable and superior to nearly all others, and Peterborough to-day is throughout the whole State of Massachusetts most extensively advertised and discussed, owing to the extreme alertness and efficiency of her local police force.

Assistance Wanted.

"But though I have tried fairly to find out, I may be wrong as to the degree of immorality in our city. I want to get at the absolute truth if I can, and beg to offer to those active in making the allegations, the forth coming suggestions and request for their assistance.

"Give or send me the names of witnesses who can give evidence as to existing conditions, including your own names and the evidence that can be adduced. I promise you to lay the matter before the Attorney-General, and ask him to appoint Special Counsel to conduct an investigation before the next Grand Jury for the city and county.

The Grand Jury.

"I will direct the Grand Jury to investigate rigidly and thoroughly and make its report to me, which will then be published. The Grand Jury is an honoured and rightly honoured institution of the people, for the people, beyond reproach. I promise to direct every witness so suggested to be subpoenaed to give evidence, and myself to assist by every means in my power, and with confidence. I now ask all good citizens who know things themselves, or know those who do, to give me this assistance. If they refuse or neglect to comply with this request, I and others must form our own conclusions.

Importunities.

"A band of self-constituted advisers send me a resolution assuring me of their 'approval,' provided I comply with their desires at an 'early' date. Most considerate on their part! That is, indeed, sugar-coating the pill of intimidation which so many others have endeavoured forcibly to thrust down my throat. But because encased in honey, I resent it none the less. Why should a self-respecting Judge care for approval or disapproval? Scarce a day of my life passes when I do not get both; whenever I decide a civil case for or against, or convict or acquit a prisoner, I receive both from some one, as I know full well, but I should be false to my oath and duty if influenced by them in the slightest degree. I doubly deplore and resent all such efforts to cajole, intimidate, or dragoon me into action for a police woman or anything else whatever, for I am assured the very people who resort to such tactics, and who have so persistently kept at them for the past month, would despise me in their hearts as a weakling if I yielded to their screaming importunities, and even if they did not do so, I should despise myself, which to me is infinitely worse. Then, too, we are told we should appoint a woman policeman. I promised not only to consider carefully, but to investigate thoroughly, as to her success elsewhere, and under conditions like or unlike ours, to secure the best expert opinion available as to the advisability of the appointment. This I have done. I have had a vast amount of corerspondence and have personally interviewed many authorities in other places, and from what I have heard and seen, the results of actual trial and experience, must decide.

Not from Theorists.

"I use the term 'expert opinion' advisedly; my information has come, not from theorists only, but from men in the highest and most responsible positions in city and state, men whose lives and best efforts have been devoted to criminal affairs and police administration.

"The result of my research has convinced me, that in the case of the local advocates of the idea, there is more heat than light, and their knowledge is in inverse ratio to their zeal.

Three Police Women.

"There are to-day in the whole province of Ontario, just three police-women, and so far as I have been able to learn, just four in the whole Dominion of Canada. No city in Canada, even approximately the size of Peterborough, has one or has even seriously contemplated one as necessary, though suggested and discussed in some of them. Guelph, Brantford, Windsor, Stratford, Belleville, Kingston, Berlin, Woodstock, Chatham, St. Thomas, St. Catharines, Fort William, Port Arthur, and the Sault have none. These are all smaller cities like our own. London with fifty-five thousand has not any, nor has Hamilton, with her one hundred thousand and more. I am authorised by His Honour Judge Snider, Chairman of the Police Commission there, to say they not long since took this matter up, discussed it at length, and made the most complete investigations, with the result that they refused to entertain the idea. He and his colleagues further permit me to say they were then and still are unanimously opposed to it, and in such opposition are almost unanimously approved by the citizens. Ottawa with one hundred thousand and Hull with twenty thousand attached, have one who was appointed and began duty the date, for with prophetic prescience the date, for with prophetic prescience the month had scarce half gone by before we here were assured of its supreme and permanent success and urged to follow its example. The Ottawa appointment was made purely as an experiment, as admitted by friends and foes, and it is all too early to form any conclusions as to her success or otherwise. Toronto, with her half-million people and nearly seven hundred policemen, has two policewomen, and two only, also as yet only an experiment, appointed some six months ago. It is hoped they will all succeed, but some most in their favour in those cities, and largely responsible for their appointment, assure me that in their judgment such an appointment in a city of twenty or twenty-five thousand would be an absurdity.

Not Satisfactory.

"Just here, I regret having to make a statement: A gentleman quoted to us as an authority, assures me the only thing he ever said about it was, a hope rather than an opinion, said in strict confidence, not to be publicly used in any way whatever; notwithstanding this, he was quoted here in Peterborough, no, not quoted, misquoted and distorted. Some of the small American cities have tried the experiment, but generally speaking it has not been satisfatoory, and has been discontinued in most cases.

A Success With Shop Lifters.

Nearly all with experience of working of policewomen agree in saying she is a success in large centres and large stores in detecting women shoplifters, arresting and searching them forthwith. Opinion is greatly divided as to her ability in dealing with vice conditions or immorality. Some have told me she is of material assistance in these matters, while more inform me that is just her weak point in actual work, and she is no use there whatever. It is said that young people spoken to by her, knowing her authority, resent it, and are not influenced as by a deaconess or some other woman, vested only with the authority of kindness and goodness. The truth probably lies between the two, and largely depends on the tact and capacity of the woman herself.

Not Necessary.

"To sum up, however, the great mass of the information I have received leads to the conclusion that the policewoman is more a fad than a necessity, more ornamental than useful. It is all but unanimous that such an appointment is unwise and uncalled for in a city of the size of Peterborough, or even in one considerably larger. As the result of consideration and investigation of this much-mooted question (without wishing to influence unduly any other member of the Board), I have come to a conclusion satisfactory to myself on the question, and that is, that I am opposed to the appointment of a policewoman in the city of Peterborough, and I shall vote against it.

Force is Inadequate.

"On the other hand, while of opinion that our force is good, I think it inadequate, and favour a considerable addition to its numbers. Our outside and residential sections are insufficiently patrolled, and very often even on the main streets, more men are necessary to handle properly the crowds of people there.

"I am further of the opinion that very soon we should have a police matron; in fact, I favour her appointment forthwith, either permanently or as occasion may require, because though possibly not often needed, if needed at all, she is an absolute necessity. I refer to cases of woman prisoners being brought to the station and later on up for trial or preliminary hearing. I think a matron should be with such unfortunates in all of these painful and embarrassing conditions. I would suggest that she might or could do some probation work in addition. Just one word more—I do not wish to be misunderstood in my remarks referring to improper influences. They refer and apply to things improper and not those that are innocent. I do not wish anyine to speak to me or in my presence or hearing, to write me any letters or print or place any remarks before me relating to any cases pending trial, from any motive or reason whatever.

Is Grossly Improper.

"The same thing applies to me as an ex officio Police Commissioner except that I shall gladly receive any suggestion or information, and will hear and investigate any complaint that may be made. Anything further than that is grossly improper, and my position should protect me from such insult and attempted persuasion or intimidation.

"If such attempts are made again, I shall refuse even to consider them, and dismiss the suggestion without the courtesy of investigation, believing that object wholly unworthy, which requires the assistance of improprieties, no matter by whom preferred."

MAGISTRATE DUMBLE.

"You have covered the ground thoroughly," said Police Magistrate Dumble to Judge Huycke. It expresses my view of the matter. I think that a good deal of the trouble in the minds of the ladies who assume that we are masters of the situation. I have no doubt that if the lid were taken off, we would see much that would merit condemnation. Much of this does not come within the letter of the law, and it is therefore impossible for us to reach it. It does, however, come within the reach of the mothers and the moral teachers of the pulpit. The members of the police force are not moral officers, but legal officers. Regarding people and their persistent importunities, I have much to say. It is very improper.

"We are informed that in Springfield, Mass, rescue homes are provided for unfortunate women, and other institutions conducted along similar lines are financed by private subscriptions. In Toronto similar provisions are made. One body that operates there, to perhaps a greater extent than any other is the Salvation Army. I have had occasion to send girls to the Salvation Army rescue home, Toronto, where they were ministered to, body and soul. It is creditable to that institution but not creditable to the twenty-five thousand people of Peterborough who have as yet failed to provide such an institution."

The Lost "Plank."

"Bad diplomacy" was the designation that Mayor Buller applied to the action of Rev. James Bollins, who, it is alleged, made pulpit reference to the Mayor's repudiation of the proposal to appoint a police woman. Mayor Buller claimed that a deputation representing the local Councilof Women obtained his approval of the proposal upon the understanding that the other members of the Commission would support the measure, providing he was elected. He admitted having pledged himself to support the appointment prior to his election, reserving for himself the right to adapt his views to those of more experienced men. The "more experienced men" in question, constituting His Honour Judge Huycke and Police Magistrate Dumble.

The Young People.

Magistrate Dumble— "There is a good deal of immorality among the young people of the City, but a good deal of that can be reached through the home."

"The Mother's Club," supplied Mayor Buller.

Continuing, Magistrate Dumble said: "We must have more policemen to cover the City. You must bear in mind that one half of the policemen are in their beds. Out of ten men only five are on duty, and one of these is required to do the station work."

Mayor Buller — "Mr. Dumble has said that we ought to have more policemen. I am not in accord with increasing the police force. It means increased expenditure. I think it's up to the Commissioners to help to keep the tax rate down. One thousand policemen would not keep down the immorality that is supposed to exist. They would go farther out into the country."

AN INTERESTING ARTICLE ON THE BETTERMENT OF CIVIC CONDITIONS

The Editor of the Examiner:

Sir,—The Canada Law Journal of recent date contained an item on the "Betterment of Civic Conditions" that, in my judgment, expressed so much wisdom in small space on this question, that I would suggest you might give it space in your journal. I enclose it with this note.

Yours,
W. H. MOORE.

The Betterment of Civic Conditions.

From one end of Canada to the other there is a feeling of unrest over municipal problems. The present stringency in the money markets has called sharp attention to the enormous waste that has been going on in civic affairs for many years. Everywhere one hears of the general inefficiency of our municipal government.

Several important Canadian cities are trying, or proposing to try, experiments, which are a radical departure from the present system. Edmonton, and other places in the West, are trying a form of city government by commission. St. John, in the East, has followed their example. Westmount has a business manager. Ottawa has this year a mayor who is virtually a business manager. Some people advocate taking all questions of civic government completely out of the hands of the people, and placing them in the hands of commissoiners, as is done in Washington.

The Boards of Trade of Toronto and other cities are talking of asking the Provincial Legislature to appoint a commission to investigate the whole question; but, judging by the present attitude of the Premier and Provincial Secretary, they are not likely to meet with much encouragement. The public utterances of both gentlemen would appear to indicate that they think the Ontario Municipal Act not at present in need of much revision.

There can be little doubt that our city councils, as at present constituted, are not as efficient as they might be. They are especially weak on the side of administration. This arises from the frequent changes in the heads of the civic departments ,and a consequent lack of continuity in business management. The chairman of a minor committee one year takes charge of the works department, and he looks to promotion, after twelve months, to that of finance; thence on to the mayoralty for one, or two years. He is then expected to retire in favour of a new generation. No great business is thus managed.

Owing to lack of competent administration it has been estimated by careful investigators that from twenty-five to forty per cent. of the moneys raised by municipal taxation is wasted. It has also been stated that more than one Canadian city, if forced into liquidation would be found perilously near to bankruptcy. Many cities are finding it increasingly difficult to raise money, and several prominent financiers have recently advocated a Local Government Board, similar to that in England, and its equivalent in Germany, for the supervision of municipal finances.

Is it possible to touch the tap-root of our weakness in municipal government?

It is well to remember that good laws do not necessarily make good government. A city is not well governed by good laws; it can only be well governed by good men. If we could induce our best citizens to give their time to the service of the city, it would perhaps be found that our Municipal Act was a fairly efficient instrument. Competent jurists say that it is far ahead of the English Municipal Act in force to-day. Professor Munro, of the Harvard University, says: "Divorced from its own environment the English system of city government would command scarcely a word in its favour. There is scarcely a vice in local government which the letter of its legal provision does not permit. It is full of anomalies and clumsy survivals. Where any feature of it has been tried elsewhere, the result has been almost invariably a disappointment. Yet the fact remains that the affairs of English cities are better managed on the whole than those of large municipalities in any other country. That is because sound local traditions have been developed and these have determined the course of municipal management." A century ago the affairs of many English cities were in desperate straits. Their present condition is due to the arousing of the civic conscience, which has brought about a thorough reformation.

It looks as though it were impossible, under present conditions, to get our most competent citizens to offer themselves in adequate number to the service of the city. Municipal politics being in the hands of the machine, it is questionable if they could be elected. Even if they could, not many citizens of the highest type would care to run the gauntlet of annual elections, with the possibility of defeat at the hands of a demagogue, or ward boss.

In many cities there is the added disagreeable feature of ward patronage, utterly repugnant to those who would put city management upon a sound business basis. Before we can hope to induce our best men to offer their services to the city, we must make the work attractive to them. We must improve the conditions.

Where shall be look for the best examples of well-governed cities, in order to improve our own? Shall we look to the United States? They have the worst municipal system in the civilized world. So much so that there are many advocates there of government by commission. Leaving aside the City of Washington, quite a special case, it sprang into existence a dozen years ago in Galveston. That city was in desperate financial condition. It had been partially destroyed; it had defaulted upon its bond interest, and was practically bankrupt. The citizens surrendered for a time their right of self-government. Some other cities have sought to escape from the evils of their municipal system by a similar course, in whole or in part.

But does any one believe that the men of our race are going to be content permanently to abandon their inalienable right of self-government. Such a policy is foreign to the genius of our people. Commission government may be a necessary temporary make-shift, but it can never permanently satisfy the aspirations of Anglo-Saxon citizenship.

If we find it necessary to make changes in our system of city government, is it not reasonable to adopt some of the features of the best-governed cities of the world? These are to be found in England and in Germany. The English cities are an example to all others of honest, prudent and economical management. There are no better governed cities anywhere. As has been already mentioned, it would be difficult to point out any special features of the English Municipal Act that would bear transplanting to a different environment. The English cities are well managed in spite of some of the provisions of their laws. But one thing they have which we have not, and which lies at the root of all our troubles. They have stable and permanent civic government. They get it in two ways: first, their city councils are elected for three years, not for one; secondly, the actual civic administration is placed in the hands of permanent officials, scarcely interfered with by aldermen or councillors.

One looks into the subject of civic administration in Germany with peculiar interest, because their problems are largely our own. Nearly all the German cities are the product of the last thirty or forty years. During that time they have grown faster than those of the United States and Canada. Their older cities have been rebuilt. Their problems of government are intensely modern, their methods of meeting these problems more truly democratic, than anything we know.

There, as in England, we find that the outstanding feature of their city government is its permanence. The Germans manage their cities as any great business is managed. The wealth of these cities is astounding. Several of them own over half the land inside the city limits. Frankfort, which is one of these, and smaller than Toronto, has spent over $50,000,000, in the last ten years, in the purchase of land. Berlin owns 40,000 acres. A long list of these city possions might be added did space permit. But it may suffice to say that so rich and so well managed are these German cities that in one thousand five hundred of them it is unnecessary to levy any municipal taxes; all the expenses of these places are met out of their own yearly revenues.

How is it accomplished?

1. The members of the council are elected for six years, one-third of them retiring bi-annually.

2. The actual administration of the city is in the hands of a board of paid magistrates, practically appointed for life, and pensioned on retirement.

3. The mayor is a municipal expert, appointed practically for life. Mayor Adickes, of Frankfort, the greatest municipal expert in Europe, has been in office for twenty-seven years.

The mayor and the magistrates manage the city; the council is merely a deliberative and legislative body.

There are many features of the German system that would not flourish in our soil. But it is surely possible to attain, in our own way, and under our local conditions, something of the element of permanence, without which we must continue to suffer enormous waste, confusion, incoherence of civic policy, and constantly increasing taxes.

I would suggest, therefore, that:

1. Our councillors should be elected for longer periods.

2. Matters of actual civic administration should be taken out of their hands.

3. The heads of civic departments should be paid officials, responsible to the councils, but having complete authority in all matters of administrative detail.

4. In our largest cities these permanent officials might constitute the boards of control. As they are at present, controllers are an anomaly, and only serve to lower the calibre of theo ther members of the city council.

It is impossible within the limits of a single article to elaborate these points. They are here set out in bald outline. The question of the mayor needs serious consideration. Under any permanent system of civic rule, he must come to be a municipal expert, and have a long term of office, or he must degenerate into a mere figure-head, and leave the real administration of the city's affairs to a competent permanent official.

We cannot have really wise and efficient civic government in Canada until we succeed in enlisting the active sympathy and self-sacrificing service of our best citizens. We cannot do that until our city management takes on the aspect of permanence.

SUPERB ACTING

Laurence Irving Made a Grand Impression Last Evening

Superb indeed was the performance at the Grand Opera House last night, when Laurence Irving and his English company presented Mr. Irving's emotional drama, "The Unwritten Law," founded on Dostoieffski's book, "Crime and Punishment." It is seldom that a local audience has been so held entranced as was last night, as the powerful drama was realistically enacted before their eyes, climax piled on climax, tense situation following tense situation, the effect was wholly striking and the interest never relaxed until the final curtain.

Too much cannot be said of Mr. Irving's wonderful acting as Roskolnikoff. There were those in the audience who had seen Sir Henry Irving, and were struck by the similarity in many respects in the methods of Mr. Laurence Irving. The latter's conception of the philanthropic murderer was a vividly realistic one, a gripping, convincing portrayal of the emotional and ironoclastic Russian student who believes himself justified in taking life to save a family of young girls from poverty and degradation. Great as he was throughout, Mr. Irving was superb in the scene in which the Magistrate tries to force a confession from him. This is the "great" situation in the play, and a more soul-stirring, fascinating scene has not been witnessed here. The The part of the magistrate was played with the touch of genius by Mr. Henry Croker. Miss Mabel Hackney invests the part of "Bonia" with charm and realism, and the supporting company was magnificent, not a weak spot being in evidence.

To-night Mr. Irving presents his sensational success, "Typhoon," and should be greeted by a crowded house.

The author: "I am troubled with insomnia. I lie awake at night hour after hour thinking about my literary work." His friend "Why don't you get up and read portions of it?"

The Police Commissioners adopted a resolution of sympathy on behalf of Sergeant Adams and P. C. McGinty, who have been incapacitated for some time past. The Commissioners declared their appreciation of the valuable service renderd by the officers and expressed the hope that their health would improve.

His Honour Judge Huycke has again assumed the chairmanship of the Board of Police Commissioners. His appointment was unanimously endorsed by the Board. Judge Huycke thanked the Board for a renewal of their confidence.

Officers Promoted.

On recommendation of Chief Thompson, Constables Patterson and Philmister were raised from third-class to second-class officers. These men had five years' experience prior to coming to Peterborough and hold certificates of proficiency in police work. P. C. Patterson is also the possessor of a Royal Humane Society medal for saving life, and certificate and medal of the St. Andrew's Ambulance Society. Both officers are qualified to perform first aid duties.

Truant Officer.

His Honour Judge Huycke wanted to increase the salary of High County Constable Cochrane, Truant Officer, from $150 per year to $175, but was unsuccessful. Mayor Buller moved in amendment, that the salary remain at $150. "The police could do the work just as well," was the Mayor's comment.

The Commissioners endorsed the recommendation of the Board of Health to have the scavengers of the City licensed. A nominal license fee of $1 will be imposed. The licensing of dogs will also come under the supervision of the Police Department.

Parcel Post And Letters

And Warning to Those Who Make Use of the New Postal Service

Although there has been no reason to suspect that it has been done in Peterborough, a warning regarding the enclosing of mail matter in parcels would not be out of place. Reports from other places state that this is being done, through ignorance, or to save two cents on postage. Where the post office authorities have reason to suspect that this has been done, the parcel may be opened and examined.

A conviction for the illegal act makes the sender liable to a fine of from $10 to $40. For any deficiencies in postage, double the amount will be collected from the receiver of the parcel.

WILLIAM BRANDON IS POSTMASTER

It is said that Mr. William Brandon, of Fenelon Falls, has been appointed Postmaster at the village. A big grist of applicants was after the position.

WILLIAM S. BENTON'S MURDER IN JUARES CREATES SENSATION

Constitutionalist Leader is Reported to Have Had British Cattlemen Executed After a Farcical Court Martial

EL PASO, Feb. 21. — Intense excitement prevails here as a result of the murder of William Benton, English rancher, by order of Gen. Villa. Inability to get details resulted in the selection of ex-Governor Curey of New Mexico as an agent to seek the truth.

Just what occurred between Villa and his ill-fated visitor last Tuesday may never be known. Through the widow and a cousin, William Benton, and through friends of the deceased, it was learned that Benton wished permission to bring to the United States four hundred head of cattle on his ranch, Los Remedios, in western Chihuahua. Charles Qualey, a friend, now here among the other refugees, advised him of the probable procedure. "Villa probably will grant your request, but he'll give you a lecture and you must not resent the lecture. If you do you may get into trouble." "If he lectures me I'll lecture back," Benton replied. "I have never made a political move in Mexico and if he accuses me of it I have some accusations of my own to make."

Benton made the request, and his friends never saw him alive afterwards.

Benton, it is said, was tried on a charge of conspiracy against the rebel government and with "provoking and insulting Gen. Villa."

Major Jesus Rodriguez presided. Adrien Aguirre Benavides acted as legal adviser to the court and Major Manuel Gloria acted as prosecutor. Benton is believed to have been held incommunicado the while, and it is admitted that there was no counsel to represent him.

That there was a real courtmartial nearly everybody on this side of the river doubts.

GEN. PANCHO VILLA.

Concern In Washington.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—A slumbering Mexican situation was brought quickly to a point of intense international interest yesterday by the flash of a message stating that William S. Benton, a British subject, had been killed in Juarez, by order of Gen. Francisco Villa, the constitutionalist commander.

Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, the British ambassador, conferred with Secretary Bryan about it; President Wilson and his Cabinet discussed it thoroughly and an investigation was ordered by the State Department from consular representatives on the border.

In this case, for the first time since the present revolution began a year ago, the general warning from the U. S. Government to Mexican factions to protect all foreigners went unheeded, though there is evidence to show that both the British Ambassador and the State Department were advised too late of Benton's impending fate to intercede specifically for him. The news shocked officials generally, who had come to believe that Gen. Villa fully realized the petition of the American Government in regard to the protection of foreigners in Mexico, particularly in the north of that country.

"I have not sufficient facts on which to base an opinion," said Secretary Bryan yesterday. "Until I have the Department will express no opinion."

The killing of a British subject under circumstances such as despatches from the border portrayed caused a stir in diplomatic circles. Those familiar with the aggressive attitude Great Britain assumes in pressing for reparation when her subjects have been wronged were inclined to see interesting developments impending.

NEW SCALE OF WAGES RECEIVED

The Grand Trunk Railway despatchers and operators have received their new book of rules and scales of wages. The wage scale which now ranges from $50 to $125 a month is equal to that paid on the C. P. R. system. In some instances it is considered a little better. The men will receive time and a half for overtime and get two weeks' holidays with pay each year. In discussing the matter the men said that they were well satisfied with the wage scale and conditions.

Think Wilson Has Made A Big Mistake

Special Wire to The Examiner:

LONDON, Eng., Feb. 21.— Special cable.)— Only British good-will towards President Wilson and a desire to leave him unhampered in his policy in any way, prevents an outburst of serious agitation over the murder of W. S. Benton in Mexico. All the best informed British authorities agree that Wilson's Mexican policy is mistaken and prevents a peaceful settlement, and is ruinous commercially, but the British foreign office has strained diplomatic courtesy there. Benton's English friends are powerful and influential. His murder tends to crystalize the opinion that President Wilson should reconsider his policy. The American Community in London is of the same opinion as Englishmen on the matter. "We believe Wilson has made a mistake in Mexico, but right or wrong, we must support our President in foreign affairs,' is the typical expression of their attitude.

MISSIONARY ADDRESS GIVEN

Toronto Pastor Spoke at Free Methodist Church Last Evening

An interesting missionary sermon was enjoyed by the large audience that assembled at the Free Methodist Church last night. Rev. M. S. Benn, of Toronto, chose for his tent the 3rd verse of the 17th chapter of the Gospel according to St. John. "And this is life eternal, that they might know Thee, the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom Thou hast sent." He stated that all men needed eternal life which was a knowledge of God, that this was the only thing that could elevate mankind, and that would uplife the heathen as surely as it would a nominal Christian. They must, however, be brought in contact with God Himself, in order to accomplish this, hence the need of the foreign missionary.

Rev. Mr. Olmstead followed with a stirring appeal for funds, and an offering was taken for Foreign Missions.

Mr. Olmstead will preach to-night at 8 o'clock, and will also give an address on "Child Welfare" on Sunday, at 3 p.m., which should be heard by every person intrusted in the welfare of children. Do not fail to hear Mr. Olmstead on this occasion as this address is of an unusual character, and is very popular. Come early so as to secure a seat. He will also preach at 7 p.m.

SOCIALISM WILL BE UNDER DISCUSSION

"Socialism" will be the subject on which the Pastor of St. Paul's Church will preach at the service on Sabbath evening. This is the fourth sermon in the series on the "Social Crisis and Modern Preaching. He will deal with the rapid spread of the movement, will explain what it is, whats are its methods, and will then endeavour to answer the question: "Is it, a sufficient solution of the Social Problem?"

BRILLIANT SOCIAL HELD AT THE NORMAL SCHOOL

Last Evening—Record Attendance of Six Hundred Guests—Most Successful Social Ever Held.

THE PROGRAMME

What was termed by many one of the most enjoyable functions ever held in Peterborough, was witnessed at the Normal School last evening. The occasion was a social evening, and a record crowd of some 600 students and associates, availed themselves of the opportunity to engage in social pursuits.

The president of the Literary society, Mr. McFadyen presided. The function opened with a reception of the guests by the students, which was held in the teachers' room, and as the guests filed in, they were received by the reception committee, among which were Principal and Mrs. Walker. The guests were then requested to congregate in the Assembly Hall, wher the following musical programme was presented, in an exceedingly artistic manner and over which the audience was more than ordinarily nthusiastic:

Piano Solo—Miss Kate Leary.
Song—Miss Sanderson.
Violin Solo—Dr. Park.
Violin Solo—Miss Telgman.
Wand Drill—By the students.
Quartette—Miss Sanderson, Miss Richardson, and Messrs. Park and Huycke.

The artists received a full measure of applause, and their efforts surpassed any they had made before.

The guests were then requested to go to the Drill Hll, where dainty refreshments had been provided. Meanwhile, a promenade, the music for which was rendered by Messrs. Huycke and Wilson, in fine style, was held. The attraction of the promenades proved so great that the guests refused to leave them.

Theb uilding had been decorated from top to bottom, and presented a very artistic appearance.

All the rooms had been thrown open to the guests. Great interest was manifested in the pictures, some of which were obtained from the Old Museum of the Old Normal School in Toronto. There are altogether, some 150 pictures in the local school, which were a centre of attraction.

The library, and experimental rooms were also thrown open.

The affair was acknowledged to be the most successful that has ever been held there. Among those present could be noticed a large number of local ministers, and a still larger number of graduates, and students of other years, as well as the parents of the students from the surrounding country. The reception committee was: The President, Mr. McFadgen, Miss Lacey, Miss Armstrong, Miss Paul, and Principal and Mrs. Walker.

The guests departed about 12:30.

MUSICAL FESTIVAL AT THE TEMPLE

The Band Festival given by the Temple Band two weeks ago proved such a big success that many have asked for a repetition of the same. The Band has decided to run a special musical festival on Monday evening, commencing at 8 p.m., sharp. The Band has many new pieces and of late have been doing extra practice for the special meetings meetings that are being arranged at an early date. Owing to the short notice of the meeting, admission tickets have not been issued, but the citizens can depend on a splendid programme to be given by Bandmaster Perver and his men. The programme will be issued in the local papers on Monday. The admission will be free. A collection will be taken to help defray the expenses of the Band's famous trip.

Police Force To Be Increased

Magistrate Dumble referrred to the fact that the police force was so small that the men were unable to attend Church. "Peterborough is inadequately policed," said the Magistrate, who, during the year 1913 dealt with nearly twelve hundred Police Court cases, which were rounded up by a force of ten policemen.

"Always That Way."

Mayor Buller—"We have always been that way. I won't support a raise of pay if more policemen are added to the force."

Chief of Police Thompson, who was asked to express his views on the matter, said that the great difficulty was that the force had not increased with the population. He had placed his recommendation before the Board and if they failed to carry it out, the responsibility would be theirs.

The difficulty was finally overcome by His Honour Judge Huycke, as Chairman of the Board, seconding Magistrate Dumble's motion favouring the appointment of two additional men.

"I don't think this is conscientiously right," said the Mayor, with considerable emphasis.

The Mayor favoured the appointment of a matron whose duties would be to look after female prisoners that were brought into the Station. Judge Huycke suggested that action be deferred until it was determined whether it would be necessary to make the appointment a permanent one. A resolution favouring the appointment, with terms of engagement and duties to be decided later, was adopted.

THE POLITICAL SITUATION IN OLD COUNTRY

Special Wire to The Examiner:

LONDON, Eng, Feb. 21.— (Special cable.)—This is English Liberalism black week and various excuses are made by party organs are more interesting for their ingenuity than they are convincing. South Buck's election with an increased Liberal vote was satisfactory. Bethnal Green's chances diminished day by day, but up to the last moment no man refused to believe Masterman's seat was in danger. The defeat of a Cabinet minister is always a blow to the prestige of the Ministry and the Westminster Gazette says: "We would be paying Masterman a very poor compliment if we did not admit that to get his scalp is a feat of arms, or a feat of tomahawks, which may justly give satisfaction to those who have achieved it." The popular result with an enormously decreased Liberal majority is also disastrous to his prestige. Both Bethnal Green and Poplar are purely industrial communities of poor type, with an overwhelming majority of inadequately paid workers. Some leading Bethnal Green Liberals maintain that a factor in Masterman's defeat was the dissatisfaction over the Welsh Disestablishment Bill. The Bethnal Green result will probably quicken government activity in amending the clauses of the Insurance Act dealing with the casual labourer so as to remove factors which now make insurance a difficulty in the way of obtaining casual employment.

Suggest A Compromise

In Regard to the New Public Building

Peterborough, Feb. 20th, 1914.

To the Editor, The Examiner:

Sir,—The question exciting public attention at the present moment is the removal of the post office from Hunter and Water streta to George and Sherbrooke streets. It seems to me this whole question could be settled by a compromise.

In the first place, the reason generally given for the removal is because of the fact that the present post office is not large enough to accommodate the parcel post service. Now, this could be remedied very readily by doing what they do in the City of Montreal, in Toronto, and in other places, viz., they have the sorting done in the second, third, and in Montreal the fourth stories. The mail matter is sent up in chutes and sorted there quietly, and returned to the first floor. The present post office, if it were made into a three-storey building, would have ample accommodation for the requirements of Peterborough for the next generation.

Now, it is a well-known fact that the present location of the post office is satisfactory to Wards Two, Three, Four nd Five, and also to a considerable portion of the people living in Ward One, and if the post office is moved to Sherbrooke street about four-fifths of the people will have a grievance, which should not be the case.

The alternative proposition I would suggest is that the Government go on with the building of the Custom House, Inland Revenue Department, and Trent Valley Department, and also include the Post Office, but allow the present Post Office to remain where it is. In this way it could be used as an auxiliary to the main Post Office on the corner of George and Sherbrooke streets. It would be continued for the convenience of a large portion of the people of Peterborough, and there is no reason why Peterborough should not have two Post Offices, as well as other cities. Take, for instance, Niagara Falls, with a population of only 10,000, with three Post Offices, Millbrook used to have two, and you will find other cities and towns in the various parts of the Dominion, with two or more Post Offices. Why should not the same custom prevail in Peterborough. If the Post Office is left where it is the people living in Wards Two, Three, Four and Five, could register their letters, mail their parcels, buy their stamps, and do their business generally, as in the past, and no one would have any real grievance.

There is no reason why we should not be treated as others have been, and are treated now, and I believe this is a fair proposition, and one that might well be considered by the Dominion Government.

Respectfully yours,
Centre Ward Ratepayer.

ANOTHER LETTER ON THE POST OFFICE PROBLEM

To the Editor, The Examiner:

As ar esident of the North Ward, no doubt I would prefer the present site of the Post office, but if we are to become a great city we must lay aside our sectional feelings in the matter and consider the fitness of things and the greatest good for the greatest number.

It is a poor policy for the "Times" to go around amongst its neighbours heating up recruits in the immediate neighbourhood of the present Post Office to back up its advocacy for that site because its property is across the street from it, but look at its consistency. It claims that it is not actuated by any selfish interests —oh, no—but that those who prefer the new site are so actuated because they are owners of property in the south end. Such a statement carries with it its own condemnation. It assumes that the storekeepers prefer the present site, because it is more convenient for them, but what does that amount to since our free postal delivery and our streets studded with Post Office boxes, and then the present site is only more convenient for a couple of blocks on George street, and a few stores on Hunter street. All south of Simcoe street would be equally or better served by the new site. In this respect the "Times" is careful not to say anything of the convenience of the manufacturers and their employees, which are nearly all in the South Ward and far exceed in wealth and numbers the storekeepers for whom it expresses so much solicitude. Again it says that 75 per cent. of the revenue is derived from the merchants and other business and professional men of the business district, which means nothing, for that district extends over 75 per cent. of the city's area, and by far the greatest number of them are remote from either site or closer to the proposed new site. But what about the workingman, has he no right to be considered? And after all the "Times" admits that it "has no serious objection to Sherbrooke street as a site for the other Government offices," and yet it wants to impair the beauty, size and imposing appearance of the structure by lopping off its most attractive feature, because of the selfish motives of a few. It must be borne in mind that only a few within the narrow zone of the present site have shown any interest in the matter. Still I hear as a last expedient, the "Times" party talk of getting up a petition on the principle that one unthinkingly will sign a petition for any thing, even though for his own death warrant. It would be folly on our part to interfere with the Government's intention to erect the building on a site chosen by its own expert who knows what is best for that purpose. Such an interference might cause a cessation of the whole work to the great detriment of the city.

We are not to judge by present conditions, but are to look to the future—even fifty years hence—when Peterborough will be a large city, with a trend southward of business and population. Perhaps the greatest blessing will be the extension of the business area from its present congestion until it reaches the C.P.R. crossing and thus relieve us in part, at least, from the present absentee landlordism, and exorbitant rents. Even Ashburnham can have no objection. When the new bridge at Dalhousie or Sherbrooke street is built across ther iver as it inevitably must be unless the C.P.R. throws obstacles in our way, and shuts us out by reason of its acquiring the valuable lands along our beautiful river front by the grace of our city father, and which is wrongfully occupying Water street and other streets terminating at the water's edge as well as the Government allowance along the bank of the river.

Yours truly,
Northender.

Reference To Mr. Rollins' Address

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—When Sir Walter Scott lay dying he bade his friend Lockart to read to him. "From what book shall I read?" And the great maker of books said, "There is but one book; read to me out of the Bible." Mr. Editor, we have a new and very strange doctrine set forth in the address of the Rev. Mr. Rollins of St Andrew's Presbyterian Church, which address he gave to his men's Bible class and which was reported in the evening Examiner of the 16th of February.

One startling statement in said address, Mr. Rollins is reported to have made, viz, "But we are expected to think to-day pretty much as if the Bible did not exist." Now we all know that our actions are as a rule the outcome of our thinking, as it is written in the Book, speaking of man, "as he thinketh in his heart so is he."—Prov. 23: 7.

So we can see the great necessity for right thinking if we are to be good actors on the stage of life. In the Bible are written the precepts, statutes and commandments of the Lord. It is written in Psalm, 119-4, "Thou hast commanded us to keep thy precepts diligently." How can we do that if we think as Mr. Rollins says we are expected to think, that these precepts do not exist. Again we read in the same Psalm, 5th verse, "Oh that my ways were directed to keep thy statutes." In the name of the Lord let me ask, how could a man's ways be directed to keep the statutes of the Lord if he acts out this teaching, that he is expected to think to-day pretty much as if those statutes do not exist? What kind of a country would we have if the masses were led to believe that they were expected to think to-day pretty much as if there were no state laws or statutes to be obeyed or enforced, in existence. I have an idea, Mr. Editor, that if the masses once got that fiction into their heads it would take more than women or men police to keep things right. Will Mr. Rollins please tells us who expects us to think to-day pretty much as if the Bible did not exist?

Another quotation from the same reported address reads, "Mr. Rollins said that in the truest sense all the reasons for faith in God may be found outside the Bible." Let me ask if in the truest sense all the reasons for faith in God may be found outside the Bible. Why are our Bible and Missionary societies endeavouring so earnestly to scatter the Bible among the nations of the earth?

Will he tell us where in all his study of the universe of God and in all his study of man, did he find a truer reason for having faith in God than that you found written inside one Bible, Jno. 3-16, "For God so loved the world that he gave His only begotten Son that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life." Will Mr. Rollins point out to us on what star or on which planet he will find any truer reason for having faith in God than that which is written in Isaiah, 53-6, "All we like sheep have gone astray; we have turned every one to his own way and the Lord hath laid on him (Christ) the iniquity of us all." We know that the universe is outside the Bible and man is outside the Bible, and we may learn much from the study of the universe and man, and from nature we may look up to nature's God. But nowhere in all our study do we find a revelation like the one we find written inside the Bible at Rom., 5-8, "But God commandeth His love toward us, in that while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us?" Where in all the study of the universe of God will you get such good news as that, for guilty lost, hell-deserving sinners?

Man by nature knows not God and unless he receives with meekness the engrafted word of God he can never, never, have that faith in God or Christ that saves the soul.

True "the heavens declare the glory of God and the firmament showeth His handy work," but it is the business of the preached to preach Christ and Him crucified." Him declare I unto you said Paul. Acts, 17-23 The heavens declare the glory of God better than the preacher can, the universe proclaims His handy work better than the preacher can, a thousand-fold better. The preacher's business is to "preach the word," "Preach the Gospel to every creature," "and this is the gospel which by the word is preached unto you." That is God's best plan to inspire faith in the hearts of us poor sinners. "Faith cometh by hearing by the word of God."—Rom. 10-17, and in the truest sense all the reasons for saving faith in God are to be found inside. Write it large, INSIDE the Bible."

Yours,
JOHN CARLISLE.

P.S.—I protest Mr. Editor, against any teaching that would lead us, and especiallyour children, to believe that to-day we are expected to think pretty much as if the Bible did not exist. If I am wrong let some one call me down.

Can Peterboro' People Pick Good From Bad?

Mr. C. E. Jamieson Refers to Poor Patronage Given to Good Theatrical Attractions

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Are the citizens of Peterborough incapable of discriminating between the good and the bad? Last night there was a mere handful of people out to hear Laureace Irving and his talented company—a production that was worth coming many miles to see. Every moving picture theatre is crowded, and the Opera House is always filled in indirect proportion to the value of the work presented. This is a poor advertisement for our City, in fact it is a great humiliation. We shall soon, I fear, be passed over when good plays and eminent actors are in this part of the country. Indeed, I am surprised we get the good things we do now, as we seem to be able to appreciate only vaudeville and melodrama.

For the sake of the reputation of our City, can we not assume a virtue if we have it not? One would think that even were our minds incapable of taking pleasure in the work of great artists, musical, dramatic or otherwise, we would for shame's sake at least, have the grace to make a pretence of having the necessary culture and refinement.

Every attraction to be brought by the British-Canadian Theatrical Association wil be of the highest merit. Let us patronize these plays, and not have it said of us that we are only for the lower and coarser forms of drama.

Yours truly,
C. E. JAMIESON.

Causes And The Cure Of Tuberculosis

By the Contributed to The Examiner — Peterboro' Health Association

Amiel, in his journal, says: "I heard a sermon this morning, but I was not helped by it. It was dignified, but it did not realize or portray the struggles of the weak." If we are to be at our best we must have the mellowing influence of such a vision. The work of the Health Association ought to have the earnest attention of the public, not only for the sake of the poor, but that those who have no such struggles should continue to develop the sympathetic side of their natures.

The past month shows that two hundred and ninety-two visits were made by the nurses, some of these in the small hours of the morning of the coldest days of recent weeks. Forty of these visits were paid for, the amount being very small, but indicating the desire of the families served to help themselves as fast as possible. Tuberculosis, erysipelas, cancer, epilepsy, pneumonia, are among the diseases that have called for the services of the Association. Quilts, underclothes, overcoats, shoes stockings and other supplies have been given away. In one case where bed linen was needed and suplied, it was returned to the Association perfectly loundered as soon as the mother recovered from her illness, and with it came a small sum of money to pay for the services of the nurse. This was in a home where the need was most manifest, as the husband was without employment while the wife and mother of three small children was ill.

Another case was that of cancer, where the extreme sufferings were relived and the aged patient made comfortable until death brought rest to the unfortuna teperson. Every case has its own interest, and those who hear the details of the work of this worthy institution are loudest in its praise.

One citizen, hearing the story of one month's work of the nurses, was so moved that he has gladly become responsible for the sum of fifty dollars, to be divided between the nurses for the purpose of giving them each a rest and change at whatever time they can best be spared by the Association. These ladies are no mere time servers, but are filled with the spirit which has brought this organization into being.

Thanks are due to many who have contributed supplies so generously during the especially trying days of the winter.

The Farmers' Produce Market

A slight increase in the price of butter and a decrease in the price of eggs were about the only noticeable changes on the local market this morning. Butter sold at from thirty-two to thirty-three cents a pound, while eggs sold at thirty-five cents a dozen.

Chickens found a ready sale at seventy-five cents each. Other varieties of fowl were scarce, and sold at the usual prices.

On the outside market meats and vegetables were fairly plentiful. Beef sold at twelve and thirteen cents a pound, and pork at fourteen cents.

Potatoes changed hands at one dollar and twenty-five cents a bag.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

EVERYTHING READY FOR TO-NIGHT'S GAME

To-night's benefit game between the All-Star Old Boys and the Peterborough team, will be started sharp at 8.30 o'clock. The Old Boys will be down on 5.30 G.T.R. train. Harold Morrow, Ken Crane and Hugh Burritt are already in the City, and the rest will be along according to schedule. Outside of the fact that the game has been arranged for a most meritorious object it should be a rattling good game of hockey. The Old Boys are coming at personal sacrifice to help the movement along, for instance Heffernan and Derocher both gave up important games to be here to-night.

Glance over the Line-up:

ALL STARS

Goal, Derocher, Richardson.
Defence, Heffernan, Matthews, Parker, Morrow.
Forwards, Crane, Burritt, Clancy, Campbell.

PETERBOROUGH

Goal, Janes.
Defence, Bond, Spratt.
Forwards, Halpin, Park, Bradshaw, Kelly, Rose, Barie, Kennedy.

KEENE WON AND LOST IN THE GAMES WITH LOCAL CURLERS

The Curling Club entertained two rinks from Keene yesterday afternoon and evening, defeating them after dinner and losing to the visitors after supper. There was nothing particularly interesting in the games, except that they introduced Keene's great pair of Williams-Wedlock and Cabpbell. The latter has fondled the stone of winters for forty years or more, and he curls a neat stone when he takes the notion. Billie Wedlock skipped one of the rinks last night, with Campbell as his first lieutenant and their arguments were a treat. Nearly every end was th subject of a debate or consultation. When the opinions agreed it was simply a consultation, but when there was a disagreement then followed a short debate. At times they would agree that one of two shots looked better than the other and the Skip would prepare to make it. Then would Campbell or one of his men hold up the delivery with a plea for the other shot. They are certainly a great pair and it must be fun to hear them on the native heath.

For instance, in the game with Billie Read at night Wedlock was away out in front, but the gap was closing in rapidly. On the very last end Read was up three, but they were around the outer circle. There was a conference of the Williams when Wedlock had only one stone left, but Campbell was not in harmony with his skip as to the proposed shot. The front of the rink was open. One Keene stone lay behind the front line and just outside the ring. Wedlock proposed to draw to one of the stones at the back of the rink, but Campbell felt that the inturn to the front stone was the better shot. The Skip went down to make the shot, but Campbell passed him a line of talk something like this: "You're wrong this time, Billie, I'm telling you, you're wrong. If you come down nicely to this stone it should give us two; if you miss it you'll stop this one back here. You are wrong this time, Billie." Finally Wedlock, from his own end, decided to try the Campbell shot, but his stone missed by several inches and bounded into the back boards, leaving three up. Sure enough they are a funny pair. Billy Wedlock and Billy Campbell, the dignity of whose years and hairs deserve the unabbreviated William.

On the second last end Read and Wedlock were both inside the inner ring with Read about an inch nearer the "button". There was a fair part opening, and through this Wedlock picked out Read's stone, winning the end.

Jack Moore and Will Campbell played a close game at night, both rinks showing considerable good curling. The results of the games were as follows:

Cup Tie Games In England

Excitement Will Be at High Pitch To-day—A Forecast

CUP TIES AGAIN.

Once more cup-tie excitement will be at a high pitch in Britain to-day, the third round of both English and Scottish Cup competitions being due to be played. In England all the games are certain to be close, while in Scotland there is also little to complain of in the calibre of the various contests.

BEST OF ALL.

In England we expect to hear of the game at Millwall being the fiercest of all. Excitement over this match in London is most intense and it remains to be seen whether Sheffield United will succeed where others have failed. It will be a battle to the death, and whilst having every respect for Millwall's chances, we have a notion that the Bramall Lane team will manage to scrape through for a most punishing battle.

THEY MEET AGAIN.

Last Saturday Blacburn Rovers and Manchester City met at Elwood Park under League auspices, the Rovers winning by the close margin of 2 to 1. To-day they meet on the same ground on cup-tie business and the question is, will the City lose again. A Cup game is a much different thing from a League contest and it is just possible that there may be a reversal of the result. It is only because of the fact that Blackburn have home advantage that we take them to win.

THE OTHERS.

A rattling good game should be that between Burnley and Bolton, and it is probable that one game will not suffice to decide the issue. We predict a draw here. Aston Villa who are cupholders, should beat West Bromwich. Sheffield Wednesday ought to overcome Brighton. Sunderland, in form, may be looked upon as likely to dispose of Preston. At home Birmingham should oust Queen's Park Rangers, but we are a bit doubtful of Liverpool getting through at West Ham. It will take the very best effort of the Anfield team to secure a victory. It is worthy of note that only one second division (Birmingham) is interested in the round.

SCOTTISH TIES.

In Scotland Third Lanark, Aberdeen, Stevenson United, Celtic and Hiberninas are looked upon as sure winners, but there is doubt about the issues between Kilmarnock and Partick Thistles, Queen's Park and Airdrienonians and Motherwell and Rangers. The home team with the exception of Motherwell are, however, slightly favourites.

GOOD GAME IN THE MERCANTILE

The fans who overlook the Tool-Room-Bankers semi-final Mercantile League Game at the Brock Street Rink on Monday night will miss one of the best games in the League this season. Both teams are in good shape and both confident of winning. The Bankers are the only team that has beaten the Tool Room this season. Whether they can do it again or not is a matter that Monday's game will have to settle.

Big Night In Church League

Three Games Will Be Played Next Thursday Night

Thursday night, at Brock Street Rink, has been secured by the Church Hockey League, and three big games will be pulled off. The Church League teams are playing good hockey and the fans should not miss this opportunity of seeing them in action. An admission price of ten cents for the three games will be charged. The following games have been arranged:

7 to 8—Murray Street vs. All Saints.
8 to 9—St. Paul's vs. Y.M.C.A.
9 to 10—St. Andrew's vs. George Street.

The Executive of the League will meet to-night at 7.30 o'clock at the Y.M.C.A. A full attendance is requested.

U. C. C. WON FROM LAKEFIELD 1 GOAL TO NIL

Lakefield Preparatory School and the Uper Canada College Midgets met in a lively game of hockey at the Brock street rink at noon to-day, the Toronto youngsters winning after a keen fight by 1 goal to 0, the only counter being secured about ten minutes before the close of the game. Upper Canada were heavier than Lakefield "kids" but the later were game, and the checking was very close, both teams back checking all the way down the rink. Fenwick, the Lakefield goal keeper, played a magnificent game in the nets, going out half a dozen times to stop shots when his defence was beaten. Gash and Wright, the defence pair, and Henderson, the little centre, starred for U. C. C., while Lampman was the best for Lakefield, outside of Fenwick. Len Dobson handled the game satisfactorily.

The line-up:

Lakefield.		U.C.C.
Fenwick	Goal	Hardacker
McCulloch	Defence	Wright
McGillivray	do	Gash
Lampman	Rover	Sinclair
McKenzie	Centre	Henderson
Hamilton	R. Wing	Francis
Hayes	L. Wing	Ester

BARS CRIMINALS' PICTURES.

Senator Choquette Would Put Bar on Publication.

OTTAWA, Feb. 21.—A bill to forbid Canadian papers publishing portraits of criminals was introduced in the Senate yesterday by Senator Choquette.

To accomplish this the bill amends the section of the criminal code which provides a penalty of two years' imprisonment for the sale of obscene literature.

As amended by Senator Choquette, the section imposes a penalty against anyone who "manufactures, sells or exposes for sale or public view, or circulates any obscene book, pamphlet, newspaper or other publication containing, without authorization of the judge of a superior court or of the Attorney-General of a province, the picture of any person accused of or condemned for any crime or misdemeanor, or of their assistants or accomplices, or of the instruments which they used, or any picture, photograph, model or other object tending to corrupt morals.

The Senate adjourned until Thursday next.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Feb. 21.—Police with bloodhounds early yesterday began a search for three robbers who Thursday night held up the Queen and Crescent southbound "New Orleans Limited" 12 miles north of Birmingham, and rifled mail pouches of registered mail said to contain more than $40,000.

In their haste the robbers overlooked a sack containing $10,000 consigned to New Orleans and a big consignment of stamps.

SENTENCED FOR BURGLARY.

Four Years Is Term Meted Out to Two Young "Rallies."

TORONTO, Feb. 21.—Out of an acquaintance apparently formed at the Central Prison in June, 1912, Steve Charron and William Besso, two young men of the "gentlemen burglar" type, entered into a partnership of crime, and on four charges of shopbreaking were yesterday each sentenced to four years in the penitentiary by Magistrate Denison.

Both Charron and Besso have the appearance, the clothes, manners, and speech of young downtown business men. There isn't a hard glint in their eyes, or a tough line around their mouths.

But caught by Constable Leitch last week just after they had broken into Ruse's tobacco shop, they were yesterday convicted of that and several other crimes of like nature.

One interesting feature of the case is that a wallet containing $40, which Charron stole from a Mr. Travers, was sold to a pawn broker for 25 cents, the thief not discovering the bills that were stowed in the back of it.

WORD "OBEY" STANDS.

Many Anglican Bishops Favored Omitting It, However.

LONDON, Feb. 21.—The omission of the word "obey" from the marriage service of the Church of England appeared to find considerable support yesterday among the bishops attending the House of Convocation of the Province of Canterbury, now in session in London.

A formal motion to omit the word, of which the Bishop of Lincoln had given notice, was withdrawn, however. The bishop gave as his reason that he was unlikely to carry a large majority of the House in favor of the proposed alteration. The Bishops of Winchester and Hereford spoke strongly for the insertion of similar undertakings by both husband and wife. They, however, thought there should be some reference to the leadership of the man in the home, as they said it would be obviously inconvenient to have two heads of the family.

Canada's Trade Grows.

OTTAWA, Feb. 21.—According to a statement issued yesterday by Hon. J. D. Hazen, Minister of Customs, the total Canadian trade for the ten months of the present fiscal year ended Jan. 30 last, was $955,660,912. For the corresponding ten months of last fiscal year, the total trade was $884,332,421. The present outlook is, therefore, for a trade of well over a billion dollars for the fiscal year ending March 31 next.

The exports for the ten months were $384,334,000, of which agricultural products form the large proportion of $186,648,000. The dutiable and free imports for the ten months were $540,092,000.

What sipms that does not fill—

Handsome Gift To Town.

LONDON, Ont., Feb. 21. — E. D. Smith, a wealthy bachelor farmer, aged 60, at Listowel, called on the mayor and announced that he would give a valuable site he owns in the centre of the town, one hundred loads of gravel and one hundred loads of sand toward building a place where young men and women can congregate rather than in picture theatres, pool-rooms, hotels, and on the streets. A big public meeting has been called to raise the rest of the money and several handsome donations have been volunteered.

U. S. Consul at Buenos Ayres.

BUENOS AYRES, Feb. 21.—The announcement of the intention of the Government at Washington to create a United States embassy at Buenos Ayres has aroused great satisfaction here. La Nacion, in an article on the subject yesterday, says Argentina certainly will reciprocate by raising her legation at Washington to the rank of an embassy.

ADVICE TO A SON.

"The late Michael Maybrick, the composer of 'The Blue Alsatian Mountains,' and many other famous songs," said a New York music publisher, "was a sentimental soul. He had old-fashioned sentimental ideas about honour and love and rectitude.

"I once introduced Maybrick in London to a successful financier. Maybrick told me after that the financier, whose career has been checkered, reminded him of old Millions. Then, in scornful accents, he told me this story:

"'Remember one thing,' said old Millions, on his deathbed to his son, 'Remember this one thing. It is a rule I've followed all my life. It's the secret, in fact, of my success.'"

"'Yes, father; yes;' said the young man, eagerly.

"'Never do a jailable act,' whispered the old man in impressive tones. 'Hire somebody to do it for you.'"

Dodd's Kidney Pills Quickly Cured His Kidney Disease.

How Hudson Marchbank, After Suffering for Five Years, Found Quick Relief and Permanent Cure in the Greatest of Canadian Remedies.

Marchbank, King's County, N. B., Feb. 20.—(Special).— After suffering for five years from kidney disease, brought on by a strain, Hudson Marchbank, Esq., the well known farmer of this place, is again a strong, healthy man, and another grand cure for Dodd's Kidney Pills has been put on record. In an interview, Mr Marchbank says:

"About five years ago I hurt my back from lifting, and it developed into kidney disease. My back pained me all the time, and I was very much troubled with headaches. My appetite was fitful; I had a bitter taste in my mouth in the mornings; I perspired freely and my perspiration had a disagreeable odour.

"I used liniments and plasters, but they did not do me any good, and as there were other symptoms that my kidneys were affected, I decided to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. After using two boxes my back was completely cured, and my kidneys have not troubled me since."

When Mr. Marchbank decided that his kidneys were the cause of his troubles, the rest was easy. Almost anyof his neighbours could tell him that Dodds Kidney Pills always cure" diseased kidneys.

Local Council Of Women

Report of the Press Committee

Report of the Press committee of the Local Council of Women:

The Press committee met twice during the year. All meetings of the Council were reported in two daily papers; also articles, letters, etc.

In October last the work had increased to such an extent, it was found necessary to enlarge the committee. The Council has been thoroughly canvassed to secure subscribers for the "Canadian," your committee only being able to obtain one subscription.

At a meeting of your committee held on January 28th, 1914, it was resolved that it would be necessary for other committees to send in two type written copies of any matter they might have for publication.

During the year fifty-two articles or letters taken from the local papers were forwarded to Toronto to the secretary of the National Council of Women. The subjects of these were chiefly in connection with an appointment of a police woman, and of a nurse for the public schools.

We sent a report of a most interesting and instructive paper on sanitation by Mr. Spence.

We received a communication from the Council of Women of St. John, N.B., asking for copies of articles from our local papers in regard to the appointment of a police-woman. We have complied with this request.

The local newspapers have been most obliging, printing letters, articles and news, always giving them a prominent place, often the front page.

Following are the names of this committee: Mrs. P. Campbell, Mrs. Denham, Miss H. Denison, Mrs. Sherwood and Mrs. W. H. Dunsford, convenor.

Trades And Labour Notes

By Official Scribe

(By the Official Scribe.)

The usual bi-monthly meeting of the representatives of the various local labour ogranizations was held on Wednesday, President J. J. Hartley occupying the chair.

Attention was drawn to the fact that some of the locals had not nominated their representatives for 1914. As this has a tendency to hinder progressive work a move in the direction named is to be desired.

The folowing letter from Mr. Burnham was received, the text of which is now generally known by the newspaper reading public:

House of Commons.
Ottawa.

The Trades and Labour Council,
Peterborough:

Gentlemen,—I have left on the order Paper of the House of Commons a notice of motion that the House go into a Committee of the Whole to consider a resolution to this effect, viz.: That in the opinion of this House it is desirable that manufactured goods and natural products coming into Canada from countries where the rate of wages of those employed in making or producing the same is below that prevailing in Canada should be subjected to a tariff duty sufficient to preserve the rate of wages of those in Canada employed in making or producing like goods and products.

A strong protest is being made by Trades and Labour Councils against allowing immigration of Asiatics who work for low wages and tend to depress the rate of wages in Canada.

The same injury will accrue where goods and products of these people are allowed in free, or with an insufficent duty, hence my notice of motion.

Yours truly,
J. H. BURNHAM

On motion the secretary was asked to write and endorse the motion.

In reply to an equiry as to when Mr. Fred Bancroft would address the Council on the Workmen's Compensation Act, the Scribe replied that although as requested he had furnished a date no notice had yet been received from Mr. Bancroft whether or not the day suited him.

A three-minute glass should be kept beside the telephone to help in marking time during out-of-town calls.

Real Estate Controversy Is Continued

Mr. F. E. Ellis Replies to the Last Letter From Mr. Austin

To the Editor, The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Mr. Austin's communication in reply to my letter of the 18th inst. in your issue of Wednesday inst. adds to the interest of this discussion. My letter is regarded as "a piece of impertinence quite uncalled for." Why? Presumably because I ventured to express the belief that land speculation is detrimental to the best interests of this country. From the vigour with which Mr. Austin replies, one would think that my contentions were new and unheard of. Nevertheless there is a growing feeling all through the Christian world against the practice of buying land and holding it for unearned gain.

Mr. Austin first appeared in print to protest over the fact that four young men should have debated in the George Street Methodist Church, the question of land speculation as compared with gambling with cards. Why should anyone be so indignant? The practice that these young men condemned has been vigorously denounced by the heads of our great banking systems as well as discussed vigorously by numerous church conferences, Presbyterians and Synods throughout Canada. Why then should an attempt be made to prevent the discussion of the subject in a local church?

Mr. Austin has not attempted to deny that publicly created land values belong to the people, and should go to them and not to the speculator. He tries to evade the issue by saying that many respectable people have bought land in this way. This does not necessarily prove anything. At one time many respectable Christian people upheld the theory of the Divine Right of Kings. At a still later date Christians owned slaves. Fifty years ago even ministers vigorously opposed sending out missionaries. To-day, however, an educated public opinion prevails in these matters, and views that were once held have been discarded. Christian people are doing now what they won't be doing in the near future when they have seen the true moral aspect of land speculation. More than this. The public is beginning to see how it is being affected by land speculation, and is likely to soon put a stop to it.

The Western Situation

Mr. Austin takes me seriously to task regarding my contentions re the evil effects of land speculation in Western Canada. He garnishes Western conditions and makes everything look rosy for the homesteader. He insinuates that I was easily "taken in," in that I was a tenderfoot. Let me quote a paragraph recently written by a man who cannot in any sense be considered a "tenderfoot" in that he has spent the better part of his active life in Western Canada. I refer to Mr. Geo. F. Chipman editor of the Grain Growers' Guide, of Winnipeg, the official organ of the 50,000 organized farmers of Western Canada. Mr. Chipman recently wrote as follows:

"There are about 200,000 farmers in the three prairie provinces. Each of them could have 320 acres and none be further than seven miles from the railway, or 640 acres within 14 miles of the railway. Yet thousands are living from 25 to 200 miles from railway facilities. And as they work for the support of their families, fully half the wealth they produce is quietly absorbed by land speculators, who have the millions of acres of idle land which the farmer needs."

Does anyone care to say that Mr. Chipman does not know what he is talking about? If conditions in the West are favourable to the farmer, why is it that every farmers' organization in Western Canada is on record with resolutions which bitterly condemn the operations of the speculator? Why is it that two provinces in Western Canada have adopted the taxation of land values as a method of curbing the speculators rapacity. Alberta goes even further and imposes a tax of five per cent. on the profits of land sales. The farmers and legislators of these Western provinces are not in the tenderfoot class, and the main object of their tax on land values is to discourage speculation in land.

These conditions are arousing the Christian conscience of the West. Rev. R. J. Scott, of Wakaw, Sask., who sees conditions at first hand, writing to "The Presbyterian," of Toronto, on this subject, stated: "I want to state frankly and briefly my views regarding another aspect of gambling, which, in my judgment, is just as evil in its spirit as race track gambling and much more to be feared for its final results. I refer to that aspect of gambling as wide as the broad Dominion, seen in the universal manipulation of real estate values. The principal that underlies all forms of gambling is the same, namely, the principal of case or the desire to get something for nothing. Whatever one gains another must lose. . . . I want to admit that many men of reputation are engaged in the business with no consciousness of wrong-doing. . . . I make here a general statement which I feel confident can be abundantly proved by facts, throughout the larger part of Canada wherever development is progressing large numbers of our cleverest men have left productive callings and are living on the labour of others. We are developing and supporting an enormously expensive army of parasites; instead of placing a premium on honest work the monopolizer is rewarded with unearned fortune. . . . Probably for every family which suffers financial loss through race track gambling, scores of families suffer from the extortion of the real estate business."

It may be claimed that Rev. Mr. Scott is speaking for himself only. If so I would point out that Principal Bland of Wellesley Methodist College, Winnipeg, declared to the Presbyterian Synod of Manitoba that real estate speculation "sapped the economic vitality of the community and did more harm than gambling at Monte Carlo." And this in addition. The following is a resolution adopted last fall by the Presbyterian Synod of Saskatchewan, and endorsed by a great number of ministers and laymen:

"Whereas business as it is being conducted and especially with regard to real estate, has resulted in the high cost of living, congestion in the cities, and depopulation of the rural districts, has promoted the desire to get wealth easily and quickly without rendering a fair equivalent in value, which is one of the chief elements in gambling, is establishing false ideals of character, and creating a large number of unproductive citizens: Therefore the Synod expresses the opinion that the value of land, which is created by the community should be returned to the community, instead of going into hands of private individuals."

The Extent of Speculation.

In my first letter I made this statement:

"The conditions that I and all others have found when we visit the Canadian West, is that the great proportion of the good land situated near the railroads is not under cultivation at all. It is being held by speculators for an advance in value."

Mr. Austin says that he did not find these conditions general. It is difficult to understand how he could avoid doing so. The best land is held in speculation practically everywhere. As Mr. Austin well knows immense tracts of land, obtained in many cases by special legislation are held by British and American Land companies. Mr. Austin admits that the railway companies are the greatest of all speculators in land. The Hudson Bay Company also holds large tracts. All of these concerns are speculators.

I am accused of having a special spite against the Peterborough real estate man. This I deny. I have no personal feeling in this matter whatever. I have gladly availed myself of the assistance of Peterborough real estate men in other ways in the past and hope to have occasion to do them a fine class of men and do not so again in the future. I have found desire to injure the interests of any legitimate real estate agent.

Prof. Short's Contention.

Prof. Short, speaking at the Canadian Club on Wednesday evening, stated that he knew men in the West who had become millionaires in a few months by speculation in land. This gives an idea of the harvest that land speculators are making at the expense of the toilers of Canada. Prof. Short then went on to say that those values by right belong to the people, and advocated a means of obtaining them for the public. Still another indication of the growing feeling against land speculation.

I had intended to deal with two or three other points of less importance that Mr. Austin makes in his letter, but must not trespass further on your space. The increasing interest being taken by the public in the matter of the ownership of these publicly created land values reveals the importance of the issue it concerns. Discussions of this character should therefore be productive of good especially if matters of a personal character are excluded.

Depreciation In Bank Statement

Special Wire to The Examiner:

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—A lower level of prices prevailed at the opening of the Stock Market to-day, largely due to the more unfavourable aspect of the Mexican situation, arising from the murder of a British subject by Villa. The street regarded it very unfavourable, but in some quarters it was said that the British would hold Huerta responsible.

The following is the weekly bank statement:

Reserve decrease	$ 2,144,600
Loans increase	11,395,600
Specie increase	62,600
Legal decrease	1,220,600
Deposits decrease	6,600,600

This is the poorest bank statement that has been issued for several weeks past, and will doubtless cause a flutter among the Toreadors bear-baiters.

The New York Stock Market will be closed on Monday owing to the holiday in commemoration of Washington's birthday.

Special Wire to The Examiner:

TAMPA., Fla., Feb. 23.—Hundreds of visitors joined with the residents of Tampa in the enjoyment of the annual carnival to-day, when Gasperilla and his band of "Pirates" sailed into the harbour and took possession of the City. Picturesquely attired in costumes of 150 years ago the band of freebooters effected a landing and after meeting with a feeble resistence were given the keys of the City by Mayor McKay. The "capture was followed by a gay parade through the City. An additional feature of the day's programme was the formal opening of the new $250,000 Lafayette Street bridge.

BANS THE NEW DANCES

Archbishop Bruchesi in Letter Denounces Tango Et Al

FASHIONS ARE ALSO SCORED

MONTREAL, Feb. 23.—In a circular letter read to the faithful Roman Catholics yesterday, Archbishop Bruchesi describes the tango as "bad and scandalous," and absolutely forbids it. "A certain danse has invaded our society," says the letter. "I do not know its origin, but it has spread over the whole world with incredible rapidity. Unquestionably its author is the spirit of evil. No words are too forcible to stigmatise as they deserve these unbecoming movements of the body, those really lascivious contortions, which no self-respecting person would allow * * * Certain hotels popular in Montreal did not hesitate to use it as an advertisement, which fact does not redound to their credit."

After referring again to "this dangerous and unseemly amusement," the archbishop goes on, "I forbid it absolutely as bad and scandalous, and I likewise forbid the other new dances which resemble it. I appeal to all truly Christian women, and I beg of them to band together against these licentious dances, and the indecent fashions of the day."

In a reference to modern women's dress, Mgr. Bruchesi says: "The most elementary rudiments of decency appear to be completely forgotten. The immodesty of feminine dress is becoming more and more marked. Women and young girls cheerfully become fashion's slaves. Do they think of the scandal which they give, and of the sins which they expose themselves to make others commit?"

Speaking particularly of low-neck dresses and short sleeves, scantiness of draperies, transparency of materials used, and questionable arrangement of lines, the archbishop asks: "What are the religious sentiments of these mothers who dare to dress their children in such costumes for holy communion and confirmation? Warn parents that these costumes are strictly forbidden, and that these who wear them will not be admitted to the reception of the sacraments."

Hon. Charles Devlin Better.

OTTAWA, Feb. 23. — The conditions of Hon. Charles R. Devlin, Minister in the Gouin Cabinet, who is lying ill at his father's home in Aylmer, Que., shows a decided improvement. His recuperative powers have astonished his physicians, especially as early last week he was in such grave condition. He is suffering from Bright's disease, and his naturally rugged constitution is standing him in good stead.

Carson Denies He's Engaged.

LONDON, Feb. 23. — Sir Edward Carson, the Ulster Unionist, denies his reported marriage engagement to Miss Frewen, niece of Moreton Frewen, ex-M.P. for Cork. The announcement of the engagement was published by several Sunday papers.

SECOND TRIAL IN MURDER CASE

Special Wire to The Examiner:

ANDERSON, Ind., Feb. 23. — The case of George W. Brown, charged with the murder of Albert Hawkins, a constable, was called to-day for trial. Brown's father, W. W. Brown, was recently convicted at Marion, on the same charge. The killing occurred last July in the Town of Ingalls, where the Browns kept an hotel. The tragedy was the result of ill feeling that followed a liquor raid made on the hotel.

STORM COST $4,500,000.

California's Gale Is Coming To an End, After Three Days.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Feb. 23.—With a loss of probably seven human lives, and more than $4,500,000 since Wednesday, Southern California began to recover last night from the effects of the worst storm in its history. Swept by wind and rain for the last three days, most of the territory between the Tehachapi Mountains and the Mexican line was flooded, but with the sunshining most of yesterday the situation improved considerably and while nearly all the towns affected remained isolated, last night progress was made toward re-establishing fire and rail communication.

According to an estimate made by A. C. Hansen, assistant city engineer, Los Angeles was damaged to the extent of at least $1,500,000. One hundred and fifty thousand dollars represented the damage to city streets alone. The rest represented losses sustained by railroads and by citizens whose homes were swept away by the floods with their household effects.

THIRTEEN HUNDRED SLAIN.

Women and Children Perished at the Hands of Chinese Bandits.

PEKIN, Feb. 23.—It is estimated here that the bandits led by "White Wolf," massacred 1,300 men, women and children when they sacked Liuan Chow, province of Ngan Hwei, on Jan. 29. On that occasion they murdered Father Rich, a French Jesuit missionary, and captured and held two others for ransom.

An army of 25,000 Chinese troops is now converging on "White Wolf's" strongly entrenched position in the vicinity of Chang Yang Kwan, further to the north in the same province. "White Wolf" there has a force of 2,000 bandits, half of whom are armed with modern rifles.

The opinion is expressed here that unless the opportunity is seized of exterminating "White Wolf" and his followers, they will form the centre of another rebellion. The troops, however, show a strong disinclination to come to close quarters with the bandits.

HAT CAUSED DUEL.

Man Is Dead, Woman Insane as Result of a Dispute.

VIENNA, Feb. 23.—A fatal duel in which an advocate named Bobacsay shot his brother-in-law, military airman First Lieut. Hadju, occurred at Budapest. Bobacsay and his wife had a serious quarrel in connection with a new hat, and she called her soldier brother to the rescue. Bobacsay made insulting remarks, which the officer resented. Hadju's superior officer, hearing of the affair, commanded him to fight for the honor of his uniform. The duel, which was kept a secret, took place at Budapest on Friday. Bobacsay, who is a bad shot, hit his brother-in-law more by accident than design. Frau Bobacsay was horrified at hearing of her brother's death, and twice attempted suicide, being finally conveyed to an asylum.

FOUND DEAD IN SHACK.

Farmer In Northern Ontario Victim of Illness and Cold.

NORTH BAY, Feb. 23.—Two boys, sons of a farmer named Lodouis, living near Sandy Falls, on Sturgeon river, north of Sturgeon Falls seven miles, while out hunting Saturday along the right of way of the C.N.R., under construction, found the dead body of a man in a railway camp building. The body was lying in a bunk, frozen stiff, and was later identified as that of Thomas Parkes, an employe of the C.N.R., in charge of the water tank at Sandy Falls for construction engines.

Parkes was about thirty years of age, and was a sergeant in the British army before coming to this country. He is said to be well connected in England. He returned to his post last Tuesday after coming out to Sturgeon Falls for supplies, and that was the last seen of him alive. He is supposed to have taken sick in his lonely cabin, which was several miles from any other habitation, and unable to keep the fire going in the intense cold caused his death from freezing.

Marie Lloyd Weds.

PORTLAND, Ore., Feb. 23.—Matilda Hurley, an English actress known as Marie Lloyd, was married here yesterday to Bernard Dillon. Twice in seeking to enter the United States, once at New York, and more recently at Vancouver, B.C., Miss Lloyd encountered U. S. immigration authorities on account of Dillon accompanying her. She stated that the ceremony was to obviate further difficulties of the kind. The marriage was in the British consulate office and was performed by a Catholic priest.

HEADACHES ALMOST DROVE HER WILD

Until A Friend Advised Her To Use "Fruit-a-tives"

Wiarton, Ont., May 29th, 1913.

"About four years ago, I was in a dreadful run-down condition, weak and hardly able to walk up stairs. Weakness peculiar to women was the chief trouble. I had Headaches that almost drove me wild, and most distressing constipation. I took many dollars' worth of medicine from the doctors without any good results.

A neighbor advised me to take "Fruit-a-tives" and they proved to be the best medicine I ever got and the only medicine to do me any good. Today, I feel as a young girl, and am able to go about my household duties as usual. My health is splendid and "Fruit-a-tives" is the cause of it". MRS. WM. CRIM.

KNEW HIM AS WELL.

A certain cantankerous old gentleman not long ago advertised for a coachman, who was required, among other qualifications, to possess an intimate acquaintance with the neighbourhood. But to his great surprise he received not a single application for the vacant post.

"I cannot understand it at all," he said, as during a chat one day with an old hostler of the local livery stables he had mentioned the fact.

"Let me see," said the latter, as a gleam of intelligence flitted across his face. "Ye advertised, I believe, for one as 'must be well acquainted with the neighbourhood,' didn't ye?"

"I did," replied the old gentleman shortly. "I want some one who knows his way about."

"Ah, that explains it," was the answer. "Ye see, they who knows the neighbourhood well knows ye too!"

"THE FREE RANGE"

By ELWELL LAWRENCE

tion was its situation. This particular spot was a corner of real "bad lands," and lumpy ridges, hogbacks, and barren buttes arose on all sides like waves in a sea. So numerous were they that unless riders passed directly by the sheepmen's hiding place the chances of discovery were almost nil. At one spot only was it visible, and that was a place where the edges of two hogbacks failed to lap and hide it.

The sheepmen were aware of this, and their two guards were placed out of range of that single opening, and after a while in the natural progress of things, the sun crept over the top of the rock and smote him. It was a hot sun, although it was declining, and presently Billy gave warning that he was about to take off his coat.

When he did so without an alarming display of hidden weapons, the fancy suspenders he wore came in for considerable attention. Now cowmen or cowboys almost never wore braces; either their trousers were tight enough at the waist to stay up, or they wore a leather strap to hold them. Suspenders hampered an active man.

But Billy Speaker, who had originally come from Connecticut fifteen years ago, wore these braces and treasured them because his mother had given much light from her aging eyes and many stitches from her faltering needle to the embroidery that travelled up and down both shoulder straps. She had embroidered everything he could wear time and again, and at last had fallen back on the braces as something new.

After free and highly critical comment regarding this particular aid to proprietary, the game was permitted to go on. It happened to be Billy Speaker's lucky day, and he had nearly cleaned the entire six of all their outfit. In the exhilaration of raking in his gains he moved about real lively, forgetful of the brilliantly polished nickel-plated buckles that decorated his shoulder blades and denoted the [illegible] which his nether garments were hoisted.

Out in the [illegible] lands a troop of horsemen moved slowly forward, detached bodies scouring the innumerable hogbacks for signs of their prey. here were a few more than a hundred in this body, and it represented the pick of ten ranches. At the head of it rode a stolid, heavy-faced man, who appeared as though he were in constant need of a shave, and whose features just now were drawn down into a scowl of thought and perplexity.

This man's body remained quite motionless as his horse plodded on with hanging head, but his small black eyes darted from side to side ceaselessly.

It was in one of these quick glances that he experienced a blinding flash upon his retina. A second later it occurred again, and then a third time. Suspiciously the man drew his horse to a stand and those behind him did likewise.

Stelton thought for a moment that there must have been an outbreak from the nearby Windy River or Shashone Reservation, and that the Indians were heliographing to one another. Presently, in an open space between the edges of two buttes he caught the flash close to the ground.

It probably was a tin can left by a herder—they often flashed that way—but he would prove it before he went on. He took from its case the pair of field-glasses that swung from his shoulder and raised them to his eyes.

What he saw caused him to swear excitedly and order the company back out of sight.

At the same time Jimmie Welsh, holding a straight flush, looked up triumphantly at Billy Speaker, who had just raised him. He looked over Billy's shoulder and the smile froze on his face. He continued to look, and the cards dropped one by one out of his hand. Then his face became stern and he jumped to his feet.

"No more of this," he ordered. "We're discovered. You fellows get out of sight," he added to the cowmen. "Here, Harry, Bill, Chuck, search these fellers again an' see they ain't got nothin' in their shoes."

"What ails yuh, Jimmie? Are yuh locoed?" asked a man who had not understood the sudden change in Welsh.

"I plenty wish I was," came the reply, "but I ain't. We've been discovered, an' we've got to fight. I don't know how many there was in the other party, but I 'low we ain't in it no-ways. Red an' Plug, you take yore horses round the butte to where the others are tethered, an' help Jimmie and Newt bring in them casks o' water. They ought to be back from the spring by this time. Tip, Lem, and Jack, help me put our friends here in the most-sheltered places."

In a moment the camp that had been sleepy and placid was bustling with a silent, grim activity. From secret places men produced Winchesters, revolvers, and knives, if they carried them. In half an hour all the food had been brought in, and the casks of water laboriously filled at a brackish pool five miles away.

"That flush excited yuh so you see a mirage, Jimmie," bantered Speaker, whose ready wit and genial manner had won their way into the sheepman's affection.

"I hope so," was the curt response. But Welsh had seen no mirage, and he was aware of the fact, knowing that a council of war was delaying the action of the other party.

His chief concern was the disposal of his prisoners. Excepting for the first line of breastworks, the only protection in the flat area of the camp was derived from the masses of stone that had fallen into it, and behind which one or two men could hide. At last it was decided that the prisoners, unarmed as they were, should lie down behind the wall out of danger's way, while the sheepmen should take their chances behind the rocks. Another reason for this was, that it would never do to have the prisoners behind the men who were doing the fighting, ready to attack from the rear at first chance.

Each man had fifty rounds of ammunition, and was a fairly good shot, not, of course, equaling the cowboys in this respect. The prisoners had hardly been placed when, from behind a neighboring hogback, rode a man waving a white hand kerchief.

Welsh stepped out of the camp and drove him back before he could talk, realising the fellow's clever idea of spying on the defenders' position.

The cowboy had little to say except to demand the immediate surrender of the cattle-owners and the delivery up to court martial of half the sheepmen. Jimmie laughed in the messenger's face, and told him to tell whoever was boss of that outfit to come and take anything he wanted, and to come well heeled.

Then he went back to the rocky canmp and stood his men up in a row.

"We got to keep our guests another week yet, boys," he said. "Mr. Larkin won't be up the range till that time, and our job is to keep them cowboys occupied so as to hold the range open for the sheep. Now anybody what don't want to take chances with lead can go from here now an get hung by the punchers. If there's many of 'em I allow we won't see Montana ag'in till we're angels; if there ain't, they won't see the Bar T. Now that's the story. One otther thing.

"Our guests are out in front. If yuh see any of 'em actin' funny or tryin' to get away, put a hole in 'em an' end that right off. Hear that, boys?" he yelled to the cowmen who were on the ground behind the defence.

"Yep," they shouted, and continued to chaff one another unmercifully in the greatest good-humor.

The old story states that the Spartans prepared for the battle of Thermopylae by oiling their bodies and brushing their hair, much to the surprise of the Persians, who were forever wailing to their gods. This story has come down to us to illustrate solid, supreme courage in the face of certain death.

No less inspiring, though in a different way, was the preparation of Jimmie Welsh and his nine sheepmen. They cracked jokes on the situation, reminded one another of certain private weaknesses under fire, recalled range yarns, and enumerated the several hundred things that were going to happen to the enemy during the next few hours.

In all this banter the cowmen joined with their own well-flavoured wit.

These facts have been given to show the natures of these men who made the West; who carved, unasked, an empire for the profit of us who live now, and who, in a space of less than forty years, practically passed from the face of the earth. Trained by their environment, they finally conquered it and left it to a more-civilized if softer generation.

At four o'clock of that afternoon came the first attack.

Stelton and his men were under a great disadvantage. In front of the sheepmen's defence was a little plain some three hundred yards across which was bare of any protection. The canopy of rock that overshadowed the rock, prevented attack from above or behind. There was nothing for it but an onslaught in the face of a deadly fire.

Suddenly from behind the butte that faced the camp poured the charge of the cowboys. Instantly they scattered wide adopting the circling Indian mode of attack. On they raced a distance of a hundred, then fifty yards.

SERIAL. Galley, two

Then, though as by preconcerted word, the Winchesters of both parties spoke, and the cowboys, turning at a sharp angle, galloped off out of range with one riderless horse, and two men, clinging, desperately wounded, to their pommels.

Jack Norton, one of the sheepmen, who had exposed himself for a better shot, dropped dead where he stood.

Now there was no word spoken. The helpless cowmen huddled against the wall while the hail of bullets swept over them in both directions. cursed softly to themselves, and smoked cigarettes. The punchers, having learned the lay of the land drew off in consultation. Half of them were dispatched around the butte that protected the defenders and the plan of attack was changed.

On signal, the parties from both sides charged along the face of the butte toward each other, this movement being calculated to bring them out close to the enclosure without the danger of an attack in front, and at the same time give them the chance to fire upon the sheepmen from a destructive angle at either side.

The manoeuvre resulted in concentrating the fire within a zone of twenty five yards, and it was fire so murderous that, before the cowboys could get out of rangeñ ten were dead or wounded, while two of the sheepmen were killed outright and a third was disabled and rolled out into the sun to writhe in agony until his pal ran from cover and dragged him back.

The result was now a foregone conclusion, for the cowboys had solved the difficult problem of attack. Mushrooming on either side at a distance of three hunded wards, they formed again in the shelter on either side and charged once more.

The wounded man, hearing the drumming of hoofs, seized his revolver, rolled out into the sun, and sat up on the ground. And from this position he emptied his gun at the yelling cowboys until another shot put him out of his misery.

More cowboys fell; and now, in front of the stone breastworks, a dozen bodies lay, some twitching, and others still. The number of the defenders was reduced to five capable of holding and using a weapon, for such marksmen were the punchers that, if they did not kill outright, their bullets inflicted mortal wounds.

Jimmie Welsh was undisturbed and unhurt. He and Newt were sheltered behind one rock, while Tip and Lem defended another, and Chuck Durstine held a third by the side of his dead partner, Red. The fourth charge found them lying on the ground, contrary to their former practice of standing, and they escaped unhurt, although their ability to shoot the mounted punchers above the wall was not diminished. Again they wrought terrible havoc.

"I sure wish I could've cleaned up that straight flush, Billy," remarked Jimmie Welsh to Speaker.

"So do I, Jimmie," returned the other; "yore had luck was just ungakim's. But, look here. Suppose you fellers quit this business now I don't relish yore all bein' slaughtered this-a-way, and it's shore a comin' to yuh if yuh don't quit."

"Yuh talk like a Sunday-school had stampeded on yuh, Billy. I'm surprised!" gibed Welsh. "Mebbe yuh don't like yore flowery bed of cake out there, what?"

"All hogsin' aside, I mean it," insisted Speaker. "Yuh better quit now before they come ag'in."

"Yeah, an' get strung up to the nearest tree for my pains, eh? Oh, no; I like this better; but, of course, if any o' the boys—"

"Naw! What the deuce are yuh talkin' about?" demanded an aggrieved voice, instantly joined by the other three.

"You're wrong, Jimmie; of course, I don't mean that. If yuh'll quit I'll see that yuh don't get strung up."

"You're shore some friendly, Billy," said Jimmie, shaking his head: "but I couldn't never look my boss in the face if I even thought o' quitin'. That ain't what he pays me for."

"I'll give yuh a job as foreman on the Circle Arrow. I see one of you hellions got my forean; he's layin' out there kickin' still: What d'ye say?"

"I'm plumb regretful, Billy," returned Welsh, without hesitation: "but I can't do it. Mebbe one o' the boys—"

"Naw!" said the boys in unified contempt.

"Well, yuh pigheaded sons o' misery, go out an' die, hang" cried Speaker, quite out of patience.

"Jest a minute an' we'll oblige yuh, Billy," replied Welsh, as the dreaded drumming of hoofs foretold the next charge.

There was a tense moment of waiting, and then the fusilade began again, pitifully weak from the sheepmen. When the horsemen had whirled out of sight Lem and Newt lay groaning on the ground, while Tip O'Neil lay strangling in a torrent of blood that rushed from what had once been his face.

Welsh took one look at the tortured man, and with a crack over the head from the butt of his pistol, rendered him unconscious and stilled his bloodcurdling agonies. Then he walked over to the cowmen.

ECZEMA ON THE HEAD

Mr Peterson, South Bay, Ont., writes: "For years I suffered a sort of eczema on the head. I tried four different doctors, giving each a fair trial, but the disease grew worse and spread to my arm. I got Dr. Chase's Ointment, and it has entirely cured me. I give you my name because I want other sufferers to know about this splendid Ointment."

PROPOSALS TO ACTRESSES.

Artiste Has Dressing-room Papered With Love Letters.

Proposals of marriage, from all and sundry, are almost daily occurrences with popular actresses, and they learn to take little or no notice of them. It is said that one actress has papered her boudoir with a choice selection of them, but no actress surely, would scorn such a beautiful love letter as the following:

"Dear Miss, I don't 'ave enuf money to go to the theayter after, but I went last nite an' seen you. I never see a lovlier lady in my life, an' never won wot acted so beautiful. I dremt of you all nite, an' I shall carry your image in my 'art all my life. I am 'riting' at wonce becos' you are so beautiful that you will soon get to be fam'us, an' I shall not dare to 'rite you agen." The lady carries this letter in her purse, and can hardly read it without tears.

A letter treasured by Mr. Harry Randall, the well-known music hall comedian, is from one of the often very eccentric individuals known as "stage aspirants," and is thus worded: "I am thinking of following the trade (sic) of a comic singer, and after a look round have come to the conclusion that your style would suit me best. Please state your lowest terms by return of post, and note that if I do not hear from you by first thing to-morrow I shall apply elsewhere!"

But probably the following is unique. "Dear sir, I, the undersigned, shall be most happy to attend the play nightly which is now running at the —— Theatre and applaud vociferously, for 4s. a night. If you prefer to give this matter a week's trial before coming to a final decision, I will attend for the purpose of applauding vociferously for six nights, in consideration of a free pass and two half-pints, each evening."

DAYS OF THE PRESS GANG.

Life In England's Old Georgian Navy Was Hard and Brutalizing.

There can be no question about it—life in the Georgian navy was insufferably hard. According to Masefield, "it was brutalizing, cruel and horrible, the kind of life now happily gone forever, a kind of life which no man to-day would think good enough for a criminal. There was barbarous discipline, bad pay, bad food, bad hours of work, bad company."

This is putting the case strongly, and to one not born or bred to the sea it is exactly what it must have seemed. How then did they get men to enter the service? There were several ways in vogue. A captain on being appointed to a vessel, besides attending to her armament and equipping her for a voyage, had also the responsibility of furnishing her with a crew. He set about this by establishing a recruiting office ashore, generally at a sailors' tavern, and plastering the fact through the town and the surrounding country with the announcement that "Captain Blank, R.N., was now fitting out H. M. ship So and So for a cruise in foreign waters."

Following this came promises of unlimited rum, prize money and the King's bounty. When the gullible one came to the bait he was plied generously with drink and flattery, the King's gold jingled before his staring eyes and his befuddled brain filled with stories of the joys of life in the King's navy loudly bawled in the sea ballads of the day. That these joys were not unknown is shown by the fact that the bounty was at one time above $350.

When these gentle means failed to complete his number the captain sent a few boat loads of sturdy fellows ashore after dark in charge of an officer. This party or "press gang" proceeded to the resorts of merchant sailors and picked up any stragglers they found in the streets. In times of need no male between boyhood and old age was safe.

GOD'S JUDGMENTS ARE BLESSINGS

Lord's Gracious Provision For the World of Mankind.

HIS PLAN OF REDEMPTION

Eternal Torment Wholly Foreign to the Divine Character — God's Judgments Are "Righteous Altogether"—Death the Divine Judgment Against the Race of Adam —God's Special Judgments—The World's Judgment During the Millennium — Healing and Uplifting From Sin and Death Conditions—Destruction Only For the Wilfully Rebellious.

[The matter under this heading is supplied by the Pastor Russell Lecture Bureau, who conduct the Brooklyn Tabernacle (unsectarian) Bible Studies, and who have arranged for its insertion.]

Feb. 22.—Pastor Russell still preaches orally as well as by his free "Photo-Drama of Creation," which is presenting the Gospel to eye and ear daily to thousands in the great cities. His sermons are still reaching millions through the public press. His text for to-day is: "When Thy judgments are abroad in the earth, the inhabitants of the world will learn righteousness." (Isaiah 26:9.) He said:

Only those who come to an advanced knowledge of God's Word can realize how Divine judgments are all good—all blessed. Under the influence of the fog of superstition, not understanding aright the teachings of the Scriptures, supposing that they teach eternal torment for the majority of our race, we feared God, rather than loved Him. We dared not say that such a judgment on God's part was wrong, malicious, devilish, yet we were unable to see it in any other light. Hence have come the general perplexity of Christendom, the general alienation of heart, and many intelligent minds driven to infidelity, to dislike to think about God and His supposedly terrible purposes respecting our race, to general awe respecting the Bible, and to fear of its misunderstood teachings.

But now in the dawning of the New Dispensation, the Word of God is shining as never before. One passage illuminating another, our fear gives place to reverential love and filial awe. We begin to understand that the torment doctrines which we received are wholly foreign to the Divine character, which, on the contrary, is distinctly marked by Wisdom, Justice, Mercy and Love toward all. We find ourselves now in agreement with the Scriptural declaration that God's judgments are "righteous altogether," and we delight in them.

Instead of a judgment of eternal torment as a penalty for sin, we find a judgment, or sentence, of death. We agree to the righteousness of that verdict, or judgment. God had a right to demand of His creature the obedience he was able to render. He had a perfect right to destroy him in death when he refused the blessing of life eternal on the terms of obedience. Seeing this, how rejoiced we are to note the Divine Mercy in the Plan of Redemption for the sinner and his offspring through the sacrifice of Christ! As a result we have good hope in His judgments; for He who once judged us worthy of death has with equal justice redeemed us and granted us the opportunity of eternal life through the resurrection.

It was another part of the Divine judgment against our race that, instead of the death penalty's coming instantly upon Adam and Eve, it came gradually, that through the processes of gradual dying they might the better learn the lesson of "the exceeding sinfulness of sin," to the intent that, when granted the new trial secured by the merit of Christ's sacrifice, they might profit by it the more. The same principle applies to all of Adam's posterity.

CURE SICK HEADACHE.

BAD BLOOD IS THE DIRECT CAUSE OF Pimples.

Pimples break out on the face and body, and it is impossible to get rid of them, unless you cleanse the blood of all of its impurities.

Burdock Blood Bitters is without a doubt, the very best medicine for this purpose.

This old, and reliable medicine has been in use for nearly forty years, and has a reputation unequalled by any other preparation for removing all the impurities from the blood and banishing the pimples.

Mr. Edward Paquette, Navan Centre, Ont., writes:—"One month ago my face was covered with pimples and a rash. I had tried a number of these so called blood purifiers with no avail. Seeing an almanac of yours in which you strongly recommend Burdock Blood Bitters, I decided to try a bottle, and after I had taken it I could see a decided change, and after using three bottles more all the pimples had completely disappeared."

"The whole creation groaneth and travaileth in pain together until now, • • • waiting for the manifestation of the sons of God." (Romans 8:22, 19.) They are waiting for the establishment of Christ's Millennial Kingdom, under which they will have a full opportunity of coming to a knowledge of the Truth.

This is God's provision for the world in general! What God did for Natural Israel during the Jewish Age, and what He has been doing for Spiritual Israel since Pentecost, in this Gospel Age, are matters separate and apart from His general dealing with mankind. The natural and the Spiritual Seed of Abraham are exceptions to the rule. Natural Israel under the Law Covenant and Spiritual Israel under the Abrahamic Covenant, have been granted special privileges and blessings not granted to the world in general.

From these two nominal Israels special "overcomers" have been chosen, or elected. These shortly, in association with the Redeemer, will constitute the Kingdom of God. The overcomers of Spiritual Israel, becoming the Bride of Christ by resurrection change to the Heavenly nature, will be like Him and share His glory, and will constitute the Kingdom class, in the highest sense. The overcomers of Natural Israel, resurrected to the perfection of human nature, will constitute the earthly phase of the Millennial Kingdom. Mankind may see and have intercourse with these, but will not see nor have direct intercourse with the glorified Christ, Head and Body—the King of Glory.

So far as the world is concerned, it has been under the one general sentence of Divine Justice, "Dying, thou shalt die." But Natural and Spiritual Israel have been dealt with as freed from the original sentence and on trial for life or death afresh under God's judgments, or disciplines. Thus it is written, "Jehovah will judge His people." Not all under these judgments have understood them; not all were in the condition of heart to receive their instructions.

"The secret of the Lord is with them that fear Him; and He will show them His Covenant" (Psalm 25:14). Thus, during the Jewish Age, Israel often lapsed into more or less darkness and idolatry, and failed to see their special privileges and relationship to God under their Covenant. But amongst them were the few who with the eye of faith discerned the righteousness of God's dealing with them. Of these were the Prophets, who rehearsed the Divine rewards and punishments, declaring that they were true and righteous altogether and merciful in the extreme.

Similarly during this Gospel Age Christendom as a whole has not been in the condition to hear, to understand, to appreciate, the judgments of the Lord. But some have been "Israelites indeed," who possessed the secret of the Lord and who were able to rejoice in His judgments—His righteous dealings. They have realized by faith God's love for them. "The Father Himself loveth you" (John, 16:27). By faith they have appreciated the Apostle's assurance that "all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are called according to His purpose."—Romans, 8:28.

We have seen that God's judgments in the past have been merely with those who shall constitute the Seed of Abraham (natural and Spiritual), through whom, according to the Promise, "all the families of the earth shall be blessed" (Genesis 28:14). We now note the fact that our text does not relate to either of these; for their judgments could be discerned only by the eye of faith. Our text refers to the world's judgments during the Millennial Age. Then God's judgments will be abroad in the earth—not confined merely to one nation or especially called class—and will include every member of Adam's race. And while these are declared to be the Lord's judgments, note the fact that they will be administered by The Christ of which our glorified Redeemer will be the Head, and His members, when glorified, will be the Body—the Church.

The judgments of the Lord abroad in the earth will not mean havoc and dismay to mankind in general, but the very reverse — relief, assistance, to all who come into line with all the righteous arrangements of that Kingdom, designed for their uplifting from sin and death conditions. The judgments of that Day of a thousand years will be severe—even to destruction, against the wilfully, the deliberately rebellious, after they shall have been brought to a clear appreciation of right and wrong, good and evil, and their results — life and death.

Mark the statement of the Prophet David when prophetically referring to the Millennial Age. He points out that the judgments of that time will be a cause of gladness. He says:

"Say among the heathen that the Lord reigneth;
The world also shall be established that it shall not be moved;
He shall judge the people righteously.
Let the heavens rejoice, and let the earth be glad;
Let the sea roar, and the fulness thereof.
Let the field be joyful, and all that is therein;
Then shall all the trees of the wood rejoice
Before the Lord; for He cometh,
For He cometh to judge the earth;
He shall judge the world with righteousness,
And the people with His Truth."—Psalm 96:10-13.

Note the words of St. Paul respecting what God has in reservation for the world. He says: God "hath appointed a Day (the thousand-year Day of Christ) in which He will judge the world in righteousness by that Man whom He hath ordained."—Acts 17:31.

In this work ordained for our Lord He is to have associates—the elect Church, His members, of whom the Apostle writes, saying, "Know ye not that the saints shall judge the world?" (1 Corinthians 6:2.) And the Ancient Worthies enumerated by St. Paul (Hebrews 11:32-40) will also be judges, earthly representatives of the Heavenly Kingdom. As it is written, "I will restore thy judges as at the first and thy counsellors as at the beginning."—Isaiah 1:26.

Our all-wise Creator, who has thus provided both the Heavenly and the earthly judges of the world in the election from Israel and the election of the Gospel Age, has thus demonstrated, to the few who understand "the secret of the Lord," "The Mystery hidden from ages and dispensations" past. It is evident that there will be no disappointment, no failure, in respect to God's great Oath-bound Covenant made with Abraham — "In thy Seed shall all the families of the earth be blessed." The basis of the blessing is the redemptive work of Christ, finished at Calvary. The outworking of that blessing will come through the glorified Lord and the Church, His Body.

The first work will be the establishment of a righteous government in the hands of those already proven absolutely loyal to God and to His righteousness — faithful even unto death. We may have full confidence that in that Kingdom justice will be laid to the line and righteousness to the plummet, as God has promised. (Isaiah 28:17.) Not only so, but we may have full confidence that mercy will have a free hand there, to do all for mankind that would be reasonable and possible. The combination of a strong Government with merciful assistants is assured by the fact that our Lord will be, not only the Great King, but also the great Priest, Prophet and Teacher. Even so, also, the Church shall be kings and priests. Their office, their service, will be a combination of ruling and healing, instructing and uplifting.

Everything done will come under the head of judgment — righteous dealing. Every good deed, yea, every good effort, will be rewarded. The judgment will be a blessing. It will mean an increase of harmony with the Lord and of character development, and restitutional physical experiences. (Acts 3:19-21.) Instead of the ways of darkness there will be the way of light. Instead of the broad road leading to destruction, with the masses going down thereon—to the tomb — there will be the Highway of Holiness. Instead of stones of stumbling, we are assured that all the stumbling-stones shall be gathered out of the way. Instead of beastly violence, overmastering temptations and beastments, devouring mankind because of their inability to resist the Adversary, the Bible assures us that Satan will be bound and that the wild beasts of vice and degeneracy will all be brought into subjection. Thus nothing "shall hurt or destroy in all God's holy Mountain (Kingdom)." And an highway shall be there, and a way, and it shall be called the Way of Holiness."—Isaiah 11:9; 35:8.

The Messianic Psalm — seventy-second—finds its application in that glorious Millennial Epoch. Thus we read: "Give the King Thy judgments, O God, and Thy righteousness unto the King's Son. He shall judge Thy people with righteousness and Thy poor with judgment(justice). • • • He shall judge the poor of the people. He shall save the children of the needy and shall break in pieces the oppressor. • • • He shall come down like rain upon the mown grass, as showers that water the earth. In His days shall the righteous flourish; and abundance of peace as long as the moon endureth."

As already shown, God's dealings in the past have been with the world only in the sense of executing a general sentence for Adamic sin — a death sentence with all that it involves of mental, moral, and physical degeneracy—dying. All of God's special judgments have been with those who were justified to special relationship through faith. If we were to judge of the number who will be blessed during the Millennium by the numbers in the Little Flock of Natural Israel and the Little Flock of Spiritual Israel, saved under God's judgments in advance of the Millennium, the outcome of the world's judgment would not appear favorable.

But these would not be fair criteria. Present conditions are permitted to test and to prove the faith as well as the obedience of those who are, under trial, or judgment, and who have such a faith as permits them to grasp the glorious features of the present call. Consequently there will be who will find the great reward now offered.—Matthew 7:14.

This is as God designs it, because He is selecting a special class. But the arrangements made for mankind in general are that the darkness and sin of the present time shall be done away. The dawning of the Millennial Morning, with the rising of the Sun of Righteousness with healing in His beams (The Christ in glory to enlighten the world), will mean that knowledge will be granted mankind—facts, evidences, proofs.

The world will not be required to "walk by faith and not by sight," as are the Elect of the Gospel Age. Instead of the Eye of Faith of the present time will be the Eye of understanding (knowledge); then, instead of the secret of the Lord being kept from the world, all of His gracious purposes will then stand fully revealed. "The knowledge of the glory of God shall fill the whole earth as the waters cover the great deep" (Habakkuk 2:14.) As a result, none shall need to say unto his neighbor and to his brother, Know the Lord, for all shall know Him, from the least to the greatest of them. Every knee shall bow and every tongue confess, to the glory of God (Jeremiah 31:34; Romans 14:11; Philippians 2:10, 11). When every good deed shall receive promptly and manifestly its reward, and every evil deed shall receive promptly its punishment, the world will speedily learn to avoid the punishments and to win the rewards by obedience to the laws of the Kingdom.

The Prophet in our context personates The Christ, Jesus the Head and the Church His Body. Note the statement in our context: "With my soul I have desired Thee in the night." The night of sin has been upon the world for centuries. The Morning is at hand, but not yet fully come.

During the night time the faithful of the Church are represented as walking in the light of God's Word. "Thy Word is a lamp unto my feet, and a lantern unto my path" (Psalm 119:105.) St. Peter says: "We have a more sure word of prophecy, to which we do well to take heed as unto a light shining in a dark place—until the Day dawn and the Day Star arise (2 Peter 1:19.) In this night time the Elect are different from the majority of those around them. They desire God's righteousness and they pray: "Thy Kingdom come; Thy will be done on earth, even as it is done in Heaven."

Nervous Energy Is Limited

There is only so much energy in the human body. A few people have an abundance, but more have not enough. Hence the necessity of conserving vitality.

If wasted by mode of living, disease or worry there must be a reckoning, and trouble is sure to come. It may be headaches and weak, aching eyes; it may be nervous indigestion, or it may be merely lack of energy and ambition, and feelings of fatigue or helplessness. Of course, sooner or later exhaustion of the nerves leads to prostration, paralysis or locomotor ataxia, but there is no need to let the trouble develop that far.

By using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food you can restore to the feeble, wasted nerve cells the energy they have lost. It will take some effort on your part to give up worry and anxiety, but you should realise your serious condition. Rest and use this great food cure and you are bound to improve in health and vigour.

BY RADIUM TO THE MOON

Around the World in a Very Few Minutes

M. Ernest Archdeacon, writing of the marvellous progress made in aerial science, expresses the conviction that in a few centuries aerial navigation as we know it will have become as out of date as the horse is to-day as a means of transport. It appears unlikely that flying machines will ever considerably exceed 125 miles an hour. At this rate we should take 200 hours, or a little more than eight days, to make a circuit of the earth. It is evident that we shall soon discover something infinitely better than the aeroplane. It is certain that our children, he says, will girdle the earth (25,000 miles) in a time of which we at present can have no idea. One sees at once what a fantastic revolution this will cause in the world's commerce. All the peoples of the earth will then form a sole and single nation.

"According to the mathematical calculations of M. Hanault Pelterie," says Archdeacon, "the new means of interplanetary transport will be Jules Verne's cannonball transformed into a continuously self-propelling rocket. The problem is to give this rocket a self-contained velocity of 11 kilometres (nearly seven miles) a second, which would be sufficient for it to leave the circle of terrestrial attraction. At this velocity our planet could be girdled in 66 minutes, and the journey from Paris to Nice covered in under two minutes.

"There will be no more wars, for our needs will be reduced to a minimum. Esperanto will have become useless, for we shall communicate by the transmission of thought through space. To terminate my anticipation I am convinced that in a certain number of centuries the inhabitants of all the planets will have made acquaintance with one another, and I foresee the day when a world's interplanetary congress will be held."

SOME SHORT CUTS IN FIGURING INTEREST

The following will be found to be excellent rules for finding the interest on any principal for any number of days. When the principal contains cents, point off four places from the right of the result to express the interest in dollars and cents. When the principal contains dollars only, point off two places and proceed as follows:

Two per cent.—Multiply the principal by the number of days to run, and divide by 180.

Two and one-half per cent.—Multiply by number of days, and divide by 144.

Three per cent.—Multiply by number of days, and divide by 120.

Three and one-half per cent.—Multiply by number of days, and divide by 102.86.

Four per cent.—Multiply by number of days, and divide by 90.

Five per cent.—Multiply by number of days, and divide by 72.

Six per cent.—Multiply by number of days, and divide by 60.

Seven per cent.—Multiply by number of days, and divide by 51.43.

Eight per cent.—Multiply by number of days, and divide by 45.

Nine per cent.—Multiply by number of days, and divide by 40.

Ten per cent.—Multiply by number of days and divide by 36.

Twelve per cent.—Multiply by number of days, and divide by 30.

Fifteen per cent.—Multiply by number of days, and divide by 24.

For example: Find the accrued interest on $1,500.00 for 122 days at 6%. Point off two places, multiply 1.22 by $1,500, the result is $1,845.60, divide by 60, and you have $30.75, which is the correct sum in dollars and cents.

FARM SURVEYS

Some Points on Which Farmers May Make Improvements

F. C. Nunnick, of the Commission of Conservation, in referring to the work being done in regard to farm surveys and demonstration farms in Ontario, said the survey was conducted in five counties of the province and the number of farms visited was 200. Information was collected which went to show that Ontario farmers could improve their methods in a number of ways. Slightly less than half were not following a systematic rotation, merely growing different crops on the land from one year to the next. Not enough attention was paid to the varieties of grain grown. In Peterboro' County, for instance, 17 varieties were grown. These could not all be best varieties. Weeds were gaining the ascendancy in many cases. On one farm 66 different weeds were found. One cause appeared to be that weed inspectors were lax in their duties. A fact, the significance of which could not be slighted, was that 93 per cent. of the farmers visited were taking no special means to preserve farm manure.

Blind Print For Blind

Blind women and girls of Washington are earning their living by making books for other blind persons. The work is in steady progress, and a shipment of books to the blind of other places soon will be made.

Braille type, read by the blind through their fingers, is now of international employment, and thousands of blind persons have been taught to read it. The result is that the demand for books printed in this way has far exceeded the supply.

Aeroplanes as Life Savers

They Have Preserved Armies in War Times and Rescued Many by Land and Sea---A Peep Into the Future Shows Wonderful Work Ahead for Them.

SAVING lives by aeroplanes may sound strikingly surprising to most people, and it is amazing, if the short career of the aeroplane is considered, to find that it has saved thousands of lives in war and a number of lives in peace time, and that it promises to be the most efficient life saver the world has ever had.

The aeroplane's career as a savior of lives in large number began as early as 1911, in the very war in which it first demonstrated its potentiality as an instrument of war, and the result shows that its potentiality was greater as an instrument of peace—a life saver.

Those who followed the development of the Italian-Turkish war will remember how at the very start of the campaign, before the first engagement took place, the newly landed Italians were saved from an unpleasant surprise by the aerial scouts, Captain Piazza, with his Blériot, and Captain Moino, on his Nieuport, who observed three advancing columns of Turks and Arabs of about six thousand men. The Italians, after receiving this information, could successfully calculate distances and arrange for their defence.

On the following day, October 24, the battle of Sciara-Sciat took place, resulting in the loss to the Turkish army of 8,000 men. During the battle two aeroplanes, Lieutenant Gavotti, with his Etrich, and Captain Piazza, were circling the air. The flights took place above the line of fire, so as to be able to direct the firing of the big guns from the battleship Carlo Alberto and also of the mountain artillery. The aeroplanes were often shot at by the guns of the enemy, but with no results. The finding of the enemy was an influential event. The situation at the time was such that without that discovery the Italians would have met with a defeat which might have affected the whole campaign. Thus two men and two old, half worn aeroplanes saved a defeat which might have involved the loss of thousands of lives—as was the case in the Erithrea campaign—at a cost of possibly only a few dollars, the price of gasolene and oil.

Later in the campaign the aeroplane became a veritable advance agent of peace, being used by the Italian officers to drop manifestoes over the encampment telling the natives of the Italians' intentions. This is a very important matter, because, as shown by France's long campaign in Algeria and Morocco, most of the trouble in colonies is due to the natives misunderstanding the purposes of the invaders, who never have a chance to explain their intentions. The Arabs in Tripoli were urged to war by the Turks, who represented the Italians as cruel and wanting to subject the natives to fierce treatment. The Italians could never have got near enough to explain their case had they not thought of sending the aeroplanes to drop manifestoes in the Arabs' camps. These manifestoes were printed in Arabic, and the following translations were made from the French translations and given for publication by the Councellor for the Turkish Embassy in Washington, Raif Bey. The very first manifestoes told of the Italian victories and moralised as follows:—

"All this indicates that God is the protector of the Italians. As for the Turks, they have the habit of lying and they will tell you that these things are not true. But we swear that all these things are true. O Arabs, do not expose your lives to danger! O Arabs, hasten, come to us, for the end of the war is near!"

In another letter appears this:—

"It is certain that the ever victorious Italians will always use great severity against the Turks, whereas they will proceed with kindness toward the Arabs, whom they consider as their own children. O Arabs, before the aeroplanes begin to throw their bombs which descend from on high like the thunders of heaven on your heads, annihilating you and your domestic animals, burning your houses and your crops, destroying your wells and your vineyards, devastating your fields and your gardens, hasten, O Arabs and take refuge with us and you will be treated with kindness.

Again in the Balkan War the aeroplane was a messenger of peace.

Perhaps the greatest surprise of the Balkan War was that Adrianople, the Gibraltar of the Balkans, which the Turks were supposed to defend to the last breath of life, was captured with little loss of life by a comparatively small force. The aeroplane—even the old type clumsy machines, manned by untrained pilots, used by the Bulgarians—deserves the greatest credit for the saving of life and money.

The Bulgarian air scouts, though untrained in military matters and poorly equipped mechanically, went out over the besieged city and brought to their commanders information which enabled them to attack the weakest spots. Then others—messengers of peace, whom humanity should recognise now that they have saved thousands of lives in both the Tripolitanian and Balkan wars—soared over the city and dropped messages to the besieged, which if not of peace, made for peace. One of these proclamations, urging the besieged to surrender, reads:—

"This war is not against the Mussulmans but against the cruel, atrocious and dull witted government officials. Be it known that we also do not desire the shedding of blood. Our desire is to bring into the Balkans peace, security and good government. The neighboring Balkan States have invaded your country from all sides. The Bulgarian soldiers are only a few hours' march from Constantinople. Outside Adrianople there is a ring of 1,000 Bulgarian guns. If Adrianople does not surrender it will be ruined and burned."

These messages were read by the besieged, who learned that the besieger, instead of being a cruel, arbitrary enemy, was, in theory at least, a friend. The moral effect produced by these messages weakened the defence and, no doubt, made the capture of Adrianople possible a month sooner than it otherwise would have occurred, and the defenders did not sacrifice themselves in number in an attempt to defend the stronghold.

An admirable feat in saving the lives of five hundred French soldiers is credited to a single aeroplane of the French Morocco squadron. In December, 1912, a column of five hundred French troops had been surrounded by rebels to the south of Mogador and for five days some anxiety was felt for their safety. Then Lieutenant Do-Hu, in his Blériot monoplane, was able to convey information to the commander that reinforcements were close at hand and, encouraged, they renewed their defence, while the rebels, seeing ominous signs in the arrival of the aeroplane, retreated.

A similar case was recorded in November, 1913, when an aeroplane connected with the Spanish forces in Morocco, piloted by the Infante Alfonso, saved a detachment of cavalry that was attacked by a large force of natives near Ceuta. The cavalry was getting the worst of it when the Infante Alfonso chanced to arrive overhead in his aeroplane, accompanied by other members of the aerial squadron. The Moors were so terrified that they fled and allowed the survivors of the battle to escape with their wounded.

Life saving in time of peace, while it has not attained more than a fraction of the number of lives saved in war, is, perhaps, more interesting to most people than the latter, being closer to daily needs and experiences of the general public. It is, therefore, gratifying to find that the water aeroplane, the hydro-aeroplane and the flying boat seem destined to save life.

The hydro-aeroplane began its career as a lifesaver in 1911, while still in the experimental period. It was during the famous Chicago meet an aviator lost control while flying over Lake Michigan and fell into the water. Three-quarters of a mile away there was a hydro-aeroplane, the early Curtiss model—the prototype of the flying boat—circling around and occasionally settling on the surface of the water like a big seagull. The pilot of this craft, seeing the aviator's fall, went to the rescue. Flying at a mile a minute speed, he reached the spot, landed on the water by the submerged aeroplane and offered to take the aviator to land—all in less than one minute!

Some months later, on March 6, 1912, two aviators fell in San Diego Bay while flying and their machine capsized. An aviator on the shore saw the accident, jumped on his hydro with his mechanic and flew to the rescue, landing a minute later by the "shipwrecked" two.

The first demonstration of actually rescuing a person not connected with aviation was given on October 10, 1912, by Charles Wald, instructor in the Wright school of water flying, at the Glenwood Country Club. A man named Walter Strobbach fell into the harbor from a rowboat in which he was seeking diversion with a friend. The rowboat was half a mile off the shore at Sea Cliff and fully a mile from the Glenwood Country Club, when, miscalculating his position, Mr. Strobbach attempted to sit further on the stern of the boat, with the result that he fell overboard. Although his friend tried to reach his companion, a strong current carried them apart. Shouts along shore told of the plight of the young man, who was exhausted in the chilly water. Mr. Charles Wald, learning of the occurrence while at the hangar preparing to make a flight, jumped into his machine and flew to the man in the water, who could be seen from the club station.

Alighting in the hydro-aeroplane on the water near Strobbach, the aviator first threw a life preserver to the young man, who was scarcely able to keep afloat, then, bringing the machine alongside, managed to get him aboard one of the floats of the biplane and brought him safely to the Wright station.

Boats leaving the shore did not reach the scene of the accident until the hydro-aeroplane was well on its way to shore with the rescued.

Mr. Glenn H. Curtiss, the [illegible] water flyers and creator [illegible] both the hydro-aeroplane and flying boat, was the hero of a life saving [illegible] last June, rescuing [illegible] a broken down motor boat with [illegible] four passenger [illegible] boat of [illegible] Harold [illegible] McCormick. Mr. Curtiss and Mr. C. C. Witmer were flying over Lake Keuka in the [illegible] at to test and were running for home ahead of a coming thunder shower when a mile from shore, they noticed a motor boat in which two men were waving wildly.

Curtiss brought the flying boat to the water and stopped near the motor boat. The men said their motor was broken and they wanted some one sent out to row them ashore. Mr. Witmer crawled out on the tail of the flying boat and took a rope from the motor boat, which he held while Curtiss drove the flying boat a mile to the shore.

The motor boat was left there and, taking the men aboard, Mr. Curtiss flew back to Hammondsport.

The airboat and hydro-aeroplane may be said to be the logical adjunct of life saving stations and, therefore, absolutely necessary. As an essential purpose of a life saving station is to relieve wrecks and save people from drowning, speed in doing it is the essence of efficiency. The aeroplane—the water kind—is revolutionary in this respect. It can fly to the spot where relief is needed at the rate of a mile a minute, and the airman who sees every detail of what goes on below can either land by the object of rescue or just drop life belts, ropes, food, medicine or stimulants—according to the urgency of the needs.

With all the navies working to develop means for launching aeroplanes from [illegible] the ships and receiving them back [illegible] is safe to say that the problem [illegible] solved very [illegible] Then therewith will be solved very [illegible] liners will carry aeroplanes [illegible] for carrying despatches and for general [illegible] pilot duties.

Just as the water aeroplane is a wonderful auxiliary of the navy, it is a wonderful auxiliary for ocean liners promising to afford to [illegible] carry [illegible] services of the highest [illegible] To those who are acquainted with ma[illegible]el the services which [illegible] airboat or hydro-aeroplane can render [illegible] at once apparent. Nothing surpasses the aeroplane in efficiency for use. It can carry from two hundred to five hundred pounds of mail matter. The water aeroplane is destined to perform wonderful mission as a life saver and a terror of disasters as an auxiliary of ocean liners.

The water aeroplane is wonderfully adapted for preventing disasters of the kind which overcame the steamship Titanic, and, in case such disasters take place, minimize the loss of life. A flying boat on a steamer can rise to investigate unseen dangers ahead. It can do so at night as well by using the ship's searchlights as the aeroplane's searchlights. In case of the vessel becoming disabled the aeroplane can fly to notify other vessels, utilizing the wireless apparatus, with which every flying boat is being equipped in the foreign navies, to notify the other steamships of the need or of its approach.

The most appalling thing in the Titanic disaster was that there were a number of steamships within call distance—some not as much as forty miles away—which the wireless telegraph did not reach in some cases because it became disabled as the ship sank. A flying boat could have covered the forty miles in less than an hour, while its wireless plant would have notified the other vessels as it proceeded onward. The wireless apparatus with which the British naval aeroplanes are equipped have a range of sixty miles.

A flying boat on the vessels that came to the rescue after the Titanic had sunk could have searched the surface of the sea for survivors, its altitude giving it a range of vision of miles, and could have found the survivors where the vessels did not see them. It would thus practically have superintended the work of life saving.

Each year there is a long list of people who are drowned from falling overboard from large vessels and who cannot be rescued in time to save their lives, the boat sent to save them reaching them too late to be of avail. A flying boat can be launched and can search for the person that has fallen overboard and can drop a life belt or land by and pick him up much faster than the fastest life boat.

The sea is an unknown quantity in many respects, and the biggest of steamships is very much at its mercy, and assistance of the kind which the flying boat affords is a necessity. A vessel at sea often meets signs of wrecks or it is signalled by craft in distress. At the present time there is no way to investigate such things without involving a great delay or putting the craft itself in danger through taking it out of its marked route, which is the safety zone. A flying boat can do all these things for the vessel. It can be launched with two men, one of whom searches the surface of the sea with powerful glasses. The vessel can proceed on its course; the flying boat will overtake it after having discharged its mission.

As even a special machine and the equipment cannot cost more than $10,000, it is evident that it is an absurdly cheap factor of efficiency which every craft can afford and should have.

In the last year a movement has been on foot in France to use aeroplanes in the Red Cross work. Those familiar with warfare know that one of the horrors about it is that the wounded must stay hours on the field before they are found, and after they are found it usually requires hours again to relieve them and take them to the camp hospital, and the jolting of the means of conveyance used and the length of time required to convey them across fields and places create indescribable suffering and are the cause of much loss of life. The aeroplane sends itself perfectly to relieve these conditions and practically removes all of the horrors indicated. As we know, the airman from an altitude of one thousand feet has a clear view of the details of miles of country over which he travels at a speed of sixty or more or less miles an hour. At that rate a Red Cross scout can find the wounded in a few minutes and can carry them to the hospital at the same rate. Almost any of the standard aeroplanes of the biplane type can be modified so as to afford accommodation for two stretchers, which can be located under or above the lower plane, sliding into a boxlike arrangement, which will prevent the wounded from tossing while in flight.

The first experiment to demonstrate the possibilities in this respect was made during the French manoeuvres of 1912. Dr. Emile Raymond, Senator from the Loire, who is an aviator of three years' experience, was appointed Red Cross scout by Medical Inspector Trousaint, who charged him with the task of finding three hundred bodies of supposed wounded distributed on the battlefield. In a few hours he reported with a map of the field, showing the spots where two hundred of the "wounded" were lying and expressed regrets that somehow he did not seem to find the other hundred. To his surprise the inspector complimented him warmly and told him that they had not been able to distribute the other hundred "wounded."

It is contemplated in France to employ aeroplanes for carrying wounded from the field to the field hospital. The aeroplane intended for this use is a monoplane carrying a boxlike stretcher with mica windows under its fuselage or body. This method has greatly been improved upon by Dr. H. L. E. Johnson, of Washington, D. C., a member of the Aero Club of America, who has developed a biplane which can be equipped with four of the Stokes split stretchers, invented by Surgeon General Charles Francis Stokes, of the United States Navy.

The stretchers are secured to the planes by straps, snaphooks and ring eyes and are easily transported, attached or detached. By this method an aviator and assistant could carry from four to a dozen wounded—according to the size of the aeroplane—at each trip, and as any experienced aviator can land his aeroplane so lightly that one cannot feel the contact of the wheels as they touch the ground the wounded would be much more comfortable and would be carried to the hospital possibly fifty times swifter than they are by other methods.

A number of cases of carrying relief to wounded by aeroplanes are on record, including several of officers who were shot in the Italian-Turkish War, Balkan War and French and Spanish campaigns in Morocco, but the most impressive is perhaps the case of the taking of a priest across the Sahara Desert to bring religious consolation to a dying officer. This happened in October, 1912. According to reports, Commandant Largeau, of the French Spahis, was mortally shot during a skirmish with Touaregs. They were in a desolate spot, two days' march from a European settlement. The dying officer expressed a wish for religious consolation, and a brother officer, Captain jumped on his aeroplane, flew to the settlement a hundred miles away and returned with the priest, and found that the dying man had probably lived two hours longer in hope of receiving the religious consolation.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A Famous Desperado

He Was the Most Daring of All Villains.

By JOHN Y. LARNED

We have stories of eminent rascals, such as Dick Turpin, Claude Duval and others, real or fictitious, but for reckless effrontery coupled with an ambition for important criminal achievements none of these villains overtops Colonel Thomas Blood, who flourished in England during the protectorship of the Cromwells and the reign of Charles II. One of Oliver Cromwell's sons gave Blood large grants of land in Ireland, which were confiscated on the restoration of the legitimate monarch. From this he began his career as a desperado of high degree. The following story does not deviate from the main facts of his boldest and last attempt:

One April morning in the year 1671 a gentleman and a lady visited the Tower of London. It had not yet become the museum it is today, but the kings of England and princes of the blood had ceased to reside there, except when one of them was confined with the expectation of having his head lopped off either in the yard or on Tower hill, close at hand. The crown jewels were kept there, but the iron grating which now protects them had not been constructed.

While looking at the bauble insignia of British sovereignty the lady suddenly fell into the gentleman's arms, apparently having fainted. He looked about him for some resting place on which to lay her, but, seeing no lounge or bed, he said to an attendant:

"My wife is very ill. Will you not ask the keeper's permission to remove her to a room where there is a bed?"

The attendant hurried away and soon returned with an invitation for the lady's husband to carry her into the private apartments of the keeper himself, Mr. Edwards.

"Heaven bless you, sir," said the anxious husband, "my poor wife is suffering greatly, and were it not for your kindness I don't know what we should do."

"You are welcome, sir. I assure you, to my dwelling place and to remain here with your lady as long as she is too ill to be taken away."

The lady gradually recovered. Meanwhile her husband, who had a seductive manner and tongue, ingratiated himself into the good graces of the keeper and his family. After remaining there some time the invalid declared that she was able to leave, and with a profusion of thanks for the favor received they departed.

"What a fine gentleman!" exclaimed Mrs. Edwards.

"And such a gentle lady!" remarked their daughter.

A few days later the same couple called on the keeper's family, bringing with them a present of gloves as a token of their gratitude for the kindness they had received. Shut up as the Edwards were, in the gloomy fortress, they were much pleased to see those who visited them, and they were especially delighted that the entertaining stranger and his refined looking wife should be so appreciative of what they had done for them.

Ruth Edwards was a pretty girl of seventeen, and the gentleman appeared to take a great fancy to her.

"Is she your only child?" he asked.

"No; I have a son a soldier with our army in Flanders. But he will soon be at home. He writes that his regiment is ordered to England."

"Has your daughter a husband in view?"

"A husband! Alas, no! She meets no young men here except jailers. Her only suitor is the headsman's son, and I wouldn't have her marry him for a kingdom. Besides, we have no dowry to give her."

"What a shame," said the visiting lady, "that such a pretty girl should go unclaimed!"

"It shall not be," said the gentleman, bringing his fist down on a table. "What? So comely a wench to spend her days here? What say you, wife, to a match between our nephew Ralph and little Ruth?"

"I say that if Mr. Edwards will give us his daughter to wed with Ralph on the day of the nuptials I will give the groom a thousand pounds."

"We should be pleased," said the mother, "to see the young man and make his acquaintance. If he be steady and pleases our daughter your offer will be accepted."

"Well said," replied the gentleman.

"Dinner is served," said Mrs. Edwards at this juncture. "Dine with us and we will arrange a time for you to bring your nephew."

The invitation was accepted, and when all were seated at the table the visiting gentleman bent his head reverently and said grace with great fervor. After dinner the guests were shown over the house.

"What a fine brace of weapons!" remarked the gentleman, bending over a case of pistols.

"Being the keeper of the crown jewels, I am likely to have use for them," replied Mr. Edwards.

"My friend," said the other contentiously, "do you know those pistols are just what I want for a friend of mine? What are they worth?"

"I paid a guinea for them."

"I will give you double the amount."

"No; since you wish for them you shall have them for what I paid."

When the pair left the Tower the visitor took the pistols with him.

* * * * * * *

"Now, you men listen attentively to what I have to say. My plan is simple and can be carried out without difficulty if every one knows his part and does it. Parrot, you are to take the globe. Hunt, you are to take a file and a bag with you, make two parts of the scepter with the file and put the parts in the bag."

"What are you going to take, colonel?" asked a third man, Halloway.

"I shall take the crown. You, Halloway, are to remain outside the jewel room and watch. Let each man carry a cane with a sword in it and all the arms he can conceal in his clothing. See to it that these instructions are carried out to the letter."

"All right, colonel," said Hunt, "we'll stand by you and do our parts, but I must say that this is the most ambitious move you have ever made. To take the crown jewels of England from the Tower in broad daylight and get away with them is a bigger job than taking Old Noll's body from Westminster abbey."

* * * * * * *

It was the 9th of May at 7 o'clock in the morning. Colonel Blood, the gentleman who had established himself in the confidence of the Edwards family, knocked at the door of the keeper's apartments with three companions, Hunt, Parrot and Halloway. Being admitted, he apologized for the nonappearance of his wife and nephew, saying that they would soon arrive. The friends he had with him desired to see the crown jewels and would Mr. Edwards kindly show them while waiting for the others? The keeper consented; the party entered the jewel room, and the door, as usual, was closed.

In a twinkling the keeper was on the floor bound and gagged. But he struggled and was stabbed. Parrot, who had worn a loose pair of breeches purposely, thrust the globe in his pocket. Blood crushed the crown to save bulk and put it under his cloak, while Hunt began to file the scepter in two parts to get it into the bag.

While this scene was being enacted a young soldier from the British army in Flanders entered the Tower gate and went to the apartment of the keeper. Throwing open the door, he took his mother into his arms and then embraced his sister.

"Where's father?" he asked.

"He's in the jewel room with some visitors."

"What's that?" exclaimed the young man, hearing a cry, and, without waiting to say more to his mother and sister, ran to the jewel room. Just before he passed in the visitors passed out. The young man found his father on the floor covered with blood, bound and gagged, but able to make a guttural sound. Pointing to the door, his son understood what he meant, and, running after the thieves, shouted to the guard to stop them. They were all taken and the regalia found on them.

"It was a bold attempt," said Blood, "but it was for a crown."

It would seem that there was nothing more to our story but to mention the hanging of Colonel Blood and his assistants at Tyburn. But the close, though not exciting, is the most remarkable chapter of all. Blood refused to plead except to the king privately. He managed to secure an interview with Charles II. and then made statements that changed the situation.

Charles had in his childhood become a wanderer in foreign lands. His father had died at the block. After many privations he had been recalled to the throne of England. His object was to pacify the various factions and cement them that he might have a peaceful reign. Under these circumstances it was natural that a desperado like Blood should affect him. He had been on both sides during the parliamentary war, at one time having joined the "fifth monarchy men." He convinced the king that his death—if he was executed—would be avenged by hundreds of his associates.

Another influence doubtless prevailed. Charles was an immoral man himself and admired any villain who was brave as well as wicked.

By hanging Blood Charles could have got rid of him, but even in his power so desperate a man was to be feared. The king pardoned him, restored his confiscated estates, and he was often thereafter seen in the presence chamber.

Thousands of men and women are suffering from weak, lame and aching backs, and many of them unable to do any work for the pain.

Backache is kidney ache, and there's serious trouble ahead for you if you neglect it.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure every form of backache by curing the sick kidneys that cause it.

Mrs. Jack Mason, Springhill, N.B., writes:—"I have been suffering from backache for a very long time. I tried everything and did everything, but still it would suffer. Child Had Bronchitis

Once people get acquainted with the wonderful control which Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine exerts over bronchitis, whooping cough, croup and colds it is not easy to persuade them that anything else is "just as good." This is why the imitators never get very far.

In 1902 Mrs. Eugene Iler, King street, Truro, N.S., wrote as follows: From an infant one of my children was troubled with bronchitis, and the least cold would aggravate the trouble. We could not get anything to help her, and were often greatly alarmed. Hearing of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine as a treatment for bronchitis, we used it, and are glad to state that it effected a complete cure. If any of the children take a cold or cough I give this medicine, and have never known it to fail to bring relief."

Mrs. Iler now writes that she has since proved this medicine to be a cure for whooping cough, and would not be without it in the house.

HUMAN FREAKS PUZZLE DOCTORS

English Boy Writes Upside Down—German Lad Sees Well Only in the Dark

Doctors were recently much interested in the case of Eddie Burn, a five-year-old school boy of Chester-le-Street, Durham, England. The lad has one of the most wonderful pairs of eyes ever set in a human head. While writing he not only unwittingly reverses his letters, but writes from right to left, and as a result his work appears as ordinary handwriting would be reflected by a mirror. It is thought that some defect in the nerve centres prevents young Burn's brain from carrying out its proper task. In persons of normal vision objects are reflected on the retina (the membranes at the back of the eye) upside down, but the brain translates the vision right side up. In the case of Burn the brain refuses to reverse the vision.

During recent years several children have been discovered who possess peculiar eyes. Lionel Brett, of Massachusetts, and a young girl of Narbonne were both found by oculists to have eyes which were capable of penetrating substances in the same fashion as the X-rays, while a German lad named Schaefer, although he was practically blind in the daytime, had wonderful keenness of sight in the darkness of the night and could pick up pins from the floor of a pitch-dark room.

It was after the Christmas holidays, and the teacher was reading an appropriate story to her class of children. She paused. "Now, children," she asked, "who has ever seen a turkey gobbler?" There was a thoughtful silence. Then a little girl in the third row of seats raised her hand. "Well, Mary?" Red with embarrassment, Mary stammered: "My brother Willie."

Madero's Memory Kept Green.

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 23.—There was evidence at the French cemetery yesterday that reverence still has a place in the minds of many for Francisco Madero. This was the anniversary of his death, and his tomb was visited by hundreds of persons, for the most part women of the better class, who decorated his tomb with flowers and bunting, surmounting all with a small statue emblematic of liberty — the figure of a woman wearing a liberty cap and red sash.

A DISPUTE OVER BOY'S IDENTITY IN THE COURTS

OPELOUSAS, La., Feb. 21. — A case of disputed identity that has kept whole sections of Louisiana and Mississippi in more or less of a turmoil for the past two years, is likely to be solved here within the next two weeks when a jury of St. Landry parish will pass on the guilt of W. C. Walters, who is to be tried on the charge of having kidnapped five-year-old Robert Dunbar.

The Dunbar child disappeared from his home here on August 23, 1912. Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Dunbar, the parents of the child, believed that he might have been drowned in a near-by lake. A careful dragging of the lake, however, failed to disclose the body. In the following April Walters was arrested at Foxworth, Miss., and a child supposed to be Robert Dunbar taken from him. As eight months had passed the boy himself had no recollection of his former home. Walters declared the boy was the illegitimate child of his brother and had accompanied him from North Carolina on a waggon trip, on which Walters plied his trade as a tinker.

At this stage of the proceedings matters were complicated by the fact that Walters furnished proof that he had left North Carolina with a boy of practically the same age as the Dunbar child. Julia Anderson, the mother of the North Carolina lad, was brought to Louisiana. She swore first that the boy was not her son. Later she became convinced that he was. Mrs. Dunbar likewise was not certain in her first identity of the boy. The next day she was convinced that it was he. The child was brought back to Opelousas and has been living with the Dunbars since.

Soon after the arrest of Walters public opinion in the case became divided into two camps. Mississippians as a rule took Walters' side, and Louisianians sided with the Dunbars. Walters is without funds and his case has been championed by people in Mississippi who believe his story. Extradition papers were issued for the accused man only after a special commission investigate the case and after a long fight in the courts.

CONSUL-GENERAL DEAD.

Count de Passek Represented Russ in Canada.

Count de Passek, who was 64 years old, was appointed in February last year.

Fourteen years ago the count entered the service of the Czar, was appointed consul-general in Australia, where he remained two years, afterwards going to Persia. He was the first man to make a complete map of modern Persia, for which he was decorated by the Shah and made a member of the Persian Academy.

The act went into effect Jan. 13, 1913. Mr. Mercer received the additional prize of £1 a few days ago.

Train Is Derailed.

OTTAWA, Feb. 23.—The G. T. R. passenger train due in Ottawa at 7.13 Saturday evening jumped the track about four miles east of South Indian, Ont., thirty miles east of here, at 6.45 p.m., but no one of the 40 passengers and members of the train crew were injured beyond a slight shaking up. The spreading of a rail is said to have been the cause of the accident. All the four passenger coaches, baggage car and tender left the rails, the engine being the only part of the train remaining on.

Passengers state that the presence of mind of Engineer J. Kickley of Montreal is responsible for the preventing of a disaster, as he was able to stop his train in a short distance and prevent the coaches turning over.

FRAIL, SICKLY CHILD

Restored To Health By Vinol — A Letter to Mothers.

Anxious mothers often wonder why their children are so pale, thin and nervous and have so little appetite. For the benefit of such mothers in this vicinity we publish the following:

Mrs. M. L. Cassady, of Thomasville, Ga., says: "My little daughter was anaemic, delicate and nervous, she had no appetite and seemed listless. We could not seem to find anything that would help her until we were advised to give her Vinol. Inside of two weeks after taking it she showed a marked improvement, both in appetite, vim and looks. I continued giving it to her and words fail to express my gratitude for what Vinol has done for her."

This child's recovery was due to the combined action of the medicinal elements extracted from cods' livers, —combined with the blood making and strength creating properties of tonic iron contained in Vinol.

Vinol will build up and strengthen delicate children, old people, and the weak, run-down and debilitated. We return the money in every case where it fails. McDermid & Jury, druggists, corner George and Charlotte Streets; also Payne's drug store, corner George and Simcoe Streets.

NEUWIED, Germany, Feb. 23.—Prince William of Wied entered the ranks of European sovereigns yesterday, when he formally accepted the throne of Albania, tendered to him by Essad Pasha, at the head of a deputation of Albanian notables.

Essad Pasha, who defended Scutari for the Turks against the Montenegrins during the Balkan war, and the other delegates, saluted Prince William as "King" and "Your Majesty," although the European powers had contemplated according him only the title of prince.

A member of the Albanian deputation had brought with him a casket containing sand, earth and water from Albania, which Prince William accepted as a symbol of his new sovereignty.

Responsibility For Escape.

WINNIPEG, Feb. 23.—Chief Justice Mather Saturday afternoon made public the report of his investigation into the circumstances surrounding the escape of Jack Krafchenko, awaiting trial for murder, from the custody of the city police. He finds no blame can be attached to any member of the police force, with the exception of former Constable Reid, now serving a penitentiary term, and Constable Emmonds, who, he says, knew Reid was negotiating with Krafchenko to employ Percy Hagel as counsel, and should have reported this matter.

French Miners Strike.

PARIS, Feb. 23.—The miners of St. Etienne and several of the larger central and southern collieries have called a general strike for to-day, as the result of the elimination by the Senate of several of the clauses of the underground workers' pension bill. In the north, however, the miners are opposed to the strike and have refused to take part in it.

The Government is despatching large reinforcements of troops and gendarmes to St. Etienne and other affected points to prevent disturbances.

Sage And Sulphur Darkens Gray Hair

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Restore Colour, Gloss and Thickness

Hair that loses its colour and lustre or when it fades, turns grey, dull and lifeless, is caused by a lack of sulphur in the hair. Our grandmother made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep her locks dark and beautiful, and thousands of women and men who value that even colour, that beautiful dark shade of hair which is so attractive, use only this old-time recipe.

Nowadays we get this famous mixture by asking at any drug store for a 50 cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," which darkens the hair so naturally, so evenly, that nobody can possibly tell it has been applied. Besides, it takes off dandruff, stops scalp itching and falling hair. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also brings back the gloss and lustre and gives it an appearance of abundance.

CITY COUNCIL ENDORSE THE SITE IN SOUTH END FOR PUBLIC BUILDINGS

Special Meeting Was Held on Saturday Evening—The Consensus or Congestion of Opinion Was in Favour of the New Location for Customs House and Post Office

PETITION RETURNED

The site selected at the corner of George and Sherbrooke Streets for the proposed new Government buildings, has been endrosed by the City Council. A meeting for the purpose of dealing with the imposed responsibility was held on Saturday evening, when after considerable discussion, pro and con, the site recommended by the departmental agent of the government was accepted. The vote stood eight to three in favour of the new location for the combined Post Office, Customs House and Trent Valley Canal offices.

The entire City Council, comprising the following members, was present: His Worship Mayor Buller, Aldermen McIntyre, Anderson, Langford, Johnston, Green, Duffus, Gordon, Stratton, Duncan and Saunders. There was also present a large representation of citizens, the majority of whom were there to strengthen the hands of the Council in their support of the south-end site.

Negative Representations.

There was a few dissenting voices, principally from East City, but they were given scant consideration. In fact one member of the deputation, that favoured the new site, wanted to know why the oppositionists should be heard at all, for the reason that they did not respond when the Mayor invited them to lead the discussion. Ald. Gordon informed the inquiring member that the discussion was not closed, and that any person in the hall was at liberty to express his views respecting the question before the Council.

It was nearly eight-thirty when His Worship Mayor Buller climbed aboard the vehicle of February oratory, and with a vigorous and frequent sweeps of his right arm, proclaimed his preference for the south end site. He made repeated reference to "the City's interests" and the long suffering ratepayer, sandwiching in the workingman in a manner that must have made the plain stone mason with the dust on his neck, turn over in his sleep. He also aroused the ire of several of the Aldermen, one of whom demanded to know if he were making insinuations.

Petition Came Back.

One result of the meeting was the disclosure of the fact that a petition, signed by a large number of ratepayers and others, and opposing the removal of the post office, had been returned from Ottawa. It bore the endorsation of Mr. J. H. Burnham, Federal member for West Peterborough, and was simply enclosed in an envelope, minus any accompanying explanation. Mayor Buller upon being asked if the petition was ever presented at Ottawa, replied that he did not know, for the reason that he was not in the Capitol city when the petition was received.

A letter was read from F. Bartlett, suggesting that the block bounded by Queen, Water, Hunter and Simcoe Streets be selected as a site for Government buildings. The north end of the block to be used for Federal buildings and the south end for the civic stone pile.

Several communications were also received, favouring the south end site for the erection of a Customs House and Post Office.

The Deputations.

There was a manifest feeling of expectancy when Mr. J. J. Turner, Jr., introduced Mr. E. L. Goodwill, representative for the deputation favouring the south end site. Mr. Turner remarked that he was delighted to learn that the Hon. Robert Rogers, Minister of Public Works, had seen fit to authorize an expenditure of fifty thousand dollars for new public buildings in Peterborough.

Mr. Goodwill displayed a petition that almost took the breath from the East City deputation. It contained the names of nearly all of the leading manufacturers in the South end of the City, including the Quaker Oats Company. It was also signed by the Peterborough Fuel and Cartage Company. Mr. Goodwill submitted that the petition crystalised the sentiment of the citizens as to where the new public buildings should go. The present public buildings had outlived their usefulness and the occasion was now opportune for new public buildings of a character that would be in keeping with the present status of the City. In conclusion, Mr. Goodwill urged the Council to accept the site, in support of which he read a number of letters from people who were in favour of the new location, some of whom had withdrawn their names from the petition that was dispatched to Ottawa.

Mr. J. Worth of the Bonner-Worth Company, concurred with the previous speaker. He implied that the persons opposed to the south end site were merely looking after number one, and that the best interests of the community would be served by placing the buildings in the south end of the City. He suggested that the present post office be utilized for a City Hall.

SUDDEN DEATH OF THE REV. T. J. MANSELL, PASTOR OF CHARLOTTE STREET CHURCH

Death Resulted Within an Hour Following the Close of the Regular Evening Service—An Extended Career

HEART FAILURE

Appalling and inconceivably sadder was the death on Sunday evening of the Rev. T. J. Mansell, pastor of Charlotte Street Methodist Church. Deceased expired from heart failure, at his home 302 Reid street, within an hour after the close of the regular Sunday evening service. He had been unwell for several days previous to his death, a condition that was manifest on Sunday to many of the members of his congregation. The late Mr. Mansell had completed his duties Those who attended the evening service, and was proceeding homeward, accompanied by Mrs. Mansell. When near the house deceased slipped on the sidewalk, and it was then thought that he was suffering from the attack, which later culminated in death. Upon reaching the parsonage, Dr. F. C. Neal was summoned, and restoratives applied. These had the effect of increasing the heart action, for a brief period. When those around him were beginning to feel hopeful of recovery, deceased stretched out his arm and expired.

His Last Message.

Those who ttended the evening service at Charlotte Street Methodist Church, and heard what proved to be the pastor's last earthly message, assert that he showed marked signs of distress. He frequently placed his hand over his heart, and throughout the sermon, used the pulpit as a means of support. His condition caused his wife grave concern. At the close of the service Mrs. Mansell remarked that he was not looking so well. He replied that he was suffering from a sharp pain in the region of the heart, which he attributed to indigestion. Medical aid was summoned almost as soon as he arrived home.

Came from Brantford.

Rev. Mr. Mansell's death will occasion a wave of universal regret, and sympathy for the bereaved family. He was known from coast to coast, and his removal from this life will be a severe loss to the cause for which he so faithfully and consistently laboured. It is nearly two years since he accepted the pastorate of Charlotte Street Methodist Church, coming here from Brantford, and succeeding the Rev. G. W. Henderson, now of St. Catharines.

He was in his sixty-first year. The late Mr. Mansell entered the ministry in 1877 and as a probationer, occupied pulpits in Athens (formerly known as Farmerville, Leeds County). Aultsville, and Yarker. His first independent charge was Sutton, then West Brome, Bebee Plains, Coaticooke, Quebec City, Montreal, Brockville, Dundas, Brantford and Peterborough. He has filled the various offices of the church from time to time, and on more than one occasion has been honoured with the position of chairman of the district in which he was located. He was a member of the General Conference, and President of the Montreal Conference. He took an active interest in matters pertaining to the temperance movement, and on Saturday night, prior to his death, attended a meeting of the License Commissioners, in connection with the transfer of a liquor license. He has figured in more than one campaign in which the Scott Act constituted the issue.

Funeral Deferred.

Deceased was born in Almonte, Ontrio, and was the third son of the late Isaac Mansell. His mother's maiden name was Margaret Bingham, who is also deceased. The late Mr. Mansell received his early education at Almonte, after which he attended Victoria College, which was then located in Cobourg. In 1881 he was united in marriage to Miss Jessie Ault, daughter of the late S. W. Ault, of Moultingette, near Cornwall. The union was blessed by three children, two sons and one daughter. The latter predeceased her father during his pastorate in Brockville. The sons are Robert Dow Mansell, of Martinville, Indiana, and Charles A. Mansell, of Cincinnati, Ohio. Two brothers and two sisters also survive. The brothers are Dr. C. E. Mansell, of Vancouver, and Mr. R. J. Mansell, of Brockville. The sisters, Mrs. Rev. Dr. Whittington and Miss Mansell, both of Vancouver.

Funeral arrangements have been deferred pending the arrival of the two sons, from Indiana and Ohio.

THE WEATHER

The cold weather still continues. Sixteen below zero was notched last night, and this morning at seven o'clock it was not much higher. We have now had over two weeks of zero temperatures, with but one break.

LIFEBOAT MEN DROWN.

Crew Put Out to Bark In Distress and Three Perish.

QUEENSTOWN, Ireland, Feb. 23.—Three lifeboat men were drowned when they went out from Fethard to rescue the crew of the Norwegian bark Mexico, driven on to the rocks near the Saltee Islands, Wexford, on Friday night.

Two lifeboats had answered the distress call of the Mexico, bound from Laguna, Mexico, to Falmouth. The first to reach her was stove in, but the life-savers were able to scramble on board the wrecked Mexico, where they remained all night.

With the crew of the bark and the lifeboat men landed safely on one of the islands Saturday they found that the second lifeboat, which they had waited for all night, had sunk, and three of her crew of fourteen men had been drowned.

MINISTERS OF THE CITY EXTEND THEIR SYMPATHY

The Ministerial Association met in special session this morning when the following resolution was passed:

"Whereas, Almighty God, who doeth all things well, has removed to higher service our friend and brother, Rev. Thos. J. Mansell, we desire to expfess the great sorrow that is ours when we remember that one whose Christian character was so manifest, whose devotion to every high purpose so complete, and whose friendship was so valued, shall no longer be among us.

We extend our heartfelt sympathy to Mrs. Mansell and her family and commit them in their great sorrow to the Sufficient Comforter.

We have asked a representative of the Association on our behalf to follow the remains to their last resting place, and we assure all the bereaved that the gentle Christlike character of their beloved dead will have an abiding influence on the ministry in Peterborough."

It has been agreed by all the churches that a memorial service to the late Rev. T. J. Mansell, be held on Sunday, and where that course is not possible, special reference will be made to him.

INDIGNATION IN ENGLAND OVER MEXICO

Murder of Benton Has Aroused a Storm—Britain Looks to the United States to Act At Once

SITUATION GRAVE

Special Wire to The Examiner:

LONDON, ENG., Feb. 3.—The Galway-Quebec steamship service scheme is tied up for the present, as the provisional directors decline to subscribe more capital until more outside support is assured.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Feb. 23.—President Wilson and Secretary of State Bryan this morning admitted they considered the situation in Mexico, following the Benton murder particularly grave to-day, and such reports as they have had regarding the affair, have emphasized rather than lessened, its gravity. Although Great Britain and its newspapers are unofficially clamouring for drastic action in Mexico, Cecil Spring Rice, the British Ambassador, stated this morning that he still awaited, through the United States, a full detailed report of the Benton case. Until such a report is received, he said, Britain would take no further action in the matter. The names have been received here of several additional United State citizens and Britishers who are supposed to have been summarily executed by Villa's followers.

THE FEELING IN ENGLAND.

LONDON, Eng., Feb. 23.—Morning papers comment on the Benton incidericans would despise us were we United States and President Wilson's quiescent policy of dealing with matters there. The Times says the Americans would despise us were we capable from any consideraton of overlooking the murder of a fellow subject. Unless it is proved that Benton in some way deserved his terrible fate, the opinion in America, as well as in this country, will demand that in some way exemplary punishment be inflicted on the murderer. The Daily Mail says "there is a limit to everything, but that limit is reached when British subjects are done to death in a country where the United States has so far declined either to restore order or allow anyone else to do it".

PRESENTATION TO MR. M. TURNER

Mr. Turner, who has been connected with the drafting room for some years, was presented with a club bag and a substantial sum of money as a mark of the esteem in which he is held. The presentation was made by Mr. F. Bowness.

WAS FINED $10 ON CHARGE OF ASSAULT

Employee of the C. G. E. Works is Found Guilty of Striking the Foreman in His Department

THE MAGISTRATE'S REMARKS

At this morning's Police Court, William Jamieson, a former employee of the Canadian General Electric Co., was charged with assaulting Arthur McDowell, foreman, of the transformer assembly.

It transpired that Jamieson was told to do a certain amount of work. At the time he was on day work. He wanted to know if he was going to be paid, and with the rejoinder that the matter would be settled after the work had been completed, the foreman again told him to get about his work. This he refused to do, and was given the alternative of either doing it or receiving his discharge. The latter course was ultimately resorted to, and while McDowell turned around to make out a pass, the defendant struck him on the ear. An invitation to the middle of the floor failed to elicit a reply in the affirmative from the foreman, who said that he was not looking for trouble. The defendant then struck the complaintant on the nose, and broke his glasses. A struggle then ensued, after which Jamieson took his pass and left the premises. When McDowell saw him two days later, when he came to get his time straightened up, he then said that he was willing to pay for the glasses. Defendant saw the complainant again on the day the information was laid, and proffered the money for the glasses.

"How much was that?" asked the Court.

McDowell—"Four dollars."

His Worship—"Did you take it?"

McDowell—"I did not."

Mr. Gordon, cross-examining, asked if it was not at the direction of Mr. Patterson that the information was laid, and that if he was not satisfied if he had been refunded the money for the glasses?

The complaintant answered in the affirmative.

Another witness for the prosecution, Walter Alfred Crawley, corroborated the evidence of McDowell.

Mr. Gordon, appearing for the defendant, stated that he had no evidence to offer, and in the following terms stated his case to the court: "I have nothing further to add to the facts that lay before your Worship. It is a fact that Jamieson did strike McDowell. Jamieson has been an employee of the works for the past five or six years, and his incapability has never before been doubted. He is a man who has never appeared before the court before on any charge whatever. The feeling between him and the foreman still remains the same, and the information would never have been laid but for the interjection of Mr. Patterson. The foreman had said words to him that were rather rough, and it is only natural that a man will fly into a fit of passion. Jamieson has expressed his regrets and had offered to pay for the broken glasses, and in making your decision I would ask your Worship to consider these facts in Jamieson's favour."

Magistrate Dumble, in imposing a fine of $10 and $2.60 costs, said: "In this case McDowell is a foreman, and he has doubtless the capabilities for the position or he would not be there. This affair was a miniature 'Donnybrook Fair.' It is very necessary to preserve order and discipline in the shops, and if I were to let this case go it would very likely mean that there would be more numerous assaults in the future. The men must obey orders or get out. I mean to make this an example to the rest of the workmen in the shops, and let them see that this thing cannot go on. The evidence proves Jamieson guilty, I impose a fine of $10 and $2.60 costs."

"Are you prepared to pay" asked the court of the defendant.

"If he is not, I am," responded Mr. Gordon, who appeared for the defendant. M. L. M. Hayes appeared for the prosecution.

RADIAL RAILWAY CO. WILL EXPEND $60,000

Extensive Improvements Will Be Made to the Street Car Service—Turnouts Will Disappear

TEN MINUTE SERVICE

F. C. G. Masterman—The first bye-election necessitated by the recent changes in the British Cabinet resulted in the defeat of Mr. F. C. G. Masterman in the south-west division of Bethnal Green by the narrow margin of 24 votes. The Unionist candidate, Major Sir M. Wilson was elected. Mr. Masterman was appointed Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, to succeed C. F. Hobhouse who becomes Postmaster General.

Mr. W. H. Munro, manager of the Peterborough Radial Railway Company, waited upon the City Council on Saturday evening and announced that the Company was prepared to expend in the neighbourhood of $40,000 on improvements to the Company's lines. The new tracks that the Company will lay on George and Charlotte Streets will be responsible for a portion of this amount. The Company has made application to the Council for permission to change the curves at George and Charlotte Streets, George and Lake Streets, and Lake and Crescent Streets. The Company propose to change the curve at George and Charlotte Streets from a sixty foot radius to an eighty foot radius. Also to construct along Charlotte Street, from George Street, a section of double track for an approximate distance of five hundred feet.

A Ten Minute Service.

The above together with additional cars will facilitate the inauguration of a ten minute service throughout the entire system, instead of fifteen as at present. The Company also proposes to institute a railway station car service. That is to say, a special car will meet all passenger trains, including the midnight and early morning trains of the C.P.R. This will enable people getting in late at night to reach their homes, wherever they are conveniently located along the street car system.

Mr. Munro stated that the Company as desirous of increasing the radii of the curves so as to enable the Company to operate a freight service, which they are permitted to do, according to the terms of the agreement between the City and the Company. This will enable the Company to serve manufacturing interests that cannot be reached by the steam railways.

Arrangements will also be made to give the employees of the Canadian General Electric a service that will permit them to reach the works five minutes ahead of the starting hour. One advantage of the double track on Charlotte Street is that the turnouts at Central Park and McDonald's mill will disappear, thereby obviating the road difficulty that has existed at these places for some time past.

The Company's request to make the desired changes was referred to the Board of Works, with power to act.

The appeal was heard and the court sustained the judgment of Judge Huycke. The girl in question is now a ward of the Salvation Army.

A GOOD SPIRIT.

The substantial result of the benefit hockey match played on Saturday night in the interests of Charley Ray is a matter of congratulation; not only for the considerable fund realised, but for the good spirit shown. As is known, Charley Ray is in the best sense of the word a "sport," as his father was before him and still is. He has long been "on the fence" from a prolonged illness, as exhaustive of material as of physical resources. Both have been improved, the former through the fine spirit shown, in the action taken by Charley Ray's former associates, in sport, the "old boys" who made great personal sacrifices to join in a tribute to a comrade in distress. The originator of the idea, Mr. Pete Campbell, played on Saturday night under conditions of physical disability that made his share in the game little short of the heroic. The other old boys also contributed a large quota of self sacrifice, and altogether the occasion has developed and demonstrated the better side of sportsmanship, and giving striking evidence of a splendid spirit of loyalty to comradeship . .

A SUDDTN SUMMONS.

The sudden death of Rev. T. J. Mansell, Pastor of the Charlotte Street Methodist Church, is a great shock to his family, his flock, and the citizens generally, for in all these relations he was the embodiment of one's highest conceptions of a Christian father, Christian minister, and Christian gentleman, as robust, well poised, upstanding and dignified in character as in person and bearing. As a minister he was a good preacher and pastor, earnest about his Master's business to the exclusion of all other interests not directly bearing upon it. He was faithful unto death, for he, almost literally, died in harness," and passed directly from the battlings of the church militant to the glories of the church triumphant—ripe for the subject of his last pulpit sermon, the great judgment; and as human wisdom sees, ready and worthy of the promise: "be thou faithful unto death and I will give thee a crown of life." One can conceive no more glorious euthanasia than so quick a call from the labour of harvest to eternal rest. During his two years' residence in Peterborough Rev. Mr Mansell won goldn opinions from all sorts and conditions of men, and departing, leaves behind him footprints that may be safely followed.

A LITTLE NONSENSE NOW AND THEN.

We have all sorts of freak legislation proposed—from laws abolishing titles to laws against women wearing slit skirts — proposed laws that never will be passed, and would be of little use if they were passed. Now Senator Choquette is proposing a law to prevent newspapers printing the portarits of criminals; and the criminal code is to be amended as to make such printing a crime. It is to be admitted that sometimes this should be made a criminal offence. We see occasionally alleged portaraits of eminent men printed in nwspapers that physiognomically convert the eminent gentlemen into criminals. If the ambitious senator could pas a lw to compel pressmen to be a little more careful in the "underlaying" of "cuts," many of these caricatural monstrosities would be prevented. If the Senator's law becomes law we shall have endless complication in its application. If a newspaper prints a picture of a man arrested on suspicion of robbing a bank, British law holds a man innocent till he is proven guilty, so that a prosecution of the enterprising newspaper publisher will fail. If a newspaper prints the picture of a statesman greater complication is likely to ensue. Public opinion is sure to be divided—on party lines—as to whether he is a criminal or an angel. To the benefit of the British principle of innocence till guilt is proven, will be dded that of the modern principle, from a party point of view, that a politician is to be held as innocent even if he is proved guilty. It appears that Senator Choquette's law won't work; and ,if it did work, there's something to be said in favour of printing the pictures of criminals, real or suspect. It is a part of the Bertillon system and should be classified with thumb prints, scars etc., as an element in the arrest of a criminal. With all the sins of artistic protraiture to be laid against newspapers,there are instances where great criminals have been traced, and their arrest, conviction and punishment effected through the medium of a picture printed in a newspaper. It is doubtful if the published portraits of criminals will result in "corrupting morals," as the bill of the Senator argues it will do. The physical beauty of gentlemen of the criminal class is not likely to be an incentive to any succeptible youth to "go and be likewise." It is most likely to be a deterrent. It is strange, with so much real evil in the world, needing to be placed under the ban of the law, that serious-minded legislators should waste their time, and waste the time and money of parliament—at the rate of $1,000 a minute — in concoting freak legislation, which, on the face of it, is an insult to the most ordinary intelligence. It would be as reasonable and as practicable to propose and pass a law to prevent some persons wearing the faces which, in th workings of an inscrutable Providence, are given them, as to prohibit the printing of their pictures—abolish the faces and the pictures go—automatically. Why abolish titles by process of law? They are not only harmless, but may even be good things. When a lawyer, with more political "pull" than professional standing or ability has the title of K. C. conferred upon him, he becomes a new man, a better citizen. He has to buy a red bag and a silk gown, thus stimulating trade. He has to brush up his law, look wiser and generally adjust his life to the new dignity. Some politician perhaps of not too much merit, but with the advantage of a political "pull" is recommended for the royal accolade — commander of the Bath of Sink, or something like that. He has, perforce, to live up to his new dignity. He will strive to better his position—perhaps steal enough money in a crookedly legitimate way to maintain the dignity of the alphabetical suffix to his name. The letters at the end of his name may distract attention from a name that may not be greatly redolent of attar of roses. If Shakspere is right in declaring that there's "good in everything, a journalistic rogue's gallery, or a title, has its good points, and not enough of evil potentiality to justify adding another slab to the journalistic lumber that cumbers our statute books. Give us laws to help lessen the high cost of living, or help make assessment and taxation equitable, or lessen the evils of strong drink, and some good may be accomplished; but cease passing ponderous laws to remedy imaginary evils—loading a cannon to kill a canary, or breaking a butterfly on the wheel. But perhaps there's some justification of these freak laws — if w admit that a little nonsense now and then is relished by the wisest men, not to speak of otherwise men.

TRUE ECONOMY.

The iron and steel bridges, the low grades ,the easy curves, the solid fills that Messrs. Gutelius and Lynch-Staunton regard as wasteful are the very things that every up-to-date railway manager in America is securing on his road at a cost in the aggregate of billions of dollars. Had the ideals of the government investigators been put into practice the Transcontinental would have been utterly useless for the economical hauling of grain to the seaboard.—Brantford Expositor.

THE TRENT WATER-SHED.

A report, entitled "Trent Watershed Survey," by Dr. C. D. Howe and J. H. White, of the Faculty of Forestry, University of Toronto, with an introductory discussion by Dean Fernow, will shortly be published by the Commission of Conservation. The area investigated is one in which the conditions are typical of those prevailing over thousands of square miles of out-over lands in the Eastern provinces of Canada, and for which it is desirable to formulate a policy of reconstruction and recuperation. The Dominion Government has a special interest in this region, as the capital invested in the Trent Valley Canal system mounts to upward of $10,000,000.

The report covers farming, forest, industrial, mining, and tourist traffic conditions in the area considered. It shows that only 15,000 people inhabit the 2,100 square miles of the watershed (a decrease since 1901 of 15 per cent.), and that hardly 10 per cent. of the region has been cleared for farm purposes. The soil is altogether unsuitable for agriculture, and run-down and abandoned farms are to be found in large numbers. Nearly 200 farms were for sale for unpaid taxes in 1911 at 6 cents per acre.

Practically all the pine has been removed. The whole area has been burned over at least once. Almost one-half the area is covered with young and second-growth trees of the poplar-birch type, the result of fires.

It was found, however, that enough hardwood and wood of the poplar-birch type remains to warrant the adoption of a policy of conservation, and Dominion, Provincial or municipal ownership of the territory in question is suggested by the Commission as an initial step in that direction. Other recommendations are: the repossessing by the Province of the licensed lands which have practically ceased to produce the quantity of logs contemplated under original licenses; the imposing of restrictions on existing limit holders, tending to protect the forest growth; the appointment of a forester charged wih the surveillance of the region; the perfecting of a fire-protection organisation, building of look-out stations and watch towers, and appointment of the game-wardens as fire-wardens.—Canadian Engineer.

Locomotives Of the C. P. R.

It is not without interest to recall that Mr. L. R. Johnston, the general superintendent, of the Angus Shops, brought the first train to Vancouver over the C. P. R. in 1886. It was a historic event—the coming of the first train as attestation that the promise made by Sir John Macdonald had been implemented. The people took a holiday. The city was en fete. Bunting was flying in all directions. An archway was erected over the tracks at the C.P.R. terminals, bearing the mottoes — "Labour Omnia Vincit,' "The Orient meets the Occident"; and "Confederation accomplished."

Mr. Johnson was master mechanic at the time. Of course the train had its regular crew, but Mr. Johnson took it into the city, as a special distinction.

The engine was "374,' and was decorated for the occasion.

To-day the C.P.R. has 1,600 locomotives of the latest type.

At the time mentioned the company was in its infancy, and rather dubious as to its future.

British Columbia had joined confederation upon the distinct understanding that it would be linked to the larger Canada by a railway — a promise which Sir John Macdonald bent all his energies to implement. There is a historic significance in the entry of the first train into the Pacific province which, to-day, offers incomporative riches in timber and minerals and agriculture.

When the C.P.R. commenced operations it was customary to have freight trains haul some 25 cars of 30-ton capacity. To-day 100 cars of 50-ton capacity is the regular experience. The heaviness of the traffic demands the most powerful locomotives to haul enormous trains across a continent without breaking bulk.

The "Mikado" type is the most approved. This engine with the superheater, expresses an enormous degree of power, and staying capacity. It has solved the quest ion, to a great extent, of living profit.

When the railway companies found that they could not meet the constant demands made upon them both by the employees and the Government and make a living profit, the question of added hauling power was mooted. This led to much discussion, and, finally, to the building of new type of locomotive and freight car. Then, as a consequence of this, there had to be heavier rails. This was a serious matter, involving big outlay; but the one need not be furnished without the other; and the three today, in harmonious and complemental working, make it possible to have a margin over working expenses. Only for this there would be a sorry tale to tell of inefficiency and bankruptcy.

Talking about locomotives, the first one to be used, probably in Canada, was that which in 1836 ran between St. Johns, P.Q., and Laprairie. It used wood as fuel, and made on one memorable occasion, 20 miles an hour. There was great secrecy observed in respect to it; and it made its first trip by moonlight in the presence of only a few spectators, and over rails which were wood, with an iron sheathing on the top. This engine came from the firm of Roebrt Stephenson and Co., Newcastle-on-Tyne. This type of engine of which several were brought to Canada after this, had iron baskets or cressets hung at the front in which to burn faggots to show a light. Several of these engines lasted nearly 30 years and gave good service. The old engine on the Carillon and Grenville railway is historic. It was brought out in 1854 and was built by Messrs. Peto, Brassey, Betts and Jackson. It was a broad gauge type, and attracted amused attention by its mushroom smoke stack. It rendered good service, and is now a kind of curiosity in the neighbourhood of Grenville.

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

Peg o' My Heart

The Story of J. Hartley Manners' Remarkable Comedy, Which Is to Be Presented Here by Oliver Morosco's Metropolitan Company, Told In Narrative Form by the Author.

ON June 1, 1912, Mrs. Chichester sat in her morning room in Regal villa, Scarboro, England, facing the supreme crisis of her life.

In her hand lay an open letter; beside her stood her son and daughter, panic stricken.

The bank containing every penny her dead husband had left her had closed its doors. They were beggars. She must live on charity the rest of her life with relatives she disliked and who disliked her. Tears were streaming down her face.

Her daughter, Ethel, took the calamity calmly. She would work or teach children—anything.

Alaric, her son, was indignant. What right had any bank to close its doors—especially that particular one? It ought to be made to open them again and at least pay them what they intrusted to them. They should do this even if they did not pay any one else.

Alaric could not understand any one causing him a moment's discomfort. That was the fault of his mother's training. At school and at college he had done just as he pleased. Provided with all the money he needed, brought up with the idea that he would never have to do anything for his livelihood, he came down from his university with a slight knowledge of grammar and a tennis racket he had won as runnerup in a tournament.

These were his only assets in life.

To be suddenly confronted with beggars gave him a thrill of discomfort he never thought he could have been made to feel. Taking courage from his sister's resolve, he decides to work, too, to preserve the family fortunes.

Into the pathetic family scene came Mr. Christian Brent, a man of distinction, of breeding and of wealth. Left alone with Ethel, he tells her that the previous night he had had the final quarrel with his wife. They had not a thought in common. There was not an action of his she did not misunderstand. She had heard gossip about his attentions to Ethel and put the worst construction on it. There was only one thing to do—separate. He was at the cross roads. Ethel tells him, too, she is at the cross roads. They are ruined.

In a sudden passionate abandonment he begs her to let him take her away out of her troubles. Go with him, and when his wife sets him free he will marry her. For a moment Ethel shows she feels the temptation. Poverty to her is horrible. She almost yields.

Then another mood follows, and she refuses. He pleads.

"No, Chris; not just now," she says. "Some time, perhaps in the dead of night, something will snap in me—the slack, selfish, luxurious me—that hates to be roused into action, and the craving for adventure will come. Then I'll send for you."

"And you'll go with me?"

"I suppose so. Then heaven help you."

Just as he is about to press his cause Alaric burst into the room with a very dignified elderly gentleman whom he had found in the garden inquiring for his mother. He introduces Mr. Hawkes, a London solicitor.

Brent leaves them. Mrs. Chichester is brought down from her room, and for the second time that morning she finds herself face to face with a crisis.

The solicitor tells her that her brother, Nathaniel Kingsnorth, has recently died. In consequence of his bitterness toward his relations no one was to be informed of his death, nor was any one to wear mourning for him should they hear of it. "They wouldn't feel any sorrow, so why lie about it?" he had said.

In his will he had not left a penny to any of his near relations.

But on his bed of sickness, knowing the end was approaching, he spoke constantly of a dead sister, Angela, who married years before an improvident Irish agitator, was cut off by her family, and, after going through many conditions of misery, died three months after giving birth to a little girl.

Just before she died she wrote to Nathaniel Kingsnorth for the first time and asked him to help them. He replied, "You have made your bed—lie in it!"

The remembrance haunts the dying man. He wants to make some atonement. If that child is still alive he wishes to see her before he dies.

They make inquiries and find the child, now grown to young womanhood, is living in very poor circumstances in the city of New York.

He sends money for her passage to England with a request to her father to let her visit him.

The father consents.

Before the girl reaches England, however, Nathaniel Kingsnorth dies.

Now, in his will he directs that the sum of £1,000 a year be paid to any lady of breeding and refinement who will undertake the training of the girl in the best traditions of the Kingsnorth family.

He also directs that the training should continue to the age of twenty-one if she showed any desire to acquire the education necessary for her position, and when she reached that age she should inherit the sum of £5,000 a year.

If, in the judgment of his executor, she was not worthy of interest at the expiration of one year, then she must be returned to her father and the sum of £250 a year paid her to provide her with the necessaries of life.

Mr. Hawkes then faced Mrs. Chichester with the second shock she experienced that unlucky, fatal day.

It was Mr. Kingsnorth's wish that the first lady to be approached on the matter of training the girl should be Mrs. Chichester.

She is aghast. Ethel is indignant. Alaric is contemplative.

"I never heard of such a thing."

"Ridiculous."

"Tush and nonsense."

"Then I take it you refuse?"

"Absolutely."

The lawyer gathered up his papers to go. The family looked at each other, and the same thought struck them simultaneously.

A thousand pounds a year would save them. Mrs. Chichester decided for all their sakes she would undertake the task of training her niece.

Mr. Hawkes sent for the girl, and once again the unfortunate family are subjected to another shock. The footman shows in a poorly clad little girl barely eighteen years old, with bright red curls gleaming from under a cheap hat, a grip and a parcel under one arm and clutched tightly under the other one of the most pathetic, disreputable Irish terriers it had ever been the distinguished Chichester family's misfortune to lay eyes on.

And this was her niece.

This was the creature Nathaniel desired her to train.

But for the prospect of abject misery she would have turned the little girl out of her house.

The thought of the thousand pounds a year restrained her.

"What is your name?"

"Peg, ma'am," replied the little red headed girl.

Mrs. Chichester sent for the servant. "Take away those parcels and that dog," she said.

Peg clutched the little animal to her. "No, not Michael," she said. "You mustn't take Michael away from me. He was given to me by my father."

And so began Peg's career in London. It was a month of conflict.

She had only one bright little spot in the history of that wretched month—a friendship for an old friend of the family whom she only knows as "Jerry."

"Jerry" brought her home one night from a dance. The house was fast asleep.

Just as he was taking his leave of her he heard a footstep on the path.

Warning her to hide he turned to the window and found Christian Brent coming up the step.

"Hello, Brent!" said Jerry. "Just coming from the dance? I didn't see you there."

"No," replied Brent. "I was restless and just strolled here." He tried to pass Jerry and enter the house, but Jerry intercepted him. "Come with me to the road," he said coolly; "the house is asleep!"

They walked to the road, where Jerry saw Brent's Mercedes car waiting at the bend.

Jerry watched him go away, then walked up and down the road, watching the Chichester windows as if wondering if Peg were all safe.

Meanwhile Peg, the moment Jerry had taken Brent away, crept quietly upstairs. Just as she got to the top Ethel appeared fully dressed and carrying a small traveling bag.

She ordered Peg down into the room and demanded what she was doing there.

Peg, divining why Ethel was there, asked her interlocutor what she was doing fully dressed at that time of night.

"Were ye going away with that man? He was here a minute ago and Mr. Jerry took him away."

"Who was here?"

"Mr. Brent. Were you going away with him?"

Ethel burst with tears and poured out her own wretched story. For the first time the two girls opened their hearts to each other and mingled their tears.

Roused by a falling receptacle, Mrs. Chichester and Alaric came down into the room and found the two girls.

Peg made up her mind instantly to save Ethel. She declared that she had taken Ethel's hat and cloak and bag to the dance with Mr. Jerry.

Mrs. Chichester was furious.

Later Peg was confronted by Jerry and the family.

The footman showed in a poorly clad little girl, barely eighteen, with bright red curls gleaming from under a cheap hat—this was her niece; this was the creature Nathaniel desired her to train!

Jerry introduced himself to her as the chief executor of the late Mr. Kingsnorth's will and made her acquainted with the conditions of the will.

Peg was indignant when she learned that Mrs. Chichester was paid a thousand pounds a year for treating her so shamefully.

They all begged her to stay, until at last Ethel told her that the day she came into the house they did not have a penny. She had literally fed and housed them for the past month.

Then Jerry told the Chichesters that he happened to be also a director of their bank and that it would shortly reopen its doors and every depositor would be paid in full.

The family were immensely relieved. Now there was no occasion to house Peg any longer.

One by one they took their departure, leaving Peg alone with Jerry.

Jerry, realizing that Peg was about to pass out of his life, took the fate in his hands. He told her of his love for her and that he couldn't bear the thought of losing her.

"Will you marry me? I love you."

"Do ye?"

"I do."

"Sure, and I love you too."

No insult could separate girl and pathetic pup.

PARCEL POST DOESN'T HELP CITY FOLKS

The city housewife who has had visions of getting a nice plump pair of chickens, weighing when wrapped up, say about 10 pounds, direct from the farm, through the medium of the proposed parcels post system, will find that that method of transportation is not as cheap as it is reported to be. Rather, she will find that if the farm where the chickens have been raised is beyond a radius of 20 miles from the city, she would have to pay considerably more than if they had come by express.

Instead of being a boon, the parcels post system will probably be of very little use to effect a reduction in the cost of living.

Rates may be a little lower on the very small parcels, but the butter and eggs and poultry, the things that are needed most, will come in heavier parcels, and there will clearly be no relief from the prevailing high prices, both of food and transportation.

Careful investigation shows that the so-called parcels post scheme turns out to be rather of the nature of a "gold-brick," and the advantage to the consumer dissipates into thin air.

Over in the United States they have something like a retail system—their rates are based upon distance, and there has been a real attempt to compete with express companies at every point. This has not been done in the suggested Canadian rates, and as a result the express companies are not worrying about the matter at all.

The radical difference between the two systems is that while the first zone in Canada is 20 miles in radius, in the United States the first zone, according to the schedule at first in force, was 50 miles in width, but under the revised rates in force on Jan. 1, 1914, the same rates are applied to both the first and second zones, making it practically 100 miles in radius.

Now, if the rates in force in the United States had been adopted by the Canadian Government there would have been real competition with the express companies, who would have been forced to reduce their rates. But at all events the consumers in the towns and cities were bound to gain in the lowered cost of transportation.

Limit of 50 Pounds.

Furthermore, in the United States ther has been an endeavour by the post-office to meet the conditions. One notable revision which went into force on January 1st was that the weight of parcels within the 150-mile radius was raised to 50 pounds. This is certain to prove a great boon to the housewives, for by this means produce in considerable quantities can be cheaply brought from that distance.

Comparison of Rates.

Some idea of the way in which the proposed rates will work out, or rather, will not work out, will be found in the subjoined table, showing the cost of sending a ten-pound parcel to the places mentioned. The distance from Toronto by rail is given, the proposed Canadian rate, the express rate, and the rate which would be paid for a similar distance in the States:

RAILROADERS KILLED.

Unknown Train Robbers Shoot Two Vancouver Men.

VANCOUVER, B.C., Feb. 23.—Great excitement is felt here over the shooting of two citizens of Vancouver on a train near Bellingham, Wash., by bandits. H. R. Atkinson, one of the victims, leaves a wife and two daughters, Mrs. H. Gardiner, a widow, and Mrs. Doris Atkinson. He was 47 years of age and had been in Vancouver five years. He was born in Toronto.

Rewards Offered.

BELLINGHAM, Wash., Feb. 23.—A reward of $5,000 for each of the three robbers, dead or alive, who on Friday night held up a Great Northern passenger train at Samish, fifteen miles from here, shooting to death three passengers, was authorized on Saturday by railroad officials. Efforts to trail the bandits failed.

Winter Evenings In The Country

It is easy to plan for the summer evenings. Then the "great outdoors" calls us all and we respond by stretching on the cool, green grass, or sitting on wide verandahs, or boating, or in any form our fancy dictates after doing our duty through the heat of the day. Any form of outdoor game is welcomed and reading is a restful pleasure.

The winter evenings must very often be spent in the very rooms we have lived in all day, unless we can, on delightful moonlight nights, go sleigh-riding or in jolly loads to some entertainment or some house party. By the last, I mean the house party where neighbors may drop in at any time and be made to feel welcome; not the one where the hostess has invited a crowd and strained every nerve to serve her dainty luncheon, entertaining till the "wee, small hours," afterwards exclaiming, "It is done for this time!"

THE FAMILY "AT HOME"

Oh! the jolly winter evenings at home, the chores early finished, the tea work over, the family settled down to be "At Home" to one another; father, mother, children, the stranger within the gates, the chance visitor, gathering from day duties to the quiet rest hours before tired nature's sweet restorer, balmy sleep, claims us.

I would advise every mother to let the sewing and the darning go, doing it in the daytime, so that she may join the rest. Just after tea, let each get her or his favorite reading matter, children with their lessons, father his daily, mother with a new magazine for a quiet hour. Then comes the evening chat in which all may join. Avoid gossip, disgraceful topics, criticisms of neighbors, of the preachers, and so forth, and discuss interesting things of the day's happenings, current events, travel trips, or let one read aloud from some book that each may enjoy. Music is such a good help, and let no one say, who played before marriage, "I have forgotten all my music. I am so busy at housework, my fingers cannot find the keys." Keep up your accomplishments for your own sake, for your husband's or wife's sake, and for the pride your children will take in them.

Seriously, nowadays the birdies leave the home nest so young that we must let the everlasting housework become secondary to binding them to the home by love and thoughtfulness and the best time for this is when "Night is beginning to lower."

GENUINE HOSPITALITY

Let boys feel free to ask in boys and the girls free to invite girls. Offer some refreshments sometimes, or let the children offer it, and be genuinely hospitable. The children may serve apples, popcorn, or home-made candy, and they will gladly tidy all the dishes up if they may. Stay with them, entering into their games, keeping their confidence, for all too soon they leave, and then we may think of the things we might have done.

Girls who read this—who feel that the exercise of hospitality is not for you—can't it suggest something to you? When mother has a caller in the afternoon, what a pleasant attention and surprise it would be if you prepared two cups of tea and some wafer-like bread and butter sandwiches and presented them. When some boy friends of brother drop in, how would a dish of popcorn, or lemonade and cookies strike them? These little bits of inexpensive attention require little effort, yet are greatly appreciated and make your home stand for real hospitality.

Guessing games are enjoyed, and by watching magazines and papers one may cull a variety, and when tired exercising the brain, forte, bagatelle, parchesi, crokinole, and so forth, may offer a pleasant change. Many varieties of card games may be played which train and develop the mind and memory, as authors, nations, and others too numerous to mention. Play a straight, fair game, with no progression and no quarrelling, and learn to enjoy defeat as well as victory. If the children are taught lost heir, pedro, euchre, and so forth, at home, they get so familiar with it that they will not sneak away to questionable places to play them, for play them they will, especially if you forbid or ban it.

MUSIC, A FAVORITE PASTIME

Get new and popular songs, and have a rollicking good time with music. The old-fashioned dance may be taught to aid in graceful carriage and physical development if you wish or care to. I am sure that you will not know the Tango, so cannot teach that, even if you would. Sing, but sing softly, closing with the dear old songs we love so well.

Be courteous to your children, companionable with them, agreeable among them and their friends, and they will return measure for measure. The winter evenings will pass pleasantly, and the memory of them may save you many a heartache when your boy or girl, gone into the big world, meets temptation, and resists when thinking of home and mother or father.

Close your evenings early and close them with a reverent thankfulness to the Giver of every good gift. The body needs rest, especially the young bodies of the growing children, and the health and beauty sleep is got many hours before midnight. To my mind genuine hospitality and courteous manners to the members of your immediate family is the foundation for pleasant winter evenings in the country.

A SYNOPSIS OF SOME SUNDAY SERMONS

Stirring Address By Rev. Compton

In the Grand Opera House Yesterday Afternoon—House Was Filled

The Rev. Iucias B. Compton, the Mountaineer Evangelist, who has been conducting very successful revival services at the Bethany Tabernacle for the past two weeks, gave a most inspiring address in the Grand Opera House yesterday afternoon. The large auditorium was filled to the doors, and it being that the mass meeting had been advertised for only one day, the attendance was a sign of the popularity this talented speaker must have attained. Previous to the address a song service was held. The music was supplied by the S. A. Temple Band.

The Rev. Compton prefaced his remarks with saying that he was not there as a man of education, but came from the horny hands of daily toil, and was there as a humble servant of God.

He chose for his text a partion of the 10th chapter of St. Luke: the atory of the drodigal son, to which he referred to younger people of these days. Their object was, he said, to throw off the divine restraint and get away from God. Sin had entered the world when our forefathers had thrown off the Divine authority. It is a fact that comparatively few people stay with God from childhood, and I would like to know, he continued, the name of one person, who, in their childhood days, had chosen God, and denounced all else. Take and study history, and you will find some of the most noble men had been prodigals. If we could get the proper statistics we would find that ninety per cent. of the whole human family were sufferers, and if you want to get the solution to it, it is easily found. The trouble is that men and women have taken their portion from their father and have wasted it in riotous living, in a far country. Sin, is going away into a far country, and sin is that which gets down in the life, promotes wickedness and evil practice. The life of sin is infatuation and madness. In the United States there are 100,000 young men who are prodigals, and who never darken a Church door.

The spirit of this age is pot in harmony with the spirit of God. The spirit of the age captures young men and older men, young girls and, sometimes, older girls, who get infatuated with it.

Space will not permit a more lengthy reproduction of the address, suffice it to say that through his entire discourse the evangelist carried his listeners with him by repeating his own experiences with prodigals.

At the conclusion of the service Adjutant McElhiney sang "O Where is My Wandering Boy To-night," which formed a fitting conclusion.

Spoke On "Child Welfare"

Interesting Services in Free Methodist Church Yesterday

The three services at the Free Methodist Church, yesterday, were very interesting and successful. Rev. Mr. Olmstead's address in the afternoon, on "Child Welfare" was ably delivered and exceedingly practical. If all parents would follow the wise counsel he offered it would mark an epoch in child training that would result in a much needed improvement in the moral condition of the rising generation.

His sermon in the evening, founded on Mark 12.34: "Thou art not far from the Kingdom of God" was productive of immediate fruit. Several bowed at the altar of prayer in response to the invitation given, and earnestly sought the favour of God. Mr. Olmstead will continue the meetings each night this week. The cordial invitation to all classes to attend these services is continued.

Rev. Dr. Moore At George St.

Prominent Official of The Methodist Church Tells What is Being Done to Alleviate the Moral And Social Evils of Canada

AN ENLIGHTENING SERMON

Speaking for an hour in the George Street Methodist Church, last night, the Rev. T. Albert Moore, D.C., Secretary of Temperance and Moral Reform for the Methodist Church in Canada, delivered an inspiring sermon to a large congregation. His references to the social and moral conditions of the Dominion were interspersed with cheering and touching anecdotes of what the Methodist Church had been doing, and an optimistic forecast of what will be accomplished in the near future.

Dr. Moore asked his audience to look with him at the subject of the evening through an arch, the upright supports of which were the first two, and the top of which was the third of the following texts:

Mark 6:8: "He hath shewed thee, O man, what is good; and what doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God?"

Luke 10:27: "And he answering, said: Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength, and with al thy mind, and thy neighbour as thyself."

Romans 1:7: "To all that be in Rome, beloved of God, called to be saints. Grace to you and peace from God our Father, and the Lord Jesus Christ."

To-day, said the speaker, in opening, no one liked to be called a saint. Yet a true saint of God was an honour, a crown of glory, and a thing worth living for. In olden times saints retreated to a cave, and lived there as recluses, apart from the world. In India, a man who had committed a sin sat fourteen years before the temple with the hand that sinned held above his head, until finally the flesh and muscles and sinews of the arm had withered, and the arm become atrophied. He did this hoping to become a saint of God.

But, to be Saints we should not be inactive in our piety until our souls became atrophied. Compared to this was the Sainthood of Christ, who went about not to be ministered unto, but to minister, helping and serving all. What was needed in the community was a mutual compact to help each other.

Religion should be carried into a man's business. The meaning of religious and secular was not so definite as it was generally thought. Everything in our business should be related to our religion. Our pleasures should be influenced and identified with our religion. There were certain pleasures to enter which one must leave their religion behind. Men could not afford to enter into these pleasures. The day had departed when religion was connected only with the church building, service, Sunday clothes and hymns. Our definition of life must be broader—it must influence our whole round of life from morning till night.

The older people should take an interest in child life. The speaker thankd God for the prayer that surrounded him during his baby life, and led him on and out into bigger and better things.

The speaker made an eloquent denouncement of the person who would lead a child astray; who would teach a boy or girl the wrong thing. He told of how, when he was a youngster, a man had shown him a vile picture. "Several times since I would have given a year's salary not to have seen it," he said.

Dr. Moore spoke, too, of the work the Church was doing in keeping filthy postcards and pictures out of Canada. A large number of books of an immoral nature were also barred from Canada. All this was being done to give the boys and girls of Canada a chance to live right.

The Church had been rescuing children from filthy and immoral homes, and finding them foster homes where they could develop into upright citizens, and look forward to a life of righteousness.

In conclusion, Dr. Moore spoke of the evils of intemperance and social vice. In connection with the former he told how Lord Roberts had said that it was not the tall men, short men, fat men or lean men that emerged from the trials of the South African war with the best records. It was the total abstainers. One of the reasons this grand old general gave for the splendid showing made by the Canadian regiments was that there were, so many teetotallers among them.

Then in an earnest, eloquent, appeal to the congregation, he called upon them to rise to the suppression of the social vice, which was finding its way into the homes of rich and poor alike, and destroying the bravest of our youth and the most beautiful of our girls. He told heartrendering stories of incidents that had come directly under his vision, and of the cruelty with which girls had been forced into lives of shame. He told also of the grand work of redemption and prevention the Church was doing in connection with the white slave traffic.

At the conclusion of his sermon an offering for the Moral Reform and Temperance Department of the Church was taken up.

The choir rendered a splendid anthem without organ accompaniment, and were complimented on their singing by Dr. Moore. Miss Maysie Armstrong rendered a beautiful solo, while the offertory was being received.

THE REV. MANSELL'S LAST MESSAGE

The last message that the Rev. T. J. Mansell delivered to his congregation was an explanation of the 7th article of the Apostles' creed; "And He shall come to judge both the quick and the dead."

He read his lesson from the last chapter of the last Book in the Bible, the Revelation of St. John the Devine. He dwelt upon the future judgment which would surely come, and urged the people to be ready to face that last trial. He pointed out that the heathen, all, without exception, hold the same view upon that matter as we do, that is, that they are sure that the works of their life, good or bad, were to be accounted for after they had departed this life.

That the late Rev. Mr. Mansell was ready to face his last judgment, is a firm conviction in the minds of all, his pious and unerring life being an example that many might follow.

The Rapid Growth Of Socialism Compels Attention Of All Classes

Rev. R. Pogue Continues His Series of Sermons on Socialism

SOME OBJECTIONS

In his sermon on Socialism last night in St. Paul's Church, the Rev. R. Pogue dealt first with the rapid growth of Socialism. So rapid has been its growth in the last quarter of a century that it has compelled the attention of statesmen, economists, historians, diplomats and even kings. The most disinterested and acute minds of our time are now giving the movement their earnest and patient thought. Bismarck tried to stamp it out in Germany but persecution only resulted in its further growth. During the twelve years that it was under the ban of a special code which prohibited its societies, broke up its meetings and condemned its leaders to imprisonment the Socialist vote rose from 312,000 to 1,427,000. Its growth in France, Great Britain and the States has been steady. Rev. C. Stelzle says that "for thousands of working men Socialism has become a substitute for the Church, the idealism of the earthly propaganda taking the place of the visions and ideals of the religious faith."

What is Socialism? Mr. Morris Hillquit who may be regarded as the ablest Socilist in America, states the Socialist programme in this fashion: He says, "Concretely stated, the Socialist programme advocates a reorganisation of the existing industrial system on the basis of collective or national ownership of the social tools. It demands that the control of the machinery of wealth-creation be taken from the individual capitalist and placed in the hands of the nation, to be organized and operated for the benefit of the whole people. The programme implies radical changes in the existing industrial machinery, political structure, and social relations. The form of society which would result from such changes is usually designated in the literature of the subject as the Socialistate or the Socialist ideal. Now, there is a great deal in this programme that ought to find a sympathetic response in every truly human breast. Its underlying problem is poverty, and that is the problem of the Church and of all social reformers. It is the one thing that throughout the centuries has stood in he path of progress, and that has cast a shadow over any material prosperity tht has come to the race. No State can ever be said to be prosperous and happy while a large proportion of its citizens are constantly on the verge of starvation. Before passing criticism upon Socialism, I desire that all present who may be ardent Socialists should understand that your problem is my problem, that it is the problem of the Church and of all who are working for right and just social relations. We are all working for the ideal society. We are working for equality of opportunity for all men, for an equitable distribution of the gifts of God's bounty, and for such pure and righteous social conditions as will make life pleasant and happy for all the children of men. I have two or three objections to bring against Socialism, however.

My first objection to it is that it involves an all too serious interference with individual liberty. It means not only the suppression of the individual, but of his individuality, and this, it seems to me, is contrary to the law of nature and to the law of God. It is the privilege and duty of individuals in any society to surrender certain rights and advantages for the benefit of the society in which they live. The more highly civilized a people are the more will they be willing to surrender their personal rights in the interests of the well being of the whole community. Now I can see that a measure of Socialism might not invade the sacred rights of personality, indeed, that it might result in a richer, fuller life for the individual. But there is a point beyond which the State must not go, else she enslaves her subjects and destroys the liberty of the individual. In the Socialistic State there is a great army of officials and there is a great army of workers who must obey. The individual can only marry when he is given permission by the State and then, indeed, he cannot marry whomsoever he pleases, for in the ideal Socialistic State there will be "suitable factories for the human instruments of production of marriage," provisions for improving the breed. The weakness of Socialism is seen here, that it fails to give due consideration to the laws of human nature.

The second great objection to Socialism is that in denying competition it takes away the strongest motive power that we have for the development of the race. There is a competition which is grinding and exhausting and which is altogether unnecessary. But competition for the honours of life, for the sheer satisfaction that a man has in excelling another is absolutely indispensible as an incentive for the progress of the individual. I am dealing with a something here which is fundamental to human nature. It is a something that is seen in the home among the different members of the family, it is seen in the school and on the playground, on the field of sport, and in our college halls. Then in the world of industry some of our greatest scientific discoveries and inventions that have resulted in untold blessing to the race have been the result of the working of this law. The evolution of industry and the upward ascent of the race have been due in large measure to the ambitions which spurred men to do their utmost and their best. Now in the Socialistic State the tendency is to suppress the natural ambitions of men, it would largely paralyse the inventive faculty. The tendency," says Father Ryan, "would be to turn out old and standard kinds of goods, and the combined effect of all these restrictions would be disastrous to self-respect, self-development, social contentment and social stability."

The last objection to Socialism is a religious one. The great mass of Socialists are avowedly atheistic and materialistic. But from a Christian standpoint the fundamental thought of Socialism is wrong. It teaches that man is made for society rather than society for man. It sacrifices the individual for society, and this is fundamentally opposed to the teaching of Christ. The greatest blessing which Christianity brought to the world was the discovery of the infinite value in God's sight and hence in a man's own sight, and in the sight of society, of the individual. Then Christianity lays greater emphasis upon morality and character than material prosperity. The Kingdom of God is not leaves and fishes, is not physical ease, good tailors and French cooks, play houses and automobiles. It is righteousness, joy and peace in the Holy Ghost. It is to do justly, love mercy and walk humbly with thy God. It is to cultivate a man's inner nature and to bring every power that he possesses to the highest degree of development. It teaches that the Christian graces alone make life worth living and that their possession is more to be desired than physical ease or temporal comfort. And it teaches that it is only as men seek these and manifest the spirit of Christ can we have ideal social relations. It is the possession of these graces that create social reformers, and change for the better industrial and economic conditions, and which alone can make these changes permanent.

Co-operation Is The Secret Of Christianity

Congregation of St. John's Church Hear Timely Sermon by Rev. R. J. Brydges, M.A., of Toronto

SOCIAL REFORM

A sermon of timely interest and vigor was delivered at St. John's Church on Sunday morning, by the Rev. R. J. Brydges, M.A., of Toronto. The reverend speaker touched on the moral reform issue and its place in the individual, community, state and nation. This is a subject upon which Rev. Mr. Brydges is well qualified to speak, as he has had a wide and varied experience in matters pertaining to the social and moral reform movement. At present he is secretary of the Moral and Social Reform Department of the Church of England Diocese of Toronto.

A WONDERFUL AGE

Psalm 25:14, formed the basis of the speaker's remarks. "The secret of the Lord is with them that fear Him, and He will show them His covenant."

"This is a wonderful age," said Mr. Brydges. "More has been unfolded and brought to our knowledge and understanding than in any previous age. The secret of the Lord is with man, the community, state and nation. Love is the secret of Christianity. It is the ruling principle of the Kingdom og God, and it is going to be the ruling principle of the kingdom of the earth because the kingdom of the earth is God's kingdom. Only the other day a man spoke of Canada's opoprtunity, and it does seem as though Canada's oportunity has come. Canada is a nation in the making. There is a social awakening throughout the land as never before. The individual is experiencing a social consciousness or responsibility towards the community and the community towards the individual. They are interlocked.

CORRUPTION IS APPALLING

Referring to the recent graft exposures in both Canada and the United States, the speaker said if a man will sell his vote in one place he will sell it in another. Corruption in public life is appalling. Across the border they are sending men to prison, and they are going to send more. We in Canada are afraid to do that.

If the secret of the Lord is in our hearts, it wil determine our actions. It concerns all classes of people. The employee and employer, especially those who do not pay a living wage to which the employee is enitled. We should also hold the Unions responsible, and will say to them: "You have agreed to work so many hours, give honest work; honest not only to the employer but to God."

HOME IS SACRED.

"Keep the individual home safe and good and the nation will grow strong. You know," said Rev. Mr. Brydges, "that thousands of families are not living in homes, but in one-roomed habitations. That is not right. The home is sacred."

The speaker advocated the adoption of mothers' clubs, and a trained nurse in the public schools, both of which have already been proposed in Peterborough; also the more extended use of the public schools, making them social centres.

Continuing the speaker remarked: "There is a great deal lacking in the home which could be supplied by the schools if they were available after the regular school hours. It would be the means of keeping the boys and girls off the streets." The speaker also commented upon what is known in Toronto as the Big Brother and Big Sister movement whose object is to help the boys and the girls of the cities. "Don't let the boys and girls congregate on the streets," admonished Rev. Mr. Brydges.

The power of Christian life to-day lies in the personal touch. You will find in reading the story of the life of Christ that He frequently touched the people with whom He mingled. Work to be successful must be co-operative. A modern illustration of this is baseball. One of the great essential features of baseball is that the player sinks his individuality, and the entire team plays as one. "That," said the speaker in conclusion, "is the secret of Christianity."

LARGE DRIFTS.

The snow plough was made use of on the local train from Belleville to Peterborough on Saturday evening. The strong wind had occasioned large drifts, making it essential for the snow plough to be used. The C.P.R. trains were all about an hour late this morning.

"The Prayer Of Faith"

Views on Divine Healing Contrasted With Recent Local Pulpit Utterances

To the Editor of The Examiner:

From an editorial in the Christian Science Sentinel the following will be interesting reading to many readers searching for the truth:

"Many of the criticisms of Christian Science have been based upon the supposition that the healing work which characterized the ministry of Christ Jesus and the early Christians was simply a special gift for a limited time and a limited purpose. When Mrs. Eddy first announced her discovery to the world, the incredulity which tried to belittle her efforts, and disputed the possibility of spiritual healing in the nineteenth century, denied both the Christianity and the science of her claim that spiritual healing was not only possible, but also that it was a necessary part of Christianity. She, however, was so confident that the healing of sickness would again be recognized by all Christians as a vital part of Christian ministry that she said (Science and Health, p. 345): "As it is evident that the likeness of Spirit cannot be material, does it not follow that God cannot be in His unlikeness and work through drugs to heal the sick? When the omnipotence of God is preached and His absoluteness is set forth, Christian sermons will heal the sick."

This prediction has been acknowledged in a measure by utterance of many Christian ministers, but never more completely than by the words of several Episcopalian clergymen at the annual diocesan convention held in San Francisco a few weeks ago. We quote from th report of this convention which appeared in the San Francisco Chronicle of Jan. 30 as follows:

"Rev. Edward Morgan ,rector of St. Luke's, San Francisco, declared emphatically that he believed and knew that the church has the power of healing through prayer, and that its ministers are able to exercise that power. He cited instances where he had himself brought about recoveries through prayer, and asserted that it was the fault of the priests of the church if they did not exercise the power that belonged to them.

"Rev. Clifton Macon, rector of Trinity, Oakland, added the weight of his evidence, saying that he knew of many cases where the prayer of priests had been efficacious in healing, and that he knew his brethren could attest many more. The church, he said, has lost nothing of its healing power. Rev. E. W. Couper said afterward that the church yields nothing to Christian Science in healing ability, but because rectors are not given to advertising the fact, people have fallen away from the habit of calling them in.

"Speaking of Christian Science, the Rev. Couper's report continued: 'The demand upon the church is not imaginary; it is a real demand that we claim for ourselves and put into practice the healing power of the early church.'"

The significance of all this is that the truth of the claims which Mrs. Eddy made almost a half century ago, that "Christians are under as direct orders now, as they were then (in the Christian era), to be Christlike, to possess the Christ spirit, to follow the Christ-example, and to heal the sick as well as the sinning' (Science and Health, p. 138), is gradually being admitted. That representatives of a large and influential denomination, officially assembled, should express the advanced views reported in the Chronicle, is a very hopeful sign of the times, and these views certainly are to their credit. As followers of the Master they tacitly admit, as one of their own hymn-writers has expressed it,—

Thy touch has still its ancient power;
No word from Thee can fruitless fall.

* * *

In contrast with the above, the following statement from a recent sermon, "If Christ Came to Peterborough," is reproduced:

"The Church of Christ is in the city to change its clay into marble, its dross into gold and to chase away its sin and make it pure. Christ was in the city as a Healer. We read, "He healed them that were sick of divers diseases." We are to be in the city as He was in it. We cannot work miracles and multiply loaves and fishes to feed hungry multitudes. We cannot heal the sick."

Will some of the boys in the Sunday school find out from his teacher what is meant by the text: "Whatsoever things ye desire in prayer, believe ye receive them, and ye shall have them."

Scarcely a Costume or Gown, But What Has a Sash or Girdle of Ribbon

And Therefore of Great Interest Will Be the Host of New Ribbons Just Passed Into Stock

FOR CENTURIES BACK, Ribbons have always been considered distinctly feminine, and it is to the clever manipulation of women's fingers that they owe their present wide-spread popularity.

While with the first whispers of Spring Fashions comes the welcome news that scarcely a costume, a blouse or gown but what will be tastefully finished with some sort of sash or girdle which is to be made of ribbon.

Therefore it has been necessary for us—who cater to woman's every clothing need—to lay up a stock of the handsomest ribbons that were ever used to adorn milady's person. Take for instance:—

THE NEW SILK CREPES. With their shadowy colors upon the soft lustre of the silk, they remind one of some rare piece of exquisite tapestry. Some have a wild rose design and some are after the Bulgarian order, while the shades are Sky, Delft, Purple, Copenhagen, Cerise and Mustard. The width is 6 inches and the price 25c yard.

SIX INCH BRESDENS. There is something decidedly new, and extremely pretty, in the novel and somewhat conventional pattern in which these are shown. The bold outline of the design is beautifully contrasted by the soft tones in many shades, while the silk is a stout Taffeta six inches wide, and priced at 35c a yard.

ROMAN STRIPES AND FLORAL BRESDENS Are mingled in a handsome range of colourings in many widths, at 45c, 49c and 75c a yard.

PLAIN RIBBONS In Duchess and Taffeta, vie with the rainbow in the multitude of colors in which they can be procured. These Ribbons vary as greatly in price, as they do in width and shade.

NO NEWS OF KARLUK

Stefansson Without Authentic Information, He Says

HIS SEARCH IS FRUITLESS

DAWSON CITY, Y.T., Feb. 23.—Williams, Herbert and Jacquet, trappers from Fort Macpherson, arrived at Dawson Saturday with telegrams and mail from Vilhaljmar Stefansson, the Canadian explorer, who reached Macpherson Feb. 3, reporting he could get no authentic news of his steamer, the Karluk.

Stefansson left the steamer in September to go after caribou. A blizzard drove the vessel out to sea. Natives report seeing the Karluk in October, steaming east off Richards Island.

Dr. Anderson of the expedition is wintering at Collinson Point, 160 miles west of Richards Island, and is well provisioned.

The trappers made the trip in seventeen days, following the trail broken by the Dawson patrol, which took thirty days from Dawson to Macpherson.

On Dec. 8 last the Marine Department at Ottawa received a message from Stefansson, in which he said that the Karluk had been carried away in the ice in October while he was ashore, but he expressed the opinion that the steamer was safe. The latest news, indicating that the steamer is still missing, will increase apprehension for the safety of those aboard.

The Karluk had twenty-five men aboard.

TURK CURSES CROSS.

Watertown, Mass., Mohammedan Is Slain By Armenian Boys.

WATERTOWN, Mass., Feb. 23.—"In defence of the cross" two Armenian boys, Nishan Apraha ian, aged 16 years, and Manoog Carabedian, 17, killed Issnayel Sunlu-Ada, a Turk, on Tuesday, according to confessions which the police say they have obtained.

The body of Sunlu-Ada, who was 27 years of age, was found in a field and Saturday the father of Aprahanian notified the police that his son had admitted the crime and implicated Garabedian. When the latter was taken into custody, he told a similar story. The boys said that they had been taught in Turkey to fight for their faith, and they had taken an oath to defend the cross. Sunlu-Ada "cursed the cross," and, believing it their duty to kill him, they stabbed him to death.

GREAT BRITAIN WAITS FOR THE REPORT

Rebel Mexican Leader Declares That the British Rancher Made an Attack on Him and Was Executed on That Account—Opinion of British Press is Agreed on U. S. Duty to Protect the British Subjects in Mexico

VILLA SENDS EXPLANATION

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23. — President Wilson and Secretary Bryan conferred briefly late yesterday on various phases of the Mexican situation. No announcements were made after the conference, but it is understood a complete report on the execution at Juarez of William S. Benton, the British subject, is awaited before the view of this Government toward the incident is made known.

Upon the truth or falsity of Villa's statement that Benton tried to kill him will depend the view which both Great Britain and the United States will take of the affair. The prevalent belief in officials circles is that in the absence of any satisfactory evidence to the contrary, it will be difficult for this Government, at least, to reject Villa's version. To do so without satisfactory proof to the contrary it is pointed out by some officials, would be unnecessarily to provoke unfriendly relations with the constitutionalist chief, who, in control of such a vast territory adjacent to the United States, and wherein are many foreigners about whose protection the United States is solicitous.

Secretary Bryan has ordered a far-reaching investigation of the killing of Benton. He announced that until all facts in the case had been gathered from all available sources, no opinion would be expressed by the State Department. All information received will be transmitted to the British Government.

Advices received by the State Department up to late yesterday, giving Villa's version of the affair, were that Benton was armed; had personally quarrelled with Villa, had been disarmed, tried by court-martial and executed on the charge of attempting the life of Villa.

Unless there are other instructions from the Foreign Office, the British embassy here will make no further move in this matter pending the outcome of the investigation which the State Department has undertaken.

U. S. Must Protect Britons.

LONDON, Feb. 23.—The London morning papers show no disposition to take hasty or extreme views on the execution by Gen. Francisco Villa at Juarez of William S. Benton, a British subject, but are in full agreement on the point that Great Britain looks to the United States Government for the protection of her subjects in Mexico.

The Daily Telegraph calls for suspension of judgment, pending the result of the investigation, which the Washington Government has ordered.

The Times in an editorial similarly counsels the suspension of judgment pending the American enquiry.

The Daily Graphic contends that the United States is responsible for Villa's good conduct, but that if it refuses to intervene to secure satisfaction, President Wilson must not complain if in self-defence, Great Britain and possibly other aggrieved powers, take their own measures for the protection of their large interests in Mexico.

The Standard deprecates magnifying the incident into a grave international question. It has no doubt that the United States will take proper steps, and says that in any case the rebels in arms cannot plead the exigencies of martial law as an excuse for the murderous outrage.

The Daily Mail in an editorial says: "How long, we may ask, does the President of the United States propose to allow Mexico to flounder in her present morass of anarchy."

The Morning Post devotes a long editorial to attacking President Wilson's waiting policy and his refusal to recognize Huerta.

The Daily Express takes a similar line. It declares that the Monroe doctrine becomes "a grotesque and intolerable fiction" if it means that the United States cannot, or will not, protect persons pursuing their lawful affairs, and that other Governments are free from protecting their own subjects.

Lady Will Show.

EL PASO, Texas, Feb. 23.—Richard M. Dudley telegraphed Senator Fall yesterday asking him to take measures to obtain immediate delivery of the body of Benton to the widow on this side of the river. Mr. Dudley explained that he believed a view of the body would go far to explain the manner of the Scotchman's death.

Looking For Americans.

EL PASO, Texas, Feb. 23.—In a telegram received yesterday by the U. S. consul at Juarez, Thomas D. Edwards, Gen. Villa suggests that the Americans reported missing in Mexico may be included in a batch of American recruits which he says he has rejected and will send back to Juarez by the first troop train.

Villa's telegram says there are fifteen of the Americans who wished to join his forces, but whom he found unavailable. At present search is being made for Roger Laurence, an Englishman who came here recently to visit Wm. S. Benton; who was killed by the rebels last Tuesday; Harry Compton, of Oakland, Cal.; a New Mexico ranchman by the name of Curtis, said to have joined Laurence in the search for Benton, and Gustav Hauch, of New York, reported to have been taken to Chihuahua for further investigation on the charge of being a spy.

NAT. C. GOODWIN

Booked For the Grand Next Friday, February 27

Mr. Nat. C. Goodwin, who has not yet been seen in Peterborough, will make his first appearance at the Grand for on night only, next Friday, Feb. 27.

For this occasion Mr. Goodwin will be seen in "Never Say Die," a farcical comedy with a big reputation, by Wm. H. Post, and we have every reason to believe it comes honestly by its advance praises, inasmuch as it has had a season's run in New York, and is now ending its first year of prosperity at the Apollo Theatre, London; and still running; and to have made England laugh for that length of time, speaks volumes.

To any character that Mr. Goodwin devotes his time he adds his perfect power; he gives piquant humour and intense interest to his performance, always by the most convincing methods and the effect is delightful and graciously witty.

In "Never Say Die" the author provides Mr. Goodwin with his best opportunities to display that proficiency which never fails to captivate.

Dionysious Woodbury is the title role and, as the story goes, he is a millionaire bachelor to whom celebrated physicians have allotted only a few more weeks to live; so, being theoretically dead, with this immense fortune to dispose of, "Di" unwittingly becomes involved in a maze of entanglements, not the least being a marriage to his fried's fiancee, intended only to circumvent England's technical laws governing large inheritance; his failure to die and the ensuing farago furnishes the keenest merriment heretofore incorporated in a comedy of this nature.

In mentioning Miss Margaret Moreland, the leading lady, it seems only natural that one should dwell a moment upon the sheer beauty of body and spirit of this gifted actress; for it is as compellant and as satisfying to the beholder as even the most discriminating could exact.

Among the other important members of this specially selected company are Dennis Cleu, Isador Marcil, Clifford Robertson, Luke Vrohman, Walter Cluxton, Charlotte Lambert, Gladys Wilson and Dan Moyles.

It is a natural conclusion that Mr. Goodwin will have every requisite of a first class stage production.

Band at Brock St. Rink, to-morrow, Tuesday night. Good ice.

A Letter Of Appreciation

To the C. G. E. Benefit Club and others—

I should like to wish all the friends who so kindly assisted me, three years ago, a happy New Year. I have completely recovered my health and my only reason for not writing before was for fear that I should be speaking too soon. I have always felt grateful for the way in which I was treated, both by the men and also the late Dr. Marshall, and I wish the Club and its members every success. If this letter can help the Club in any way, by bringing new members into it, then I shall be pleased Once more wishing you all a happy New Year, I remains yours sincerely.

LAST YEAR'S WORK WAS SUCCESSFUL

The work of the Home Re-union Association has, according to a member of the committee, been very successful.

The society has not this year proffered any help to people in the old country, owing to the slackness of labour conditions, as they are now presented in this City.

The work will probably commence the middle of next month, when it is hoped that conditions will have improved, and make more favourable the work that the society wish to conduct.

The society has been the means of re-uniting many families, who were once divided by the ocean, and their kind work is appreciated on every side.

JUDGMENT WAS RESERVED

The case in which a local woman is suing her husband for maintenance, was again aired in court this morning, from the adjournment of two weeks ago. More evidence was offered by the prosecution, and the Magistrate reserved judgment for one wek.

The case was formerly adjourned for the purpose of some arrangements being made between the parties concerned, which did not materialize.

A RUNAWAY THIS MORNING

A runaway this morning on Hunter Street about 9.20 caused considerable excitement for a few minutes. A horse attached to a cutter, belonging to a local man who was the occupant, started from the corner of Aylmer and Hunter Streets and made a wild dasht for liberty. Its course was impeded at the juncture of Water and Hunter Streets, as, when endeavouring to navigate the corner, a tree formed a timely obstacle to the escapade. The result: A collision. The rig was badly smashed, but luckily no one was injured.

ILLEGAL FISHERMEN ARE SAID TO HAVE IT OVER THE INSPECTORS

This is not the brand of weather that encourages fishing, but for all that the local inspectors have been doing some gum-shoe work of late that has for the time being interrupted the proceedings of those who break the law respecting fishing out of season. The average citizens might be surprised to learn that a shipment of 200 pounds of yellow bass is not he most unusual package received by certain parties. Right in mid-winter, it is stated, has the law been broken, and apparently rumours of what has been going on reached the inspectors, for Mr. John Watt and Capt. R. Carson are reported to have exercised considerable vigilance last week with the result that operations were temporarily put a stop to. And while there is illegal fishing, there is also illegal shooting. The closed season for rabbits is not highly respected by certain marksmen, who are said to have helped themselves as freely as if species in-

TO BECOME WARDS OF THE C.A.S.

By consent, three children of Alfred Emery were this morning delivered as wards of the Children Aid Society. As was explained by Mr. Goodwill, who was acting in the interests of the Society, the man has had some hard luck. He had a family of six children, ranging in years from 5 to 10, and his wife had died a short time ago. Three if the children he was sending to his mother in Norwood.

As all parties were willing to the agreement, the order was duly signed.

WISH TO COME TO CANADA

An Application from a Distress Committee, London, England.

Mr. F. W. Miller, the local immigration officer, has received a communication from the East Ham Distress committee, in London, Eng., asking him to place a matter of 24 married men with families, and five single men. The ages of the persons wishing to come to this country range from 22 to 48. Mr. Miller is thoroughly conversant with the part of the country from which these men would come, and can say with confidence that not one of them has ever worked on a farm for a day in his life, and it would be absolutely useless for them to come to this country, as they would, in all probability, become a burden to the municipality. These are the class of people that it is advisable to keep out of the country, and, acting in accordance with his views, Mr. Miller will reply to the effect that he will be unable to find the married persons situations, but that he could place the young men. Mr. Miller received an application from the same source last year, the number of married families at that time being 35 instead of 24 this year.

FIRE DEPARTMENT RENDERED SERVICE

At 10.42 on Saturday evening the Fire Department received a call to a chimney fire at the Montreal House, at the corner of Aylmer and King Streets. The firemen were forty minutes before they felt safe in leaving the premises, as the fire was a dangerous one. The damage, however, did not amount to very much.

Another call to a chimney fire at 433 Stewart Street, was received at 11.15 on Sunday morning. The fire was soon extinguished and no damage done.

BREACH OF PROMISE CASE IN BRIDGENORTH DREW A BIG CROWD

A breach of promise case involving a claim for $10,000 for blighted hopes and affections was heard on Thursday evening in Bridgenorth in the basement of the Methodist Church, attracting an unusually large number of the residents of the surrounding country. Before going any further it might be said that it was an entertainment given by the young men of the village, and they certainly aquitted themselves well. Mary Roe, of Buckhorn, claimed that John Doe, a real estate agent in Bridgenorth, had promised to marry her, and then had jilted her. The parts were taken by the following:

Judge—Rev. Mr. Ireland.
Plaintiff—Mary Roe—J. A. Jobe.
Defendant—John Doe—Harry Jopling.
Counsel for plaintiff—O'Connell and Corkery—Noble Kelly and Fred Jopling.
Counsel for defendant—Peck and Kerr—Dr. Burrit Kelly and Jas. Jopling.
Court Crier—P. T. Udy.
Foreman of Jury—Clayton Telford.

Andy Jobe in the role of a woman scorned, was immense. His gown was along the lines of the latest ideas and was quite the breeziest costume seen in Bridgenorth since last year's bathing days. It was given to much open work, and was quite a frisky outfit. Noble Kelly in his appeal to the jury was several Dan O'Connells reduced to one with a little Burke and Chatham added. The other lawyers were quite efficient. The jury awarded $4,999.99½ to the plaintiff.

JOSEPH FELS PASSES.

He Was a Noted Single-Taxer and Social Reformer.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 23. — Joseph Fels, millionaire soap manufacturer, single tax advocate and philanthropist, died at his home here yesterday from pneumonia, after a brief illness. He was sixty-one years of age.

Mr. Fels spent most of his time advocating the doctrine of the single tax in both this country and Great Britain. He recently returned from England, where he had given a large part of his fortune to the creation and maintenance of a single tax co-operative colony near London.

Employes of his firm in this city benefit by a profit-sharing system inaugurated by Mr. Fels.

Although he early became an advocate of Henry George's ideas, it was not until he went to live in England, about eight years ago, as the English representative of his firm, that Mr. Fels began to devote almost all his time, money and energy to the cause of single tax. Not only was he a leader in the cause in this country and England, but he was a large contributor to funds for the single tax campaigns in Canada, New Zealand, Australia, Denmark, Germany, France and Spain, matching dollar for dollar that spent for the cause.

Mr. Fels had visited Canada as a speaker in the tax reform movement. Some time ago he attracted considerable notice by a call on Sir James Whitney. He presented the Premier with a copy of Henry George's book, and subsequently gave an interview describing the conversation.

And then the "plain wedding circle" is slipped over her finger, and the clergyman says, "I now pronounce you."

"Plainness," however, is not so characteristic of wedding rings as it once was. We have the 10, 14, 18 and 22 karat plain gold bands, costing $3.50 to $10.00.

Aside from this, wedding rings vary extensively in width, and other details, giving our display a greater variety than you would think probable.

Macbeth Was Subject Of a Fine Lecture

Rev. Father Fitzpatrick Spoke to Ladies' Literary Society of St. Peter's T.A.S.—Entertaining Musical Programme

TREATMENT OF SUBJECT

The Ladies' Literary Society of St Peter's T.A.S. had a most successful meeting on Friday evening last, when Rev. Father Fitzpatrick, of Ennismore, gave an interesting lecture on 'Macbeth.' The hall was filled with an appreciative audience.

The musical programme, which was particularly good, was as follows:

Instrumental solo— Miss Margaret McDonald.
Vocal solo—Mr. A. New.
Vocal solo—Miss Mabel Mahoney.
Vocal solo—Mr. Ed. Hanrahan.

Miss Marion Gorman kindly played all accompaniments in her usual efficient manner.

Rev. Father Fitzpatrick opened his lecture with a brief synopsis of the play itself, quoting a learned German authority, who stated that 'Macbeth' is the greatest conception of the human mind in the line of drama, and will reward the earnest student who reads it over and over again with ever-renewed appreciation of its beauty. England may be surpassed in many things, but she stands pre-eminent as the birthplace of the greatest writer of drama that the world has ever seen, and 'Macbeth' is his masterpiece. For depth of thought, 'Hamlet' is considered by many to be his greatest work. For free, bold, historic perfection, 'Julius Caesar' may come first and for richness of characterization, 'Othello' stands pre-eminent, but for simple force of narrative, 'Macbeth' rises above them all. In the transparency of its plan, for in the first scene of the first act, one may see what is coming later. In the bold sweep of its language, in its unity of thought and action, 'Macbeth' surpasses. A drama, to merit the term of 'great,' must consist of a single idea, developed completely and in every part, all through. The play critics have said that this play should have been styled 'Lady Macbeth,' on account of her especial prominence, but the speaker asserted that she merely helped to reveal the character of Macbeth himself, that character around which the play revolves. Through the whole drama, unity of thought is manifested in the vivid portrayal of the overmastery of a noble nature by a mysterious, inexplicable temptation, the rise of Macbeth, and then the sudden fall. The atmosphere of the opening scene is continued throughout the entire play, the gloomy, uncanny atmosphere of the blood-stained heath seeming to pervade it from beginning to end. In another way, the play is perfectly symmetrical, for each act has a definite plot. The first portrays the temptation, the second the murder of Duncan; the third, the murder of Banquo; the fourth, the murder of Macduff's wife and children, and the fifth the just and sure retribution which follows on this series of crimes, a retribution pictured in two forms, coming to Macbeth himself by means of external forces when the English overpower him in his own palace, and to Lady Macbeth in a different manner, the overthrow of her reason, leading to suicide. In the play, there are three sources constantly urging Macbeth on to his own final destruction: Firstly, his own vaulting ambition, that overleaps itself, and the murderous inclination that was there from the very beginning. Secondly, the prophecies of the witches; and thirdly, the forceful and inspiring eloquence of his own wife. It is not until the third act that the turning point in his blood-stained career is apparent. Up to then, success is his, but defeat begins with the escape of Banquo's son, after his father's murder.

There is a great difference in the characters of the two principals, Macbeth and his wife. He was, physically, a brave man and a valorous soldier, but a moral coward who required the constant prompting of a mind subtler than his own, to put into execution the murderous designs that had been lurking in his own mind for so long. He was extraordinarily selfish, inordinately ambition, and utterly devoid of self control, wildly superstitious, wavering and aftering with a mind poisoned by long-meditated guilt. Lady Macbeth, however, although cruel and unscrupulous, was not the monster she is often represented as but a woman with a woman's heart, and a nature of a nobler order than her husband. It is her eloquence that forces him on, but it is because of a strong love for him, and an ambition that she shall be King of Scotland. While his unbounded selfishness is so strongly marked that even when he is told of her death by her own hand, he simply consoles himself with some fatalistic platitude to the effect that 'she would have died hereafter, anyway.' Her unbounded love for him, her unbounded ambition, and her unbounded will power, all combine terribly to drive her on with such tenacity of purpose, almost to the point of committing the murder herself, but she has to resort to stimulants later on, and when she hears of the murder of the grooms, she faints. On her lies the task, before the crime, of removing all scruples and resistance from the mind of Macbeth, then to get him to do the murder and remove the fear that remains afterward. This idea of fear seems to run through the whole play. Macbeth is afraid before he commits the murder, and afterwards his fear drive him on to commit crime after crime to try and cover up the initial sin. After the deed is done, she is compelled constantly to protect him, to stay him from the impulses of his own cowardly heart, continually prompting him to confess all. She exhibits in her own sad end, the vindication of the moral order which stands above all human destiny, and the inevitable retribution that follows on sin. Left to a solitary contemplation of the wrong she had done and the sins she had made her husband commit, she goes insane, striving vainly to wipe from her hands the stains of the old man's blood.

Father Fitzpatrick then dissected the play act by act, quoting here and there, and bringing out his points in a most striking manner.

The chairlady, Miss Mamie McCarthy, then thanked the reverent speaker in the name of the Society, for the exceptional treat afford at this meeting, and the reverend gentlemen on the platform, Rev. Dean McColl, Father Galvin and Father Meagher, spoke briefly in turn.

LEADERS HONOURED

Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Sir Lomer Gouin at Club Opening.

MONTREAL, Feb. 23.—The opening of new quarters of the Montreal Reform Association on Saturday night was the occasion of speeches by Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Sir Lomer Gouin, Premier of Quebec.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier declared that he proposed to keep on fighting and expressed the belief that if the people had a chance to mark their ballots now they would reverse the verdict of September, 1911. He paid a high compliment to Sir Lomer for his conduct throughout the recent graft investigation, declaring that he had come out of it with dignity and honor, and that the Liberal party was more proud of him to-day than ever before.

Sir Wilfrid said that Canada was not so prosperous as it was two years ago. If the policy of commercial expansion of the Liberal party had been effected it would have been.

"I shall be proud to lead you to success," he declared, "if the party continues to give me the leadership. But the moment the party desires someone younger than me at their head, I would be glad and happy to take my place as a private in the ranks of the Liberal party."

This statement was greeted with cries of dissent and loud applause.

"You are dissenting to this," said Sir Wilfrid. "Then let me tell you that I have no thought of resigning."

Fire In Hartford, Conn., Causes Damage of $250,000.

HARTFORD, Conn., Feb. 23—Fire broke out in the Union Station of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad here Saturday afternoon, and in a few minutes the structure appeared to be doomed. The station is of considerable dimensions.

The station was wrecked, all train service interrupted, and everyone driven out. The fire apparatus was delayed in reaching the scene owing to the deep snow in the streets.

The fire swept its way with remarkable rapidity. Not many minutes elapsed before the train platforms, which were above the main floor level of the street and station, were ablaze, and the roof of the main structure had fallen in. The station was first occupied in May, 1889.

The loss by the fire is roughly placed at $250,000.

Agreed With Him.

An old man said to a youth:

"My boy, when I was your age I thought, like you, that I knew it all, but now I have reached the conclusion that I knew nothing."

The youth, lighting a cigarette, answered carelessly:

"H'm! I reached that conclusion about you some years ago."

City Council Endorse the Site

Want a Branch Office.

Messrs. J. Smith and Edward Courtney of East City, declared their exception to the removal of the present post office, unless a branch office was provided.

Mr. Vincent Eastwood failed to see why the question of selecting a site should be saddled upon the Council. He stated that Mr. Goodwill's arguments were weak and would not stand inspection. He preferred to see two buildings rather than have them combined. He also remarked that the sending back the petition from Ottawa constituted a discourtesy to the petitioners. "Why the Council is saddled with the responsibility of accepting or rejecting the site is a mystery to me." said Mr. Eastwood.

Double Edged Arguments.

"The argument offered here to-night cuts both ways," said Ald. Gordon. "A number of the petitioners favouring the south end site are manufacturers or vested interests, enjoying concessions from the City. Many of Mr. Goodwill's petitioners opposed the Hydro-Electric vigorously and I might say unfairly. In selecting a site for the new Government buildings it seems that we should endeavour to locate the commercial centre of the City. The site recommended by the departmental agent is more suitable for a Customs House than it is for a Post Office. It seems to me that we might appoint a committee to see whether we could not retain the present post office for a sub-post office. The removal of the present office would be attended by considerable regret. The appointment of a deputation to wait upon Mr. Burnham might be productive of an arrangement that would satisfy all interests and remove all irritation. It is not a question of political expediency on either side. It is a question of the public at large. It seems somewhat objectionable that the City Council should be asked to accept or reject the site offered.'

Favoured Present Site.

Ald. Langford—"I do not take much stock in petitions. It is obvious that some of the petitioners are actuated by selfish motives. The present post office site is a good one. I would have no objection to the customs house being moved south."

Ald. Stratton— "I am in favour of public buildings, but I do not favour having the post office located so far south. The present post office is big enough for the next five years. Twenty thousand dollars was recently expended in improvements. If you will read the petitions closely you will find that the majority of the merchants favour the present location. You talk about manufacturers being benefitted. That is not the case. The mails are delivered to the manufacturers. I would like to see the money spent in Peterborough, but I don't think it is the best interests of the people to put the post office so far south.

Spent Considerable Money.

"The Government is paying for it," interjected Mr. Turner.

Mayor Buller— "Ald Stratton has stated that the present post office is plenty big enough. Probably he knows. He was our late postmaster. Both Governments have spent considerable money on the present post office, and we have nothing when it is finished. I am going to vote in favour of the new site, because I think it is right."

"You have stated that you are going to support what you think is right," said Ald. Stratton, addressing the occupant of the red plush chair. Do you insinuate that the other aldermen will not do the same. I have a right to my own opinion."

Mayor Buller—"Every alderman has a right to vote as he likes, but I tell you I am going to support this. We are talking like a lot of children. I say this is all rot. I say that we are here in the interests of the City. We are going to settle this thing right off the bat. I am here to-night to stay with it, and I say if we don't stay with it, mark my words, you will regret it, and I won't be guilty."

"Did you not invite the aldermen to express their opinions?" inquired Ald. Gordon, following Mayor Buller's incendiary declaration.

Mayor Buller— "I did, and I am willing to give them all the views they want. Some one suggested that there might be post card views of the new public buildings."

"You invite the aldermen to get up and express their views and then turn around and say that it is all rot," retorted Ald. Gordon.

Must Not Dictate.

Ald. Duffus—"We have either got to accept or reject the site selected by the Government agent. I am sorry that Mr. Burnham did not see fit to take the matter up in some other way. I think the present post office is well situated. However, we must not dictate to the Government, if they have decided to put the two buildings on one site. Mr. J. H. Burnham has said that we must not. I regret that the post office has to be removed, I think it will be a detriment."

Aldermen Anderson, Green and Johnston favoured the site selected at the corner of George and Sherbrooke Streets. Ald. McIntyre took a similar stand, but expressed the opinion that East City would suffer from the removal of the present post office. He wanted to bring in a motion recommending a branch office for East City, but on the advice of the Mayor the matter was deferred.

The Division.

A division on the matter of accepting or rejecting the site at the corner of George and Sherbrooke Streets resulted as follows:

Yeas — Saunders, Duncan, Duffus, Green, Johnston, Anderson, McIntyre and Buller.

Nays—Langford, Gordon and Stratton.

At the suggestion of Mr. W. H. Denham, a resolution of appreciation was endorsed by the Council and will be forwarded to the Hon. Robert Rogers, Minister of Public Works, and Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P.

STAFF BEING INCREASED

Better Service will be given at K. & R. Grill Room

The proprietors of the K. and R. Grill Room desire to thank the public of Peterborough for their very generous patronage on the occasion of their opening on Friday and Saturday. They also are of the opinion that an apology is due the people in view of the fact that the service given was not as quick as it might be. However, the kitchen is being enlarged and the staff increased. It might also be stated that this is not a quick lunch establishment but a grill room, where a certain length of time must elapse between the giving of the order and the serving of the same. The public accordingly gets the benefit of the wait, as each order is prepared for the individual taste. These waits will not apply to the regular daily dinners served between twelve and one, which will be specially attractive for business and professional men.

OLD BOYS TRIUMPHED IN BENEFIT GAME WITH PRESENT PETERBORO' TEAM

The Lads of the Old Brigade Won Saturday Night's Battle by 10 Goals to 9 After a Hard Fight—Good Crowd Saw Interesting Game.

A SUCCESSFUL EFFORT

There was a great re-union of old boys at Brock Street rink on Saturday night when the Old Boys' All-Star hockey team clashed in a benefit game with the Petes, the proceeds to go to Charley Ray. The Old Boys won by 10 to 9 after a fast and exciting game of hockey. The contest was made the more interesting by the fact that neither team checked by very consistently and the result was an ultimate sweeping down of each forward line or defence without much interference from behind, making the prettiest kind of hockey from a spectators' standpoint, if not in the view of the expert.

The Old Boys trotted out a team of real stars. In the nets was the old reliable, Leo Derocher from Ottawa College, who performed in his best style, picking off a host of shots. Matthews, Crane, Heffernan and Morrow were used at different times on the defence and any combination of these four proved a stumbling block to the Petes. "Moose" Heffernan did not exert himself very much, but when he cut loose he showed the same old speed, rushing and stick-handling. Harold Matthews' work was one of the sensations of the evening. The former left wing of the Grillers has improved immensely since his junior O. H. A. days and is a beautiful stick-handler. He weigh 185 pounds now, and the Petes found the big cadet very hard to stop. In the second half he went up to left wing and played sterling hockey along the boards. Ken Crane was there with his speedy rushes and that puzzling, bullet-like shot, and Hugh Burritt showed speed and stick-handling, while he has developed a poke check that was very useful in breaking up rushes. Pete Campbell was always on the job in centre and did some pretty work in front of the nets. Clancy, the ex-Bear Cat, is as speedy as ever and his lone rush for a goal in the first half was a pretty piece of stickhandling. Harold Parker of the Hamilton juniors, was used at right wing for a period and showed a nice turn of speed, while Morrow did good work on the defence.

The Old Boys had it on the Petes in combination. The line broke away fast and passed unselfishly, most of the goals being scored after passing runs through the defence.

For the Petes, Spratt, out for the first time this season, showed up in fine form. His checking was very effective, while he came through with some dazzling rushes. Halpin was in his Orillia form, rushing and checking back splendidly, while he was in on top of the nets all night. Park uncorked some speedy rushes and was always going. Kelly and Bradshaw both performed well along the boards and Kenneally and Rose who were used at intervals, gave good accounts of themselves.

A fairly large crowd saw the game, and the attendance would have been much larger on any other night. Peterborough should be proud of her old boys, not only on account of their hockey ability, but also on account of the splendid sporting spirit they showed in coming at their own expense to take part on Saturday night. Every one invited, willingly came along, a number of them at personal sacrifice. Derocher gave up a trip to Boston with Ottawa College to come here, and Heffernan also threw up the chance for a game. Pete Campbell played with a very sore arm, and in the face of the fact that he was to go into the hospital in Toronto yesterday for an operation. The boys are worthy graduates of Peterborough. Bob Parker, manager of the Hamilton Hockey Club, Allen Campbell, Douglas Layfield and Wilfrid Stratton accompanied the Old Boys.

Old Boys—
Goal—Derocher.
Defence—Matthews and Crane.
Rover—Heffernan.
Centre—Campbell.
R. Wing—Clancy.
L. Wing—Burritt.

Peterborough—
Goal—Janes.
Defence—Bond and Spratt.
Rover—Halpin.
Centre—Park.
R. Wing—Bradshaw.
L. Wing—Kelly.

Substitutions— Rose for Halpin; Parker for Campbell; Morrow for Burritt; Halpin for Rose; Campbell for Parker; Burrit for Morrow; Kenneally for Bradshaw; Bradshaw for Kenneally; Parker for Clancy; Kenneally for Bradshaw.

The game started off at a fast clip with both teams pulling off stunts that aroused the crowd. Halpin and Spratt for the Petes contributed several of these, while Matthews and Crane tore off several individual dashes. Finally after four minutes' playing, Heffernan and Campbell broke away together, and a neat pass at the right moment gave "Moose" a chance to beat Janes. Old Boys 1, Peterborough 0.

The Petes came back and gave Derocher several busy minutes. He blocked half a dozen shots that looked dangerous. Then Halpin checked back on a three-man Old Boy rush, nipped the puck away from them and got away for a pretty rush. Matthews and Crane sandwiched him, but Park secured the rubber and slipped one past Derocher. Old Boys 1, Peterborough 1.

Halpin received a crack on the nose and retired, Rose replacing him at rover. The Old Boys substituted Parker and Morrow for Campbell and Burritt. Crane drew the first penalty of the game for tripping Rose, and Spratt was also chased for a trip. The Petes made thing interesting for Derocher but could not beat him, although inside several times, and it was the Old Boys who finally found the nets after ten minutes' going, Crane getting away for a pretty rush and beating Janes with one of his old-time bullet shots. Old Boys 3, Peterborough 1.

Pete Spratt broke loose with a pretty circling rush, and his shot from outside bounced over Derocher's foot into the nets. Old Boys 3, Peterborough 2.

Halpin took Rose's place on the Petes' line-up, and just before half-time evened up the score by batting in a counter on a pass from Kelly. The pass from the corner was high but the little rover caught it in the air and knocked it into the nets Old Boys 3, Peterborough 3.

Kenneally took Bradshaw's place at right wing after half time.

Early in the second half the Petes took the lead when Bond rushed and passed to Halpin. Old Boys 3, Peterborough 4.

Then the Old Boys started to come. They had Matthews at left wing, Burritt at rover, Campbell centre and Clancy left wing in this half and the forwards played fine combination. As the Petes' line forgot to check back the red shirted Old Boys had lots of chances to work the passing game. Campbell scored Goal No. 4 from a scrimmage after a combination dash. Old Boys 4, Peterborough 4.

Then Burritt and Matthews got away nicely and the latter scored on Burritt's pass. Old Boys 5, Peterborough 4.

A three-man combination rush carried the Old Boys inside again and Clancy slammed the rubber through. Old Boys 6, Peterborough 4.

Burritt was benched for tripping, but the odd man did not help the Petes and the Old Boys broke away again, Matthews scoring on a neat shot from the side. Old Boys 7, Peterborough 4.

The Petes braced up and took the aggressive again. Park got away for a nice rush, and working inside beat Derocher. Old Boys 7, Peterborough 5.

Then Kelly, Park and Bradshaw cut loose with the best combination rush the Petes have made all season, Bradshaw scoring from close in after three or four snappy passes. Old Boys 7, Peterborough 6.

The Petes' stock went up a minute later, when Kelly hammered one through from a scrimmage. Old Boys 7, Peterborough 7.

Parker was substituted for Clancy. Heffernan came down alone, and his long, easy shot fooled Janes. Old Boys 9, Peterborough 7.

Halpin got one back when he took a pass from the corner and slammed the rubber in. Old Boys 9, Peterborough 8.

Then Parker came down the side and centred to Campbell, who drew Janes out of the net and then tipped the rubber in. Old Boys 10, Peterborough 8.

Bradshaw ended the scoring by scooping one past Derocher from a scrimmage. Old Boys 10, Peterborough 9.

Bradshaw was hurt a moment after, tripping and falling head-on into the end of the rink, receiving a bad shaking up. Kenneally finished the game at right wing.

THE FIRST 1914 CONTRACT WAS RECEIVED TO-DAY

Frank Fox First In—Says He is in Better Shape Than He Has Been in the Past Two Years

SWARTZ A HOLD-OUT

The first contract for the 1914 season arrived at the headquarters of the Peterborough Baseball Club to-day in the shape of the contract of Frank Fox, the player the Petes secured towards the end of the season from Ottawa. Fox writes that his injured ankle has entirely recovered and that he is in better shape now that at any time in the past two seasons. He will train with the St. Bonaventure College team of Alleghany before reporting for the spring training of the Petes.

According to an official bulletin from Secretary J. H. Farrell, the services of Pitcher Bob Sterling have been awarded to Peterborough. Sterling is not anxious to return and tried to get out of it by claiming to the commission that he had not received his contract. However, the National Arbitration Board has decided in favour of Peterborough. A despatch says:

Auburn, N.Y., Feb. 21.— John H. Farrell, Chairman of the National Board of Arbitration, to-day gave out the following decisions among others relating to minor baseball:

Services awarded—Robert Sterling to Peterborough, Ont.; A. J. Teach to Ottawa.

Claims allowed — R. R. Cameron against Hamilton, Ont.

The franchise and players of Berlin, Ontario, of the Canadian League are transferred to Toronto, Ont.

Willie Swarts outfielder for the team for the past two seasons, has joined the ranks of the hold-outs and wants more money.

The contracts must be returned to the club before the end of next week or all players under reserve will be automatically suspended.

SUDDEN DEATH GAMES FOR THE JUNIOR TITLE

The Alerts have defaulted their tie game to the Y.M.C.A., and as a result the Boston Exploits and the Y.M.C.A. teams are tied for the Junior City League championship, with the regular schedule completed. President Maher has ordered the teams to play a sudden death game at the Brock street rink on Wednesday night to decide the championship. Each has a record of five wins and one loss, and the game should be a corker. The fans are still talking of the last game between the two teams when the "Y." won by 7 to 5 after 20 minutes over time in one of the best exhibitions of the season. The rivalry between the two teams is intense, and Wednesday's battle should be a memorable one. No one who likes a snappy exhibition of hockey should miss Wednesday's engagement. The season tickets will not be honoured on Wednesday night as this is an extra game.

BANKERS AND TOOL ROOM WILL MEET TO-NIGHT

Keen interest is being taken in the semi-finals Mercantile League game to-night between the C.G.E. Tool Room and the Bankers. The game wil be called at 8 o'clock sharp and promises to attract a big crowd. Both teams have a large following and there wil be all kinds of excitement when the two teams clash. A REPLY TO CENTRE WARD RATEPAYER

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—Your correspondent, "Centre Ward Ratepayer," has shown a bias and incompetency in trying to mislead your readers in favour of the present post office site. He starts off by proposing a compromise, which shows a weakness of his cause, and then admits that the present post office is not large enough, although recently extended and altered at an immense expense. He then proposes to build two post offices, instead of one, to get over the difficulty, at a still greater expense, in order to retain the post office where it is, or to do any other old thing to that end for selfish motives, and cites for a precedent the large cities of Montreal and Toronto, where the conditions are entirely different and not applicable to a small place. Seeing the futility of his proposal he then shifts his position and proposes a further expenditure upon the present post office, and makes the bold statement contrary to the well-known facts that the present site is satisfactory to all the City wards, except part of No. 1, and that if the building is moved to the proposed site, four-fifths of the people will have a grievance, as if he has a warrant to speak for everybody when, as a matter of fact, the proposed site is nearer to the centre of the City than the present one. In order to bolster up his second proposal he wants us to follow the method adopted in the Village of Millbrook, where, he says, they had two post-offices, but admits that even that Village had outgrown its infancy and had but one post office now. He then performs the wheel-about-jump Jim Crow act and proposes that we should follow the example of the city of Niagara Falls, with its 10,000 inhabitants. Herein he shows his monumental ignorance of that place, or is adopting desperate means to mislead the people. Niagara Falls, unlike any other city, is unique in itself, and is the one tourist resort in the world without a parallel. It is composed of three villages, viz., one at the Falls, one at the bridge, four miles down the river, called Clifton, and one a few miles further inland on Lundy's Lane, where the famous battle by that name was fought, called Drummondville. Between these places there is a large district of farm and wood land. They were put under one administration for the purpose of bringing them together as one City, after the manner of Niagara Falls on the American side of the river, in order to develop it, and make it still more attractive for world tourists. Each village still retains its own places of business and post office. So you see he had to go far afield to get a solitary case as an excuse for his foolish proposal. He does not seem to know that we have any mail boxes studded along the streets for mailing purposes, and harps upon the convenience for buying a few postage stamps, and would upset the Government's plans in so important a matter so that it might be convenient for him to get a few postage stamps occasionally. He says he wants to be treated like others. If so let him take what is set before him and ask no questions, or go away back and sit down.

Only the other day a storekeeper close to the postoffice said he had never been there since the free postal delivery.

Yours, etc.
Centre Ward Sense.

SEASONABLE POULTRY NOTES

It is as dangerous to force abnormal egg production as abnormal milk production.

Throat and lung diseases are prevented by a piece of alum in the drinking water.

Charcoal occasionally will assist the hens in grinding their food and will aid digestion.

The substitution of pure bred for scrub flocks the country over would mean an increase of over 100 per cent in poultry value.

SAYS LETTER WAS AN INSULT

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,—A few mornings ago I noticed a letter in the Morning Times enquiring about the nurse who is visiting our Public School. It is unnecessary for me to state in this letter the nature of the enquiry, but I wish to state that as a supporter of our Public Schools, and as an ex-teacher I consider the letter which appeared in the Morning Times an insult to the efficient nurse who, so far as I can learn, is doing her duty, and a very much greater insult to our lady teachers. The person who wrote the letter referred to cannot have a very high ideal in his mind, and perhaps the persons with whom he is in the habit of associating, would require the services of the kind referred to in his letter.

Yours truly,
JAMES EDGAR.

A REPLY FROM MR. ROLLINS

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—The only sense in which I used the word "day," in speaking to the Men's Bible Class on "Reasons for Faith Outside of the Bible," was that it was necessary to think to-day in discussing the subject very much as if the Bible did not exist. I commend Mr. John Carlile for his long silence and regret to rob him of his new-found joy in having discovered another heretic.

Yours truly,
JAMES ROLLINS.

GETTING A START

By NATHANIEL C. FOWLER, JR.

(Copyright, 1912, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Unless you are going to take up a handwork vocation and become an ordinary labourer, there are but two avenues open to you — business or profession.

Few men are sufficiently composite to reach the flush of success in more than one of these directions. They are either pre-eminently adapted to the practice of some profession, or to the doing of business.

The brain of the successful business man is not easily adaptable to trading, and the proficient trader is likely to fail in a profession.

I do not propose to compare the quality of the business mind with that of the professional brain, or to claim that one is finer or better than the other. They are different fundamentally.

While large success in business or in the professions, is dependent upon consummate ability, one may succeed fairly well in either, if he develops himself by application. I am, however, of the opinion that a livelihood is obtained more easily in business than in the practice of any profession, for I believe that high proficiency in a profession is impossible unless one's mind is especially adapted to it.

This same condition undoubtedly prevails in the business world, yet I feel that the ordinary man is more likely to earn his living in some trade than he is if he attempts to practice a profession.

A profession is more of a specialty than is business and, therefore, requires larger natural aptitude for it.

Thousands of young men enter a profession because they believe it opens to them a greater opportunity, and leads to more prominence. This is true only in the case of those who are unusually proficient. The mediocre lawyer, the unskilled physician or the incompetent educator stands infinitely lower socially, and in his vocation than does the business man of moderate attainments.

The glare of professional fire is often more apparent than real. Success in business is easier to attain than a reputation for skill in the practice of any profession. Therefore, I say to all young people, do not choose a profession unless you are thoroughly convinced that you are competent to handle it, and do not allow your judgment to decide decide you. Unless you can convince at least a half dozen eminent practitioners that you have probable ability for their profession, it is likely that you will fail in it, even though you are convinced in your own mind of your ultimate proficiency.

The same amount of energy expended in the doing of business would probably bring you a larger return, and enable you to occupy a higher position socially and in the business world, than it would be possible for you to secure in the practice of a profession.

Success in a profession depends upon more than ordinary ability, extreme adaptability, and unquestionable thirst or desire to enter it, and you probably have none of these characteristics if you are unable to convince the members of that profession that you possess them.

It is safer for you to enter some ordinary standard business, and to devote your energies to it than to take up anything which is a specialty, and which requires a peculiar quality of brain power.

When in doubt choose a business.

Redistribution Committee Has First Session

Special Wire to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, Feb. 23.—The Re-distribution Committee which has been entrusted with the responsibility of rehanging the political map of Canada, convened for the first time this morning. The conferences of the committee will be held in camera and the press will be excluded. The new maps of the various provinces have already been prepared.

The funeral was held this morning to St. Peter's Cathedral, and thence to St. Peter's cemetery.

Orchard And Garden Notes

Send for seed catalogues.

Purchase seed as soon as possible.

Make a careful test of all seed to be sown. It pays.

Early Jersey Wakefield is among the earliest cabbage.

Order vegetable and flower seeds now before the stock is exhausted.

Pansy seed may be sown now. Use friable, light, sandy loam and cover the seed very lightly.

Early garden crops require a warm, sunny location and sandy, though rich, soil.

Paper pots are often handy for growing plants. They are easily made or may be purchased from dealers.

Sparks Earliana is one of the earliest tomatoes. Globe, Beauty and Stone are good later varieties.

Make provision for a good liberal flower garden. It may occupy a part of the vegetable garden and be cultivated the same as the vegetables.

When watering house plants give them a thorough soaking when they are dry and then wait until they need water again before applying it.

Apply plenty of manure to the garden. Good vegetables must be quickly grown, and in order to get rapid growth, plant food must be easily available.

BRITAIN CAN PROTECT HER OWN SUBJECTS

LONDON, Eng., Feb. 23.—The fact that Great Britain has decided to wait for the report of the United States in the Benton case is not an admission that Britain depends upon that country for the full protection of its subjects in Mexico or any other country. This was the assertion of the government through under Secretary Ackland in the Commons this afternoon, when the latest aspect of the Mexican affair was brought up. Britain could be depended upon, said Ackland, to take up the defence of her own subjects where the situation demanded it.

Asks To Have Case Heard In Camera

Special Wire to The Examiner:

TORONTO, Feb. 23.—An application was made to Justice Latchford to-day by Mrs. Robert Aull to have her action to have the marriage voided tried in camera. This is the case where Doris Reid in Cobourg last summer married Robert Aull, Jr., of St. Louis, after a summer flirtation and then regretted it. Justice atchford withheld his decision. Aull's lawyers were not present.

Will Ask To Have Committee Appointed

Special Wire to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 23.— Andrew Broder's bil for the prohibition of the manufacture, importation and sale of cigarettes will come up for the second reading in the house this afternoon. It is understood that he will ask for the appointment of a committee to inquire into the various phases of the traffic, to have analysed various brands of cigarettes sold and to get expert evidence as to the effect upon the system. There is a possibility that he will have sufficient backing in the house to have this request granted.

Raid Killed Policeman.

DETROIT, Feb. 26. — Wesley Moore, the young self-confessed automobile bandit, yesterday admitted to a newspaper reporter, in the presence of a deputy sheriff, that his brother, Alpheus, who was shot and killed on Saturday night while trying to rob a grocery store, was the slayer of Patrolman Thomas F. Madden. The officer was killed several weeks ago when he attempted to detain two young men, who, he believed, had stolen the automobile in which they were riding.

MAKES OLD PEOPLE STRONG AND WELL

We want to get the news to all old people about Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion, a remarkable new food-medicine which we firmly believe is the best remedy ever made to overcome the weakening, debilitating effects of increasing old age. It helps to rebuild wasted tissues, strengthen the nerves, and give new energy and a lively feeling to the body. It contains no alcohol or dangerous drug. Delegates to Ontario Alliance Take Strong Pledge

ANNUAL SESSION OPENS

TORONTO, Feb. 26. — Standing with uplifted right hands, each one being clenched, a thousand delegates to the Ontario Alliance yesterday afternoon shouted the declaration: "We will see this thing through." The incident formed the climax to a fervid address by Rev. R. J. Patterson of Armagh, Ireland, of "Scott-support" fame.

The convention opened at 10 o'clock yesterday morning with the presentation of the annual report of the executive by Secretary Rev. Ben. H. Spence.

The executive report gave a lengthy summary of the part taken by the Alliance in the bye-elections and the local option contests.

A strong protest was made against the three-fifths clause.

Rev. Mr. Patterson aroused the delegates to fever heat by his forceful address. He startled the convention by saying that he had fourteen saloon-keepers in his Presbyterian congregation at Armagh. He believed men might think they could conscientiously be in the liquor business, and he had no sympathy with the self-righteous humbugs who would point to a man in the liquor business and say: "There is a child of the devil."

He declared the temperance crusade to be a religious movement, and concluded by calling on the delegates to rise and pledge themselves to personal total abstinence, and with upraised fists to vow to "see this thing through."

Convention sessions will be held to-day, and a public mass meeting to-night.

Rev. Canon Greene's presidential address took the form of an earnest exhortation based upon the text, "Be Thou Strong and Very Courageous." He considered that Hon. W. J. Hanna had done a grand work in establishing the Guelph prison farm, but the Alliance knew a better way to diminish crime. It was to "stop the tap."

RESOLUTIONS DEFEATED.

Temperance Proposals Meet Quiet Ole In Ontario House.

TORONTO, Feb. 24.—Apart from the sensational incident centering around Mr. Evanturel, the Legislature devoted several hours to a debate on a motion by Dr. McQueen (Wentworth) expressing regret that legislation to abolish shaving, to prohibit the treating system or to otherwise curtail the evils of the liquor traffic had not been promised. This motion was eventually defeated by fifty-two to fifteen. Mr. Evanturel did not vote. Mr. Studholme voted with the Opposition.

Dr. McQueen in proposing the amendment said the Government was glad to cover up its sins of omission by talking of the things it had accomplished and failing to deal with present conditions.

Mr. A. H. Musgrove (N. Huron) doubted the Liberals' sincerity in their protests against the three-fifths clause.

Questioned by Mr. President, Mr. Hanna intimated that no licenses would be granted in Huron on May 1 next, when the Scott Act comes into force.

Referring to Conservative and liquor interests alliance, Mr. Proudfoot maintained that in the Manitoulin bye-election they had gone "hand in glove."

Mr. McFarlane, the Conservative elected at that bye-election, said that he was aware that the liquor interests were supporting him.

Mr. Wm. McDonald (C. Brant), Mr. Allan Studholme, Mr. A. C. Pratt (Norfolk), and Mr. C. H. McKeown (Dufferin) also spoke.

Will Report on Canal Scheme.

OTTAWA, Feb. 24.—It is expected that to-day the appointment will be made of the commission to enquire into the feasibility of the proposed Montreal, Ottawa and Georgian Bay Canal. This is the commission which Hon. Robert Rogers promised a few days ago in the Commons.

While not officially given out, it is understood that the commissioners will be Frank Meighen and Edward Gobier of Montreal and W. Sanford Evan. of Winnipeg.

"THE FREE RANGE"

By ELWELL LAWRENCE

CHAPTER XXI.

JULIE INVESTIGATES.

The occasion when nine men with their hands tied behind them arrived at the Bar T ranch, accompanied by six others with Winchesters across their saddle bows, was an extremely happy one for Juliet Bissell. This happiness was not associated, except superficially, with the capture of the rustlers, but had to do especially with the receipt of a certain sheared and blackened journal from a certain tall and generously proportioned young man.

The captives arrived at noon, but it was nearly supper-time before she had finished reading, around, amid, among and between the lines, despite the fact that the lines themselves left very little doubt as to the writer's meaning.

This was not the same beautiful girl Bud Larkin left behind him that early morning of his escape. Since that time she had changed. The eyes that had formerly been but the beautiful abode of allurement and half-spoken promises, had taken on a sweet and patient seriousness. The corners of her mouth still turned up as though she were about to smile, but there was a firmer set to them that spoke of suppressed impulses.

She moved with a greater dignity, and for the first time became aware of the real worth of her mother, who until now she had somehow taken for granted. Martha's consternation and grief at her husband's sudden and prolonged disappearance, only broken by the visit of Skidmore and his camera, had been really pitiful, and the girl's eyes were opened to the real value and beauty of an undying love.

Her own misery, after the receipt of the letter brought by Skidmore, she had faced alone, and in her, as in all good and true natures, it had worked a change. It had softened her to the grief of another, and showed her, for the first time, that happiness is only really great when in sharp contrast with pain.

So this long and simple love-letter from Bud, while satisfying the cravings of the lover, stirred up again the misgivings of the doubter. And her cogitations resulted in the admission that Bud must be either one of two things—Either he was absolutely innocent of the imputations contained in the letter that Skidmore brought, or he was one of the most consummate villians at large.

There were grounds for both suppositions, and the girl, after hours of vain struggle, found herself still in the middle ground, but more nervous and anxious than she had ever been.

The arrival of Mike Stelton under guard two days after that of the other rustlers created a sensation. For this girl it was the blow that shattered another illusion, for although she had never cared for the foreman, her belief in his unswerving faithfulness to the Bissell house was absolute. Now to see him the admitted leader of the gang that had steadily impoverished her father was almost unbelievable.

The man who brought Stelton in also brought a hurried scrawl to Juliet from Bud, which read:

DARLING:

We are more than half way up the range. Have recovered 1,500 head of rebranded stock, much of which is Bar T. Stelton is the head of the rustlers and I have the proof. Sorry to foist these criminals on the Bar T, but it was the nearest ranch and besides, I want them there when your father comes home. Also I want to be able to tell you that I love you, and will love you always. With luck, two days ought to see the end of all these troubles.

YOUR BUD.

Probably the most miserable man in the whole cow country at this time was Smithy Caldwell. Aside from the fate he feared, his position among the captured hustlers was one of utter torture. The men had discovered that it was through his selfish scheming that Stelton had been betrayed, and they treated him with the cruelty and scorn of rough, savage men.

So, when Stelton appeared, Caldwell fairly cringed. With the strange, unreasoning terror of a coward he feared bodily harm at the hands of the foreman, forgetting that, in all probability, his life was forfeit sooner or later.

His fear was all but realized, for no sooner were Stelton's hands unbound as he caught sight of Caldwell than he made a leap for him and would have strangled him then and there had not others pulled the two apart.

"There, you whelp!" bellowed Stelton. "That's a sample of what you'll get later on. All I ask is to see you kickin' at the end of a rope, you yellow-bellied traitor!" And Smithy, clutching at his throat, staggered, whimpering away.

The day after Stelton's arrival Juliet conceived the idea of questioning the foreman about the letter that she knew Smithy Caldwell had written her. At her request he was brought into the living room of the ranch house with his hands tied to permit of the guard leaving them together.

Now that all Bud's prophecies in regard to the man had been fulfilled, she feared him, and one glance at his dark, contorted face as he was led in increased this fear.

For his part the very sight of this sweet, quiet girl for whom he had waited so long, and through whose lover he was now doomed, brought a very eruption of rage. His lips parted and bared his teeth, his eyes were bloodshot, and his swarthy face worked with fury.

"Mike, I'm sorry to see you here like this," said Juliet gently.

"A lot you are!" he sneered brutally. "You're tickled to death. Hope to see me swing, too I suppose?"

"Don't talk like that," she protested, horrified at the change in the man. "I'm going to try to see what I can do for you, though Heaven knows you don't deserve much."

"Fury choked him and prevented a reply. At last he managed to articulate.

"What do yuh want of me?" he growled.

"I want you to tell me about a letter that I received a few days ago. It was brought there by a man by the name of Skidmore, who takes pictures."

At the identification of the letter Stelton's eyes glittered and his mouth grinned cruelly.

"What do yuh want to know about it?"

"First I want to know why you wrote it?"

"I didn't write it," he snarled.

"Well, then, why you had Caldwell write it?"

"How do you know I had Caldwell write it?"

His tone was nasty and she could see that he was enjoying the misery that he caused her.

But though Juliet was humbled, she was none the less a daughter of her father, and at Stelton's tone and manner her imperious anger flashed up.

"Look here, Stelton," she said in a cold, even tones, "please remember who I am and treat me with respect. If you speak to me again as you have this afternoon I will call those men in and have you quirted up against a tree. If you don't believe me, try it."

But Stelton was beyond speech. All the blood in him seemed to rush to his head and distend the veins there. He struggled with his bonds so furiously that the girl rose to her feet in alarm. Then she walked to the library table, opened the drawer and took out a long, wooden-handled .45.

With this in her possession she resumed her seat. Presently the foreman, unable to free his hands, ceased his struggles through sheer exhaustion.

"I know you made Caldwell write that letter," she said, balancing the gun, "and I want to know why you did it?"

Stelton, finding physical intimidation impossible, resorted to mental craft.

"I didn't want you to love that sheepman."

"Why not?"

"Because all these things about him are true, and I thought I'd let yuh know before yuh broke yore heart."

She searched his face keenly and had to confess to herself that he spoke with absolute sincerity. Her face slowly paled, and for a moment the room seemed to whirl about her. The world appeared peopled with horrible gargoyles that resembled Stelton and that leered and gibbered at her everywhere.

The foreman saw her whince and grow pallid, and his fury was cooled with the ice of fiendish satisfaction. He could hurt her now.

"Because you say so don't prove it to me," she managed to say at last, though she scarcely recognized the voice that came from her tremulous lips.

"I can give you proof enough if you want it," he snapped, suddenly taken with an idea.

"You can?" The words were pitiful, and her voice broke with the stress of her misery.

"Yes.

"How?"

"Get Smithy Caldwell in here. He knew that lover of yore's when he wasn't quite such a sheepman. He'll tell yuh things that'll make yore hair stand on end."

In his delight at his plan Stelton could not keep the exultant cruelty out of his voice.

Juliet pounded on the floor with the butt of her weapon (this was the signal agreed upon for the removal of Stelton), and a sheepman almost immediately thrust his head in at the door.

"Yes, ma'am?" he inquired.

"Bring Smithy Caldwell in, please," she requested, "and tie his hands."

When the miserable fellow was pushed through the doorway and saw Stelton standing inside he shrank back against the wall and stood looking from the one to the other with the quick, white eyes of a trapped animal. The thought came to him that perhaps these two were already deciding his fate, and his weak chin quivered.

"Sit down, Caldwell," said Juliet, coolly motioning him to one of the rough chairs. He slunk into it obediently.

"I want to ask you about that letter you sent me in which you said several things about Mr. Larkin," she went on not unkindly, her heart going out to the wretch, so abject was his misery.

"Mike here says that everything in that letter is true, and that you can prove it," she continued. "Is that so?"

Involuntarily Caldwell looked toward Stelton for orders, as he had always done, and in those beetling brows and threatening eyes saw a menace of personal injury that indicated his course at once.

"No, don't look at Mike; look at me," cried Juliet, and Caldwell obediently switched his gaze back. Are those things true?"

"Yes, ma'am," said Caldwell without hesitation.

"You mean to tell me that he was married before?"

"Yes, ma'am."

"Where?"

"In Chicago to a woman by the name of Mary. She was a cousin of mine."

"Oh, God!" The cry burst from Juliet's pale lips before she could recover herself, and Stelton lay back in his chair, feeding his unspeakable nature upon the girl's torture.

"Shall I tell you about it?" Caldwell, seeing his former chief was pleased, now took the initiative.

"Oh, no, no!" she cried frantically. "I don't want to hear. I never want to hear."

For a few moments there was silence in the low, bare room while Juliet recovered herself. Then she said:

"And about that other thing in the letter. Why are the officers after Bud?"

"For forgery, ma'am. That is, I hear they would be after him if they knew everything." A cunning smirk crossed Smithy's countenance.

"Why, don't they know everything?" asked the girl.

"Because I haven't told 'em," was the reply.

"And so you blackmailed him under the threat of telling, did you?"

"Well, he seemed to be willin'," countered Smithy evasively, or he wouldn't have paid."

"Why did you write me that letter, Caldwell?"

"The boss here told me to," motioning toward Stelton.

"What reason did he give for telling you?"

Caldwell did not like this question. He turned and twisted in his seat without replying, and shot a quick glance at Stelton, uncertain what reply was expected of him. But he got no help there.

Stelton was relishing the fear and anxiety of his tool and watched to see which way the other's cowardice would lead him. He was quite unprepared for the answer that came.

"It is a long worm that has no turning," someone has remarked, and Caldwell had reached his length. The pure cruelty of Stelton's conduct revolted him, and now, sure that Stelton could do him no harm because of his tied hands, he took a vicious dig at his former leader.

"He wanted to marry you himself," he said, "and offered me a hundred dollars to write you that letter."

Stelton sat for a moment open-mouthed at the temerity of his subordinate and then leaped up with a roar like the bellow of a bull.

Juliet pounded hastily on the floor, and the sheepmen appeared just as Stelton fetched Caldwell a kick that sent him half way across the room.

"Take them both away," ordered the girl, suddenly feeling faint and ill after the mental and physical struggle of the interview.

When the two had gone she sank back in her chair and faced the awful facts that these men had given her.

"Bud! Bud!! My lover!" she cried brokenly to herself. "I want you, I need you now to tell me it is all a lie!"

She remained for several minutes sunk in a kind of torpor. Then, as though she had suddenly arrived at some great decision, she rose slowly, but determinedly, and left the room. Finding one of the men, she ordered her horse to be saddled and retired to change her clothes.

Her mother came in and asked her if she were going riding alone.

"Yes, mother, replied the girl quietly. "I am going to Bud and find out the truth about him. I cannot live like this any longer. I shall go crazy or kill myself. But I promise you this, that I will find father and bring him home to you."

The eyes of Martha Bissell clouded with long-suppressed tears.

"God bless you, Juliet," she said. "I can't live without him any longer."

How to Make Better Cough Syrup than You Can Buy

A Family Supply, Saving $5 and Fully Guaranteed.

Sixteen ounces of cough syrup — as much as you could buy for $1.50—can easily be made at home. You will find nothing that takes hold of an obstinate cough more quickly, usually ending it inside of 24 hours. Excellent, too, for croup, whooping cough, sore lungs, asthma, hoarseness and other throat troubles.

Mix two cups of granulated sugar with one cup of warm water, and stir for two minutes. Put 2½ ounces of Pinex (fifty cents' worth) in a 16-ounce bottle, then add the Sugar Syrup. It keeps perfectly. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

This is just laxative enough to help cure a cough. Also stimulates the appetite, which is usually upset by a cough. The taste is pleasant.

The effect of pine and sugar syrup on the inflamed membranes is well known. Pinex is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, rich in guaiacol and all the natural healing pine elements. Other preparations will not work in this formula.

The Pinex and Sugar Syrup recipe is now used by thousands of housewives throughout the United States and Canada. The plan has been imitated, but the old successful formula has never been equaled.

A guaranty of absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded, goes with this recipe. Your druggist has Pinex, or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

Two Doctors Said He Had Consumption.

DR. WOOD'S NORWAY PINE SYRUP CURED HIM.

Mrs. John Elliff, St. John's West, Ont., writes:—"My little boy was very bad with whooping cough and severe cold. I went to two doctors with him, and they said he had Consumption. I could get no relief for him, he would cough all night long, with a dry hacking cough.

I was persuaded to try Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and was surprised to see the first bottle did him good. I have had five bottles, and they cured him, he rests well at night now, and is well and hearty. If he gets a cold we always give him Pine Syrup and he is soon better. I did not think I could raise him, but I am thankful to say Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup saved him from being a consumptive."

Too much stress cannot be laid upon the admonition to all persons affected by the earlier stages of throat and lung trouble, as failure to take hold at once will cause many years of suffering, and in the end that terrible scourge "Consumption."

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is without an equal for all affections of the Throat and Lungs.

What are Peps?

Peps is the name bestowed upon a new scientific preparation put up into tabloid or pastille form, which provides an entirely new and effective treatment for coughs, colds and lung and throat troubles generally.

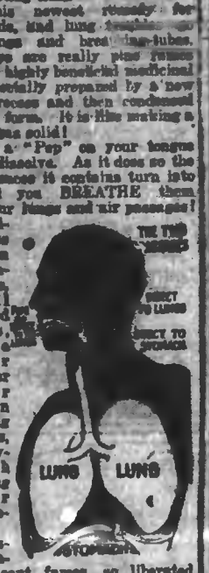
Did it never occur to you as peculiar that when you have a cough or a cold, or any chest trouble, you should apply medicine—not to your lungs, but to your stomach?

Look at it the other way round. Suppose you suffered from some stomach complaint—indigestion or constipation. How strange you would think it if you were asked to take a medicine which had to be breathed in, and which went—not to your stomach, but to your lungs and breathing passages?

There is no connection between the stomach and the lungs (see diagram below), and when for a cold or a cough or any chest complaint you take some medicine, such as liquid cough mixtures, syrups, lozenges, which go—not to your lungs, but to your stomach—you are wasting time.

Peps—this newest remedy for coughs, colds, and lung troubles—go to the lungs and breathing-tubes direct. Peps are really pine essence and certain highly beneficial medicinal extracts specially prepared by a new scientific process and then condensed into tabloid form. It is like making a breathable gas solid!

You put a "Pep" on your tongue and let it dissolve. As it does so the healing essence it contains turn into vapor, and you BREATHE them direct to your lungs and air passages!



These healing essences pass down your breathing-tubes, bathing all the inflamed surfaces, which solid or liquid cough mixtures can never reach, in health-giving pine fumes, and carrying health and healing wherever they penetrate.

These tissue-strengthening, pleasant fumes, so liberated from the dissolving Pep, are not only healing in their operation, they are antiseptic. They kill the germs of consumption, catarrh, and those many and varied throat and lung troubles so common to-day. Peps fumes—like the fumes from nature's Pine woods—get direct to the lungs and chest, and give instant relief to colds, tightness, bronchitis, etc. In short, Peps bring pine forest air to your home!

You have a nasty night-cough? Take a Pep before going to bed—your cough will not trouble you! Your lungs are a little weak, and going from the warm house into the cold air outside makes you cough? Just before going out put a Pep in your mouth—there will be no coughing! Your throat feels "stuffed up," your chest feels tight, and your breathing troublesome? Peps will put matters right for you very quickly.

Peps, while gradually dissolving, to vapor as soon as put into the mouth, will retain their goodness indefinitely if kept dry. Each little Peps pastille is packed in an air-tight wrapping, which is easily removed, and they are packed in neat tin pocket boxes. They are not stinky (the minister or public speaker can carry a few loose in the vest pocket); they do not spoil the appetite and ruin the digestion, like cough syrups and mixtures do; and—they DO cure coughs, colds and lung trouble!

Just as the out-door treatment for consumption—the "breathing" treatment—is now admitted to be the only rational treatment, so the "Peps" treatment for colds and lung troubles is the only rational home treatment.

Peps cure catarrh, coughs, bronchitis, sore throat, tightness or aching across the chest, difficulty in breathing, night cough, hoarseness, asthma, laryngitis, smoker's throat, etc. Best for children because free from opium, morphine, or any poison.

All druggists and stores sell Peps at 50c. a box or 5 for $1.25. Should your dealer be out of stock, order direct (post paid) from Peps Co., Dupont St., Toronto, or 52 Princess St., Winnipeg.

FREE TRIAL.—The proprietors wish this great discovery to be widely appreciated, and have decided to offer a free trial packet to all persons who would like to test this unique remedy. Cut out this article, write across it the name of this paper, and mail it to Peps Co., Toronto, or 52 Princess Street, Winnipeg, enclosing 1 cent stamp to pay for return postage. A free trial packet of Peps will be mailed you by return. If you have a friend suffering from a cough, cold, or any throat or lung trouble, hand this on.

The Delicacy of Baby's Skin

Cold Air, Raleigh Winds, Strong Soaps Often Bring on Chronic Eczema.

More beautiful than the rose is baby's skin when in health, and so delicate that it is susceptible to anything which irritates. For this reason baby's skin troubles are many, and frequently chronic itching eczema is developed.

Nothing can be better for baby's skin when irritated, than Dr. Chase's Ointment, and when eczema is developed you can apply this preparation with the knowledge that its wonderful record as a healer of the skin is due to the success it has proved in the cure of eczema.

The intense itching of eczema of the face and scalp is very hard for the little one to bear, and is a source of worry and anxiety to the mother. The itching parts are scratched, and nasty and coloured scars are formed. Eczema naturally becomes chronic and spreads over the body. You can positively control eczema and cure it by the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment. What is better still is to use this ointment for all chafing and irritation of the skin and prevent eczema from getting started.

"Allah is Allah! There is no God but Allah.
"Mohammed is the Prophet of God."

THIS is the call to prayer that rings out five times a day from the lips of the muezzin to the dark skinned people of the town of Guermessa, one of the most inaccessible strongholds of the Troglodytes, cave dwellers, in Tripoli. They come from their homes in the caves, turn their faces toward Mecca, kneel and bow together, touching their faces to the ground several times.

Religion is foremost in the minds of these rugged Arabs, dwellers in caves in almost impassable mountains, overlooking the Great Sahara, described by Frank Edward Johnson, who has just returned to the United States from a tour through the country for the National Geographic Society.

In these underground dwellings the people live like the patriarchs of old. Sometimes one hundred persons live in a single dwelling. The head of the family is the master, and he lives with his sons, his sons' sons, their wives and their children. Each family has an individual cave.

Scattered from Gabes to Bubibat and from Matmata over the Tripoli border are cave dwellers. They live on the mountain sides. Sometimes there are small groups, many times a single family. The towns are built in ovals, with only one entrance for each tribe, so that a small group of men heavily armed could if necessary protect their strongholds from thieves or enemies.

All of the Troglodyte towns are set far in the wilderness and can be approached only with the greatest difficulty, according to the word brought back by Mr. Johnson. This makes them places of exceptional vantage in time of war. The people could see an enemy approaching in the desert for many miles unless it was at night. Even then the passageway—a narrow path through the mountain—would be too dangerous for approach, for a misstep would mean a fall of hundreds of feet onto the rocks below.

Guermessa, in which Mr. Johnson spent much time, is one of the most difficult Troglodyte towns to reach, for it is located on the top of a sugar loaf mountain extending nearly 2,000 feet above the desert. The narrow, zigzag trail to the summit is so slippery that even the mountain goats have difficulty in passing through it. It has been worn smooth by centuries of wear and the rocks are like polished marble.

Sidi Hadj, the holy man of the town, and Mr. Johnson became close friends and the American spent considerable time in his cave at Guermessa.

"Sidi Hadj's own cave was large, and the rear part of the floor was raised about a foot higher than the front of the cave," said Mr. Johnson in describing it in the society's magazine. "Rugs from Kairowan and Persia were laid over the stone floor and numerous Tonareg leather cushions stuffed with sheep's wool were strewn about.

"These thick Oriental rugs were intended to sleep on and not to walk upon. The uneven stone floor of a Troglodyte cave is a very uncomfortable place to sleep on, but use a couple of thick Oriental rugs and cover yourself with a burnous, or Arab cloak, and you have a most comfortable bed. . . .

"On the stone walls of the cave hang a miniature arsenal of flintlock pistols and long barrelled guns and shotguns. A very large wooden chest, painted green, with Moorish designs in red and gold, stood at the back of the cave, which was about seven feet high by fourteen feet wide and about twenty-four feet deep.

"Two Persian pictures of Mecca decorated the walls, and some ornamental burnous for wearing during a fantasia, and the usual cous-cous plates and platters brought from Ghadames, usually used for decoration by the Troglodytes. They reminded me of our Indian woven plates and baskets of certain tribes of the Far West and New Mexico. They are so well woven that they hold liquids like a dish, and they have simple but decorative patterns worked in color.

"Dinner was served that night by the wives of Sidi Hadj's sons, and, although it was extremely plain, proved tempting and excellent. On the Troglodyte table usually is placed a platter of native wheat, with a half or whole sheep or lamb. The eldest son of the host cuts it into long strips and pulls these apart with his fingers. Each person at the table then takes the portion directly in front of him. Several huge bowls, boring cups, are passed around filled with water when the diners become thirsty. Oftentimes Arabs make their meals on a few handfuls of barley and some dried dates, water and a cup of coffee."

The Troglodytes of extreme southern Tunisia speak Berber-Arabic and are all Mohammedans. Their ancestors were all cave Troglodytes, living on the stone-capped hills of the table lands, overlooking great stretches of desert land. But famine went on the scarcity of food and battle drove the younger generations of these of the villages into the plains, where they have lived since.

But they were used to the cave homes, and so in the mountains they built artificial caves. These are found in Medenine, Metameur and other towns further south. Some of the caves are used as dwellings and others, larger, serve as storehouses for food, guns, ammunition, harness and agricultural implements.

Most of these tribes are nomadic during about nine months of the year. While most of the party are wandering with the camels some of the strongest men stay behind to protect the caves and property.

In the valleys of the Hamada mountains, where are located the villages of Matmata, Beniouana, Beniulten and Hadidji, the building of caves was a necessity. The tribes tired of living in the high tablelands where climbing was difficult, so went to the lower sections.

It was impossible there to build houses, for food was lacking and water was scarce. Instead they dug enormous circular holes in the earth averaging 27 feet in depth and 195 feet in circumference. Entrance to the great courtyards, which are open to the sky, is gained through underground tunnels cut through the rock, which is soft and yields easily to the spade. This rock hardens when it comes into contact with the air.

Grain will keep indefinitely in these subterranean caves, which are perfectly dry.

The men of Matmata have more energy than most Arabs, and the heads of the household are supreme.

"Often two or three adventurous youths receive permission from their fathers, for without permission they could do nothing, and start on foot or on donkeys for Tunis," says Mr. Johnson. "The journey is long. Kairouan, sacred city of the sands, is usually visited en route; also the tombs of several celebrated marabouts. Arriving penniless and unknown in Tunis, these young Troglodytes earn money by carrying trunks, running errands or going to market and carrying vegetables and provisions for housekeepers.

"When they have earned enough money to buy two or three copper pots and what looks like a large flower pot, they hire a small shop, hardly as large as a closet, with an open front facing the street. Here about four o'clock in the morning they begin frying cakes in their copper pots and have something like apple fritters. They sell for five centimes, or one cent. The dandies are going to work as the patrons.

"About seven o'clock in the morning work is over, and they close the shutters, clean up and go to sleep. About half-past three in the afternoon the shop is again opened. The embers in the flower pot, which is in reality a stove, are blown with small bellows until they glow and more fritters are fried. The demand seems greater than the supply.

"In about four years' time these young men can lay aside enough money to buy some broadtail sheep and goats and several camels and return to their native Troglodyte town, where they take to themselves a Troglodyte maid and establish a small but happy home of their own."

In his visit to these picturesque people Mr. Johnson discovered some interesting customs practiced by travellers in the interior of Northern Africa. When over one caravan encounters another the salutation. "Salam aalikoum," "Peace be upon you," is awaited eagerly. It would mean little to a stranger, but when it is sung out on the desert there is safety.

"No one using the greeting 'Salam aalikoum' would dare bring down the wrath of the unforgiving head by attempting to rob the caravan or murder you in your sleep," Mr. Johnson says. "One can safely pitch one's tents next to the Bedouin using the above greeting, knowing that all would be well."

If one caravan does not give this salutation then the other must beware. Danger is near. The greeting is used only between Mohammedans, and if a Christian is accompanying the caravan he is included with this phrase:—"May peace be upon those that accompany the stranger."

This salutation also is used by friends when meeting alone. No matter what the state of a man's birth or his power or his dignity, if he is on horseback he must greet the man on foot. The man on foot first greets the man that is sitting. The man on horseback speaks first to the man riding a mule. The man on the mule speaks first to the man on the donkey.

In this the rule of greeting is from the highest to the lowest, and never the lowest to the highest. If two men of equal station meet the younger man then greets the elder, in order to show respect to age.

Tea making is a ceremonial of unusual importance to the Arabs, and, although it was introduced only about twenty years ago in Morocco, it has spread over the greater part of Northern Africa. Green tea is given preference to all other brands, and, although English breakfast tea has been tried, its flavor is not considered the most excellent.

A Troglodyte sheik when serving tea sits in his rock cave behind a low table, which is usually only about five inches high. On this are arranged several teapots, of copper and brass and silver. These oftentimes come from Mecca. As many tiny cups as there are guests are placed on a tray.

The sheik's sons wait on their father, for they hold more respect for their parent than any other race of people in the world. A son is not permitted to smoke in the presence of his father.

The sons then bring in a loaf of sugar, placing it with a hammer near the sheik. The teapots, which have been filled with water, then are placed on glowing coals. When the water boils the tea is added and great lumps of sugar are placed in the pots. Each cup then is slowly filled and the sheik tastes his to see if it is all right. All the cups are emptied then into the teapots, shaken up and poured out again. This process continues for a long time until the tea is almost like a liquor. Mint and other ingredients often are added, so that the mixture does not resemble tea.

In extreme Southern Tunisia, Mr. Johnson says, the more noise one makes in drinking tea the better pleased appears the host.

Matmata is the chief town of the caidship of Matmata, which comprises the villages of Tamezred, Zeraoua, Beniouand, Toudjane, Beniulten and Hadidji, and has 5,000 inhabitants. In the town of Matmata there is not a single house, only a picturesque medjue, built since the French occupation. They live in caves dug in the earth.

The holes in Matmata vary in depth and width, but most of them are fifteen metres deep by fifteen metres in circumference. Around these, which serve as a courtyard, are numerous caves dug in the sides of the hole. These serve as living rooms and storehouses. Entrance to the dwellings is had by means of underground tunnels through each or each.

In the centre of the courtyard there is usually a huge cistern, large mountain troughs running into it. There is but little rain there, but when there is it pours, and every drop is carefully preserved. The Troglodytes are so careful of water that they only give it to their horses and other animals once in twenty-four hours, and then not all they want.

Matmata has a special code of etiquette, says Mr. Johnson. It is considered bad form, but exceedingly dangerous, to approach near enough another man's dwelling to look down into the circular courtyard to see his women. Every dwelling has a pack of white Kabyle dogs that keep a constant watch and would fly at and tear to pieces any person who approached.

Besides this, it is exceedingly improper to enter a passageway to a dwelling house without sending a small girl or boy in first to let the women know that you are coming.

Sheik Ferdjani's cave in Matmata is described by Mr. Johnson in the most minute detail.

"The cave was whitewashed," he said. "To the left is a wooden chest and a gun, one of many. Back of the gun is a stand cut out of the rock, and a dish object, an oil lamp, the form dating back to the Greek and Roman days. There was a white object in the centre, a bedstead cut out of the rock, and there were comfortable mattresses filled with wool, and native blankets and rugs. Above the bedstead was a sort of cupboard where snuff, matches and other articles are placed.

"To the right were large oil and water jars. At the back of the cave are cous-cous covers, the largest ones having come from Ghadames. These covers and cous-cous plates are highly prized and very ornamental. Above the plates and covers were a Persian picture and an Arab almanac. When Mohammed had to flee from Mecca, 622 A. D., that date became the first year of the Mohammedan calendar, and is called 'Hegira.'"

When a man marries in this country he has to give to the parents of the bride a gift, these gifts varying according to the tribe and locality. In the mountain ranges around Tataouine, in Matmata, he gives four goats and two kids, four sheep and two lambs, twenty litres of olive oil, sixty litres of barley and forty of wheat. Other gifts, in some sections, are made to the father-in-law, and to some a present to the mother of the girl.

By these gifts he may obtain a physically perfect girl, but with less he may obtain a girl blind in one eye, but otherwise sound.

"In certain tribes the form of abduction takes place," said Mr. Johnson. "The marriage and the value of presents is arranged by a mutual friend. The bridegroom and his chums make up a small war-like party, fully armed, and about midnight they stealthily approach the village tent or cave of his beloved, who is waiting. He puts her up behind him on his full blooded Arab stallion and away they speed. Wails, lamentations and gun shots come from the home of the girl. She is taken at once to the tent of the mutual friend who has arranged the marriage and is handed over to the care of the wives.

"In the morning a warlike party of men, fully armed, ride up and demand the release of the abducted girl. After a rich feast is enjoyed and the gifts are taken to the home the bride is let go and the wedding takes place."

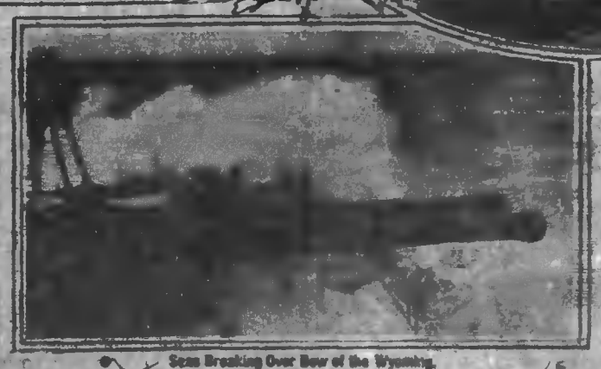
Mighty Dreadnoughts Battle Desperately with Relentless Winter Gales at Sea

Almost Hidden by Heavy Seas.
From Scientific American.

LITTLE respect has the Atlantic Ocean for anything smaller than itself and that includes bulkhead liners along shore and 20,000 ton steel battle ships. The younger officers and sailors of the navy learned this thoroughly on the homeward bound voyage of the recent cruise to the Mediterranean. Many of them imagined that the huge engines of steel beneath them would ride calmly through the worst Old Ocean could do, but when the seas began to smash on the fo'castles and the bows began to lift and plunge through an arc of forty and fifty feet they realized that Father Neptune is still in command.

As a matter of fact, the gales through which the battle ships rode demonstrated that the magnificent lines of the Wyoming, the Arkansas and the other new sister dreadnoughts are correct in theory and are calculated to make these immense ships as seaworthy as it is possible to make any kind of craft. The concave bows threw the seas backward, and the smaller waves which did come over were turned aside by the breakwaters with which this type of battle ship is equipped. At the same time the Vermont, built some time ago, and along different lines, was ploughing her nose away under every sea that came along, lifting it up and throwing it back over her superstructure like an elephant at the bath.

Nor did the Wyoming and the Arkansas escape. They reached port with their funnels and bridges streaked with the rime of salt and their decks incrusted with the crystals left by the smashing seas.



Seas Breaking Over Bow of the Wyoming.

The storm came upon the fleet early in the morning of Thursday, December 11. A fresh gale had sprung up the night before, but it did not annoy us on board the Wyoming. We even played football on the forward deck on Wednesday afternoon, only stopping when the ball was lost overboard. By morning, however, we were plunging and rolling like a tortured animal. My stateroom was well forward, and I awoke with water two inches deep washing in every direction over the floor.

Concert Was A Great Success

"An Olde Tyme Ladies' Aid Meeting at Mohawks' Cross Roads" Given at Hastings

Examiner Special:

HASTINGS, Feb. 25.—Once again it becomes our sad duty to chronicle the demise of a much respected citizen in the person of Mrs. James Fleming, relict of the late James Fleming, who passed away less than one year ago. Deceased, who was only 47 years of age, has been in failing health for several months, and about two months ago was taken to Kingston for treatment, but she gradually weakened until on Wednesday 18th the end came. On Thursday evening the body brought to Hastings and conveyed to the home of her son, from whose residence the funeral was held on Saturday last. The late Mrs. Fleming was a very active worker in the Methodist Church, being interested in all its departments and always ready to do her part, no matter how hard it seemed, and much regret is being expressed on all sides about her early removal from our midst. The funeral was largely attended, showing the respect in which she was held. Among the floral tributes was noticed a handsome wreath from the Ladies Aid, the W.M.S. and the Sunday Sunday chool. Place of interment, T. V. cemetery.

The concert given in the town hall on Wednesday evening last, under the auspices of the Ladies Aid of the Methodist Church, entitled, "An Old-time Ladies' Aid Meeting at Mohawk Cross-roads," was a grand success, financially and otherwise. Some 25 ladies in old-fashioned costume took part, each one performing her part creditably. The committee in charge have every reason to be pleased with the success of the venture.

The choir of the Presbyterian Church drove out to the home of Miss Violet Oakman on Tuesday night last and spent a social evening together. During the course of the evening Miss Oakman was made the recipient of an address and a handsome manicure set as a slight recognition of the service of song she has so assisted with for the past few years. Refreshments were served and a most enjoyable time spent together. Miss Oakman leaves in a short time for her new home in Moorefield.

The annual sleigh-ride and social in connection with the Presbyterian Sunday school, was held on Friday last in the chool room. After the children had enjoyed a good long sleigh-ride they were treated to plenty of good things, to which ample justice was done by all. After supper a good programme was given, one of the main features of which was a presentation to Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Oakman, who are soon to sever their connection with the church. Rev. D. A. Thomson read a very appreciative address and presented Mrs. Oakman with a beautiful 'sunburst' of pearls, and Mr Oakman with a watch fob. Mr. Oakman made a suitable reply, thanking the congregation for their kindness to himself and family. Altogether the gathering was a most enjoyable one Miss W. Rorabeck and Mr. R. Watson of Norwood were in town on Wednesday.

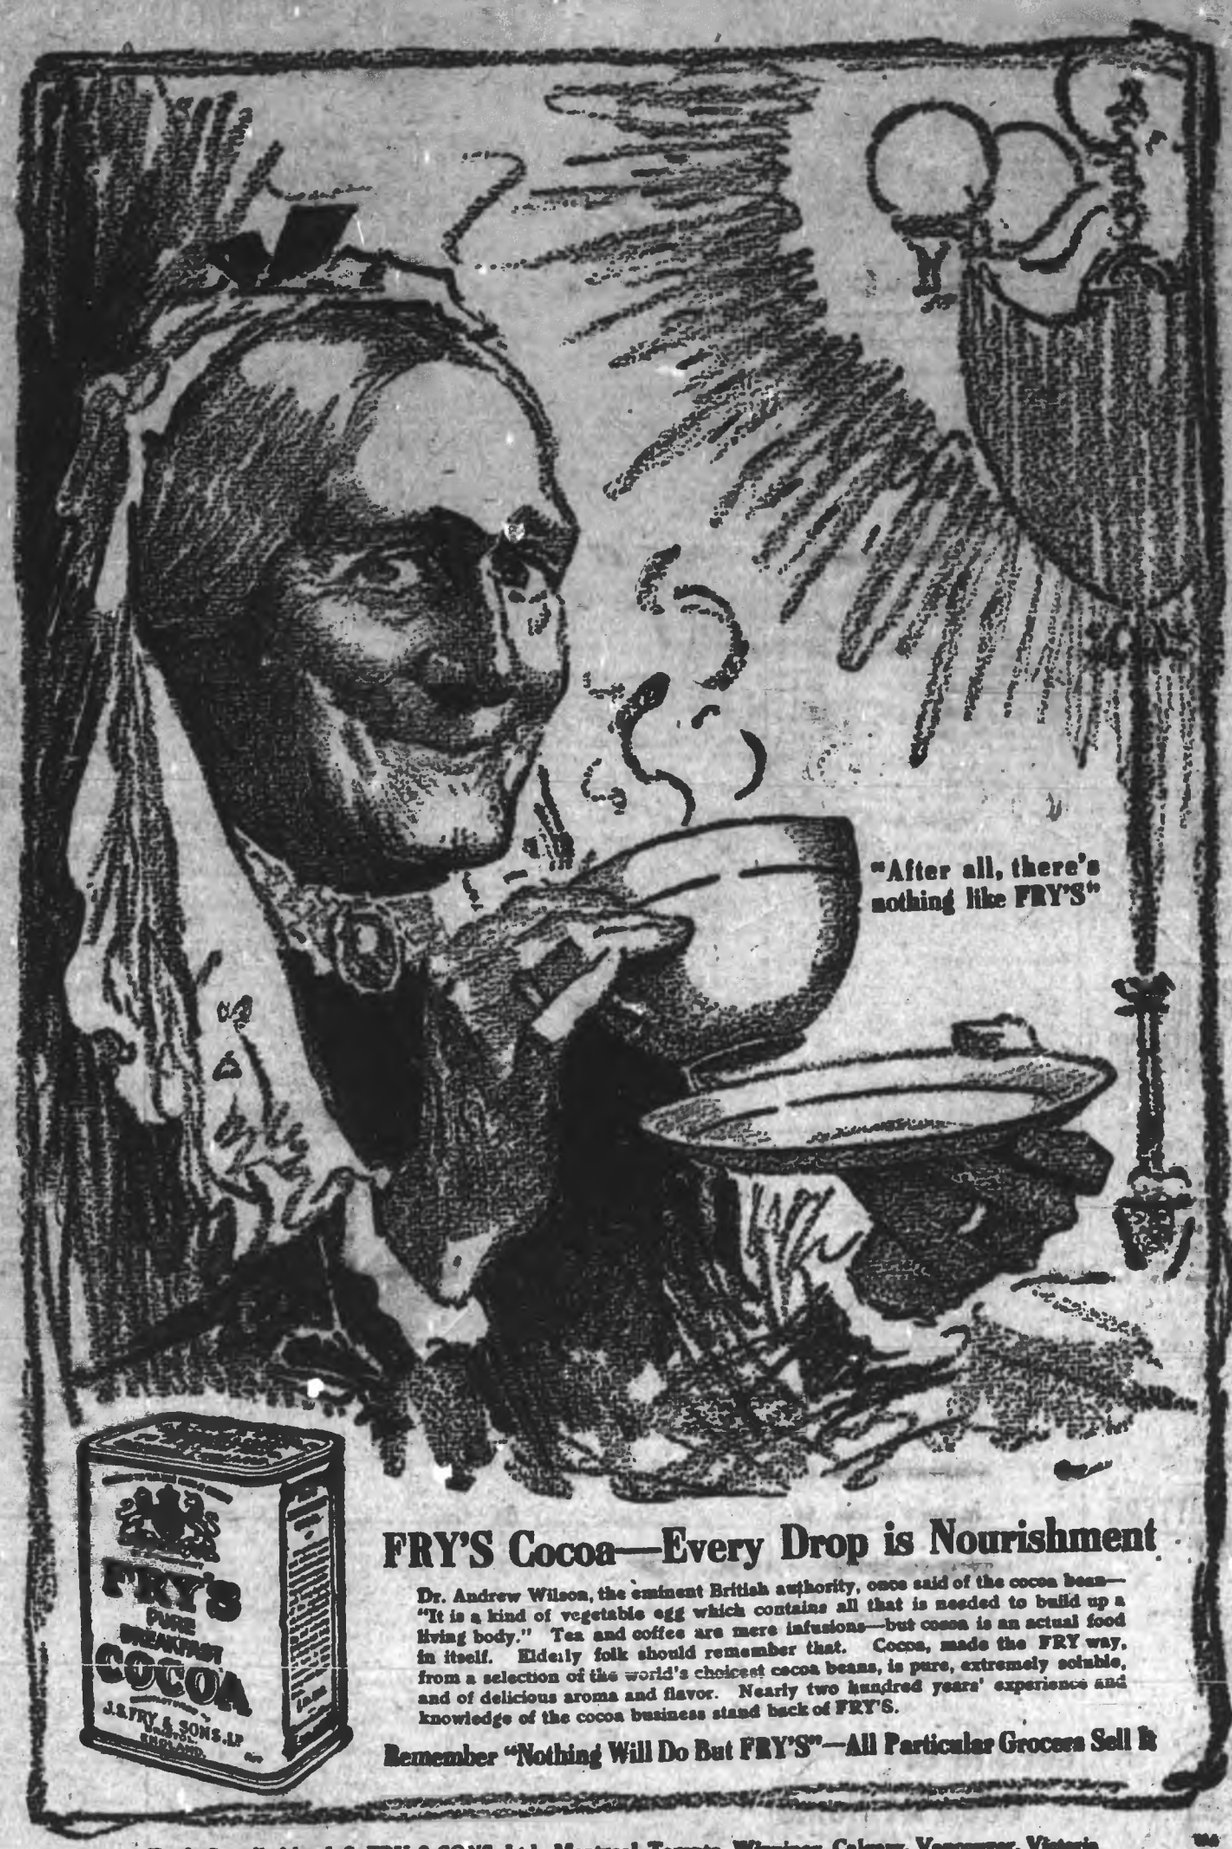
PARALYZED LIMBS

To-day it is almost impossible to find a case of Rheumatism, Sciatica, Lumbago, Backache, digestive trouble, and irritability. Most things you have some form of paralysis has developed. Mr. Alex. Rosebrugh, 18 Moore Street, St. Catharines, Ont., writes: "Nervous trouble developed into paralysis of the limbs so that I became helpless. Doctors failed me, but after using three boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I resumed work, and was well better than I did for 10 years."



FRY'S Cocoa—Every Drop is Nourishment

Dr. Andrew Wilson, the eminent British authority, once said of the cocoa bean—"It is a kind of vegetable egg which contains all that is needed to build up a living body." Tea and coffee are mere infusions—but cocoa is an actual food in itself. Elderly folk should remember that. Cocoa, made the FRY way, from a selection of the world's choicest cocoa beans, is pure, extremely soluble, and of delicious aroma and flavor. Nearly two hundred years' experience and knowledge of the cocoa business stand back of FRY'S.

English-Speaking Catholics Take Hand in Bilingual Issue.

CORNWALL, Feb. 26. — Donald McDonald, acting for himself and other ratepayers of Roman Catholic Separate School Section No. 14, on the boundary between Lancaster and Charlottenburg Townships, Glengarry County, has issued a writ to restrain Moderie Perrier, Hustis Ouimet and John Menard, trustees of that school section, from continuing to employ the present teacher, Miss Leontine Senecal, on the ground that she is not a qualified teacher, also that she has been illegally engaged.

Trouble has been brewing for some time, and the writ by the English-speaking ratepayers is the outcome.

The plaintiff further seeks to restrain the trustee defendants from employing or using the rates of the Separate School Section for the maintenance of the school house in such section until a properly qualified teacher is in charge, and to restrain the defendant, Leontine Senecal, from teaching in said school, and to restrain the defendants from using or allowing the use of French as the language of instruction or communication in the school of such Separate School Section.

COMMITTEE BEGINS.

Redistribution In Quebec Is First on the List.

OTTAWA, Feb. 26.—The redistribution committee of the Commons will meet to-day. It is expected that rapid progress will be made with Ontario, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, which will be taken first, as there appears to be no disposition on the part of Liberals to quarrel with the proposal of the Government regarding these provinces. Quebec and Prince Edward Island will be left to the last.

The Liberals are opposed to the proposal to give the island province four members, and the fact that half a dozen rural constituencies in Quebec will be wiped out to make people that additional member in Montreal will cause a little royal among the French-Canadian members. Montreal will probably have eleven seats.

OCEAN LINE NEEDED

Federal Ships Would Break Combine, Says D. B. Wood

RESOLUTION IS ADOPTED

TORONTO, Feb. 26.—"A Government-owned fleet of fifteen to twenty Atlantic steamships to combat the ocean freight rate combine would be secured at a cost of $5,000,000," declared D. B. Wood of Hamilton at the annual meeting of the Associated Boards of Trade of Ontario at the city hall yesterday.

He declared that the Hydro-electric policy had killed the electric combine in Ontario; the parcel post system would eventually stop excessive express rates, and that it was now up to the Government to destroy the most iniquitous combine that existed in commerce to-day — the ocean freight rate combine. Canadians were annually contributing millions of dollars in excessive rates.

The Dominion Government had granted $130,000,000 to the C.P.R., $37,000,000 in five years to the C.N.R., and hundreds of millions in the building of the National Transcontinental, and could not reasonably refuse to accept such a chance effectually to kill the ocean freight combine as could be accomplished at an initial cost of five millions.

A resolution embodying the suggestion was put and carried unanimously.

A resolution was passed declaring that the present standard of residence within Canada be raised to at least five years.

Another resolution urged that the Hydro-Electric Commission proceed with the development of power in New Ontario.

In moving a resolution on the subject of undesirable immigrants, W. P. Gundy of the Toronto Board of Trade alleged that Canada was "the dumping ground of the scum of Europe," and declared that the proper class of immigrants, but undesirable, discarded, immoral people in many thousands.

The principal officers elected for the coming year are as follows: President, A. J. Young, North Bay; first vice-president, H. Mome-Smith, Toronto; second vice-president, H. L. Frost, Hamilton; third vice-president, R. Meek, Kingston.

SALTS FINE FOR ACHING KIDNEYS

We All Too Much Neglect Our Kidneys. Then the Back Hurts

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have headache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean, and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is harmless to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity. It also neutralizes the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is harmless; inexpensive; makes delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everybody should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean, thus avoiding serious complications.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming trouble while it is only trouble.

ADMISSIONS TO CAUSE.

Mesurnan and Nevinson Go to Prison as Pro-Suffrage Protest.

LONDON, Feb. 26.—Five prominent suffragists were charged before the police magistrate at Bow street yesterday with obstructing the police during Tuesday night's demonstration in Parliament square, when they protested violently against Premier Asquith, who had refused to receive them.

The prisoners were: Laurence Housman, author and artist; Henry W. Nevinson, war correspondent; Mrs. D. A. Thomas, wife of the Welsh coal magnate; H. D. Harben, and Miss K. Haig.

The magistrate ordered them all to be bound over in a bond of $25 each to be of good behavior for six months. The prisoners all refused to enter into the bond.

In a speech from prisoners' enclosure Laurence Housman said he was there as a protest against the treatment of women political offenders and he would continue to protest so long as he thought it justified and necessary.

In the ordinary course offenders refusing to be bound over remain in prison for six months.

American Citizen In Mexico By Mexican Soldiers.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26. — The Mexican ambassador, Wilson has centred closely for the last few days upon efforts to determine how and why the Constitutionalists executed William S. Bolted, a British subject, who broadcast yesterday, when General Carranza, at Nuevo Laredo, was instructed to inquire into the charges by Mexican Federals at Clemenceau Vargara, an American citizen.

Vergara had been robbed of horses by insurgents crossing the river into the U. S. on several occasions. It is alleged that shortly he was kidnapped by the Federals and jailed. He was released only to be shot by the soldiers and his body hanged on a tree.

WHAT DYSPEPTICS SHOULD EAT

A PHYSICIAN'S ADVICE.

"Indigestion and practically all forms of stomach trouble are, nine times out of ten, due to acidity; therefore stomach sufferers should, whenever possible, avoid eating food that is acid in its nature, or which by chemical action in the stomach develops acidity. Unfortunately, such a wide classification must foods which are pleasant to the taste as well as those which are rich in blood, flesh and nerve building properties. This is the reason dyspeptics are obliged to eat many things in order to obtain the nourishment they require, and which their vital energy which sets every organ from a watch-spring. For that reason all those sufferers who have been obliged to abstain from their diet all starchy, sweet or fatty food, and are trying to keep up a miserable existence on gluten products, I would suggest that you should try a variety of any food or foods which you may like, in moderate amount, taking immediately afterwards a teaspoonful of harmless magnesia in a little hot or cold water. This will neutralize any acid which may be present, or which may be developing, and instead of the usual feeling of distress and fullness, you will find that your food agrees with you perfectly. Magnesia, moreover, is doubtless the best digestive and antacid known. It has no after action on the stomach; but by neutralizing the acidity of the food contents, and thus removing the source of the acid irritation which inflames the delicate stomach lining, it does more than could possibly be done by any direct or medicinal action. As a physician, I believe in the use of medicine whenever necessary, but I have yet to admit that I consider the order of doctoring an inflamed and irritated stomach with drugs instead of getting rid of the main cause of all the trouble. Get a little bisurated magnesia from your druggist, not what you want at your meal, but take some of the bisurated magnesia as directed above, and see if I'm not right."

Farm and Dairy Market Report

Toronto, Monday, Feb. 23.—As the spring trade further develops business seems to get rapid to become more optimistic. As fall-plowing gets under way, farmers are now coming in with the usual rush, and are starting in with their spring seeding operations. The general impression seems to prevail that the country has come through the depression that prevailed almost last summer. One favorable feature is that money is a little more plentiful, and may now be had on call at 6 per cent., although even at this price banks do not seem anxious to place loans.

Grains have been stronger this week, while the live stock market has tended to lower levels. Dairy produce is firm on a normal market.

WHEAT

The wheat market has been strong the world over. Prices have practically advanced, and there has been considerable enquiry for Canadian wheat from Europe. Wheat holders, however, are very optimistic, and little business is being done, practically new crop. No. 2 Northern, 91; No. 3 Northern, 89; all-rail, 6c more; Ontario wheat, 88c to 90c outside.

COARSE GRAINS

Coarse grains generally are in stronger demand, corn and barley both moving to higher levels; Ont. C.W. No. 2, 41½c; No. 3, 40½c; Ontario No. 2, 39c to 40c; corn, 69c to 70c; peas, 88c to 89c; buckwheat, 74c to 75c; barley, 48c to 49c. Montreal quotations are: Man. C.W. No. 2, 42½c; No. 3, 41c; No. 1 feed, 40c; corn, 70½c to 71c; peas, $1.80 to $1.85; buckwheat, 76c; rye, 85c to 86c; feed wheat, 76c to 80c.

MILL FEEDS

Mill feeds are decidedly stronger under the impetus of a good Canadian and United States demand. Quotations here are: Bran, $22 to $23.00; shorts, $25 to $26.00; middlings, $28 to $30; feed flour, $30 to $32. Montreal quotations: Bran, $23; shorts, $25; middlings, $28.

POTATOES AND BEANS

There is no change in the potato market, supply and demand being nicely balanced. Ontario's, 75c to 80c per 90 lbs. in car lots; New Brunswicks, 80c more. Montreal wholesale dealers ask 85c to 90c for Green Mountains, 77½c for Quebec Whites.

Beans are stronger. Prices are here quoted $2.20 to $2.25; hand picked, $2.30 to $2.35. Montreal dealers ask for hand-picked, $2.45 to $2.47½; three-pound pickers, $2.30 to $2.35.

HONEY

Merchants are paying farmers a bushel as follows: Alsike, No. 1, $5.50 to 60; No. 2, $7.50 to 60; No. 3, 56 to 57; red clover, No. 1, $9.25 to $9.75; No. 2, $7.50 to 60; timothy, No. 1, $2.75 to $3.00; No. 2, 60 to $3.00.

HAY AND STRAW

The hay market is now firm at recent declines, and while there is no demand from the Old Country a few lots are going forward to the United States. In Ontario the demand is largely local. Quotations: No. 1 baled hay, $14.00; No. 2, $13.00 to $13.50; No. 3, 60 to 60; baled straw, $8.50. At Montreal little enquiry from the United States is reported. Prices are still firm. No. 1, $16 to $16.50; No. 2, $15 to $15.50; No. 3 $12.50 to $13.

EGGS AND POULTRY

March is not usually considered a winter month in the egg trade, as receipts then come round to a more normal proportions. Already in United States and Canada are increasing greatly, and the tendency here is toward lower levels, a decline of one cent being noted in the past week in new-laids and splits. Wholesale quotations now are: New-laids, 35c to 36c; splits, 30c to 34c; storage, 25c to 26c. The retail quotation is 40c to 45c. Most local quotations are dropping already with the usual United States forecast. Quotations are now: No. 1, 22c to 23c; new-laid, 30c to 32c.

Quotations on dressed poultry are: Fowl, 15c to 16c; chickens, 18c to 20c; spring chickens, 18c to 22c; ducks, 18c to 20c; geese, 12c to 13c and 15c to 16c; turkeys, 17c to 18c and 18c to 20c.

DAIRY PRODUCE

Receipts of butter are not yet increasing to any great extent, though indications point to an increase next month during the summer. Several cars of creamery are reported to have travelled westward during the week. The cheese situation, too, is decidedly promising, and if conditions obtain there is no reason why large trade cannot be done this summer. Quotations are: Creamery prints, 32c to 33c; dairy prints, 31c to 32c; creamery prints, fresh, 30c to 32c; solids, 30c to 31c; storage, 28c to 29c. Cheese quotations are: New large, 16c; twins, 16½c; old large, 16½c; twins, 16½c.

LIVE STOCK

Cattle quotations have taken a step backward to the level of three weeks ago. During the past week the shipments that had to be held back because of severe weather arrived on the market and lower levels were established on Monday. Prices are on such moderate that is taken very little to weaken the market and the demand to the packers are easily supplied. During the latter part of the week receipts would fall, but even then the market tended to decline. Quotations now average as follows: Butchers' cattle, choice, $6.25 to 60.50; com. to good, $5.75 to $6.15; heifers, $6.25 to $6.50; cows, choice, $5.40 to 57; com. to good, $4.75 to $5.25; bulls, $4.25 to $7.50; feeders, $6 to $7.50; stockers, $5.50 to $6.25; canners and cows, $3.50 to $4.25.

Choice milch cows go freely at $60 to $80; com. to med., $35 to $50; springers, $60 to $100. Calves bring 6c to 10c, according to size and quality.

Small lots of sheep are steady, with quotations as follows: Weather lambs, $8.75 to $9.75; buck lambs, $6.25 to $8; ewes, $6 to $7; culls, $3 to $4.

A feature of the hog market has been the large receipts from Western Canada. On Thursday of last week 1,600 hogs arrived from the Canadian North-West and 800 the day before. Further consignments are expected. This has pushed the price down below the $9 mark, and packers are now offering $8.60 f.o.b. country points.

MONTREAL BUTTER AND CHEESE MARKETS

Montreal, Saturday, Feb. 21.—The cheese trade is very quiet, without any business worth noting, and will probably remain in this state until the recent cuts are made in the spring. Cable advices from the other side indicate a very firm market with scarcity of Canadian cheese reduced to a minimum. Market for butter is much firmer this week, with good demand from all parts of the country and dealers report free buying on the part of local trade. Finest Creamery Townships fall made is quoted at 32½, with June quoted all the way from 30c to 32½c, according to quality. BIG BUILDING BURNS.

Damage Amounting to $250,000 Done In Toronto Fire.

TORONTO, Feb. 26. — Throwing two hundred men out of work, and doing damage of a quarter of a million dollars, a fire which broke out in the five-storey building of the Independent Cloak Co., 579 Richmond street west, proved one of the most disastrous and spectacular that has occurred in the city for many months. The flames spread with such rapidity that Chief Thompson on his arrival ordered his men to direct their their efforts to preventing a spread to other buildings.

Foreigners living close by told the firemen that they had both men at a window on one of the upper floors and a wild rumor spread that there were men confined in the building. The police and firemen made every effort to learn whether such was the case, but a search in this respect was unrewarded. The foreigners were probably mistaken.

Villa to enable Consul Percival of Galveston to participate in the investigation into the death of William S. Benton at Juarez.

Francis Dyke Acland, Parliamentary Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs, stated yesterday in the House of Commons that the Foreign Office was not prepared to order Consul Percival to leave El Paso for the dangerous districts of Mexico until it had received some assurance that he would be safe in doing so.

Second Mutineer Bodies.

NEISSE, Germany, Feb. 26.—The decapitated bodies of two orderlies of Major-Gen. Bosse, commander of the infantry Brigade here, were found yesterday on the railroad tracks. The soldiers had fled after assaulting the general, who had reprimanded them for rising late.

Proposed Negro Colony.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—At the request of the British Government the State Department has asked the Department of Justice to enquire into the proposed establishment of a negro kingdom on the Gold Coast of Africa by Chief Sam of Oklahoma. An investigation will be made, although it is not believed the American Government can take any action to prevent the emigration of negroes.

The British officials suggested that Chief Sam and his followers might find the Gold Coast unsuitable for their kingdom.

ROWELL SHOWS NO SYMPATHY FOR EVANTUREL IN THE BIG DISCLOSURE

Member for Prescott Offered to Act for Liquor Interests by Opposing His Own Party—Sensational Scene When Letter Was Read.

$10,000 FOR HIS SERVICES

TORONTO, Feb. 26.—Scandalous and dramatic scenes were witnessed in the House yesterday afternoon when Mr. Gustave Evanturel (Prescott) broke an open silence, on his understanding as a member of the House, that there was an alliance between the liquor interests and the Conservative party in the county of Prescott. Mr. G. Howard Ferguson (Grenville), in reply, produced a letter written by the member for Prescott, soliciting a retainer from the liquor party to act as their representative in the Legislature, to oppose the Liberal policy to abolish the last cent theft against further restrictive legislation by the Government. For this service he wanted $10,000.

Before adjournment in the evening, Mr. N. W. Rowell, in a clear summing up of the situation, said that the conduct of Mr. Evanturel did not excuse the Government for lack of law enforcement in Prescott if the statements made were true. There was, however, no justification for Mr. Evanturel's writing the letter read offering his services to the liquor party, and on that he said his constituents would doubtless decide the proper line of action after the matter had been considered.

Mr. Evanturel, speaking to the amendment to the address, moved by Dr. McQueen (Lib., Wentworth) said that during the present debate his attention had been attracted to certain remarks by the leader of the Opposition of an alliance between the Conservative party and the liquor interests.

"I have the privilege to say, and I am prepared to prove it or resign my seat in this House, that there is in the County of Prescott, which I have the honor to represent in this House by a fair majority, a great and more than a great alliance between the Conservative party and the liquor interests. I call it scandal. I call it graft. I will prove it to you to-day."

Mr. Evanturel then went on to allege juggling of licenses, irregularities of license commissioners and traffic in a shop license and in the first named charge carried on a sharp dispute with Mr. Hanna.

Mr. Evanturel declared that the enforcement of the license law in the County of Prescott was a farce. A hotelkeeper, the second vice-president of the Conservative Association, maintained a house that was only a nuisance. Further mixing of the liquor traffic and politics, Mr. Evanturel declared, obtained in connection with the license inspector, Mr. Joseph Lemieux, who was also a Conservative organizer.

Mr. G. Howard Ferguson (Grenville) in his reply expressed doubt of the sincerity of Mr. Evanturel's motives. He declared the belief that Mr. Evanturel had an interest in the liquor traffic. He had not always been opposed to granting licenses to houses on Dominion Days. "He offered to take a retainer from the liquor interests to defend their action, and still he has the hardihood to pose as a man supporting the policy of the Opposition."

"Does he admit that he made a proposition?" protested Mr. Ferguson, "that he negotiated with the liquor people? I would like to know."

Mr. Evanturel replied that there was no alliance whatever between himself and the liquor interests.

"He said there is no alliance or any negotiations looking towards an alliance between himself and the liquor interests," continued Mr. Ferguson, who held up a letter which he declared Mr. Evanturel had addressed to a hotelkeeper in Prescott County. He has forced me to read it to the House."

Amid an intense silence, broken only when Mr. Ferguson began to read the following epistle:

Alfred, Ont., Sept. 4, 1914.

Dear Sir,—I have written a long letter to the secretary of the Hotelkeepers' Association for Ontario, Mr. Allen, 24 Wellington street, Toronto, asking him to submit my letter to the directors of the association at their first meeting. In that letter I placed myself as a true friend of the association and prepared to fight in the fullest and vote against my liberal on that question of abolishing the bar, only I have been in the past, one of the speakers that has stood on the platform in the County of Prescott against the Scott Act when it was carried seven years ago in the province, during the last summer I have spoken all my county and I have openly declared that I would not support my leader, Mr. Rowell, on his policy to abolish the bars, and I have in my two previous speeches

NEW HARDWARE STORE OPENED BY H. P. MORGAN

Premises Are Bright, Airy and Commodious—Agency of Sherwin-Williams Paint Co. Secured

QUALITY AND SERVICE

Mr. Harry P. Morgan has opened a new hardware store in the premises north of the Bank of Nova Scotia, and during the past few days has met with a most encouraging reception on the part of the hardware purchasing public. The Morgan store has been equipped with a neat and attractive front, and the interior has been given a bright finish which, with excellent lighting facilities, makes it a real daylight store. This is the first striking feature of the new hardware store. A high ceiling, an abundance of light, and the work of the decorators have combined to secure an airiness that modern merchants regard as one of the first necessities, and one of the best assets of an up-to-date store.

One of the most noticeable departments in this new store is devoted to paints, oils and varnishes, in which the famous Sherwin-Williams products are given a very conspicuous place. Mr. Morgan received a big boost when he was given the agency for this company, and it is an illusstration of the confidence placed in him by the manufacturer and, generally speaking, of the prominent position he holds in the opinion of the wholesale trade.

The Morgan store will cater to painters, and will feature this department. A complete lines of household goods has been placed on the shelves and whether it is in paints, spring housecleaning goods or in other allied lines the householder is assured of receiving every attention and consideration. Labour men will note that this store has the agency for the Sawyer Tool Co., of Ashburnham, Conn., which is said to be the only union shop in the business.

Mr. Morgan has also prepared to cater to the needs of the contractors and is ready for the opening of the building season. He will open a sporting goods department with a complete stock of guns, fishing tackle, baseball, football and similar goods.

Mr. Morgan's aims will be to give the citizens quality goods and service. The store has been well laid out, with a neat alcove display of carpenter's tools. The details of the general arrangement of the departments may be passed over. They can be seen on a personal visit to the store, which requires one or two details before it is entirely complete. For instance, a ladder to facilitate reaching the upper shelves has not arrived yet, but this has in no way prevented business from growing since the first of the week.

Harry Morgan is one of the most widely known and popular hardware men in Peterborough. His fifteen years' experience with the Peterborough Hardware Company has not only given him a training extending from the lowest to the highest position, but it has also introduced him to practically the entire purchasing public whose confidence he has always held. He has secured an able assistant in Mr. Chas. E. McGibbon, formerly of the Peterborough Hardware Company. Mr. McGibbon is not only a good salesman, but he has shown ability as a window decorator.

The Morgan store is just making a beginning this week, and the first returns have been most encouraging. As the busy season opens up, it may be safely concluded that business will grow rapidly. The store has been well located, and a big electric sign is being constructed by Turner.

DISPENSARY WRECKED BY AN EXPLOSION

Fire Caused by Spontaneous Combustion Did Considerable Damage in Dr. Gallivan's Office.

BOTTLES SHATTERED

The dispensary of Dr. Gallivan's office was wrecked this morning by the explosion of chemicals caused by a fire arising from spontaneous combustion. It seems that shortly before 1 o'clock to-day some bandages and cotton batting caught fire and the heat generated caused the chemicals to explode. Several hundred medicine bottles were shattered, shelves were torn from the walls and other damage done to the office. The Fire Brigade was called and extinguished the blaze. The fire did not amount to much, the damage being done by the explosion. It will amount to several hundred dollars.

EVIDENCE ALL IN IN CASE AGAINST THE VILLAGE OF HAVELOCK

Counsel For Both Sides Addressed the Jury at Length —This Morning's Session

The following is the close of the defence that was offered in the case of Robinson versus the Corporation of Havelock, which case has occupied the attention of the Judge and Jury for the past two days. The case holds some very delicate points of law, and whether the children were licensee or invitees will have to be decided.

Rode on Waggon.

Mr. Lennon said that the Robinson children had ridden on his waggon toward the pit, but before he arrived at the pit he put them off. He could not say how often that had occurred. He had resided in Havelock for two years and he had never known a fence to be around the pit. On the day of the accident witness said he drew a load of white sand from the place where the accident subsequently occurred. He had drawn loads before, but not from that particular spot. Others may have done so.

Mr. O'Connell—"When did you arrive at the pit after you heard of the accident?"

Witness: "Just as the third body was taken out."

Mr. O'Connell: "What part of her body was visible?"

Witness: "Her head and shoulders."

Mr. O'Connell: "You tell us there was no projecting ledge. Then how do you explain the fact that the children were so completely covered with sand?"

Witness: "I don't know unless they had been digging with a stick or their hands."

Mr. Kerr: "Could the children have undermined that portion of land?"

Witness: "Yes, easily, in a very few minutes."

Fenced the Road.

William T. Curtis, a Councillor of Havelock, said that Robinson had told him he had sent the children up the road to play. The Corporation bought the pit about eight years ago and had it fenced the first year they had it."

Mr. Kerr—"For what purpose was the fence?"

Witness: "To keep people from taking gravel from the pit."

Mr. Kerr: "Not to stop people going in."

Witness: "No. The posts were not too far apart to stop people going in."

Mr. Kerr: "Have you seen children playing in the pit?"

Witness: "Yes, my own have played there."

Mr. Kerr: "You have not got any to spare?"

Witness: "No."

Took Photographs.

Jesse Richards, a hardware man residing in Havelock, deposed to having taken photographs of the place where the accident occurred. This he did at the request of Dr. Kindred and Mr. Jones. He could not tell how long after the accident he took the photographs.

Some Councillors.

Wm. Jones, a Councillor in Havelock the year of the unfortunate accident, said he was present with Richards when the photographs produced were taken.

John Howe, another Councillor was next called.

Mr. Kerr: "Have you or did you ever recive any complaints regarding the pit?"

Witness: "No."

John Higley, who was a councillor of the Village in 1913, said he had been acquainted with the gravel pit since the Corporation bought it.

Mr. O'Connell: "You did not see anybody in it?"

Witness: "No."

John Wright, another Councillor of the year in which the accident occurred, said he had known the pit in question since he had lived in Havelock, a matter of 12 years. He would not like to say that he had ever seen any children in the pit.

Mr. Kerr: "Were there any complaints ever made to you about the condition of the pit?"

Witness: "No."

George A. Greaves, a miller in Havelock, said he had been a resident of the Town for fourteen months and was acquainted with the gravel pit. He saw the little boy, one victim of the accident, about 4 o'clock on the afternoon of the tragedy, drawing a little waggon up the hill in the direction of the pit.

Reeve Kindred, sworn, said he was with Richards when the photograph were taken.

Mr. Kerr: "Are these, to your mind, a fair and reasonable reproduction of the scene of the accident?"

Witness: "Yes."

This concluded the list of witnesses for the defence, and at this point His Lordship Justice Kelly, left the bench to prepare his questions for the Jury. At the end of a quarter of an hour he returned, and adjourned the Court until 10 o'clock this morning.

THIS MORNING'S SESSION.

Mr. Kerr, addressing the jury, said: May it Please Your Worship and Gentlemen of the Jury,—After one and a half days of evidence, it has now come to the point, where you, some-

PENITENTIARY HOSPITAL IS DESTROYED BY FIRE

Three Hundred and Fifty Prisoners Including Several Desperate Characters, Moved Safely.

NO ATTEMPT TO ESCAPE

Special Wire to The Examiner:

MONTREAL, Feb. 26.—The hospital annex of St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary was destroyed and the original department considerably damaged by fire which broke out at 6 o'clock this morning. Three hundred and fifty prisoners were all removed safely to the main building, though at one time several inmates were cut off from rescue. Part of the Montreal Fire Department was summoned. The penitentiary is fifteen miles from here. That one will be one hundred thousand dollars. There was no panic or attempt to escape on the part of the prisoners, who included desperadoes and murderers. A troop of Royal Canadian Dragoons at St. Jeans were in readiness to proceed to help control the prisoners, but their services were not required.

TAX RATE MAY EXCEED 25 MILLS

Increased Demands of Civic Departments Have Absorbed Increased Income on Assessment

BOARD OF WORKS

Street Commissioner Evans has applied for a substantial increase in salary. The matter will come up before a meeting of the committee of the Whole Council this evening. It was given preliminary consideration by the Board of Works, which met last night. Those present were, Ald. Duncan (chairman), His Worship Mayor Fuller, Aldermen Duffus, Anderson, Stratton, McIntyre, Johnston, Saunders, Green and Engineer Parsons.

The Street Railway Company's plans for improving their system to give a 10-minutes' service by building a turn-out track on George Street north and south of Charlotte, for a total distance of about 475 feet, were practically approved of. The turn-out north of Charlotte Street will not be more than 100 feet in length, thus not interfering with the pavement at present laid on George Street. Other improvements to the track are to be made and suitable sums brought into requisition. The 475 feet turn-out of double track on George Street will be found of great convenience to the public in transferring at Charlotte and George Streets, as cars going both north and south will always be found waiting the C.G.E. and Jackson Park cars; in fact, passengers on a Jackson Park car will be able to step directly on to a car going north without alighting on the ground.

The increased income this year on the assessment has already been absorbed by increased demands from the Police Commissioners and the School Board, together with increased interest and sinking fund for debentures.

BODY OF LATE REV. T. J. MANSELL TAKEN TO PLACE OF BIRTH

The body of the late Rev. T. J. Mansell was removed from the Charlotte Street Methodist Church this morning at eight o'clock to the G.T.R. station. The last earthly journey of the late beloved pastor was then begun. The remains were conveyed to Moulinette on the Belleville train and the last stage of the funeral was held upon the arrival of the train in the birth place of the Mansell family.

A special car had been secured for the convenience of the relatives of the deceased, and of the representatives of the congregation of the Charlotte Street Church. Among those who left Peterborough to attend the interment were: Rev. Mr. Peever and Rev. Mr. Clarry, the two sons of the late Rev. Mr. Mansell, Mr. Isaac Mansell, brother of the deceased, Mr. Ault, brother-in-law, Messrs. W. G. Morrow, R. Neill, H. Hawley, A. B. Cunningham, W. D. Campbell, W. J. Greene, W. C. Switzer, W. C. Austin, Mr. Arthur W. Belleghem also accompanied the remains.

CLARKE'S JEWELRY STORE

The Bidding Goes on Briskly —Some Humorous Situations

Some very humorous happenings occur at the auction sale of the jewelry stock of that at H. W. Clarke's yesterday. One in particular will bear repeating. A chafing dish was being sold, a man in the front of the store evidently being bent on having its owner, and another bidder, had the same intention. Several bids had been taken on the article when the latter said half to himself:

"Who the deuce is bidding against me?"

Just then a female voice piped out: "Five and a half."

"My Gracious My mother-in-law!" And after that a dead silence reigned. Evidently he had been properly trained.

The auctioneer creates a favorable impression, as he is versatile as well as interesting, and expert in a knowledge of the goods.

CALEDONIAN SLEIGH DRIVE

The Peterborough Caledonian Club held on Wednesday night an enjoyable sleigh drive, when the members of the Club participated in the [illegible] offered by the new office-bearers, no doubt deserve great credit. The party left the Post Office by way of Water street right around Nassau, coming around the river, then through Ashburnham to the W.O.W. hall, George street. Over 40 members enjoyed the outing, as it was necessary to have four sleighs. Arriving back to the city the company retired to the Hall, when the Committee had a excellent repast ready, under the capable supervision of Mr. Hooper, caterer, George St. The rest of the evening was spent in harmony with various amusements until the early morning, everybody having a good report of the event.

Now! Caledonian members, nothing on Friday night, a large attendance is necessary.

Knapman For Junior All Star

Harold Knapman of the local Victor O. H. A. team, is likely to get a berth on the All Star Junior O. H. A. team which will be selected to play the annual game against the Junior Champions. The All Stars want a right-wing player. "Knapple" has been strongly recommended for the position. According to Secretary W. A. Hewitt, Peterborough's chances are bright. Grover Hill would have been sure of a place on the All Stars had he not played intermediate hockey.

Peterborough had a man on the All Stars two years ago, when Cy Denison was selected.

"SAFETY FIRST."

It is the observation of everybody who has taken the trouble to notice, that nine-tenths of what are called accidents—fatal and otherwise — are the result of carelessness; of indifference to even ordinary caution. Recognizing this, the Grand Trunk Railway has organized a safety committee, in order to guard its employees and the public against accident. This committee issues periodical reports, in the form of bulletins, of accidents and their causes. Bulletin number two, now to hand, contains details of "some recent cases of injury and death to Grand Trunk employees, which could have been avoided with greater care." The list comprises twenty-six cases, including three deaths. The details furnished by the report show that all of these accidents might have been avoided by compliance with the rules and regulations of the Railway, or by having taken the precautions advised by the general safety committee. The Grand Trunk is entitled to great credit for taking official cognisance of the safety of the life and limbs of its employees, and incidentally of the safety of the passengers it carries. Its action is justified on both humanitarian and business grounds. Human suffering always demands our human sympathies, and it stands to reason that the safety from accident of employees of a railway has a direct and important bearing upon its business success. The bulletin closes with the emphasized injunction: "If you have been guilty of unsafe practices, such as mentioned in this bulletin, it is due solely to good luck that you are alive today; better stop now—right now—while your body is whole, your job secure and your conscience clear." An injunction like this applies, in spirit, to everybody as well as to railway employees. With the exercise of, even, reasonable care, with the adoption of, even, ordinary precaution, nine-tenths of the accidents that bring disability, partial or complete, and death, would be avoided.

CATERPILLARS.

With the thermometer below zero for a fortnight at a stretch, one hasn't many visions of flies, mosquitoes and caterpillars. They are, however, biding their time and will, in due course, make their existence felt. With the opening of spring the caterpillar bracelets will unfold into myriad life of these annoying and destructive pests. He who cares to look with a little care, will notice the caterpillar bracelets on the terminal twigs of trees, fruit trees and even shade trees. Now is the time to work the easiest destruction. Cutting off a twig bearing a caterpillar bracelet, that is, the egg, and casting it into the fire, will destroy hundreds of caterpillars. If this is done in time and generally; if everybody who has trees and shrubs about him would do likewise, the caterpillar pest, which promises to be severe this year—for every cycle of appearance grows yearly worse— will have been very sensibly reduced.

A word is to be said especially to farmers whose orchards as well as those of their neighbours, are threatened with comparative ruin. Along side the fences of farms between fields and along highways there is generally a growth of shrubs, scrub seedling apple trees and worst of all, choke-cherry trees. These are the favourite hatching places of caterpillars. In default of rooting up and destroying these scrub growths, the next best thing is to put them under close watch, and in the comparatively leisure days of early spring, destroy — cut off and burn—every visible caterpillar bracelet. If this is generally done; if the same thing is applied to the bracelets on city trees and shrubs, the caterpillar nuisance will be greatly reduced, and if done with the thoroughness possible, will be virtually wiped out. We don't perhaps, realize the necessity of this with the danger in the distance; but if we can fancy the conditions with caterpillars destroying our tree and fruit growth, swarming over our grounds and houses, and crawling over our persons, we will appreciate the importance of prompt and thorough destruction of millions of caterpillars, represented by the destruction of the bracelets—the egg deposit, each containing from five hundred to a thousand potential caterpillars.

TEMPERANCE CONSISTENCY.

The Toronto World publishes with a little jubilant display of heading an instance of where it thinks Mr. W. J. Johnson, M. P. P., of West Hastings, had Mr. R. W. Rowell on the hip in the matter of temperance consistency. Mr Rowell is well known for his stand on the policy of abolishing the bar in Ontario. In the debate on the address in the Legislature, the matter of the inconsistency of the Government in not promising in the speech from the throne the anti-treating legislation the Government promised as an excuse for shelving Mr. Rowell's abolish-the-bar proposals, was referred to. Mr. Johnson employed the tu quoque argument, triumphantly pointing to the fact that the Ontario Club in Toronto, a Liberal club, had a liquor license, and he asked if Mr. Rowell had made any effort to have that license cancelled, as if failure to do this was proof of Mr. Rowell's insincerity in his advocacy of the policy of banishing the bar. It's no proof. Mr. Rowell is not a whiskey detective; it is not his place to demand the cancellation of a license existing under the law of the land. Mr. Rowell may not have demanded the cancellation of this particular license, but he has demanded its cancellation together with all the other licenses in the Province. His policy of abolish the bar calls for the cancellation of all effect, the cancellation of the licenses of clubs. Mr. Rowell demanded, in effect, the cancillation of the licenses of the Ontario Club and all other clubs, and the answer of the Whitney Government, two years ago, was the promise of introducing legislation forbidding treating as a better temperance measure. The Whitney Government is the inconsistent party in the matter. If there is any merit, either in Rowell's abolish-the-bar policy, or Whitney's anti-treating policy the Whitney Government has destroyed both. It will not agree either to the abolition of the bar or enact the substitute of anti-treating legislation. The Whitney Government, through the head of the License Department, denies that it is in alliance with the liquor interests. It may not be; but it is careful not to injure it to a degree that shows almost parental solicitude; and a community of interest amounting to a moral or, if it is preferred, immoral, alliance. At least another alliance, the Dominion Alliance, objects to this moral understanding, or alliance of the Whitney Government, and the drink interests. At the recent meeting of the Executive of the Dominion Alliance the report presented, made this reference to the three-fifths clause:

> "Again the grossly unjust and progress-hindering three-fifths' requirement was shown up in its one-sided liquor-favouring character."

Figures were quoted in the report to show that if it had not been for the three-fifths' clause nearly the whole province would now be under local option. Very plainly the three-fifths' clause is not in the interests of temperance and as it serves to retain licenses it must be in the interest of the liquor party; and the grim hold the Whitney Government keeps on the three-fifths' clause helps the public to form some opinion of the nature of the bond between the Government and the advocates of licenses. As to there being an alliance, a compact, or aan understanding the public have the material for forming an opinion. If abolition of the liquor traffic is desirable the public have the matter in their hands. They can appreciate the source to which they can look for support and assistance in realizing their desire. If they prefer to exercise loyalty to political affiliation, to exercising loyalty to the progress of temperance principles, they will get just what this action brings.

HOW PARTYISM CHANGES THE ANGLE OF VIEW

It has been observed that no two persons, describing an event of which they were eye-witnesses, to a jury in a court trial, will tell the same story in detail, though their main story may agree. This illustration of differing ways of seeing things applied to newspaper reporting of political happenings works out a good deal in the same way, but a good deal more so. Yesterday's Globe contained the following despatch, referring to a caucus of the Liberal party in parliament. The despatch, with the heading reproduced, was as follows:

LIBERALS WILL CARRY THE WAR INTO AFRICA

Welcome Coming Debate on N. T. R. Report—Decision of the Caucus.

Ottawa, Feb. 24.—A Liberal caucus was held this morning principally to discuss organization work for taking up various phases of the questions to be debated in the Commons during the next few weeks.

It was decided to thoroughly ventilate the report of Messrs. Gutelius and Lynch-Staunton on the National Transcontinental. The Liberals in Parliament will make every effort to secure the fullest possible disclosure of all facts bearing on the expenditures of public money on the road both under the late Government and under the Borden Administration. They welcome the coming debate on the report as affording opportunity to make a complete and convincing reply to the misrepresentations and inaccuracies of the two scandal-hunting Commissioners. The Liberals will carry the war into Africa and make a sustained and vigorous attack on the Government's attitude in regard to the degrading of the road and the non-fulfillment of the Parliamentary agreement with the Grand Trunk Pacific.

The Mail and Empire of the same date has the following despatch referring to the same ocasion:

LAURIER'S REFUSAL TO QUIT PLUNGES LIBERALS IN GLOOM

Plain Talk of Party's Hopeless Future Follows Caucus on Transcontinental Report.

Ottawa, Feb. 24.—A lengthy caucus of Liberal members was held this morning. Reports of what took place indicate that there was a lot of plain speaking from the rank and file of the members in regard to the series of disasters brought upon the party under its present leadership. The greatest unanimity was displayed on the subject of going home; the Liberal members can't see the session close up too soon.

The last knockout, the report of the Transcontinental Railway investigation, was the principal subject of discussion. It is felt by a majority of the Opposition that there is no answer to the revelations made in this report, and no sense in making the finding the subject of debate in the House. The leaders, on the other hand, feel that it is up to them to make what defence they can and transfer any responsibility that can be transferred.

There are indications of a growing restlessness in the Opposition, and an increasing dissatisfaction with the Laurier leadership. Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux is reported to have ambitions of his own, with which ambitions the continued presence of Sir Wilfrid Laurier conflicts. Other Opposition members recognise the hopeless future of the party so long as Laurier is at its head, and some of them are beginning to talk "out of meeting."

It is evident that the rumblings have reached the ear of Laurier, causing his otherwise uncalled-for statement in Montreal that he does not intend to give up his job. His occasional references to the possibility of his retirement, always followed with a declaration that he will stay, are occasioning comment even among Liberals.

Here we have two reports of the same events as diametrically opposite in character and statement of fact as is possible to conceive.

The chances are that the Globe's report is approximately correct. Newspaper reporters are not admitted to party caucuses, and the only way to secure a report of what took place is to get the information from some one who was present. The caucus being a Liberal one and the Globe a Liberal newspaper, it is probable that it was furnished with the information by somebody who knew; so that the Globe's summary of the proceedings is substantially correct.

On the other hand the Mail and Empire, being a politically opposition newspaper, would not be furnished with any statement; and the enterprising correspondent had to depend upon his imagination for his facts, which he naturally concocted, and coloured to suit the reading public his newspaper caters to.

While the independent reader may take the Globe's report with the proverbial grain of salt, though depending upon its generally substantial correctness, it is impossible for the most rabid reader of the Mail and Empire to accept its concocted report as even an approximately correct report of the occasion it assumes to deal with.

SHOULD PRESS FOR PROHIBITION

This is the Opinion of Many Delegates at the Session of Dominion Alliance To-day

SOME SUGGESTIONS

Special Wire to The Examiner:

TORONTO, Feb. 26.—There was a decided feeling at the session of the Dominion Alliance to-day that there was too much time being spent on resolutions for amendments to the license law and that an effort should be made towards total prohibition. The matter came up when the report of Committee on Law Enforcement was being considered the request that more adequate penalty should be made for selling without license. "Why ask for more restrictive legislation," asked Minister Rowe of Berlin. "Why not ask for a complete prohibitory law at once. Why waste our time further in this fiddle-de-dee business," said W. H. Orr; "why continue all these amendments? We are opposed to the whole matter. No action was taken in this direction, however.

ROWELL GIVES HIS SYMPATHY, ETC.

every opening that is that support I am, and I have always been, a true friend to the liquor interests, and I have been backed up by my constituents in doing so. I am a poor man, living only upon my small sessional allowance, and do expect that the legislation will see its way clear to help me along. Now in my letter to the board I ask at least $10,000, payable $3,000 now, and the balance per instalments, in order to support me. I am prepared for that salary to be the defender of the association, and I will introduce before the Legislature any amendments to the Government measures to restrict the liquor traffic, etc. I am the only M.P.P. in the Ontario House who will place himself openly against that policy of Rowell and the restrictions to the trade brought from time to time by the Government. I believe it would be useful to your association to have an M.P.P., who would be there in the House to accept and present to the House all the suggestions coming from your important body. Will you kindly support my application, which I believe the board, at its next meeting? I will sign any agreement which your board will require to be sure that I am the man who will fight for your cause in the House. The newspapers of Toronto have published already my interviews with the reporters at the time I have refused to support my leader on that ground of prohibition, etc. I am the only M.P.P. who has taken that open step in the House and before the province. I am anxious to have the matter settled up as soon as possible as I have to be financially supported at the present time. You have known my late father, Hon. A. Evanturel, ex-Speaker of the Legislature, and ex-M.P.P. for the County of Prescott before me, and during his long and prosperous public life he has fought the battle for the hotelkeepers whenever he had the opportunity to defend your rights, etc. Confident of your strong support before the next meeting, I am, very truly yours,

(Signed) Gustave Evanturel,
M.P.P. for Prescott County.

While Mr. Ferguson was reading the letter Mr. Evanturel interrupted with the remark, "I do not think it is fair at the present time to read this letter to the House. Later on I can state my position as against or in favor of the policy to abolish the bar.

"Order!" said the Speaker.

"I would like to have a few minutes to explain my position," said Mr. Evanturel.

The request was ruled out.

"He should take care," concluded Mr. Ferguson, "when he comes into this assembly and makes a charge that his own hands are clean and free from being mixed up with the liquor traffic. But instead of that he has the temerity to stand up in this House and with a flourish say there is a corrupt alliance between the Conservative party and the liquor interests."

Referring to the episode in a brief speech at the evening session, Mr. Rowell drew attention again to Mr. Evanturel's charges of grave abuses in the license administration in Prescott, and said that it was absolutely no answer to the allegations to make a charge or an attack upon Mr. Evanturel himself. The charges must be answered on their merits and public attention should not be diverted from that fact.

Regarding the letter produced by Mr. Ferguson, Mr. Rowell said: "The attitude of the hon. member for Prescott has, ever since he has been in this House, been one of opposition to our policy of the abolition of the bar. He has never voted in favor of it. He has publicly stated his opposition to it."

That position he was entitled to take, continued Mr. Rowell, but there was more in the letter than a statement of opinion, and that was the part the Liberal leader regretted.

"But speaking to-night in my position of responsibility as leader of the Liberal party in this House," he continued, "I want to say there is absolutely no justification, I think, which the honorable member for Prescott can give for writing the letter he did, and I want to take the very first opportunity to disclaim all responsibility and all sympathy with the expressions contained in the letter with reference to his attitude in the House."

Mr. Evanturel will have a statement to make when the orders of the day are called.

Liberal Caucus To-day Decides Member for Prescott Should Not Be Allowed to Take Part

FORFEITED HIS RIGHT

PARLIAMENT BUILDINGS, Toronto, Feb. 26.—At the adjournment of the Liberal caucus to-day, Leader Rowell stated, "Mr. Evanturel came to the caucus this morning and made a statement and after making his statement retired." It was unanimously decided that Evanturel should not be again recognized as one entitled to take part in the deliberations of the Liberal members of the Legislature.

15,000 Saw Ball Game In Old London

Special Wire to The Examiner:

LONDON, ENG., Feb. 26.—Fifteen thousand people, including King George's party, saw the Chicago White Sox defeat the New York Giants, this afternoon, five to four. It was the biggest baseball game in the history of Old London. It was noticeable that the English spectators failed to appreciate the excitement of the game. It was an eleven-inning game.

NO EXPLANATION OF THE CAUSE OF SUNDAY'S FIRE

Reports from Gunsmoke to-day state that there is no explanation of the cause of Wednesday morning's fire which destroyed the village emporium, opened in November by Col. Sam. Hughes. Some believe an overheated furnace was responsible, and a few place the blame on a carelessly thrown cigar stub. Col. Hughes, brother of the Minister of Militia, visited the village to-day and an investigation will be held. The fire was discovered at 5.30 a.m. The Lindsay Warder said:

Mr. Albert Stinson, who lives close by the building, noticed the structure all ablaze, and on going to the scene of the disaster was confronted with the idea that the doors must have been pried open and the burning was of an incendiary nature. It is understood that no insurance was carried on the building. It was impossible to save anything. Added to the roaring of the flames and the intensity of the heat was the explosion of the ammunition stored in the building. The reports resembled the rattle of musketry and the bullets flew in all directions. This naturally had a tendency to scatter the spectators.

After the fire had licked up the interior, the massive roof fell in. The front wall also went out and the end wall has separted from the sides, making the situation a dangerous one, as the remaining walls threaten to fall at any time.

The structure is a total loss, and the villagers could not realize that a fire would bring such destruction to a building of this character.

THE STONY LAKE FISHING SEASON

To the Editor, The Examiner:

Sir,—I have read with considerable surprise the report of the Stoney Lake Cottagers' Association, which appeared in The Examiner a few days ago. It seems that certain members of the Association are anxious to change the date of the fishing season from the 15th of June to the first of July. The motive at the back of this move seems to be aimed at our tourists, who generally arrange to visit our lake at the opening of the fishing season, and enjoy the privileges which our regulations afford of spending their vacation and their money among us while the season lasts.

It seems, however, this does not suit the whims of some of the members of the Association, who cannot make it convenient to get up to the lakes before the first week of July. They want the first chance at the fish—they want all the fish to come to their nets, and let our welcome tourists bide their coming! Pretty nice sports, that can see no other interests but their own. I wonder what the proprietors and guests at Vinemede, Burleigh, McCracken and South Beach have to say about such selfishness? The season at our summer resorts is short enough now, as every one knows, but this certainly would shorten it still more.

If the pretence is to "protect the fish," I would suggest that the Government charge a license fee of ten dollars to every man who puts a line in the water.

Yours,
Stoney Lake Ratepayer.

May Remove Some Of The Arc Lights

Experiments are being tried out in connection with the street lighting system, with a view of cutting down the number of magnetite arc lights that are at present distributed along George, Charlotte and Hunter Streets. The opinion has been freely expressed of late that there are more than sufficient lights along the streets mentioned, and that as economy is being demanded in how justifiable cases, the lights should be reduced. On Tuesday evening one circuit was turned completely off, throwing the lights out on one side of the street, from then the illumination of the street was greater than that supplied by the old system. Last night the lights were "staggered," that is to say every alternate light on each side of the street was turned off. The difference in the amount of illumination was scarcely noticeable to the passer-by, and more than one, who noticed the changes, expressed the opinion that one half of the present lights could be dispensed with or distributed along other streets, where they would be more useful than ornamental.

George Kleine's Photo Drama "Between Savage and Tiger," a Thrilling Novelty

George Kleine's production of the Cines photo drama "Between Savage and Tiger" is a complete change from anything he has ever presented and affords a vivid and striking contrast to "The Last Days of Pompeii," which he recently produced at "The Grand." It serves to show that the Cines Company of Italy can handle modern subjects with the same charming artistic finish that characterises all of their classic productions.

"Between Savage and Tiger" is a tale of adventure and romance in the jungles of India, and abounds in thrilling and exciting scenes in which man-eating tigers, water-buffalo, antelope, elephants and other wild animals play a conspicuous part. The [illegible] of a young officer who is court-martialed and dismissed from the army for absenting himself from his post of duty without leave, to visit a sick wife and child. He wanders to India and is captured by a tribe of savages who marvel at his wonderful power as a marksman in killing tigers and other animals who have been annoying the tribe. While in captivity, the daughter of the Chief falls in love with him and there are other reasons for holding him prisoner. Meanwhile his wife and child set out to find him, and while at sea are ship-wrecked by the burning of the vessel. They manage to reach land through the aid of a faithful old sailor. They happen to land on the shores of India and after many adventures reach the tribe where the husband and father is held captive. The union is happy but is clouded by the jealousy of the Chief's daughter, who realizes there is no hope for her with the young officer's affections. The balance of the story has to do with the adventures that befall the little family in their efforts to escape to civilization once more. The photo drama is divided into six parts and has enough thrills in it to supply plots for half a dozen stories or stage melodramas. Mr. Kleine's production of "Between Savage and Tiger" will be seen here for the first time next Tuesday at The Grand, and will continue for four days at 7:30 and 9 p.m., with daily matinees at 2:30 and 4:00 p.m. The prices will remain the same, 10c any seat.

A PLEA FOR THE ELDER BROTHER

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Kind Sir,—I am wondering if you will kindly allow a mere woman a little space in your excellent paper. Thoughts have been suggesting themselves to my mind and I have been trying to shape them into a little sermon, the foundation of my sermon being 'The Elder Brother.' I have never to my recollection heard or read anything to recommend this excellent fellow. We hear many sermons in these days, based on his prodigal brother, that one is inclined to feel a tinge of jealousy for this dear, faithful elder brother. I will write of this man, not as a unit, but in a collective sense, for there are many elder brothers, and sisters, too, in this old world of ours, as well as many prodigals, and while in many instances they have had like their prodigal brother, the mad blood rush to their brain, the terrible incentive toward wrong-doing, yet have conquered their selfishness and stayed by father and mother, or the dear one that needed them. They have felt, too, and responded to, the Divine and tender call from a crucified, yet risen Saviour to be a living witness for Him on this earth, and trusting to that power which He said should be at their disposal, have lived lives of winsomeness and helpfulness and been true to all that was good and noble, yet how little encouragement they get from the pulpit. There was a time a few years back when these dear, faithful souls did come in for a little share of love, and I remember this particular form of love was termed saint coddling, but saints are not coddled now, they are lashed, with the tongue Sunday after Sunday and called lazy and indifferent, and everything that is bad because they do not go to the haunts of vice and drag out by the collar the brother who ran away from home of his own free will; but we read in the parable that when the prodigal was filled up with his own ways he made up his mind to return, and as a rule they do not return until then. This little sermon was suggested to me after attending a service last Sunday morning, supposedly for Christians, and perhaps there were others like myself who were cruelly disappointed. Some of us, or, at least I will say one of us, was yearning for Christian fellowship, and that conscious communion of kindred spirit which is so necessary for Christian work, with a desire in the heart to keep the last commandment of the Saviour to his followers, "That ye love one another," yet all this seemed to be thrown back in my face as the leader in an unloving way, accused us with bawling from Sunday morn till late at night, but never lifting a finger to help bring home a prodigal to God Now, I am not saying this unkindly. The preacher I refer to is a truly noble man in many respects, but like many another has given all his love to the prodigal and has none for his brethren. Is it to be wondered at if Christians get discouraged? Surely every preacher, every teacher, should know that to obtain the best from their pupils they must appeal to the best that is in them, and not to the worst, (we get from one brother man what we give.) Give love and you'll get love. Misjudge your brother and you will receive the same rebuke without tact, and the same will be thrown back to you, for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap, and with what measure ye mete it shall be measured to you. Again may I suggest to all the clerical community that they divide more evenly the love they have betwen saint and sinner, for I have sampled the sermons in my day of many denominations and they err in this respect.

Yours truly,

"THE DEAR FOOL"

One of the Best Comedies to be Seen Here This Season—An all Star Cast

At "The Grand" on Saturday, matinee and evening Charles Frohman will present for the first time in this City, those charming English players, Eva Moore and H. V. Esmond, assisted by the entire London Criterion Theatre Company.

Both Miss Moore and Mr. Esmond have held leading positions upon the London stage for a number of years, and their appearance here should be one of the brightest events of the season. "The Dear Fool," Mr. Esmond's latest play, will serve as the medium of their introduction. It is described as typical of that Esmond who wrote so excellent a play as "The Wilderness," and so popular a one as "When We Were Twenty-one": that is to say it closely commingles wit and sentiment and is in form a well-made play. Things happen; the story is highly interesting the characters well drawn and the auditor is held throughout its three acts.

Miss Moore and Mr. Esmond play two interesting middle-aged people and pass through a romance just as though they were twenty years younger. The clever actor-author and the clever comedienne are seen to splendid advantage in their respective roles. The supporting company is excellent and comprises Estelle Deepa, Marion Courtney, Reginald Grasdorff, Leslie Banks, Howard Stuart, Constance Groves, Jessamine Newcomb, Fred Grove and Harry Ashford.

PUBLIC FUNERAL SERVICE AT CHARLOTTE STREET CHURCH

Touching References to the Death of Rev. T. J. Mansell --Service Was Largely Attended--"A Shepherdless Flock."

"We are not burying angels, we are burying men and women. If we were burying angels our words would be meaningless." The speaker was the Rev. S. J. Shorey, D.D., of Lindsay. Below him, embowered in flowers, lay all that was mortal of a beloved husband, father and spiritual ministrant of Charlotte Street Methodist Church. Beyond that, and exceeding the seating capacity of the edifice was the congregation. They represented what was referred to as "a shepherdless flock," mindful of the silent form that lay half hidden among a profusion of floral tribute as whose earthly ministrations were ended. The strengthening rays of the February sun penetrate the exterior of the Church, contributing to the scene within, a multiplicity of shifting colours, that were transmitted from the stained glass windows.

The Service.

It was a few minutes after 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, when the remains of the late Rev. T. J. Mansell were wheeled from the parsonage to the Church. With one accord the entire congregation, together with the choir, rose reverently to its feet, while Chopin's funeral march was played by Miss Mabel Curry, former organist of the Charlotte Street Methodist Church. Then followed the invocation which was pronounced by the Rev. G. H. Williams of the Hamilton Conference. Prayer was offered up by the Rev. William Johnston of Lakefield, after which the first and second lessons were read by the Rev. F. J. Sawers and H. J. Keith of this City, respectively.

"Gone to Rest."

Rev. W. Limbert of Oakwood, President of the Bay of Quinte Conference, paid a glowing tribute to the memory of the deceased. "The sudden passing of the mortal into immortality," said the speaker, "leaves an impress that time alone can remove. The departed has gone to his rest. The mortal hath put on immortality. This thought brings comfort and cheer to those upon whom the burden falls heaviest. We all know of his dignified and manly deportment. As we have looked upon the sweet form from time to time, we have been impressed with the spirit that existed within the man. We are cheered by those messages of love that we have listened to, and how they have unfolded to us the glorious privileges that are ours. The thought of glory, immortality and eternal life, not only brings a measure of cheer, but penetrates the gloom. How cheerful are the words of the Master who said: "I will not leave you comfortless. I will come to you." We not only deeply sympathize with the family which is so suddenly deprived of a guiding hand, but extend our sympathies to the congregation who have lost a good and faithful shepherd. We hope and pray that God will strengthen and maintain the flock and that the sudden passing of the toiler will impress each one of us with the necessity of preparing ourselves for the Divine call, that may come at any moment. It is a good thing to depart life without suffering. That in this case will serve to mitigate the burden of those that sorrow. He has not ceased to live. He basks in the sunshine of the Divine presence."

Peace At Any Price.

Rev. Mr. Webb, representing the Ministerial Association, said:

When one member suffers, all the members suffer with it. Our City, said Mr. Webb, has been bowed under the burden of a great grief. One of the happiest of homes has been suddenly smitten and wrecked beyond repair. A representative Church has been bereft of its pastor and leader. The City has lost a conspicuous figure and an influential citizen and the Ministerial Association has lost, a brother indeed.

It was a kind thought on the part of those arranging this service to make a place for a few words of sympathy and appreciation from the body I have the honour to represent.

On some such occasions words of fulsome flattery are uttered which serve no purpose and jar on sensitive spirits, but no one present will have any such feeling when I venture to characterise our departed brother in the words of Tennyson,

How modest, kindly, all accomplished, wise,
With that sublime repression of himself,"

He never sought prominence. His ministry was not spectacular. He did not beg to be respected because of his office, but brought glory to the office by his faithfulness in it. He was not anxious to be heard on every question, but when he arose to speak he always commanded the attention of his brethren and not infrequently carried their judgment. He was not an apostle of peace at any price, but when he opposed his brethren he did it with such kindliness and dignity as made any after bitterness impossible. I see him yet, all on one recent occasion after something of a conflict, he walked up to his opponent, shaking hands with him, he said: "I congratulate you on being a strong, fair fighter."

I was associated with him for three years in the city of Montreal and learned to love him. It was a pleasure to hear that he was coming to Peterborough three years ago, and since his coming every hour spent with him has been an hour of blessing.

We sat alone together for twenty minutes last Saturday night talking of our work. He said: "No matter how hard I work I reach the week end feeling that it is only half done." Speaking of his Friday evening 'at home,' he said: "How much we need all evening to ourselves, we have so few of them."

His last visit to the centre of the City was in the interests of the Ministerial Association and the entire community, and his weighty and kindly words on that occasion will not be unfruitful. His last message to his own people will surely have an undying echo. To all of us "He being dead yet speaketh."

For his weeping widow, who was in a special sense his "chum, we would pray, again borrowing the words of the bard—

His love unseen but felt o'ershadow thee,
The love of thy dear sons encompass thee,
The love of all thy people comfort thee,
Till God's love set thee at his side again."

To the mourning congregation, an American poet speaks for us—

"Your pastor has gone touring,
On a trip he's long been earning,
To that wonderland whence tickets
Are not issued for returning.
Of tender good heart shepherd,
Your sweet smiling lips half parted
Tell of scenery bursting on you just the moment that you started."
Your loss—our loss, is His eternal gain. To our Lord we all bow, seeking to say, "Not my will but Thine be done."

Message From Brantford.

Mr. E. Sweet, who is a member of the Official Board of Brant Avenue Methodist Church, Brantford, said that he doubted if any minister ever got closer to the hearts of the congregation that he represented than did the late Rev. T. J. Mansell during his pastorate in Brantford. His commanding presence and magnificent physique were more than outweighed by the admirable qualities which he possessed. He was a man of sound judgment and tolerant sympathies, and was held in the highest esteem of the community in which he moved.

Rev. Mr. Shorey of Lindsay.

That the late Rev. Mr. Mansell had arranged to exchange pulpits with the Rev. M. Shorey of Lindsay, some time in April next, was disclosed by Mr. Shorey himself. The latter, who is chairman of the Lindsay District was in the City on Saturday last, and while here had arranged with the deceased, to exchange pulpits. "It is with no idle thought that we gather around the dead and recall their works, said the Rev. Mr. Shorey, when we pay respect to the honoured dead we reflect honour upon the living. We are not burying angels, we are burying men and women. If we were burying angels our words would be meaningless. He has passed with a suddenness, sufficient almost to shatter our faith. "Oh joy to know that for His child He keepeth best till last."

A Link Has Been Broken.

"There is a greatness that does not perish or pass away when the body is laid in the tomb," said Rev. William Johnston, chairman of the Peterborough district. We sympathize with the home that has been bereft. A link in the chain has been broken, a chair is vacant. We think of the congregation who that has been deprived of his ministrations, and we think of the words uttered by the founder of Methodism, "God buries His workmen, but carries on His work."

"God's Noblemen."

Rev. A. K. Birks of Dundas was present on behalf of the Dundas Methodist Church. Deceased was pastor of the Dundas Church prior to his removal to Brantford. "He was esteemed and beloved by the entire congregation," said Mr. Birks. "He was one of God's noblemen and was respected by the entire community."

Rev. R. G. Peever pastor of George Street Methodist Church, referred to the passing of the deceased as a crowning triumph of a well tried and tempted Christian life. "He kept unswerved the last mile," said the speaker. "His life represented the highest quality of pulpit eloquence. His death was his greatest victory."

Mr. R. F. Downey, member of the official Board of Charlotte Street Methodist Church, made a touching reference to the death of the deceased, who by his own true Christian character, had endeared himself to the congregation of Charlotte Street Methodist Church. "Life is but a suburb to the life that is to come," said Mr. Downey.

The Music.

During the service, the choir sang Woodward's "Crossing the Bar," unaccompanied and under the personal direction of Mr. John Chase. The latter at the close of the service, rendered the "Dead March in Saul," while those who were in the Church passed out, after viewing the remains.

SUCCESSFUL CONCERT GIVEN AT THE PARK ST. BAPTIST CHURCH

In expectation of great things a large crowd assembled in the Park Street Baptist Church last evening, notwithstanding other attractions in the City. Their expectations were fully realized, the Choir, numbering some forty voices, augmented for the occasion by the addition of several voices from All Saints' Church, rendering the selections in an admirable manner.

Rev. F. A. Conners presided, and opened the meeting with a hymn in which the audience joined, and invocation.

The Choir opened in Pinsuti's "O Night Most Blessed". A stronger tone was noticeable when the feeling of the importance of the occasion was off.

Mr. Ed. Jones was heard to great advantage, his rendering of the tenor solo and obligato, assisted by a double quartette, in "Seek the Lord" (Roberts), being most enjoyable. This was Mr. Jones' only appearance.

"The Promise of Life," one of the old songs which it is always a delight to hear, was sung by Miss E. A. Hill, his talented young lady also favouring the audience with several readings which were vociferously applauded and encored.

Mr. G. Chandler, if one might be permitted to single out any one performer, carried off the vocal honours. His interpretation of Stainer's "My Hope is in the Everlasting," was greatly appreciated, the encore bringing forth "If With all Your Hearts". Mr. Chandler has a voice of exquisite sweetness, with both range and power, oratrio apparently coming easy to him.

Donald Heins' "Softly Now the Light of Day" requires great expression, and was very creditably sung by the Park Street Mixed Quartette, and the Male Quartette were happy in thir selection of Towner's "Good Night."

"Praise Ye the Father," "The Radiant Morn" with 'God that Madest (Naylor), solo, Mr. G. Chandler, were well sung by the choir, particularly the second chorus, which was exceedingly well rendered.

A word of praise is certainly due to the youthful conductor, Mr. H. Hill. It was a revelation to many to see and hear what Mr. Hill has accomplished in twelve months. Such success spells much hard work and untiring energy.

His versatility was shown in his singing of the song "Abide With Me" by Liddle, the piece serving to demonstrate the rich baritone quality and range of his voice.

The accompaniments of Miss M. Moore and Miss M. Flowers left nothing to be desired.

MINISTER PRAISES ZAM-BUK

Tells How It Cured His Wife's Bad Sore.

When Everything Else Had Failed.

Rev. Henry J. Mouton, of Blackfalds, Alta., writes: "My wife had a very bad, sore foot, which it seemed impossible to get anything to heal. The sore would heal to a certain point and then fester again, and so on. I procured a box of Zam-Buk, and after persevering with this herbal balm for some time the sore was completely healed.

"We were so grateful for this cure, and Zam-Buk acted so differently to any other of the numerous remedies we had tried that I thought you ought to know of this case. I have since recommended Zam-Buk to several of my parishioners, and it always gives satisfaction."

Another instance in which Zam-Buk proved of unequalled value is told by Mr. N. L. Gerry, of Brandon, Man. He says: "I had my left foot run over by a waggon loaded with wheat. The foot was very badly crushed, and my little toe and the next toe were laid open. I applied Zam-Buk, and only had to miss work for two days. Zam-Buk healed the wound so quickly that on the third day I was able to put on my boot and walk to my work. In a very short time my toes were quite healed, and the foot is now as sound as ever, thanks to Zam-Buk."

Just as good for chronic sores, ulcers, piles, blood poison, burns, scalds, eruptions, eczema and all skin injuries and diseases. 50c. box at all druggists and stores, or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto. Try Zam-Buk Soap, too, 25c per tablet.

"NEVER SAY DIE"

Clever Nat Goodwin Here To-morrow Night

Mr. Nat. Goodwin and his company of gifted players, in "Never Say Die," will not fail to convince the public during their forthcoming engagement at the Grand to-morrow (Friday) evening of the sincerity of Mr. Goodwin's desire to give the patrons of this popular theatre the best entertainment possible in the always varying development of art and variety in light amusement.

"Never Say Die" has proved itself the dramatic bijou of the current season among the comedies thus far produced, and critics everywhere, as well as that portion of the discriminating public which have witnessed it, have unanimously agreed upon the singular charm and distinction of it as presented by Nat. Goodwin and his brilliant co-workers; among the more prominent being Margaret Moreland, Charlotte Lambert, [illegible] Wilson, Walter Clinton, Clifford Robertson, Dennis Clough, Taylor Marold, Mabe Vrohman, Dan Moyles, Master Bidgood and others.

The story of "Never Say Die," a farcical comedy in three acts, by W. H. Post, is about one Dionysius Woodbury, whom the doctors have pronounced a dying man, and with this end in view, forthwith proceeds to involve himself and his large fortune in a mesh of complications of the most amusing nature. And it is the unravellings of the above that furnish nearly three hours of laughter of laughter for the audience.

A production entirely in keeping with Mr. Goodwin's standards will prevail.

March Will Open Up With Storms Of Rain, Wind And Snow

Weather Forecasts for Next Month by Rev. Iri Hicks in "World and Works."

HINTS FOR MONTH

A reactionary storm period is central on the 4th, 5th and 6th. The regular storm period, however, central on February 27th, reaches at least two days into March, and storms of rain, wind and snow will be passing western to central sections of the country up to the 2nd. A change to much colder, rising barometer and clearing weather will follow these storms reaching the Atlantic seaboard about the 3rd and 4th. On and touching the 4th, 5th and 6th, reactionary disturbances will develop and run their course over the country fro mwest to east. It will surprise and enlighten you to see how your barometer, thermometer and hygrometer will respond to the cosmical influences that lie behind all these storm periods and their varied phenomena. Increased solar intensity causes a rise in temperature, and this in turn is followed by atmospheric humidity, changes in barometric pressure, and electrical and magnetic potentialities. These forces accumulate, rise to a maximum, and culminate in storms, violent changes in weather conditions, and earthquake disturbances. Of all the appliances known to science, the barometer is the one thing of greatest worth in foretelling the on-coming and the intensity of storms and other disturbances. Behind the storms of rain and snow about the 4th, 5th and 6th, look for rising barometer, clearing weather and much colder for three or four days.

A regular storm period, and one that should excite apprehension and watchfulness, is central on the 11th, and extends from about the 9th to the 14th. This period is coincident with the annual period of maximum electric and magnetic unrest, growing out of the peculiar relation of the Earth's magnetic pole to the Sun. The Moon is also in opposition to Earth and Sun and at an eclipse node on the 11th, and on the celestial equator and in perigree on the 12th. Phenomenal manifestations of natural, free electricity and magnetism, in the way of earth currents, auroral lights, magnetic perturbations, thunder storms and earthquakes, are among the probable things to expect each year, within a period of about fifteen days, taking March the 11th as the central day of the period. Magnetic instruments, electrical machinery, and telegraphic appliances are often incommoded and disabled by phenomenal excess of these forces at this March period. A maximum of such disturbances is probable at this period. Along with these phenomena, we venture to admonish the public that wicked equinoctial storms are reasonably probable, on and touching Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, the 11th, 12th and 13th. Keeping this warning in mind, and watching barometer and other meteorological indications at the time, all may be in readiness for the most distressing and violent types of storms—all the way between tornadies from the south and blizzards from the north. The general disturbances will follow the law of storms, that is, develop in western regions and pass over the country, progressively from west to east, followed immediately on the west by high barometer and change to unusually cold for this time of year.

A reactionary storm period lies at the entrance of a Mercury period, with possibly the Venus influence still holding control on the 16th, 17th and 18th. The Moon is at greatest south declination and last quarter at this time, which fact will induce wind currents from northerly regions, and after low barometer cloudiness and rain, the period will culminate in snow, rising barometer and sharp cold for the season. The Mercury influence, blending with Earth's equinox, nearing its centre, will most probably cause a long hard spell of threatening if not storm weather, at this time.

A regular storm period is central on the 22nd, the central day of the Earth's Vernal equinox, and within two days of the centre of Mercury's equinox. The Moon is on the equator on the 25th and in apogee and new on the 26th. This period promises to bring a time of prolonged and general storminess, with two or three paroxyms of wind and rain, culminating in widespread and destructive sleet storms. A dependable barometer should be within reach, and its indications noted constantly and with care, during all the disturbances of this and other March periods. With high temperature, wind from southerly directionse, and barometer much below normal, dangerous, tornadic storms are liable to appear at any time during this period. As counterparts to violent tropical storms at this time look for sudden and violent reversion to high barometer, heavy snow and sleet, high winds from the northwest, and changes to sharp cold for March. The time of the greatest probable violence and danger will be on and touching the 23rd, 24th and 25th. The new Moon, or conjunction of the Moon with Earth and Sun on the 26th, will prolong low barometer, high temperature, and tendency to electrical storm, quite up to the reactionary period immediately following. We freely confess that this last regular period for March is difficult to diagnose, but it is safe to say that a commingling of tropical and boreal storms are almost certain—storms of more than ordinary persistence and intensity, all attended and followed by wintry, bleak and discomforting condition of the elements.

A reactionary storm period will come close on the heels of the preceding disturbances, causing the prolonged unsettled conditions to break into storms of rain, turning to snow northward, on and next to the 27th, 28th and 29th. Clearing, colder weather as March goes out.

A marked seismic period is central on the 11th, involving the 8th to 14th. Days of greatest earthquake probability are the 11th, 12th and 13th. Watch for reports. The last seismic period for March is central on the 26th covering the 23rd to 29th. The 25th, 26th and 27th are the central, critical days of this period. Watch them.

It All Depends on the Liver

So important is the liver and so great is its influence on the other vital organs of the body that it may be said you have little to fear from the ordinary ills of life so long as the liver is in healthful working order. The digestive processes are so dependent on free action of the liver that any derangement of this organ soon brings trouble.

Biliousness and constipation follow, with headache and depressed spirits. Additional work is thrown on the kidneys and soon the whole eliminating system is deranged and the blood carries poisons through the body. Careful eating is a great help towards keeping the liver right, but when it does get wrong there is nothing like Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to restore the liver to healthful action.

With the secretion of bile by the liver, constipation and biliousness are cured, and the digestive and excretary systems are set in order. It is wonderful the benefit obtained by a few doses of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills under these circumstances. A trial will convince you of their superior merit.

NEW CITY HOUSE-KEEPING

Women are not only caring for their homes, but they are transforming the man-made municipalities. When you enter our street cars, right in front of you, in large letters you read: "Expectorating on the floor of this car is forbidden." This, at first, was a woman's notion that was very hard to get into municipal heads, but years of perseverance made halting Boards of Health agree to take steps to protect the public by curtailing the filthy habit.

Now a reputable citizen hesitates to throw a scrap of paper on the sidewalk and does it with a guilty feeling, and even a newsboy knows where his banana peel belongs. But the reputable citizen and the newsboy had to have years of training by the women's clubs before this was accomplished.

Sweeping our streets, garbage collection and its proper disposal were all inaugurated by the organized efforts of women.

The purity of our food supplies is looked after by the women and no longer does meat hang outside in a well-regulated town, and the storekeepers are being forced to cover their fruit and raise their vegetables two feet from the floor, out of reach of dogs and cats.

The best city house-keeping and the best house-keeping always go together, and the women are finding the way.

The local Council are not only trying to clean our City streets, but they are trying it in a moral way.

Will be a Gala Day in Peterborough. Everybody is going in for it energetically each one ready to keep the ball rolling. It will be a day of features, hundreds of them, perhaps thousands of them, but the one big, astonishing feature will be

What a Dollar Will Do on That Day

The Merchants are going to do their part by preparing at their stores, the Biggest Dollar's Worth of Goods they can possibly offer. They will be values to remember and look back to with pleasure for many a day. Only a small percentage of the Merchants were seen by the Examiner yesterday and all were perfectly willing to co-operate, but every Merchant in the City is asked to participate by making up as many Big One Dollar Values for One Day Only, as they can find in their stock. Enquiries at the Examiner Office will be cheerfully answered. The Examiner is going to tell you the list of Stores where the big dollar values are to be found, and everybody far and near is invited to the feast prepared at the request of the Examiner.

There will be other very important features of the day that will be explained before the big day comes, and this announcement is simply a preparation for more good things to follow. If you have any friends in the district within a radius of 25 to 40 miles, get word to them to be sure and come, for this Dollar Day will surely beat any other feature day Peterborough has ever seen.

GETTING A START

By NATHANIEL C. FOWLER JR.

(Copyright, 1913, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate)

Viewing the matter through purely legalized glasses, the employee is in command of himself in the interval between the hour of closing and the hour of beginning his work. This time is his own and he has the legal right to dispose of it at will. He may allow sufficient time for sleep or keep late hours. He may indulge in dissipation, to the injury of himself, his prospects, and his fellows. He may read and study. He may play.

The employer has neither the legal nor the moral right to designate what the employee shall do out of working hours.

Away from his work the employee is subject to no interference, if he does not break common law.

Millions of young men, and almost as many young women, look upon their personal rights as supreme. If arrive promptly in the morning and do not leave until the closing hour, and if they keep busy in the interval they feel that they have delivered as much of themselves as any one including their employers, has a right to expect or demand. They resent interference and pride themselves upon what they call the rights of the individual.

Much of this pride is false pride, based upon that kind of individuality which is based on conceit.

While the employer has no eminent domain rights, if I may put it that way, over what the employee does out of office hours, he still retains the legal power to discharge the employee if he disapproves of any action, whether it occurs during office hours or outside of them.

The employer purchases not only the time of the employer between specified hours, but he further has a right to expect from that employee his best work.

If the employee delivers to the employer the best there is in him, the employer has no right to interfere with the employee's way of living, provided he does not bring disgrace to the firm. The employer cannot, and should not, object to late hours, to lack of sleep, or to other bad habits, if they do not interfere with the employee's effectiveness.

It is a fact however that any form of dissipation, mild or otherwise, interferes with effectiveness during working hours, and that no employee can render his best service if he does not use his off-time properly.

The "late nighter" cannot equal the working day to his advantage or to that of his employer. The giving of so many contracted-for hours' work is not sufficient.

The employer, therefore, has a right to demand that his employees use their offtime in such a manner that what they do will not interfere with their work, and the successful employer will discharge an employee who comes to the office unfitted to do his best.

The employee has a right to play in his owne time, but he has not a right to rest in his employer's time. He has neither the legal nor the moral right to enter the office unfitted for work because of overstrenuous social life, and he will not retain his position or gain promotion unless he renders his best.

I am not asking any one to sacrifice his independence or sacrifice his individual rights, but I say to him that, employee he gives the best of himself in his work, and lives in such a manner that, because he gives the best that is in him, he is not hampered to accomplish all that his ability would warrant.

Doing as you please may be suicide—suicide of health, prospects and success.

OSHAWA BEAT BELLEVILLE 5 TO 4 AFTER RAGGED EXHIBITION OF HOCKEY

Neither Team Showed the Class That Might Be Expected From Semi-Finalists—Belleville Looked Like Winners Until the Last Fifteen Minutes.

WHITEHEAD'S WORK BAD

Without showing much of the class that might be expected from a third round team, Oshawa defeated Belleville in a sudden death junior O.H.A. game at Brock Street rink last night by 5 goals to 4 after ten minutes overtime. Belleville, who have been in the discard for over two weeks, and who unexpectedly found themselves back in the running because Oshawa protested successfully against Kingston, and the Frontenacs dropped out because they figured they got a raw deal, sent up a scratch team, but they gave the Eaden-Bradley combination an unexpectedly hard fight, and had they been in condition would undoubtedly have sent the Oshawa gang to the stable. Belleville were shy Goyer, Finkl and Mills and their forward line were playing together for the first time in their lives. Their showing was a big surprise to themselves as well as to the overgrown Oshawa seven, who looked more like an intermediate team than a junior aggregation. Belleville were in front 2 to 1 at half time and with ten minutes gone in the second half had a 4 to 1 lead, but they faded and with considerable assistance from Referee L. Whitehead Oshawa came on and tied up the game. In the first five minute of overtime, Weller, leading offside at centre, was allowed to get away with a goal that looked like robbery, and the counter beat Belleville.

Neither team showed the class that was looked for. Combination was almost entirely overlooked and there was no system about the attack of either forward line, no one being on hand after rebounds or passes across the mouth of the nets. Each team had some good individuals, but team work was sadly lacking, and it was the opinion of the Peterborough portion of the crowd that the local juniors could have beaten either team. Orillia should, and undoubtedly will, beat Oshawa handily.

Peterborough fans did not take kindly to the half dollar prices, and the crowd was not large. The local fans who were there were all for Belleville, and they gave Referee Whithead an awful panning. He earned it at that, his work being away off colour, and Belleville got by far the worst of the deal. Oshawa's offside passes by the half dozen were allowed to go, and Weller's goal in the overtime, was nothing less than a gift. Worst of all was his allowing Riordan to get away with chopping down Green, the Belleville rover man. It was a deliberate slash over the ankle, and committed right in front of Whitehead's nose. Green had to be carried off, bt there was no penalty inflicted. Big as he is, Riordan should be satisfied to use his weight. He is a very effective defence man, and Belleville had trouble in stopping his rushes. Next to Riordan, Weller was the pick of the Oshawa bunch, although he would not have been nearly so dangerous if Whitehead had kept him from loafing.

For Belleville, Box at rover, and Nurse, the little goal keeper, were the best. Box was the fastest man on the ice and one of the best players seen here this winter. He is lightning fast and a beautiful stick handler. Nurse performed magnificently in the nets. He had a host of shots to handle and made some superb stops that earned the admiration of the crowd.

Pemlock, the big defence man, who is not yet seventeen, was also good.

Belleville had no combination at all, and Oshawa showed but very little. In fact the quality of hockey was disappointing all through.

The teams were:

Belleville — Goal, Nurse; defence, Pemlock, Moore; rover, Box; centre; Arnott; right wing, Green; left wing, Dorschner.

Belleville were the first to score, Green beating Jacobi on a neat shot from the side after 45 seconds of play Oshawa, who started out as if the affair was a joke, soon found that they had a game on their hands. Belleville checked back well, while they had the condition, and made things decidedly interesting. Oshawa were not passing the puck, and Belleville forced them to shoot from outside, Nurse handling the long drives with ease. Finally, after seven minutes of play, Williams hammered one through from a scrimmage, tieing the score. For the next ten minutes Oshawa had a shade the best of the argument, but Nurse beat all their long shots, and it was Belleville who finally scored, Box beating Jacobi from a mix-up. There was no further scoring in the half.

Oshawa Tied tht Score.

Belleville showed a lot of ginger after the rest and for the first ten minutes had Oshawa on the run. Box made it 3 to 1 after a nice rush, and when Green beat Jacobi with a long shot from the wing it looked as if Oshawa might just as well have left Kingston alone. Riordan, however, got away for a nice rush and although the Belleville defence skated him into the corner, he managed to slip the rubber out in front to Hall, who beat Nurse. Arnott was hurt shortly after and was forced to retire. While he was off Oshawa tied it. Miller and Weller combined for one goal, and Hall got the tieing counter from a scrimmage. Shortly afterwards Riordan slashed Green, who retired for repairs.

Belleville rallied and held their own until the end of the hour.

Four minutes after the first five minutes overtime period commenced Weller, loafing offside at centr, took a pass and beat Nurse with the winning counter.

Hockey—That's All

The Coboconk Intermediates beat the R. U. Well Club seven last night on Parker's Rink between 10 and 11. The half-time score was 10-0, while the full-time score was 11-5.

St. Andrew's and Charlotte Street Church teams will meet to-night at 7 o'clock, at Parker's Rink, in a game that may decide the championship of their group in the Junior Church League.

At the Sacred Heart rink on Tuesday evening, from 7 to 8, the Sacred Heart School defeated the St James' Guild hockey team by a score of 12 to 1. The half-time score was 4 to 1.

The stars for the Sacred Heart team were Kennealy, Murray and Coursey, while Freeburn, Rahill and McLeod worked hard for the losers.

The line-ups were as follows:

Sacred Heart: Goal, Ranger; defence, Coursey and McCharney; rover Murray; centre, Kennealy; right wing, Audette; left wing, Shaughnessy.

The Mercantile League Executive put through a matter last night that violates all the principles of true sport and that will make it a very difficult task to revive the League next season. With six teams in the race the League opened this season with the common-sense system of pooling all the receipts into a league fund, to be divided equally among the teams at the end of the season. That is the system used in the old City League and in the Junior City League of the present season, and it is a good one.

However, the Mercantile League has broken away from this fair-play method by voting that the receipts from the two extra games necessitated by the tie among the Tool Room, Test and Bankers, should be divided among these three teams, leaving the other three clubs out in the cold. The same situation came up in the old City League several seasons ago when the Stadtconas and West Ends tied. Although the interest in the League race was centred on these two teams all season and they were the League's drawing card there was not even a suggestion from the management of either team that the big receipts from the play-off game should be divided between the two. The gate went into the League funds and was divided among the four clubs.

This week the Junior City League had an extra game to decide the tie between the Exploits and Y. M. C. A. and the Alerts and Wanderers share equally with the others in the receipts.

This is the only fair system—the only way to keep a local League running. The weaker brothers must be looked after or the organization will fall to pieces.

The Mercantile League has made a bad mistake.

BASEBALL

HAMILTON, Feb. 25.—Highly recommended by Connie Mack, manager of the Athletics, world's champions, and Ira Thomas, catcher on the Philadelphia team, Dr. R. W. Yates of Philadelphia has been appointed manager of the Hamilton Club for the season of 1914.

Yates is a right-handed pitcher, who has seen service in the Texas League, and with the Philadelphia Nationals. For the past three seasons he has coached the Swarthmore College squad and is said to possess the happy faculty of being able to handle and develop young players. He is also a college graduate with a dental degree. With Yates will come five college players, two of them secured by the Hamilton Manager himself, and three of them sent here by Connie Mack.

Britannia Park has been leased for five years and extensive improvements made. Davey Rowan has cancelled his contract with the former owners of the club without pressure being brought to bear.

EVIDENCE ALL IN

times called twelve good men and true, have to sit down, as reasonable and honest men, and as good Canadian citizens, and bring in a conclusion of the evidence that has been brought, and you will have to answer the questions that the judge will ask you. From the questions, you gentlemen, will have to arrive at a conclusion, and say what amount, what reasonable amount of money as damages, if any, you will allow as compensation for the loss that this man has sustained. It is a hard case in one sense, and an unfortunate case. You have to consider the fact of what these children might have been to their parents. They may have come to year of discretion, and might have been a great help to their parents. They may have become good and generous children, and they may have become worthless and shiftless. Then again, they have been removed, even by death. In making your decision, I would ask you to consider these facts, and an amount which you think justifiable and reasonable; and according to the answers of the questions, His Lordship will make a decision, as to whether the corporation were negligently responsible for the death of these three children. I have called every member of the Council of Havelock, and they all say that there was never any complaint made to them about the condition of the pit.

It is funny, that the eleven year old companion who was with these children at the time of the accident, was not called, as well as the mother and grandmother, who saw these children shortly before the accident.

Mr. Kerr then read the questions which His Lordship would put before them for their decision, and in forceful and eloquent terms pointed out the reasons, as they appeared to him, why these questions should be answered in favour of defendants.

Mr. O'Connell, counsel for the plaintiff, said:

As reasonable men, I ask you to make a reasonable finding that it was through the negligence of defendants that these children came to their death. The evidence that I shall put before you is from the witnesses that were brought by the defence, and this will be most forceful.

Two of their witnesses, Palmerston and Matthewson, say that these overhanging ledges existed. These conditions had been in existence for years. Lesson had that day himself drawn a load of white sand from the very spot where the accident happened, half an hour before the children got there. To prove that the children must have found a cave there, I state that the oldest said, according to witnesses, "Let us go in and play." Can you gentlemen conceive a picture that was more alluring, attractive and destructive to these small children, and which drew them into the pit. It is only natural that children will go to places where there is sand. Their parents take them to the seaside and to the lakes, and that is a proper place for them to play. While playing there, the overhanging ledge fell down, and completely buried the bodies of these children. When cries attracted attention, the oldest child was found buried in sand to its knees, and then when asked by the father to assist in getting out the bodies of the other two, Palmerston said that he did not know they were there, so completely were they covered by sand and dirt.

Contributory Negligence.

That there was an contributory negligence on the part of the children, continued Mr. O'Connell, can not be reasoned. A child of two does not exercise that characteristic of the law. Then again, children were not required to observe the same as adults. Children cannot be negligent, because their minds were yet forming, and had not properly developed. In this world, we learn by experience, and experience makes us a careful man. That there was any negligence on the part of the father and the mother could not be. The other was sick in bed, and the father was lying down after his work. The negligence rebounds on to the corporation. Firstly because the corporation allowed them to go there, secondly because they did not have the pit fenced, and thirdly because they had allowed this dangerous digging to continue for a number of years.

Damages.

The only question now left for you to consider is the question of damages, and that is the most difficult feature of the whole case, and I do not want to leave a wrong impression of how these should be formed. As my learned friend has rightly told you, you must not allow your mind to be influenced by sentiment, not by the suffering that this family has sustained. There is always, I know, a tendency to sympathise with cases of this kind. Your sympathy must not be considered in this case, and your verdict must not be influenced by the fact that the family suffered. Suffering cannot be recompensed by money, and as the law says, suffering being immeasurable, no compensation for that shall be made at all. But you must exercise your common sense as reasonable men. Whether these children would have been a burden for many years, we do not know. Where God sends little mouths to be fed, He sends something to feed them with. This man has spent every dollar he had to support his family, with the devoted parental love of an affectionate father's heart. You must understand that you must allow a reasonable amount of money, to compensate to the reasonable claim that this man had, of his children assisting him some day, and for that reasonable expectation he was entitled to compensation in law.

Why does a father and mother take assiduous care of the children, making all the sacrifices that human love can possibly dictate? Why, because God has planted in their breast the parental affection, which after long years of toil and manhood break down, and old age and infirmities creep upon him.

The children may die, the parents may die, therefore make your finding in accordance with the ordinary walks of life.

Nothing can bring you to a perfectly accurate conclusion, but in presenting these facts before you, I ask your favourable consideration of the same.

His Lordship Justice Kelly, in addressing the jury said:

I thank you for the kind attention that you have given the evidence, and also the quiet hearing that you accorded the counsels. In making your decision in this case, you are not to take into consideration anything but the evidence. The addresses of counsel are not to be considered, and you must not let sentiment or sympathy interfere with your decision. What counsels say is attractive, but is not evidence. It is evidence marshalled together, and presented in a form which they think will influence you most. This case is an exceptionally hard one. You are here to administer justice. Courts do not come to a conclusion taking into consideration sympathy or sentiments, but upon the hard facts of the case such as presented before them. You cannot assume, and you must not assume, any personal influence in the case. His Lordship then reviewed the evidence at some length, proffering advice in points of law.

After the jury had been charged, they retired at twenty minutes to two o'clock.

WASHED TOOTSIES IN SODA WATER

Lady Stewart Richardson is Cabaret Dancer, but Husband Is At Hand.

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—Lady Constance Stewart Richardson's tootsies, a bottle of club soda, a merry waiter, and an angry husband, furnished the Great White Way with its newest thrill to-day. It all happened at the Cafe Boulevard, in the wee sma' hours, when Lady Constance made her debut as a cabaret dancer barefooted.

At the sight of the little pink tootsies everyone cheered. As the shapely feet pained after an encore, her husband, Sir Edward Stewart Richardson, took a bottle of club soda and proceeded to bathe them.

A passing waiter snickered at this sacred process of fixing the feet. The laugh angered Richardson, and he hung crepe on the garcon's eye with a terrific wallop. Then the foot-washing was resumed, and the dance went on.

Among those dining in the cafe at the time were Mr. and Mrs. Amos Pinchot, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Hapgood, Nicholas Biddle, Richard Harding Davis and Prince Troubetsy.

Mercantile Hockey League

Special Meeting Called at the Eleventh Hour--A Manifestly Unfair Course of Action Decided Upon

A special Executive meeting, to which one delegate from each team was invited, was called at the eleventh hour, last evening, the only announcement being through the press, which probably several concerned did not see much before half past seven, the hour named for the meeting, at the Review Office.

So short was the notice of meeting that excepting the ex-officio members of the Executive, viz., the President and the Secretary, no member of the Executive Committee was present. And only those "in the know" representatives of the teams were in attendance.

There are six teams in the Mercantile League and the schedule was intended to be played off in five nights, three games being played off each night. Each of the six teams put up the same entrance fee, viz., twenty-five dollars, each team to take an equal share of gate receipts, or vice versa, to pay an equal portion of any loss incurred, supporting the League, to use the popular expression, went "in the hole."

When the fifteen games had been played it was found that three teams viz., the Bankers, Test and Tool Room were equal, consequently three additional games, which gate money off to decide the w...ner of the Challenge Cup.

It appears that, unknown to the rest of the teams, the three leading teams had approached President Nelson with the proposition that the whole of the gate money for the additional games—which gate money ought to be the property of the League, to be divided equally between all League teams—should be given to the three leading teams. So cut and dried an affair was this that the coalition teams, apparently with the knowledge of the President and Secretary, had caused a number of tickets to be printed for the match to be played next Monday which were to be sold for their benefit and to the prejudice of the other teams of the League.

Vice President Russell fought and argued hard against what he declared to be a monstrous injustice. The losing teams, he contended, had joined the League in good faith and had done their level best, even if they had not been victorious. Unfortunately the De Laval team was not represented owing to the lateness of the notice, the result being that the three teams interested, together with the President, who being engaged in the O. G. E. works, would naturally favour those teams, outvoted the others, and the confiscation of proceeds was allowed.

The President's argument was to the effect that as the schedule number of games had been played off the losing teams could not expect more, but the Vice President pointed out that as there were tie games the play-off games were part and parcel of the Mercantile schedule, and if not, then the finals ought, in fairness, to be played as exhibition games, independent of the League.

As a sequence Mr. Frank Russell has tendered his resignation as Vice President of the League, he being unwilling to be any party to what he termed "a hole and corner conspiracy". Or, he adds, if it be not a conspiracy it looks very much like a twin brother.

Grand Jury's Presentment

The following is the report of the Grand Jury to Mr. Justice Kelly:

To the Honourable Mr. Justice Kelly:

May it please Your Lordship,—

We, the Grand Jury at the Winter Assizes of the Supreme Court of Ontario at Peterborough, wish to take this opportunity of offering hearty congratulations on Your Lordship's elevation to the bench of the highest court of the province, and to welcome Your Lordship on this first occasion of your visit to Peterborough in a judicial capacity.

In making its report, your Grand Jury heartily concur in the remarks of Your Lordship in pointing out the absence of criminal cases at this sitting of the Court, a matter which we feel reflects credit upon the community. In accordance with your instructions we have carefully inspected the public institutions within the city, visiting the court house and jail, we found by a small number of prisoners, most of them serving short sentences. We found them well cared for and the surroundings in good order, all parts being clean and well kept, and prisoners well cared for.

We visited the Nicholls Hospital, and St. Joseph's Hospital, where every facility was afforded us of obtaining information, and making proper inspection, and we believe that every skill and care is being exercised in respect of the patients by those in charge of these institutions. We also visited the House of Providence, where a large number of aged men and women are cared for, and everything pertaining to this institution appears to be in the best of order.

We visited the St. Vincent's Orphanage, where 19 girls and 29 boys, many of whom are orphans, others children of poor unfortunate parents, are at present well cared for, and provided with sustenance, by the Sisters in charge of this institution. We visited also the Protestant Home, and found 11 women and 20 men, are at present provided with every necessary comfort, and are treated with kindness by those in charge.

We also visited the Children's Shelter, where two girls and four boys, under the care of a Children's Aid Society, are being cared for, and receive good attention.

We are pleased to report generally, as the result of our inspections, that all the public institutions in this city are in a good sanitary condition, and that the inmates appear to be well cared for by capable and efficient officials. With respect to fire escapes of these buildings, we recommend that the proper authorities have them inspected, especially the central one on the east wall of St. Joseph's Hospital, and one on the old building of Nicholls Hospital, with the view of improving their present form of construction, in so much as the upper end of their iron stairways rest on wooden balconies, instead of iron ones secured to the side walls of the buildings, directly in front of the hall windows, or doorways.

At the Protestant Home there are no fire escapes from the top or third flo[illegible] the building, and we accordingly recommend that the iron stairways with balconies at the second and third floors be provided for each wing. We also pleased to report the exceeding courteous manner of all the officials in receiving the visit of the Grand Jury, and acknowledge the readiness with which all questions were answered in excess given to any department we wished to visit.

In conclusion we, with all other citizens, are proud of the city and county, and the material progress being made, and gladly acknowledge that one of the most potent influences toward the advancement of our country is the manner in which the administration of the law is carried out by our Judges so well known for their impartiality and integrity.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

ALEX. GRANT,
Foreman.

Tax Reform Proposals Voted Down in the Legislature

NO EQUALITY AT PRESENT

TORONTO, Feb. 27.—The debate on the address in reply to the speech from the throne was concluded yesterday when the third Opposition amendment, that of Mr. J. C. Elliott regretting the failure of the Government to propose assessment reform legislation was defeated and the original address upheld by a vote of 57 to 17.

The budget is due next week.

In introducing his tax reform amendment to the address in reply to the speech from the throne, Mr. Elliott referred briefly to the extension of municipal suffrage for women, which, he hoped, would be granted this session.

As for tax reform, there could be no doubt of the general desire for it, he said. Why was go sweeping a verdict rendered in Toronto last year? Was it because the mass of the people were Liberals attempting to embarrass the Government, or was it because there was a general demand? The people knew what they wanted and meant what they said.

Opposing the argument that local option in assessment would introduce a checkerboard system.

In the Townships of East and West Williams, in his own county the taxes on land were $32 per acre and $2 on buildings, while in [illegible] and $5 on buildings, respectively. All through the province varying ratios prevailed. It meant that the whole system was one of inequality. Nowhere would it be possible to find a system that so deserved to be called a "checkerboard" as that in the province. In Toronto the difference in assessment between 1912 and 1914 was $13,000,000, and whereas the people of Middlesex had taken years to bring an increased value of $37,000,000, Toronto had greatly exceeded this in one year.

R. B. Gamey (Con., Manitoulin) said Mr. Elliott's arguments were ridiculous. Taxation had no connection with the farmer coming into the city. There was no exorbitant tax in the province, and if the big cities paid more than the country why should the farmer come in from the easier districts.

Mr. Gamey stated that there might be some weak points in the law. The fact that there were variances in the taxes lay at the door of the different assessors. His own opinion was that a whole country could be better served by the one official rather than by having one in each municipality. The system might be wrong, but it was being carried out conscientiously, and there was no reason why one place should suffer more than another.

"I differ with the Assessment Act myself in some respects," he declared, "but when you come to talking of exempting buildings, having single tax on land alone I differ entirely. I know that plan would not serve better. The act is as equitable as could be devised. Further, every man should pay a tax on every dollar that he possesses, no matter where it is."

Z. Mageau, Sturgeon Falls, followed Mr. Gamey. He contended that any amendment which would bring about a remedy in the present system of assessment and taxation would be a move in the right direction. He declared that the present system was a hardship on the settlers in New Ontario, because it favored the non-resident owners who got their statutory work done by proxy and that such a condition hindered development.

A. E. Thompson, Centre Simcoe, said that Mr. Mageau was attacking the Government for not doing something it had already done, referring to the matter of agricultural college training in rural districts. He instanced the thirty-seven traveling representatives who visited various parts of the province and said that over fifty farmers' sons in his own constituency had already received training in all branches.

T. R. Atkinson, North Norfolk, declared himself in favor of taking taxes off improvements and placing them on land.

Allan Studholme vigorously supported the amendment, declaring in favor of leaving the option of fixing its own assessment with each municipality.

Compulsory Service Advocated.

OTTAWA, Feb. 27.—The Canadian Artillery Association, at its annual meeting here yesterday, concurred in the resolution of the Ontario Artillery Association, in favor of "universal military" training for Canada, which term the president, Col. Lacey E. Johnson, said was a mild way of saying "compulsory service."

The recommendation will go to the Militia Department.

LOCAL WOMEN AGREE WITH STAGE BEAUTIES

Of all women in the world, probably those on the stage are most particular about their personal appearance, and especially in the care of the hair; and when such leading stage beauties as Ethel Barrymore, Elsie Ferguson, Natalie Alt, Louise Dresser, Rose Coghlan, Laurette Taylor and many others are so enthusiastic about Harmony Hair Beautifier as to write in praise of it, that is certainly evidence that it does just what they say it does—promotes the hair. There are many women right in this town, and men, too, who regard it as indispensable, because it makes the hair glossier and more silky, easier to dress and make stay in place. Sprinkle a little on your hair each time before brushing it. Contains no oil; will not change color of hair, nor darken gray hair.

To keep hair and scalp dandruff-free and clean, use Harmony Shampoo. This pure liquid shampoo gives an instantaneous rich lather that immediately penetrates to every part of hair and scalp, insuring a quick, thorough cleansing. Washed off just as quickly, the entire operation takes only a few moments. Contains nothing that can harm the hair; leaves no harshness or stickiness.

Both preparations come in odd-shaped, very ornamental bottles, with sprinkler tops. Harmony Hair Beautifier, $1.00. Harmony Shampoo, 50c. Both guaranteed to satisfy you in every way, or your money back. Sold only at the more than 7,000 Rexall Stores, and in this town only by us.

THE HOUSE IN UPROAR

Opposition Demands Withdrawal of Col. Hughes' Statement

VICTORY OVER THE SPEAKER

OTTAWA, Feb. 27. — For more than an hour yesterday the House of Commons was in a state of angry uproar, the vehemence of which has been matched only by the memorable scenes of the day-and-night naval struggle of last session. Col. the Hon. Sam Hughes was confronted with his statement, read from the pages of Hansard, that Hon. Sydney Fisher and "some of his friends in this House" had secured a "rake-off" in the purchase of a rifle range, and he sat silent under Sir Wilfrid Laurier's stinging challenge. Sir Wilfrid finally forced the Speaker to reverse his ruling.

Mr. E. B. Devlin, the Liberal member for Wright, rose to a question of privilege. He read from Hansard some observations delivered by Col. Hughes in the House last Monday, which were in substance to the effect that Hon. Sydney Fisher, then Minister of Agriculture, and certain Liberal members of the House at that time had unloaded upon the Government the land now occupied by the Farnham camp in the eastern townships. Col. Hughes went on to say that these gentlemen had loaned money upon land supposed to be suitable for growing tobacco, that the land, which was a mere morass, turned out to have no value, and that they had procured a rake-off to the extent at least of saving their investment by inducing the Militia Department to buy the land for the purpose of a cavalry camp.

Speaker Sproule interrupted Mr. Devlin to rule that no question of privilege was involved.

Mr. Devlin submitted that he was quite in order. He proceeded to read from the published denial of Hon. Sydney Fisher, and said that the Minister of Militia and Defence had given false information to the House. He was sorry that neither the Prime Minister nor the Minister of Militia were present, but trusted that the Minister of Trade and Commerce (Mr. Foster) would inform his colleague that he had made a statement about an honorable gentleman, which upon investigation he would find to be calumnious.

The Speaker again called Mr. Devlin to order because Hon. Sydney Fisher was not a member of Parliament.

Mr. Devlin said it was customary for a judge to hear a case before deciding it, but Mr. Speaker was evidently ruling in advance.

The Speaker again intervened and Sir Wilfrid Laurier rose to protest. The member for Wright (Mr. Devlin), he said, had risen to a question of privilege. Surely Mr. Speaker had been hasty in ruling him out of order before he had been able to state what the question of privilege was.

The Speaker repeated his ruling, and, after some further argument, Sir Wilfrid appealed from the decision.

"It is gag rule," interjected Sir Wilfrid Laurier, with considerable vigor, and again the Opposition benches rocked with applause. "Let us hear from the Minister of Militia," continued the ex-Premier.

Rt. Hon. R. L. Borden, who in the meantime had entered the chamber, said the point at issue was a narrow one. Had the privilege of any member of the House been invaded by the published statement of Hon. Sydney Fisher? That statement questioned the veracity of the Minister of Militia, and to that extent reflected upon the honor of a member of this House. But only the member referred to could rise to a question of privilege. Certainly Mr. Devlin had no right to raise a question of privilege in behalf of Col. Hughes.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier asked whether the Prime Minister would permit one of his colleagues to remain silent when publicly charged with having uttered slander respecting citizens of repute. He then went on to read from last Monday's Hansard, and showed that the statement made by Col. Hughes was open to the interpretation that some members of the present House were partners in the alleged grafting by Mr. Fisher.

With this point the Opposition scored, for the Speaker ruled that Mr. Devlin might finish his remarks.

Col. Hughes then entered the chamber.

Sir Wilfrid challenged him to repeat the statement or admit he was at fault. Col. Hughes refused to do the latter.

"Let me tell the honorable gentleman," said Col. Hughes, addressing himself to Sir Wilfrid Laurier, "that in this House or out of this House I do not belong to the craven crowd, that I will go a little further now. I will tell him that it is current property throughout the length and breadth of the eastern townships that the purchase of the bog at Farnham which has been unloaded on the people as a camp was engineered by Sydney Fisher. I will say further that a former member of the House by the name of Mr. Meigs had shortages on the property which could not be redeemed in any other way, and the property was unloaded on the Dominion Government by engineering of this man and Mr. Meigs. That is the current story; does the ex-Prime Minister not know it?"

LEITH GOES UNIONIST.

Bye-Election For British Commons Results In Liberal Defeat.

LONDON, Feb. 27. — The fourth and last of the bye-elections, which synchronized with the opening of Parliament, was decided yesterday when Leith Burghs elected the Unionist candidate to succeed Sir Ronald Munroe Ferguson, newly-appointed Australian Governor-General.

The figures are: G. W. Currie, Unionist, 5,189; Provost M. Smith, Liberal, 5,146; Hall, Labor, 3,346.

The only consoling feature of the result of the contest so far as the Liberals are concerned is that the combined Liberal labor vote in yesterday's contest considerably exceeds that given the Liberal candidate in the straight party fight in December, 1910. On the other hand, it is pointed out by jubilant Unionists that in the general election of January, 1910, the Liberal candidate had a majority over the combined vote of his Unionist and Labor opponents of 1,600. The constituency has returned a Liberal candidate regularly since 1832, the largest majority, 2,000, being given in 1906.

It is conceded that the Liberal candidate was the stronger from the personal standpoint. He is Malcolm Smith, provost of Leith, head of a large ham-curing business and highly popular. The Unionist, G. W. Currie, is an accountant, and was not regarded as a strong candidate.

German Parliament Upholds Soldiery.

BERLIN, Feb. 27. — The movement in the German Imperial Parliament to abolish "sabre rule" by the army collapsed yesterday. The dissolution was announced of the committee considering various bills for prohibiting the intervention of the military without a requisition of the civil authorities, forbidding the use of arms by the soldiery except in self-defence and subjecting soldiers to civil jurisdiction.

A number of the committee, composed of Clericals and Liberals, voted against the proposed measures.

PREMIER'S YOUNG SON

Master Asquith Delivered a Lecture on Aviation

Master Anthony Asquith, the twelve-year-old son of the Prime Minister, is obviously following in the constructional footsteps of his father, judging from a statement in a news published at Etaples, France.

The boy, who was staying with his mother at Cap Antifer, delivered a speech at a soiree before a number of invited guests, dealing with aviation and the differences in construction of aeroplanes.

The young lecturer described the different types of aircraft briefly and clearly, and explained the main principles of their construction. The school, too, about the exploits of the well-known airmen. He spoke without the aid of a single note.

Three years ago Master Asquith, in an enthusiasm for aviation born of a visit to the Hendon Aerodrome, became the possessor of a toy aeroplane, and his flying ground extended from the back of 10 Downing street, to the Horse Guards Parade. He now makes his own gliders, and some months ago sent one with which he had been experimenting to the editor of "Flight," with some comments on its behavior in the air.

"I thought perhaps you would like to see this glider," he wrote. "It is supposed to be a copy of the Wright-like monoplane. I am afraid it is rather battered and a little warped, but for all that it is an excellent glider. I tried it in quite a gusty wind; it behaved splendidly, beating up against the wind. It rose about ten feet, and then turned round and glided about sixty feet. If you bend this glider very hard and very much down it will rise up vertically, and sometimes loop the loop."

Troubled With Weak Back and Kidneys For 18 Years.

Many people fail to understand the significance of a lame, weak, sore or aching back.

When the back aches or becomes weak it is a warning that the kidneys are affected in some way.

Take notice to the warning and cure the backache at the first sign, for if you don't do this, serious complications are sure to arise and perhaps develop into Dropsy, Diabetes or Bright's Disease, the three most deadly forms of Kidney trouble.

Doan's Kidney Pills will strengthen the weak back, and prevent any form of kidney trouble entering the system.

Mrs. Ed. Boyer, [illegible], writes:—"I have been troubled with weak back and kidneys. I had terrible dizzy headaches, and could not sleep at night. In this way I suffered for ten years, until I read about Doan's Kidney Pills. I purchased two boxes, and as they helped me, I sent for two more; they put me on my feet, and I have been able to work ever since."

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50 cents a box, or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

If ordering direct specify "Doan's."

THE REPENTANCE STOOL

In the National Portrait Gallery and Museum at Edinburgh, Scotland, there is a large room which is stored with antiquities, and which is of great interest to every visitor. In a certain dimly-lighted corner, there is a stool which is carefully kept as a relic of the days a century and more ago, when offenders in the Church were treated with severity under the strict discipline of the Scottish Church. The stool is known as the "Repentance stool." Above it, there hangs in a glass case a long gown made of sackcloth. The person undergoing punishment was compelled to wear the gown of sackcloth, and to sit on the stool in the presence of the whole congregation for one or more Sabbaths according to the seriousness of the offence against the law of the church. In the same place may be seen the actual manacles and chains that were placed upon the hands and necks of offenders, and fastened to the stone pillars of the church gates. In these humbling places, they must endure the gaze and the criticism of all the worshippers.

NIGHT WORK FOR HENS

How the Supply of Eggs Has Been Increased

Possibly a solution of the egg problem may come out of the attempts to make hens work nights as well as daytime. Mr. William H. Cook, an Englishman, whose father brought out the breed of Orpingtons, has experimented along that line and reports considerable success. In his poultry houses are 300 electric lights which fool his stock into the belief that the sun has not set. Two hours after the regular day has been finished he turns off the 32-candle power lamps and half an hour later those of 16-candle power are switched out. The sleepers of the birds then begin to climb up to the roosts and soon most of them are on their perches. For nearly an hour more the eight-candle power lamps are left burning. Then complete darkness finds all the chickens abed. Lengthening the day, Mr. Cook avers, has invigorated the old birds, made the young ones grow faster and increased the laying.
